TO SETTLE STRIKE AT B. C. COLLIERIES

Mine Operators at Nanaimo and Ladysmith Have Placed Their Case in Hands of an Arbitrator and Agree to Stand by His Decision — Militia's Arrival Quiets the Rioters.

VICTORIA, B. C., Aug. 14.—(Can. Press.)—A basis of settlement of the strike as it affects one colliery, the Vancouver and Nanaimo Coal Company, will be submitted by President Farrington of the U.M.W. of A. to the men tonight. Several days ago the company selected J. H. Hawthornthwaite, a former member of the British Columbia Legislature, as arbitrator in its behalf and agreed to stand by any arrangement he may make. If the men accept this other collieries will probably come into line. No general settlement seems to be in sight tonight.

The militia, comprising detachments from three Victoria regiments, marched into town at 10 o'clock this morning thru streets thronged with solemn, sullen miners. The 500 men from the 5th Regiment, the 88th Fusiliers, and the Royal Canadian Artillery swung along the streets in silence. Each carried rifle and side arms, as well as blankets and their ammunition pouches, and were well prepared for business.

The 500 or more strikers gathered along the streets thru which the troops marched. Two Maxim guns, the carriage holding several hundred rounds of ammunition indicated the serious nature of the militia's mission.

Col. Hall halted his troops on Front street, where the forces commanded the main business section as well as the approach to the wharf. The strikers crowded the sidewalks in the vicinity, and altho some of the miners hurled taunts at the soldiers there was no attempt to openly oppose them.

After preliminary arrangements for feeding the troops had been made by Col. Hall, he sent his men in to breakfast one company at a time, while other companies were posted across each end of the street approaching the blocks where the troops were massed.

The entire situation is regarded as extremely critical. The strikers are sullen, yet determined, and there have been many hurried conferences and meetings in the U.M.W. of A. Hall since the arrival of the militia. There is an air of mystery about the strikers' headquarters, and indications are that they have not played their trump card yet—whatever that may be. There was no question about them expecting the arrival of the militia, but the strike leaders did not expect the troops to come quite so soon, and in such large numbers.

Ordered Chinese Out.

VANCOUVER, Aug. 14.—(Can. Press.)—A telephone message from Ladysmith at noon today stated that a mob of 500 had marched thru the Chinese quarters and ordered all the Celestials to leave town by 6 o'clock. The terrified orientals immediately began packing. Ladysmith shows signs of mob violence and the shattered windows give evidence of the night's outbreak.

The Ladysmith mob, says the message, believe that the steamer is to land militia there and the mob is preparing for this contingency.

Farmer's Boy Drowned.

MINDEN, Aug. 14.—(Special.)—A home boy, Arthur Baker, aged 16, who has lived for over a year with Edmund Harrison, farmer, on Kushog Lake, near Minden, left home Sunday evening, to hunt for cows. Not returning a search was made, resulting in his body being found floating in the lake this morning. He was fully dressed, his hat was lying under a log at the shore and his handkerchief twisted around the limb in the water. He could not swim. Dr. Pogue, coroner, has ordered an inquest to be held in the courtroom tomorrow evening.

Man's Skeleton Found.

MARKDALE, Aub. 14.—While in search of stray cattle, John McFadden came across the skeleton of a man in a swamp, a mile from Markdale. It appeared to have been a man of medium size and probably 60 years of age. It is considered that death had taken place fully a year ago, as the clothing fell into pieces when handled. The body had on a suit of blue serge with striped vest, gray overcoat, guernsey and wool shirt, black felt hat, pair good laced boots, not much worn.

HAWKINS AT MONTREAL

Bisley Winner's Reception Was Upset by Uncertainty.

MONTREAL, Aug. 14.—(Can. Press.)—"When I left for England I thought I would be lucky to get in the first hundred. When I found myself in the first hundred I thought I'd try and get a little higher."

It was a regrettable feature of Private Hawkins' arrival in Montreal tonight on his way home from Bisley that no one knew for a certainty when or to what station he would come. One crowd gathered at the Windsor street station, and another at the Place Viger. It was at the latter place the Bisley hero made his appearance. A number of the members of the local militia bodies and the Montreal Rifle Club had been permitted to pass thru the gates to the platform and these thronged at once around a slim figure in khaki uniform, shook hands with him, patted him on the back, photographed him and jostled one another to get a better view of the straight, trim young fellow with the clean cut, bronzed face.

As the party passed thru the gates a cheer went up from the great crowd gathered in the concourse, continuing until Private Hawkins had passed thru the station to the automobile waiting for him. The welcome, while quite impromptu, was hearty.

At 9 o'clock, after attending a dinner arranged on the spur of the moment, Private Hawkins was permitted to depart to see his wife, who came to Montreal to greet him.

Private Hawkins will remain in Montreal until Saturday morning, when he will leave for Toronto.

TELEGRAPH BRIEFS.

Miss Sylvia Pankhurst was again released from Holloway Jail yesterday as a sequel to a "hunger and thirst" strike. She was in a condition of collapse.

The western freight rates hearing will not be resumed before October, as Chairman Drayton has gone to England to enquire into the ocean freight rates case.

The Dominion Sugar Company's application for reduction of rates between Wallaceburg and Hamilton and Wallaceburg and Toronto has been dismissed by the Railway Board.

When a nippel on a steam pipe running into an ammonia passage at the Consumers' Gas Company's plant in Toronto yesterday blew out, several men had narrow escapes from being injured.

No official action in regard to the Nanaimo strike riots is being taken at Ottawa. Both sides have already declined to accept the services of the Labor Department to settle the dispute by conciliation.

The first symptoms of the wrecking spirit that invariably follows a big carnival came to the surface in Hamilton last night when several bands of half-drunken hoodlums interfered with the police.

Youngsters made an attempt yesterday to burn the Carnavon County School. The fire was discovered shortly after it was set and the firemen were able to extinguish it before much damage resulted.

THE BRITON REFUSED

U. S. Marshals Failed to Catch Russian Nobleman.

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 14.—(Can. Press.)—A plan to halt the big C.P.R. liner Empress of Russia at sea and take off Prince Stanislaus Sulkowski on a charge of white slavery, carefully worked out by the U.S. marshal's office and the revenue cutter service, failed because the commander of the steamship declined to co-operate.

U. S. District Attorney Choonover at Los Angeles telegraphed to U. S. District Attorney Riddell at Seattle asking him to effect the arrest of the prince if it were possible.

It was found that the Empress of Russia on her way from Vancouver to Victoria would pass close to the San Juan Islands and that on a previous voyage she had been carried by the tide into American waters. It was planned to have the revenue cutter Auxiliary Scout lying in wait off the islands, ready to intercept the big liner in American waters and arrest the prince.

When all the other arrangements had been made, Captain Beetham of the Empress was asked to veer across the line. He refused point blank.

Mrs. Freese, mother of Princess Sulkowski, and her young daughter passed thru Seattle today on their way to their home in Los Angeles.

Gasoline Caught Fire.

SARNIA, Aug. 14.—(Special.)—Shortly after being shunted outside of the gates of the Imperial Oil Works here early this morning a large box car filled with barrels of gasoline, kerosene and other inflammables burst into flames and was utterly destroyed along with much track and other property in the Pere Marquette yards here.

The firemen were called and fought the fierce flames for four hours before they were subdued. Had the fire happened inside the plant it would be hard to estimate the damage that would have resulted. Providentially for the men fighting the fire the gasoline did not explode.

More Hog Cholera.

CHATHAM, Aug. 14.—(Special.)—It is reported that hog cholera has broken out again in the township of Harwich. Seven hogs on the farm of A. S. Maynard have been slaughtered. It is feared that the cholera is prevalent. The disease was evidently caught from some hogs that were passing thru Kent.

Harbor Work Held Up.

SARNIA, Aug. 14.—(Special.)—The harbor improvements here are being held up at the present time on account of the town councillors not being favorable to dredging in the bay, which is just above the water works intake pipe. The government set aside $50,000 last year to start the improvements.

HASSAN IS DEAD

TORONTO, Aug. 15.—Brutally beaten while sleeping in a lonely bush on the banks of the Humber River about a week ago, Hugh Hassan, aged 65, 141 Edwin avenue, West Toronto, died in the Western Hospital yesterday morning as the result of his injuries. His murderer is still at large, and it is likely that the provincial detectives will be asked to take up the case.

The county police so far have failed to unearth any clue which would be of material assistance in running to earth Hassan's assailant. There is now no doubt but that Hassan was attacked by an unknown man.

Hassan's own statement, made while quite rational, proved conclusively that he had been assaulted, but by whom he was unable to say. The victim, however, said that he knew his assailant to be a short stout man.

While conscious for an hour or so before his death and during other times since he has been in the hospital Hassan was questioned about the case. His last impressions of anything clear was when he turned into bed at 7.30 on the night in question. Someone else was in the tent with him that night, and it was evidently a man, to judge by his rambling utterances in the hospital.

Hassan may have been a victim of a mistake and been beaten by a man who mistook him for someone else. While conscious Hassan had said:

"He came into my tent about nine o'clock and pulled the clothes off me. I grabbed him about the legs, but I could not reach my ax. I threw up my hands and he struck me with a club." Hassan's wrist was broken, indicating he had thrown up his hands to ward off a blow.

But while in the hospital Hassan seemed to believe that he was in his tent with someone else. He frequently gave them directions and told them where to get the wood for the fire.

The Hassan mystery deepens, but there is one clue in the hands of the county police which may lead to developments of a startling nature.

An inquest was opened at the morgue last night by Coroner Dr. R. J. Wilson and adjourned until the 19th. The son testified that he had visited his father at the hospital and on each occasion his father had told him that a stout man had struck him. The son stated that his father had had several ribs broken in July by being crushed.

MAY BE MURDERED

KINGSTON, Ont., Aug. 14.—(Special.)—Was there foul play in connection with the death of J. A. Williamson, employed as a waiter in the steamer Kingston? He had been missing since Sunday. This morning his body was found near the wharf at Prescott. The crew of the steamer Kingston brought the news here this afternoon. When pulled out of the water a wound was found in Williamson's forehead, as if he had been struck with some instrument, and as a result of the circumstances surrounding the case an inquest has been ordered.

Sunday afternoon last while the steamer Kingston was at Prescott a colored man, Albert Royle, was drowned when he undertook to win a bet that he could swim out as far as one of the crew could throw a stick. Royle got a stick and threw it some distance farther. While endeavoring to get it, he threw up his hands and sank in view of several hundred people on the wharf and the steamer Kingston. Williamson was left at Prescott to look after the remains when they were found. They were found on Tuesday.

Monday Williamson suddenly disappeared, but on Tuesday a hat was found on the wharf which was identified as belonging to the missing man. This morning his body was found a short distance out from the wharf. Williamson, so it is stated, was given some money to pay the expenses in connection with Royle's body, but did not have a very large sum. The fact that he had a wound on his head led some to believe that he had been assaulted and robbed and then thrown into the river. Williamson was born in North Carolina and lived in Philadelphia for some time past. He joined the crew of the Kingston in Toronto and had just made one trip on the vessel.

BULLETS FLY IN DERRY

Police Have Hard Job Suppressing Street Fights.

LONDONDERRY, Ireland, Aug. 14.—(Can. Press.)—The police again today were constantly employed in suppressing street fighting between Nationalists and Orangemen. Numerous charges were made by the police, who used their clubs freely. An elderly man named Armstrong was shot dead during the fighting, which began at a political celebration on Tuesday. Mr. Armstrong was looking out of an upper window of his home when he was shot. His brother says he saw four constables pursued by a mob load their carbines and fire, but the police strenuously deny having done so. The mob was so dense and the confusion so great that it is difficult to tell what happened. According to many persons, however, the police fired over the heads of the mob, the members of which replied with revolver shots. Several persons were removed to hospitals suffering from wounds. Among them was a constable.

Early today the magistrates held a meeting and decided among other precautionary measures to have all the taverns in the disturbed district closed at 7 o'clock this evening. Late tonight it was decided to requisition troops. Quiet had been restored at midnight.

Two Prisoners Escaped.

CHATHAM, Aug. 14.—(Special.)—Two prisoners named Steadman and Labadie, the latter a mere youth, escaped from the county jail yesterday afternoon. Altho the search for them has been kept up ever since they are still at large. It is supposed that they are hiding in the outskirts of the city.

Both prisoners were doing time for theft, Steadman having been sentenced from South Buxton and Labadie from Wallaceburg. Warder Davidson had them working in the yard when they ran away. They were followed some distance but eluded their pursuers.

Striking Miners Killed.

CALUMET, Mich., Aug. 14. — (Can. Press)—One striking copper miner was killed and two deputy sheriffs were wounded tonight in the first fatal outbreak of the copper mines strike. The fight took place at Seeberville, an Italian miners' settlement. The miner was killed while resisting arrest. The deputies went to Seeberville to get two strikers who had forced the line of guards at the Champion Mine of the Copper Range Consolidated Company. The two strikers, tho without passes, refused to be halted by the guards. Later when deputies went to Seeberville to arrest them the strikers gathered and attacked the peace officers with bottles and revolvers.

Fatal Oil Explosion in Montreal Home

MONTREAL, Aug. 14.—The third victim of a terrible burning accident, Mrs. Emmanuel Madore, of Isle Perrot, died at the Notre Dame Hospital early this morning. Her death completed a triple tragedy which occured as a result of an explosion of a can of oil at Cascades Point at the home of J. A. Colston, assistan superintendent of the Soulanges Canal. The other two victims are Mr. Colston's 15 months old baby and his niece, Miss Flora Mercier, 17 years, daughter of Pierre Mercier, of Isle Perrot. Mrs. Madore, who was 56 years of age was Mr. Colston's mother-in-law. She was the mother of nine children.

Yesterday morning Mrs. Madore and Miss Mercier were preparing the dinner in the kitchen. The baby was playing on the floor. As the stove fire was not making enough progress Mrs. Madore took a can of coal oil and poured it over the fire. The result was a fierce burst of flame from the stove. A second or two afterwards the can of oil exploded, and flying in all directions the flaming liquid set the place on fire and on the clothes of the women and the baby. The baby was dead when picked up.

Dr. Leroux, of Cedars, was summoned and the government tug "Soulanges" was later obtained and the women conveyed to Notre Dame hospital, two ambulances awaiting the arrival of the boat.

Miss Mercer died at nine o'clock last night. The Coroner to-day disposed of the cases as accidental death.

MADOC.

August 14—Madoc was favored with a visit from fifteen geologists from Toronto on Saturday. They visited the talc mine and were favorably impressed by it. They left on Sunday to take in the north country.

Work has started on the armouries. Ten men are at work digging for the foundation. Mr. W. J. Hill is in command as overseer of the work; he also furnishes the brick.

The long looked-for came at last. We had a fine rain on Friday night which changed the appearance of grain crops and started up the meadows.

Wednesday, our civic holiday, an R. C. Picnic at Tweed and an excursion to Belleville made the village look like Sunday.

Mr. John Robinson has started work on his new workshop.

On Wednesday evening last, while on his way home and driving fast, Mr. A. Nicholson struck Mrs. J. Caskey's buggy. Mrs. Caskey was making a call on Mrs. Will Connor and had her little girl with her in the buggy. The horse ran away, but turned into the railway yard and was caught. The little girl was found to have fainted.

A SLIGHT BLAZE

At about 8.30 last evening, the fire brigade was called out, but fortunately their services were not required. From some cause curtains hanging from a window in a building on Front street, caught fire and were destroyed. The only damage sustained was the destruction of the curtain.

Yesterday afternoon the police were called to a residence on Church street, where boys had been stealing fruit from the trees in the garden. There were no signs of the boys when the wearer of the blue coat arrived upon the scene, but the lawbreaking juveniles are being looked for.

AT WORK ON THE CHURCH

Operations have commenced at the front of Bridge street Methodist church, the concrete walk and steps leading to the main entrance having been torn up, to be replaced by a more modernized plan. DEATH ROLL.

MRS. ELIZABETH JOHNSTON

There passed away last evening, at her late residence, 90 Mill street, one of Belleville's oldest citizens, in the person of Mrs. Elizabeth Marie, relict of the late Joseph Johnston, in her 89th year. The late Mrs. Johnston was born in Marysburg, Prince Edward County, where she resided with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Griffiths, until her marriage, after which she went to reside with her husband at Adolphustown. Mrs. Johnston was twice married, her first husband being Mr. Richard Ruttan, and after his death she married Mr. Johnston. To the former husband were born three children, one daughter and two sons, namely Austin A., Adolphustown, Enoch G., Detroit, and Mrs. David Simth, of this city.

To Mr. Johnston one son and three daughters were born; Harry, Toronto; Mrs. C. A. Abraham, Winnipeg; Mrs. R. C. Floyd, who has been in attendance with her mother for the past twelve months, and Mrs. L. J. Miller, who died at Toronto some years ago. Mrs. Johnston was a descendant of the old U. E. Loyalist stock. She was a niece of the late Rev. Wm. Griffiths, and a first cousin of the late Judge Rose, Toronto. She was of a cheerful, upright, kindly disposition, a true Christian, beloved by all who knew her, both young and old. "Grandma Johnston", as she was familiarly called, will be greatly missed for a long time to come.

Mr. CHARLES WESLEY CLARK

The following is taken from The Advocate, Bounty, Sask., Aug. 7th, 1913:

The mortal remains of the late Charles Wesley Clark were laid to rest in the Fertile Valley cemetery on Monday, when a large gathering of friends of the family assembled at Bounty to pay the last tokens of respect to the deceased. His death as announced in our last issue occurred at Bounty on Friday, July 25. He had suffered internal pains to some extent for a long period but it was only recently suspected that the cause of the trouble was cancer. This disease entered on an acute form about three weeks ago and it was decided that an operation was imperative if his life was to be prolonged. He was removed from his home to the Bounty Hospital and a serious and delicate operation was successfully performed by Drs. George and Drinnen, with every prospect of returning the patient to the ordinary routine of life. His vitality, however, was at too low an ebb and he gradually sank, death aeperevening at 4.30 on Friday last.

He leaves a wife (nee Alice Finkle) and six children to mourn his loss.

The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. H. Heathfield, in a most sympathetic and impressive manner and both at the church and the grave evidence of the deep feeling aroused was very apparent. The first part was held at the Union Church, Bounty, and the respect entertained for the deceased was evinced by the fact that this large new church and the porch were over-crowded, even the steps and sidewalk being filled with persons in full symapthy with the sorrowing family. The funeral cortege consisting of forty-seven autos and rigs, proceeded to the Fertile Valley cemetery, where a considerable number met them. The completion of the service was most impressive.

The deceased came with the very first settlers into this district and took an active part in all movements for the benefit of the community. He was a member of the first Board of Trustees of Hassocks School District and has always taken great interest in the affairs thereof. He was one of the most successful farmers in the district, and has done his full share of the work of making this one of the most prosperous settlements in the west. He was always ready to do a good, kind act, and after a useful, active and industrious life has entered into rest, lamented by all who knew him.

Charles Wesley Clark was formerly a resident of this district and was a son of the late James Clark, Corbyville. His wife was a Miss Alice Finkle, of Bayside.

DEATHS.

JOHNSTON—On Thursday evening, August 14th, 1913, at her late residence, 90 Mill street, Elizabeth Marie, relict of the late Joseph Johnston, in her eighty-ninth year.

Service at the home on Saturday evening at ten o'clock. Buried in the U. E. Loyalist Burying Ground at Adolphustown, Sunday morning on arrival of boat.

Found in Marsh Near Montreal

MONTREAL, Aug. 14.—The body of a man believed by the police to have been murdered two days ago, found in a swamp alongside the the Park & Island Railway Company's tracks near Senecal's Station at 2.30 p. m. to-day. The man's throat was cut from ear to ear, and according to his appearance had been dead from two to three days.

The remains are said to be those of a polack or other foreigner.

The body was found by Nathan Carchatz, of 1057 St. Denis street, and E. Sunday, of 67 St. Urbain street, both of whom had been walking in the neighborhood when they made the gruesome find.

The men at once informed Conductor Burke, of the Park and Island, and his Motorman, J. Connolly, who were on a passing car. The conductor at once called up the Montreal police.

The authorities have already started for the scene to bring the body into the city.

CANADA AND THE EMPIRE.

(By William J. Shanks, a Belleville boy, now of Chicago).

World-encircling are the pathways where thy call to glory led;
Bugle-note at morning colors—rolling drums at sunset hour;
Thus the lingering, endless echoes tell of thy symbolic power.

Never silent, never wearying, while the course of Empire runs;
Over sea and veldt and mountains, hear the homage of the guns;
Still they boom for Peace and Honor—for the Flag's unsullied place

What fruitage have the cycles brought from seeds of Empire sown?
Can Britons overseas evade their Motherland's appeal
For the newer policies that make toward Greater Britain's weal?

Daughter of a noble Mother—maple leaf upon thy shield!
Gifts are not the sordid measure of love thy people yield;
Should the troublous years brew danger to the Empire's flag again,
Sons of Canada are ready—be it Dreadnoughts, be it men!

From the distant prairie ranges to the throbbing city marts;
O'er the myriad homes that had their birth in strong Canadian hearts;
Broods the soul of British union—how can money gifts compare
With the service of thy children, Mother of the Titans rare?

Yet we cannot hold them useless—Dreadnoughts of the waters vast;
Twentieth century toys of nations while their childish quarrels last;
Send them proudly o'er the Seven Seas, till wars of Mammon cease;
For their drums and guns are preludes to the morning-song of Peace.

Hamilton Joyous On Civic Holiday

HAMILTON, Aug. 15.—Special—Civic Holiday was celebrated yesterday with all the importance due to its occurrence in Centennial Week. Worked in Vain to Save Child's Life

TORONTO, Aug. 14.—Gladys Eagle, the little daughter of the steward of the Queen City Yacht Club, fell into the slip at the club house this morning, and when she was missing the father searched and saw the body of his child floating face upwards in the water among the boats. The life-saving crew and two doctors were summoned and pulmotor was brought into use. For hours the sorrow-stricken father and his helpers exhausted all first-aid methods to restore life, but without avail.

Several persons were standing on the landing watching the fight for life, when the stage collapsed and nine fell into the water and were rescued by the life-saving crew.

The drowned child was three years old.

Insane Girl Sets Fire to Barns

BROCKVILLE, Aug. 14.—Since her commitment to jail from the Police Court on a charge of setting fire to the barns and outbuildings of Jeremiah Flood, the McIntosh Mills farmer Annie Curtis had been examined by two physicians and pronounced insane.

The girl was a domestic in the employ of Mr. Flood for three months and her actions at intervals aroused his suspicions of mental disarangement.

The finding of the doctors relieves the Crown of further action. The girl, who is nineteen-years-old, is held awaiting an order from the Attorney-General for her removal to the Asylum.

U. S. Women Make Plans to Hold-Up Democratic Party

Movement for Suffrage is Now to Be Made Throughout the Country

WASHINGTON, D. C. Aug. 14.—Entirely new political strategy is being planned by the heads of the women's suffrage movement in the United States, according to the first day's developments of the conference of the National Council of Women Voters in this city. No less a move than a hold-up of the Democratic party is planned.

Arguing that the time has come when the nation at large must settle the question of women's suffrage, representative women from the ten States and one territory where women may vote in presidental elections appeared before the Rules Committee of the House of Representatives to-day and demanded that a committee on suffrage be appointed.

WOMEN WHO WORK

Hamilton, Ontario, has a union composed of women bookkeepers.

The hotels and restaurants of Switzerland employ 33,529 female workers.

A number of women acted as judges and clerks at an election held at Portland, Oregon.

In Canada single women and widows have the municipal vote.

Several well known leaders of society in Paris appeared in public wearing sandals fastened around the ankles with ribbons, like the buskins of the ancient Greeks.

The Useful Sweater

Very attractive are the double sweaters, that is, the sweater knitted of worsted in two colors. The outside of the sweater is usually ribbed and is in white, but the lining is a plain loose stitch in some color, the color serving for the collar, cuffs and patch pockets. The finest of Shetland wool is used, and the effect is altogether dainty.

Another unusual sweater is the one which has collar and cuffs and pockets—if the sweater has patch pockets—of wool embroidery.

A Suffragette Story

Major-General Bethune tells an amusing suffragette story. A suffragette, so runs the story, one day went down to the brook and chose five smooth stones, and then went to the house of a Cabinet Minister. She took one of the stones and hurled it at the Cabinet Minister's window, but failed to hit it, and so with three other stones. At this point a street urchin yelled at her, "Hi, yer can't throw straight for nuts!" Whereupon the enraged suffragette turned round and hurled the remaining stone at him—and smashed the window!

Fall of a Meteorite

A meteorite weighing 37 pounds is the subject of discussion in chemical circles in Johannesburg. The stone fell in Zululand a few months ago, and was not only noticed by an eyewitness some 15 miles away, but fell within a few feet of a native woman, who gave information which led to its discovery. The meteorite cannot be broken. It is known, however, to contain platinum.

"Freedom of the Workhouse"

Notice of motion was refused by the chairman of the Cork Board of Guardians to confer the freedom of the workhouse on the Lord Chancellor, "as the Corporation were going to confer the freedom of the city on him," the chairman describing the motion as "ridiculous."

Are Ladies' Hats Perishable Goods?

An amusing incident occurred at Aberdeen during the carters' strike. An agreement was arrived at with the Northern Co-operative Company that the carters of that concern should remove only perishable goods from the station. A Co-operattive lorry began to load goods for the company's stores, and the strikers' delegate found that the goods included ladies' headgear. He remained dissatisfied with the explanation that the hats were perishable goods.

AND IT CAME TO CANADA

The following Detroit despatch, published in a recent issue of the New York American, is about the strongest justification for Canada's good sense in defeating the reciprocity pact:

"When the heads of the United States Steel Corporation learned a couple of years ago that the reciprocity agreement which the Taft Administration had negotiated with Canada had been defeated by a referendum vote in Canada, they came to Detroit, and picked out a spot across the river in Canada, where they could advantageously manufacture and ship steel, and bought it.

"They have begun work on the construction of a second Gary there.

"A Canadian city of some 75,000 population, and named Ojibway, will be built up there within three or four years.

"Had the reciprocity pact been ratified, that city would have been on the American side of the Detroit River, the labor would have been American. The supplies for this labor would have broadened the market of the American farmers who opposed reciprocity.

"The United States Steel Corporation wanted to sell its steel in Canada and was prevented by the Canadian tariff.

"It wanted to buy ore and raw materials in Canada and was prevented by the American tariff.

"It desired the best facilities for shipping to Canadian ports and all over the world by water.

"It had been contemplating building a plant on the Detroit side of the river.

"Agents had looked over the ground below the city, in the vicinity of the big shipbuilding plants, and had practically decided to buy there.

"The Detroit River forms the best harbor on the Great Lakes, completely sheltered, yet large enough and deep enough to permit the free passage and manoeuvering of the largest steamships.

"The steel corporation had its plans already made, when the reciprocity pact went to vote.

"When it found there was to be no reciprocity it just moved across the river into Canada."

CURRENT COMMENT

Sir Wilfrid is going around consulting the party leaders at various points, says an exchange. Perhaps, after all, there is an emergency.

A NEW POLITICAL CREED

The Weekly Sun, of Toronto, the non-political, in the sense of non-partisan, organ of the farmers of Ontario, declares for the formation of a third or farmers' party which shall devote itself to getting settled those insistent questions of primary importance to farmers which, according to the Sun's views, have no chance of settlement from either of the established parties.

"Theoretically, the old parties ought to respond to the needs of every conceivable element of the country. But there are times, like the present, when theory fails, and the intrusion of a third party may be necessary to start political progress," says the Sun.

Canadian politics have become an affair, not of national welfare, but of cries and echoes of passion and images of real things, vain, artificial and insincere, according to the same authority which looks to the establishment of a group or new party which cares only for national welfare and nothing at all for party shibboleths.

The Herald, of Montreal, is ready to hail the birth of such a movement with undisguised joy if it bore within itself any guarantee that it was a final breaking away from the established and narrow lines of party allegiance. But nothing in the political history of Canada tends to quicken our hopes in this regard. Should such a party spring into being it would not be the first nor the second time that the experiment had been tried. As the Sun points out, similar movements in the past have not been wholly without profit; their mere existence has not been without influence on public affairs. Yet with every recurrent announcement, with blowing of horns and monster pilgrimages, of the birth of a new political body in which none are for the party and all are for the State, belief in its ultimate efficacy has sunk lower and lower. Three years ago saw the Grain Growers' movement in the West at the height of its power, yet the leaders of the Grain Growers fell under the spell of the older parties and played politics in the established way.

Are we too optimistic in hoping that before many years have passed the people of Canada will have freed themselves from party shackles, that our first duty will be toward our country instead of toward the political group to which we traditionally belong,—and all this without the injection into the political arena of still more parties, with their utopian creeds so firmly advocated before the day of power and so completely forgotten after it. What we need is not more parties, but greater independence of the parties we have.

MONTREAL TUNNEL OF THE CANADIAN NORTHERN RY.

Although only a year has elapsed since the first gang of men commenced work on the three and a quarter miles tunnel the Canadian Northern Railway is driving through Mount Royal to its extensive terminal property in the centre of the city of Montreal sufficient progress has been made to enable the builders to predict the probable date of completion for the bore and the date of its being open to handle its transcontinental traffic.

Of its total length of 16,668 feet, 12,438 have been drilled. The heading—the primary bore is 9 by 12 feet. The drill runners are expected to meet down in the depths of the mountain before the end of the present year and there seems to be no doubt that they will meet and the daylight will be filtering through the historic old mountain which has held up the expansion of Canada's eastern metropolis for so long. Already some 1,200 feet of the tunnel have been enlarged to the full size, and by the middle of next year the twin tubes should be finished. It will be an auspicious day for Montreal and for the Canadian Northern Railway when the bore is turned over for operation.

In a technical but highly interesting article to one of the engineering journals, Mr. S. P. Brown, the chief engineer who is supervising the work, explains how European and American tunnelling methods — sometimes one, sometimes the other, and sometimes a part of both—have been used to advance the heading through the mountain. He drew comparison with a tunnel three and a half miles long driven through in the reign of Claudius in the Abruzzi. This was called the "Lake Fucinus Tunnel." It was six feet ten inches wide, took eleven years to construct and 30,000 men were engaged upon the work. To show how methods have changed, it was pointed out that in the Lake Fucinus project, crowbars, chisels, picks, shovels, and possibly drills and saws with cutting edges of corundum were used. But most of the progress was effected by utilizing fire. Heat was applied to the face of the heading until the rock became extremely hot, when cold water, or acids such as vinegar, were dashed against it to break the way on.

The Mount Royal tunnel is practically the same length, but as the heading in this case is about 9 by 12 feet, it would be more than 50 per cent. greater than in the Lake Fucinus bore. The work commenced on July 8, 1912. Since that time two shafts have been sunk and over two miles of heading driven on the tunnel line, besides more than a quarter of a mile at the shafts and the terminal sites. During the month of May the men who were engaged on this Canadian Northern tunnel work set up a new record for North America by driving 810 feet in that time. The difference in progress between the days of Claudius and the Year of Grace 1913 is therefore tremendous and is accounted for in method and equipment. Condemned criminals and prisoners were used, too, in the old days, and the death rate, owing to the methods employed, was very high. The wonder is that the work was considered possible at all.

In the language of an engineer, Mount Royal is an intrusion of igneous rock forced upward through the original bed of Trenton limestone. It is evident that there have been several stages of intrusion, or eruption, as both rock bodies are broken and cut by a multitude of dykes and sheets of varied character and evidently of later origin. The main intrusion of igneous rock is called essexite. So the two principal rocks to be encountered in the drilling of the tunnel have been Trenton limestone and essexite. The former at a considerable depth is quite hard and crystalline. Except those places where it is badly cut up by dykes it is a good tunneling rock. At the city end—for the first two thousand feet this rock was soft and there was occasional earth in the heading roof. But as the drillers progressed into the mountain it increased in hardness. The essexite is very hard but apart from that is good. The most difficult of all is volcanic brecia. When this is cut by dykes it is so badly broken and so blocky as to be extremely hard to drill.

The tunnel line is the shortest possible between the Model City of the Canadian Northern beyond the mountain and its terminal site in the centre of the city. It is believed that while most of the brecia and part of the limestone will require masonry lining similar to that in soft ground, much of the limestone will need only a centre wall for safe support. In the essexite no centre wall will be needed save for ventilation and added protection in case of accident. With the exception of one curve under the McGill University grounds, the tunnel will be on a tangent with a grade only sufficient for proper drainage. A twin-tunnel cross section was adopted for economy in excavation and construction, ease and economy in ventilation, and safety in case of accident or derailment. Underneath the walkway is a continuous refuge niche, except at splicing chambers, for workmen. Trackmen may sit on the duct bench at the bottom of the dividing wall and be protected perfectly from passing trains.

Montreal has had no previous experience with underground tunnel work, and for that reason great care had to be exercised in blasting at the city end of the work. Blasts that would have been unnoticed in cities accustomed to it, were regarded quite seriously and all "shooting" was suspended between 11 at night and 7 in the morning where there was no great covering of earth overhead. However, this did not have such a deterrant effect on progress as might be supposed. The holes were shortened and the powder became a mere trace, but the shots could be fired frequently, and that made up for a great deal.

Progress was about 17 feet a day. As the men left the city proper behind and approached the mountain, with the consequent heavier earth covering on the workings, the holes were increased in depth, and progress by three feet a day.

This Montreal tunnel in one sense, holds the key to the operation of a considerable portion of the Canadian Northern transcontinental line. From that eastern metropolis to Port Arthur this company's line stretches almost as the crow flies, when the points touched are taken into consideration; to Port Arthur on Lake Superior, the present eastern terminus of Canadian Northern Western lines which extend for 5,000 miles through the great Rainy Lake playground country to Winnipeg and beyond to the principal points in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. From Edmonton a Canadian Northern line is building through the Yellowhead Pass and the valleys of the Fraser and North Thompson Rivers to Port Mann and Vancouver. That eastern portion—one thousand miles—has been laid out, and is being built with an eye single to the rapid transportation of traffic both passenger and freight. Everywhere anything possible that would be liable to contribute delays in the future have been eliminated. Grade crossings with other roads are conspicuously absent as a direct result of this policy, and the gradients throughout the whole transcontinental have been kept down rigidly to a high standard, or up to a high standard, whichever is preferred. This was done in order that traffic might be handled swiftly on short or long hauls from the east to the west. In furthering that policy the Canadian Northern in Montreal are giving very close attention to terminal facilities for the handling of freight. The tunnel will be the company's short, direct route for trains from the sorting yards outside to the distributing tracks down in the city's business district. And, of course, there will be close connection with the lines of the Harbor Commission at the wharves where the ocean shipping is handled.

The work on the tunnel will accordingly be pushed forward with the utmost vigor in order that these advantages may be enjoyed by the Canadian Northern just as soon as humanly possible. If the statement of the builders is supported by the speedy work the men have been doing on this work during the past year, the bore should be through this year. The task of enlarging the original heading to the full size, as already pointed out, has commenced. There seems to be no reason now why the tunnel should not be completed by the middle of next year, and it is noteworthy that finishing of this terminal project has been timed, and it is being rushed to coincide with the completion of its transcontinental line across Canada, from Quebec and Montreal on the east to Vancouver on the Pacific coast.

AN APPRECIATION

Mr. Herbert B. Ames, M. P., of the St. Antione Division, Montreal, who accompanied Major Leonard of the Transcontinental Commission on a tour of inspection over the National Transcontinental Railway as far west as Graham, where the Lake Superior Branch of the Grand Trunk Pacific joins the main line, states, "That the decision to build a first-class road with a four-tenths grade against eastbound freight, and six-tenths against west-bound, has been rigidly adhered to west of Cochrane at least, and that he found a well built railroad in every respect. By the time the railroad is out of the hands of the Contractors, there will be few better lines in the country than the Transcontinental Railway." Referring to the great clay belt in Northern Ontario through which the Grand Trunk Pacific traverses, Mr. Ames stated: "That it seems to be the same kind of land upon which so many French-Canadians, and others have settled and become so prosperous throughout New Ontario."

GAMBLE TO BE TRIED

Ironworkers' Official Will Face Jury on Nov. 4.

Business Manager of Union Appears Before Magistrate Jephson at Whitby on a Charge of Having Destroyed a Rope by Putting Acid on It—Gamble Denies Having Seen the Rope.

TORONTO, [illegible]—"Altho the evidence has been purely circumstantial men have been hanged on less evidence than that which has been brought against you."

Stead M. Gamble of Toronto, business agent of the Ironworkers' Union was at Whitby yesterday committed by Police Magistrate John S. Jephson of Pickering for trial on the technical charge of having destroyed a rope valued at twenty dollars by use of sulphuric acid and in doing so Magistrate Jephson made the above comment on the evidence.

The trial is to take place in Whitby on Nov. 4 before a high court judge.

The charge has arisen as the result of the alleged actions of Gamble when a strike of the workmen engaged in the construction of a viaduct at Dixie Creek in Pickering Township on the new Toronto-Montreal line of the Canadian Pacific Railway was in progress. The work had proceeded with non-union men, and the crown charges that on June 16 when the works were shut down Gamble poured sulphuric acid on a coil of rope with the intention of injuring, if not causing, the death of non-union men engaged there.

Gamble has been in custody in the Whitby jail since his arrest several weeks ago, but at the conclusion of the hearing yesterday Magistrate Jephson announced that he would grant bail on the furnishing of $1000 cash. At this Frederick A. Koeck of Berlin, father-in-law of the accused, stepped forward with the necessary amount, and as a result Gamble was able to leave Whitby on the train for Toronto last night, accompanied by his wife and his two little boys, aged two and four years. The wife and children were present in the court room thruout the whole of the hearing.

Previous to yesterday's preliminary hearing, William Black and Job Cordin had sworn that they saw Gamble handle a rope coil and then throw away a bottle which was later picked up and found to have contained sulphuric acid. L. J. Rogers of the provincial laboratory had also given evidence and stated that he found traces of sulphuric acid on the rope and in the bottle.

At the reopening of the preliminary hearing at Whitby yesterday H. H. Dewart, K.C., of Toronto, appeared for the accused, and Crown Attorney Farewell prosecuted.

When placed on the stand in his own defence Gamble accounted for the time he spent in the vicinity of Dixie, stating that he was accompanied at the time by William McCuaig, who had left Toronto with him.

"I sat down and rolled a cigaret and lit it," he said. "While I was there I saw a little squirrel running about the fence corners. I picked up three or four little stones and threw them at the squirrel. Then I ran to the fence and looked over to see if I had hit the squirrel. McCuaig looked on and saw all that happened."

It is alleged that Gamble was sitting on the coil of rope on which the acid was placed. In this connection his counsel, Mr. Dewart, asked him:

"Did you put anything on that upon which you were sitting?"

"No," was the reply.

"Did you have any sulphuric acid in your possession?"

"No."

"Did you see any sulphuric acid?"

"No."

"Are you in the habit of carrying sulphuric acid?"

"No."

"Then you never saw this bottle said to have contained the sulphuric acid?"

"I did not have it and never saw it."

In being cross-examined by Crown Attorney Farewell Gamble denied having even seen the damaged coil of rope, but was willing to admit that it might have been where he was sitting.

"It may have been there; I would not swear it was not, but I did not see it," he declared.

CONCERT IS IN TUNE

Europe Agrees to Lay Heavy Hand on Turkey.

LONDON, [illegible]—(Can. Press.)—The concert of Europe is in splendid tune, according to Sir Edward Grey, who, however, hinted in the house of commons this afternoon that it was possible one of the great powers might intervene in Turkey if provoked.

With regard to Thrace and the fortress of Adrianople, Sir Edward Grey bluntly stated that if Turkey did not accept the advice of the powers, action would sooner or later, either by financial distress or armed intervention, bring her to disaster, but he took some of the sting out of this declaration by saying that the European powers would require some time to examine the situation before deciding on the final steps. The foreign secretary concluded:

"I do think that both Turkey and the Balkan allies must not count on the belief that the abstinence of the powers from forcible intervention during the last few months means that under all circumstances any one of the great powers will not intervene if sufficient provocation be given."

Children Cause Fire.

BELLEVILLE, [illegible]—(Special.)—Children playing with matches this morning set fire to Mr. David Thompson's barn in Huntingdon Township, causing destruction to the same. The flames ignited fences and crops in fields, compelling the summoning of the neighborhood to fight the flames, which spread to adjoining property. Mr. Thompson had no insurance upon his barn or contents.

GURNEY-OXFORD

Save One Ton of Coal in Every Six

The Economizer will do it.

While the cost of living has undoubtedly been growing greater, at the same time it is true there are some inventions that will offset this increased cost of living, and the careful housewife takes advantage of these inventions.

On every Gurney-Oxford range there is an Economizer which controls not only the drafts but also the entire combustion or burning of fuel to create heat.

This Economizer will save 1 ton of coal in every 6 that you would use with the ordinary range.

The Economizer is a simple device, absolute in its control. By merely moving the lever you can obtain any degree of even heat in the oven. This insures the satisfaction of always having light, delicately crusted bread and biscuits.

The kitchen fire ceases to be a worry if the Economizer is on your stove.

The Gurney-Oxford is the final result of experimental thought. Science has given it a Divided Flue, a new Special Grate, and a Broiler attachment.

WORLD'S SERIES OCTOBER 6

Chicago, Aug. 14.—Pres. Ban Johnson, of the American League, announced today that the first game of the world's baseball series would be played Monday October 6.

HEARNE FOR MAJOR LEAGUE

Toronto, Aug. 14.—Pitcher "Bunny" Hearne, of the Toronto Club, is ticketed through to the big leagues. As a result of his 20-innings shut-out game Tuesday two offers to buy the Toronto southpaw have been received by the management, and likely more are on the way.

New York Nationals will be given first chance on him, and he will in all likelihood be sold to them in a few days. It was through McGraw that Toronto got Hearne, and naturally he will get the preference.

Toronto had hoped to take a chance on the draft, but it is certain that Hearne would go that way now, and a sale is the only sane proposition. Hearne will finish the season here in any event.

JEFF TESREAU HAS BEEN WORKED HARD THIS SEASON

John McGraw has called on Jeff Tesreau oftener to start battles this year than any other member of the Giants pitching staff. Up to August 1st, the "Little Napoleon" had given the pitching assignment to the big spit baller 25 times. Jeff only went the route on eight occasions, but on many times he was derricked, he was lifted to allow a pinch hitter to be inserted into the proceedings, and not because he was not performing to the satisfaction of his commander.

Were Hugh Chalmers of Detroit to offer a car to the National League pitcher who twirled the greatest number of complete games instead of the player who is most valuable to his team, Christy Mathewson undoubtedly would be riding around in a new auto next fall. "Big Six" has opened on the firing line in twenty-two skirmishes for the Giants this year and has lasted through seventeen engagements out of twenty-two starts which gives him an average of .773.

HEARNE'S GREAT GAME IS A RECORD IN BASEBALL

New York Herald.—Struggling for twenty innings without a run being scored, the Jersey City and Toronto teams of the International League set what is believed to be a new record in the history of organized baseball. Inspection of the carefully complied records of the various leagues and inquiries among fans who have been following the game several generations failed to reveal any old-time scores that would prevent the game in Jersey City from taking its place in the baseball books as one of the most remarkable contests ever staged.

The baseball records show games that have gone beyond the the twenty inning mark but in all of them runs were made before twenty innings was passed.

Hearne, the Canadian twirler, stood out in bold relief in the protracted battle. He pitched without wavering, and apparently could have gone many innings had not darkness ended the battle. He seemed to be as strong as when he entered the box in the first inning. He was in trouble in only one inning, the thirteenth, but he crawled out of a bad hole.

THE POLO GROUNDS A HOODOO FOR HITTERS

New York, Aug. 13.—For a long time past there has been an effort on foot to discover the reason why ball players hit less on the Polo Grounds than any other field in either circuit, it being generally admitted that such is the case. Last season the Giants claimed that it was on account of the advertising signs in centre field. They said these signs formed a background which practically destroyed their batting eyes.

This year the signs were left off a considerable section of the bleached wall and the space was painted an alluring green. Then the Giants proceeded to hit a little bit less than ever thus acquitting the poor signs the blame.

Other ball players claim that the people in the centre field bleachers disturb the slugging orb, especially in the summer, when all the fans remove their coats, forming a background of white, which is peculiarly trying to the eyes. Still others say—and they are probably nearer the truth than any of the rest—that the location of the grounds and the surroundings, which tend to darken the field, put the batter at a disadvantage.

McGraw said this season that his team would hit much better on the road because of the shrouded field, and the Giants have demonstrated the correctness of his theory since leaving home.

More than likely the light hitting of some of the Yankees, like Birdie Cree, who is a natural .300 hitter, can be traced to the grounds.

BOSTON UNGRATEFUL FOR PENNANT WINNERS

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 13.—It is reported here that George McBride, the Washington shortstop, will succeed Carrigan as manager of the Boston Red Sox. Friends of McBride say that the deal will be for McBride, Ainsmith and Milan in exchange for Speaker, Carrigan and an outfielder.

The heads that wear certain managerial crowns in the American league may rest easy, but there is one at least that ought not to get much rest if he reflects on the fate of his predecessors. At least he will not be anxious to share in world's series if he stops to consider the fate of some of his illustrious predecessors. Winning world's championships for Boston is the most ungrateful job in baseball history, so Bill Carrigan, the new leader, is the man who should beware.

Jimmy Collins won the first world's championship for the Red Sox in 1903, when his team defeated the Pirates. The following year he won another league championship title, but there was no world's series. Two years later he was traded to the Athletics. Collins lasted a year with the Athletics, but when he was shifted to the International league he was a failure as a manager and soon drifted out of the big show.

Jake Stahl came along with Boston and won a world's championship last year. His finish came quicker than did that of Collins. Already he has been shifted into the discard by the Red Sox. Bill Carrigan has the team in the second division, but has plenty of good material on hand. Next year he may do the same thing as the Athletics did this year—stage a come back stunt. Then it will be time to look around for a successor for judging from past experiences he will forfeit his place if he gets a winner.

JOHNSON TELLS HOW HE ESCAPED

New York, Aug. 14.—Jack Johnson has blossomed forth as an author, and in a story headed "My Misfortunes," he tells why he fled from this country, and has determined to remain abroad. The sad story of the prosecutions heaped upon him is published in La Boxe et les Boxeurs, a prominent French sporting paper. It is a tirade against America, such as few expartriated persons have ever turned against their native country.

Johnson goes on to tell how he organized a baseball team composed of fifteen negroes "as big and black as possible, all of whom resembled him marvellously." He then arranged a match with one of the best negro teams in Canada, and left Chicago disguised as a ball player, his secretary and wife having embarked for Canada by another route. He bought tickets direct to Havre..

"When I arrived in Montreal this precaution saved me," Johnson writes "I had arranged with a big negro who resembles me closely, and when he said he was Jack Johnson, a policeman would have taken him back to Chicago. I had promised to pay him well.

"Fortunately all went well in Montreal. The local authorities, unfriendly demanded how long I would stay in Canada, and if I had not had my ticket I would not have been so fortunate. As I was only going through their country, the Canadians could do nothing. Once on board the Corinthian I was safe."

IMPEACHMENT CERTAIN

Tammany Democrats Have Majority Against Sulzer.

ALBANY, — (Can. Press.)—The Democratic organization, after marking time all day, claimed to have the 76 votes necessary to impeach Gov. Sulzer at tonight's meeting of the assembly, and planned to put thru the Levy resolution, laid over from last night with as little delay as possible. Telegraphic commands to absentees were kept flowing over the wires in a steady stream all day and bore fruit.

While deputy sergeants-at-arms hurried thru Albany with summonses to compel every assemblyman in the city to attend tonight and self-appointed committees met incoming trains, a throng eclipsing any that has stormed the capital in the memory of the oldest attendant, poured thru its stone doorways. Two hours before the time set for calling the assembly to order the first comers had taken their stand outside the railing in the assembly chamber. At 8 o'clock the great doors to the assembly chamber were closed in the face of a grumbling crowd in the corridor. The galleries were packed as seldom before. Hundreds of women were among the crowd.

With 65 votes at their command on the first test of strength, and more coming in every hour of the evening, the majority leaders showed no wavering in their plan to put thru tonight the program of impeachment. The 76 votes necessary to impeach, Mr. Levy said, would be on hand when the Speaker's gavel sounded for order. Once within the assembly chamber they would remain there, it was planned, no matter how prolonged the debate. The possibility of the majority becoming wearied by the announced dilatory tactics of Gov. Sulzer's friends was one that Mr. Levy was inclined to laugh at.

"There will be no limit placed on debate," he said. "This is a matter concerning which every man has a right to be heard."

The assembly was called to order at 10.11.

The first roll call indicated that the majority had the votes to carry out its program to impeach the governor before adjournment. One hundred and twenty-two members answered to their names, as follows: Democrats 85, Republicans 35, Progressives 2.

Of the 85 Democrats present, the majority leader was confident that 78—two more than a bare majority—would vote for the impeachment resolution. The roll call was slow and was succeeded by a call of the absentees, which added to the delay. At 11 o'clock the assembly had been in session nearly an hour and was still waiting, marking time in silence.

ROBBER IS CAUGHT

Police Make Thrilling Arrest in North Country.

Constable Markle Walks Into a Camp and Captures James Easterman After Tracing Outlaws Who Have Been Pillaging Parry Sound and District —Another Man in Custody.

TORONTO, — Word came to Toronto last evening of the breaking up of a dangerous gang of robbers which has been camping in the fastnesses of the Georgian Bay shore, and levying heavy toll from the Parry Sound district. To Constable Markle goes the credit of the capture of one of the offenders, and his experience in that connection contains an unusual spice of adventure.

It involves the tracing of the cache in the depths of an unfrequented part of Parry Island, and the discovery of a camp where a man was cooking his evening meal. After a few brief words, the constable recognized material scattered about as some of the loot from a local hardware store. He arrested his man without hesitation and brought him back to Parry Sound. The partners had evidently taken alarm, and nothing can be learned of their whereabouts.

James Easterman of Bay City, Mich., is the name given by the prisoner and on the strength of the goods in the camp, he was committed for trial before Magistrate Farrell. Four charges of robbery are laid against him.

For some time past Parry Sound residents have been aware of petty thefts in their midst, but the carrying off in the same night of two valuable motor boats, and the pillaging of a general store and a local hardware store, proved the climax.

Constable Farrell set out on the following morning in a launch to seek clues on the water. A little distance down the harbor he came upon one of the stolen boats lying derelict. Examination showed that the gasoline had given out. Further along the other was found with the magneto out of order, and it was evident that both had been hastily abandoned.

A canoe drawn up on the shore in a lonely part of Parry Island attracted his attention, and following an ill-defined path from it, he came upon the camp.

The sunlight glittering on a new revolver beneath a bush aroused his suspicions, and a number of utensils lying about were recognized. The arrest followed and a search instituted for other members of the gang. The constable and his assistants found the ashes of a warm camp fire, but the fugitives had shown clean heels.

In the seizure made at the camp were six revolvers, some of which were loaded, a Winchester rifle and cartridges, a canoe, blankets, kitchen dishes, and small hardware. All the material was afterwards recognized by the storekeepers.

This constitutes the second notable capture by Constable Markle within a brief period. A man overtaken in similar fashion was recently brought to sentence for robbery and he is thought to have operated in conjunction with Eastman, now awaiting trial.

The rugged picturesque character of the Georgian Bay shore at this point seems to offer exceptional opportunities for pilfering, but police pursuit in a speed launch cuts off the means of getaway by water, which is usually relied upon.

SQUAW IS ROBBED

Port Huron Men Loot House on Reserve Near Sarnia.

SARNIA, — (Special.)—The home of Mrs. George, a squaw living on the Sarnia reserve, was ransacked and robbed to-day by four white men. Detective Action of the provincial police, was notified of the occurrence and was soon on the scene. The culprits had, however, made their escape in a gasoline launch. Last evening four young fellows stopped at the house, which is on the river bank and asked for lodgings. Although they were under the influence of liquor they were taken in and given a supper and a bed.

This morning they borrowed the horse and a rig and drove to town for gasoline, promising the squaw a dollar for the outfit. When they returned they loaded into the launch and were about to depart when the woman asked for her money. Instead of paying up they went up to the house and carried away everything that they could while the woman looked on. It is thought that the quartette are from Port Huron. The authorities on both sides are now looking for the offenders.

DOCTOR WENT INSANE

Had Attack While Operating, Declares His Wife.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, — A terrifying story was told in probate court today by the wife of Dr. William R. Dabney, aged 41, a Marietta, Ohio, physician and surgeon, before he was committed to Longview Hospital for the insane. Mrs. Dabney said the first signs of mental trouble were exhibited by her husband several months ago while he was performing a surgical operation in a Marietta hospital. Without a moment's warning he slashed right and left with his operating knife and attaches of the hospital had to take him in charge. The patient, she said, was the victim of his sudden madness and was killed.

The wife said that she took her husband to Ontario, Canada, hoping it would restore his reason. But he did not get much better and began to suspect members of his family of being unfriendly toward him. The wife then brought him to court.

Fire Wipes Out Block.

BELLEVILLE, — (Special.)—The Curry block, situated in the Village of Frankford, Sydney Township, was destroyed by fire last night. In the block was situated the postoffice and J. McMahon's grocery and furniture stores. The stock was completely destroyed. On the second floor was a large hall used for public gatherings. The loss will be several thousand dollars. The building belonged to Mr. S. Curry and was insured for $3600.

No Accommodation For Sick.

KINGSTON, — (Special).—The General Hospital is so taxed for room that patients cannot be accommodated, and the nurses and house surgeon are worked off their feet. The new wing being rushed to completion will not be ready until the first of the new year.

A square deal is all a man wants—but he wants to be the judge of its squareness.

SEEKING MURDERERS

Theory of Murder of William G. Martin of Toronto While in American Metropolis Is That He Had Planned to Meet New Found Acquaintances and They Laid Trap to Get Money.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—William Mortimer left for Toronto tonight with the body of William Grieve Martin, the milliner, who was murdered in a rooming house here, presumably, on Monday night. John Martin, the dead man's father, is ill at the home of Mrs. Hannah Barrett, No. 355 West 58th street, utterly prostrated by the death of his son and the mystery and scandal attaching thereto.

With the murder unsolved the police department hopes that one of Martin's friends will yet come forward with a clear story of Martin's movements during his visit to New York in July last. It is believed that he then met the missing woman known as "Mrs. Johnson" and when he encountered her again went with her to the room in which he was found dead.

Painful as it must be to his family, the police theory tonight is when Martin was here in July he was buying fall stock for his millinery store, but he knew he was to return shortly as buyer for a wholesale firm of Toronto. The detectives reason that, meeting blond and attractive "Mrs. Johnson," Martin fell a victim to her charms and told her he would return plentifully supplied with money.

This woman and her companions—the dark, sallow man and the undersized and overdressed youth who posed as his brother—are thought to have rented the room in West Fifty-seventh street close to the neighborhood of Mrs. Hannah Barrett at No. 355 West Fifty-eighth street, where Martin always stayed on his visits. They timed their appearance in the Jones rooming house to coincide with the date of Martin's return. That Martin was determined to see the charmer on his second visit and that by her he was lured to the room where his murder was accomplished is part of the policy theory.

Martin was busy buying bonnets all day Monday. He intended to return to Toronto early Tuesday morning. He broke a theatre engagement with Mrs. Barrett and the two young women buyers who had accompanied him from Canada that night, on the pretext that he had just seen an old friend, Frank Beattie, and wanted to go with Beattie to visit his two sisters.

"Martin and I were here together in July," Mortimer told Chief of Detectives Dougherty today, "but we did not meet any women. Martin was not the sort of a man to make the chance acquaintance of women. I cannot believe that a woman had anything to do with this."

Frank Beattie, who was named by Martin to his friend Mrs. Barrett, in whose home he was stopping, as the old friend he had seen on the afternoon of Monday, and whom he was to meet that evening, appeared at police headquarters today with his brother, Robert Beattie. He said he lived at No. 1444 Longfellow avenue, Bronx; that he had known Martin many years ago in Stouffville, Ont., but that he had not seen Martin in 15 years.

Beattie convinced Dougherty that he had not met Martin on Monday, nor did he know that Martin was in town. The other Beattie brothers, Hugh and William A., also denied having seen Martin in many years.

The police arrested in Hoboken, N. J., a woman who had been janitress of the rooming house at No. 447 West 53rd street, when Mrs. Theodore Jones was landlady there and when the Mrs. Rose, whom one of the missing Johnsons claim to have known, was a lodger.

One of the two men calling themselves Johnson, who, with a decidedly blonde girl, hired the room in which Martin was slain, recalled to Mrs. Jones' mind that while she had the lodging house at No. 447 West 53rd street, he had been a frequent caller on Mrs. Rose. Tho Mrs. Rose is not believed to have had any knowledge of the killing of Martin, Deputy Commissioner Dougherty believes that if he can find her she can tell him something about the two Johnsons and the woman who posed as the wife of one of them.

The janitress is expected to give information which will lead to the discovery of this Mrs. Rose.

BOYS NEARLY DROWN

Queenston Lads Try for a Record on the River.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Aug. 14.—(Special.)—Arved Johnson and Pitt Williams, two Queenston boys, had a narrow escape from drowning in the lower river this afternoon while attempting to make a record for farthest upstream from Queenston bridge in a rowboat. By taking advantage of currents they succeeded in reaching a point about two miles above Lewiston on the American side, and when they rounded a point to land, their boat was caught in a strong current and they were carried out to midstream. At this point the water is very rough and the boat come near upsetting several times. They floated around in eddy currents for half an hour before the boat started down stream. Both were frightened by their experience, but they are satisfied that the game was worth the candle, for they succeeded in accomplishing something that no other man so far as is known has done.

HAD A TERRIBLE TRIP

Explorers Who Crossed Greenland Tell Their Story.

Captain Koch and His Men Had Several Harrowing Adventures During Their Trip—Dr. Wagener Injured and Capt. Koch Fell Into a Crevasse—Snow Blindness Attacked Men.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Aug. 14. (Can. Press.)—The story told by Captain Koch, the Danish explorer, of the crossing of Greenland in company with three hardy companions, shows that the dangers and hardships to be encountered on the great inland ice field have not decreased since Rear-Admiral Robert E. Peary and Dr. Fridtjof Nansen made their journeys over a portion of the same deserted wastes.

After landing from their ship on July 24, 1912, the first mishap encountered by the expedition was the loss of a number of ponies. Shortly afterwards their motorboat disappeared thru the thin ice, and the explorers were obliged to wait until nearly the end of September before the ice was sufficiently thick to carry their sledges and horses. When they were ready to start Dr. Wagener fell, with the result that one of his ribs was broken.

The expedition arrived at about ten miles to the east of Queen Louise Land on Oct. 13, and went into winter quarters there. The shortness of fodder necessitated the slaughter of all the ponies with the exception of five, which were gradually trained to cannibalism by being fed on the flesh of their brothers.

During a sledding trip, Capt. Koch fell forty feet into a crevasse, breaking his right leg. This accident kept him helpless in the hut thruout the winter in a temperature generally 50 degrees below zero.

On April 20, this year, the four men broke camp, and with five sleighs, each drawn by a pony, started on their 750 mile march to the west coast.

During the first forty days violent blizzards raged practically without cessation. The ponies became snowblind and so exhausted that the men were obliged to kill three of them. Later the sun's rays tormented the travelers and burned the skin from their faces which soon had the appearance of raw beef, while the temperature at night was thirty below zero.

Snowshoes were fitted to the feet of the two remaining two ponies and proved of wonderful assistance to them in the loose snow. But for the ponies the expedition would have been in a worse plight.

Unfortunately for the explorers it was found necessary to kill another pony on Jan. 11 this year, because the fodder had given out. The next day the last pony was killed, much to the distress of the members of the expedition, as a few miles further a splendid pasturage was found.

The rations of Capt. Koch and his companions had been, meanwhile, gradually reduced, and on July 13, their provisions were finished.

A howling blizzard came on top of this misfortune, and for thirty-five hours the four men were compelled to take shelter under a projecting rock, where they remained without a morsel of food.

On July 15 they tried to push on to the coast, which was now visible, but they were so exhausted with hunger, cold and wet, that they were scarcely able to move. Their only chance for life was to kill the pet dog which had tramped with them for about 800 miles. This was done and its flesh was cooked and eaten. The meal was hardly finished when the explorers sighted a sailing boat in the fiord to the east of Proeven on the west coast of Greenland.

By means of shots and signals, the explorers succeeded in attracting the attention of those on board the vessel, and Pastor Chemnitz, who was on the ship, with the assistance of the crew, soon had the famished and worn out explorers in safety.

EXPLORERS GO FIRST

Peary and Amundsen to Inaugurate Panama Canal.

BUENOS AYRES, Argentina, Aug. 14.—(Can. Press.)—The whaler Fram, commanded by Cptt. Dexrud, left here today for Colon with the intention of taking on board there Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary and Capt. Roald Amundsen, the explorers, who will be the first to pass thru the Panama Canal on board ship.

Capt. Amundsen will afterwards proceed in the Fram toward the north pole, and, taking advantage of the arctic currents, will return on board of her to Christiania, Norway, traversing on the way the Spitzbergen Archipelago.

Capt. Dexrud purposes taking lessons, in order to perfect himself in aviation at San Francisco, so that he may be able to make flights in the polar regions. The expedition is expected to take six years for its completion.

Chief Pilot Suspended.

QUEBEC, Aug. 14.—(Can. Press.)—The court of enquiry into the grounding of the steamer Lake Manitoba, on July 28 last on the Island of Orleans, rendered judgment this afternoon, suspending Pilot Adjutor Lachance for the balance of the season. Lachance is the president of the Corporation of Pilots, and was one of the commissioners appointed to enquire into the state of the pilotage of the St. Lawrence last spring.

The court after carefully reviewing the evidence adduced, is of the unanimous opinion that the cause of the accident is entirely due to the negligence of Adjutor Lachance, the pilot, inasmuch as he totally disregarded the rule of the road in porting for a bright light on his port bow and also in not being aware of the exact position of his vessel with regard to the land. The court exonerates the master and officers in charge from all blame.

Prominent Men Robbed Squaw.

SARNIA, Aug. 14.—(Special.)—The four men who robbed and ransacked the home of Mrs. George at the Sarnia Indian Reservation two days ago are known to be prominent residents of Port Huron, so well known that every precaution is being made to keep their names from the public.

The men, thru their attorney in Port Huron, will make a settlement with Mrs. George for the damage done. The four Port Huronians were under the influence of liquor at the time and ran in at the reservation in their gasoline launch.

RECEPTION INFORMAL

Mexican Official Gives Audience to Lind as Courtesy.

Huerta and His Cabinet Seem Bound Not to Receive United States Envoy in an Ambassadorial Capacity, Although President Huerta Is Said to Be Anxious to Hear Message.

MEXICO CITY, ——.—(Can. Press.)—The first skirmish in the diplomatic war between Mexico and the United States took place today and was won by John Lind, President Wilson's personal representative, when he was received unofficially by Foreign Minister Frederico Gamboa. Both Mr. Lind and Senor Gamboa insist that no great importance attached to the visit. The Mexican Government is still insistent that it will not deal with Mr. Lind officially nor listen to any suggestion from him as to mediation or to any proposal emanating from his government.

Mr. Lind was presented to Senor Gamboa by Nelson O'Shaughnessy, charge d'affaires of the American embassy, in the character of a private citizen. The conversation between the Mexican cabinet officer and Mr. Lind was entirely informal, both carefully avoiding the subject of politics or the mission which is personally entrusted to Mr. Lind by President Wilson.

The visit of Mr. Lind consumed but a few minutes of Senor Gamboa's time, and few persons knew that it had been made. The time selected for the call was when few visitors were at the foreign office, and a disposition was shown in the department to cloak it with secrecy. No further steps were taken by Mr. Lind today to advance the object of his mission to Mexico, and it is believed that there will be little development in the situation before Thursday. Mr. Lind is in communication with Washington, and it is not improbable that his movements will be governed by instructions from there, based upon the progress he is able to make here.

In view of President Huerta's note of last week, issued thru the acting foreign minister, stating that Mr. Lind would not be received officially unless he brought credentials and also official recognition of the Huerta Government, great significance attaches to his reception by Huerta's cabinet chief, even unofficially. By some persons his reception is taken as an indication of the disposition of President Huerta to learn the character of the message Mr. Lind bears. Officials high and low persist in saying that President Huerta will never receive Mr. Lind, especially as President Wilson's emissary, but there is an unconfirmed rumor in circulation that steps already have been taken to bring about a conference between them.

Girl May Be Stolen.

COBALT, ——.—The failure of searching parties, after combing Burnt Island and dragging around the shores of the little island for an entire day to find 5-year-old Grace Cooper, who disappeared from her mother's camp on Friday of last week, has lent a new aspect to the mysterious disappearance. A rigid police investigation is now demanded, and the theory is advanced that it is probably a case of kidnapping.

The provincial police have sought the assistance of the Dominion department, as the matter is out of their jurisdiction, Burnt Island being in Quebec.

Members of Crew Scared.

KINGSTON, ——.—(Special.)—The steam barge Navajo coming from Buffalo heavily laden with pig iron on its way to Brockville fair had a storm on the lake for several hours. The situation was so serious that the members of the crew donned life preservers and prepared for the worst, but the steam barge weathered the gale and got into Kingston safely.

Former Harbor Board Honored.

MONTREAL, ——.—(Can. Press.)—Members of the various trade organizations of this city gathered this afternoon in the Canada Club to do honor to the persons and work of the late harbor commission, the tributes finding tangible expression in the presentation of three silver cups to G. W. Stephens, C. C. Ballantyne and L. A. Geoffrion.

WOODSTOCK MAN SHOT

Wm. Dunster, Jr., Gets Serious Wounds Queerly.

WOODSTOCK, ——.—(Special.)—With a revolver bullet in his head, William Dunster, jr., lies in the General Hospital here, and slight hopes are being held out for his recovery. It appears that yesterday evening about six o'clock Dunster, his wife and eight-year-old daughter were about to sit down to supper in their house, 171 Sydenham street, near his father's residence on Huron street, when the wife and daughter went out in the garden for a few minutes to help a neighbor drive some chickens off the premises.

They had not been out for more than a minute or two when they heard the report of a gun from the direction of the house. On running back they found Dunster lying on the floor with a bullet wound over his right ear from which the blood was pouring. The revolver was beside him. The ambulance was called and the wounded man hurried to the hospital, where his wound was dressed but the bullet was not located.

Shortly afterwards the man regained consciousness and informed his father, William Dunster of Huron street, that an accident had happened while he was cleaning the revolver. From the position of the wound, however, which was too high to allow the bullet to strike the brain an accident seemed unlikely when cleaning the weapon, and the fact that Dunster was not cleaning the gun when his wife and child were with him and he was alone in the room for only a few minutes adds to the mystery of the case.

A consultation was held by doctors over the case and it was decided not to probe for the bullet in the meantime, as it does not appear to be pressing on any vital spot. William Dunster is a painter by trade and has been an enthusiastic member of the local sporting circles. He is the owner of quite a collection of guns and firearms of various kinds in which he takes a deep interest. Dunster was also formerly a member of B company, 22nd Regiment, Oxford Rifles.

URGES A CONCLAVE

Australian Government Wants Naval Defence Discussed.

LONDON, ——.—(C. A. P.)—The eagerly awaited announcement of the new government's program was made yesterday, says The Times Sydney correspondent, and provides among other things for an alteration in the electoral law, restoring the postal vote and removing restrictions on the press, an alteration in the arbitration act to prohibit granting of a preference to unions with political connections, and tariff revision in accordance with the report of the interstate commission. Reference was made to Canadian reciprocity. Proposals for developing overseas and especially British markets will be discussed with the high commissioner. A naval conference is being urged on the British Government, meanwhile Rear Admiral Henderson's proposals will be generally adhered to." Provisions for the building of warships locally will be expedited and high professional service will be obtained immediately regarding sites and plans and cost of works.

In naval bases rifle clubs will receive increased assistance as a scheme of national insurance on contributary basis. Among other proposals are that the postal department should be controlled by commissioners and by co-operation with the states regarding immigration on a basis of Deakin's scheme.

SHE HEARD MUSIC

Helen Keller Put Teeth on Bridge of Violin.

PETOSKEY, Mich., ——.—Miss Helen Keller, the blind, deaf and dumb prodigy, has heard music for the first time. With her teeth held against the bridge of a violin she caught the vibrations of various notes and they were carried to her brain.

Prof. Franz Kohler of the Berlin Conservatory, former concert meister of the Pittsburg Symphony Orchestra, played for Miss Keller. The first note was sounded on the E string of his violin. Miss Keller was astonished. She held her teeth fairly against the instrument while Kohler played strains from Saint Saens, using both the high and low registers.

"Like the voices of singing angels," Miss Keller communicated to Miss Macey, her teacher. She was exhausted from the excitement.

Miss Macey said today that this was the first musical sound that has reached the brain of Miss Keller, despite reports of her previous knowledge of notes.

Found Farewell Message.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., ——.—(Special.)—The following note, found at Prospect Point today, resulted in an investigation which up till tonight has been fruitless: "August 11th, 1913, 8 p.m.—Dear Friends: If you find my body please bury it, for I am sitting on bank river ready to go. So good-bye everybody in world. M. E. W."

Steamer Saved Two Men.

KINGSTON, ——.—(Special.)—Coming over from Charlotte during the night, Captain Max Shaw of the steamer Howard saved the lives of two men off Sodus Point, whose names are unknown. The men were in a sail boat, but it was swamped, and they were struggling in the water, wearing life preservers.

FIREBUGS START BLAZE

Twenty-Five Thousand Dollar Conflagration in Orillia.

ORILLIA, ——.—(Special.)—Fire of incendiary origin which started in the barns and sheds of the Grand Central Hotel, on Mississaga street, about 11.30 o'clock last night, wiped out almost the entire block, back as far as Colborne street, before it was beaten out by the local fire brigade at one o'clock this morning. The damage is estimated at $25,000, the following property being destroyed:

Grand Central barns and sheds; Wm. Swinton's house; part of Bick's packing and cold storage plant; part of the G. Moore estate; J. J. Hartley's stock barns and a valuable horse owned by Samuel Reeves.

This is the second big incendiary fire that Orillia has had since the one three weeks ago, when a man was seen running away from the D. Long Company's foundry, which burned down a few minutes later.

Last night's fire was first noticed in the Grand Central sheds about 11.30 o'clock, and at midnight the whole town was out watching the spectacle and assisting the firemen. The firemen succeeded in confining the fire to the Colborne street block, but Mr. Swinton's house was burned to the ground and nothing was saved.

MELVILLE NOTES

The usual quiet of our village was broken on Monday when a team of spirited young horses, the property of Mr. J. Chase and Mr. T. Kinnear, ran away, having become frightened at the unusual noise and disturbance of a dog fight. Mr. Chase had just returned from Hyland cheese factory and was removing his can from the wagon when the horses started. They ran for some distance towards the lake shore, but were finally stopped when turning up the high shore into the road. The wagon was damaged somewhat but the horses escaped with but a few scratches.

The missionary service of the Epworth League was conducted by Miss Burkitt on Friday evening. Mr. R. We are looking for a full house. All are welcome.

Deseronto Notes

From The Post

Mrs. F. Jardine and daughter, Vera, Toronto, spent a few days with Mrs. R. N. Irvine this week, after an absence of 29 years.

At the regular meeting of the Quarterly Official Board of the Methodist church, the members of the board added $100 to the salary of the pastor, Rev. R. Burns, for the current year.

Mr. Andrew Swann, foreman at the Iron Works, left yesterday morning for Parry Sound to assist in getting the new plant of the Standard Iron Company in operation. He expects to be absent a month or six weeks.

A number of new teachers have been engaged by the Public School Board to take the places of those who have resigned. Those who have left are: Misses McIntosh, Parrott, Drewry, Siler and Fleming. Those who will take their places are: Miss Carroll, Trenton; Miss Sing, Port Hope; Miss Haugh, Lindsay; Mr. Little, Brantford. All the new teachers have splendid credentials.

L.O.L. 1357 and S.O.E. Empire Lodge 125 paraded for divine service at St. Mark's Church, Deseronto. Proper Psalms and hymns appropriate in such a service and especial prayers were joined in heartily by the large congregation. The sermon was preached by Rev. E. Radcliffe, B.C.L., and touched on the use and origin of the Orange Order, the constitution and the necessity for every Orangeman to live up to the rules of his Order. Then the members of the Order must be an honor to their religion and loyal to their King and country. The National Anthem was splendidly sung by the entire congregation during the offeratory.

Miss Luba Hambourg, of the Hambourg Conservatory of Music, Toronto, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Anderson, Foresters' Island. Miss Hambourg is fascinated with the Bay of Quinte, and wonders why anyone would wish to go anywhere else to enjoy holidays.

Shaw, General Traffic Manager; R. L. Fairbairn, General Passenger Agent; F. A. Young, Division Freight Agent, and F. N. Wiggins, Supt. C.N.R. Express.

GOOD EYESIGHT BECOMING RARE

Moving Picture Shows and Automobiles Contributing Causes According to Montreal Authority

Canadians as a nation, especially city dwellers, are developing short sightedness at an alarming rate of speed. Such is the startling warning given by a number of the reputable Montreal occulists. There are numerous reasons given for the alarming increase in short-sightedness, practically all of which place the greater portion of the blame on the advancement made in recent years of civilization. Close work, too much light, poorly lighted offices, automobiling and the thirst for moving pictures are among the reasons given.

Dr. Samuel S. Grant, B.O.A., one of Montreal's most prominent occulists in referring to the advancement of short-sightedness among Canadians stated that unless something were done quickly to stop the advancement of the ever-increasing disease, there would soon be few persons who would be able to work in offices. "It is astonishing how many people are becoming short-sighted," said Dr. Grant. "Many of the clerks and bookkeepers are to-day developing this big disadvantage, unconscious of the fact. They are losing their eyesight slowly and do not notice it until they can no longer do any close work.

"By close work I mean working over books or reading within eighteen inches of a book or paper. The eyes become tired and strained as a result of over-usage. In close work, and gradually lose their sensitiveness. In Germany the condition is much worse than in Canada, for the German letters are much harder to read than the English. It is therefore very lucky that we have not the same letters to read in Canada as in Germany, or the state of affairs would be much more alarming than it is."

"The thirst for moving pictures is also very hard on the eyes and advances short-sightedness. People go in the moving picture shows and the eyes are called upon to take in every little movement, and to do this they have to use their eyes very fast. Thus the muscles of the eyes become very much strained, and the eye itself loses its ower."

Automobiling acts on the eyes in the same manner as the moving pictures, but is not quite so hard on the muscles, according to Dr. Grant.

VANISHING WILD LIFE

Many Species of Birds Rapidly Becoming Extinct

"To date there are eleven species of North American birds that have been exterminated by 'civilized' man since 1840," says Dr. Wm. T. Hornaby, director of New York Zoological Park, "and there are twenty-three other species of birds pressing each other closely for the sad distinction of being first to lengthen the list of extinct species." Only one living specimen of the carrier pigeon is now known to exist yet formerly wagon loads were poured into the market. Dr. Hornaby has no hesitation in placing responsibility for this wholesale destruction on man. "There are," he declares, "probably millions of people who do not realize that man is the most persistently wicked and wasteful of all predatory animals. Others kill only what they think they can consume. If something is by chance left over, it goes to satisfy the hunger of the humbler creatures of prey." From one end of the continent to the other there is a resistless desire to kill.

SAMSON HASKELL OF BENTLEY

CHAPTER VI

Making Advances

Acting upon a suggestion from Theresa, Samson immediately invested in a new set of driving harnesses and a fine buggy—the best that could be obtained for miles around. He also put much time into the work of grooming his handsome chestnuts, the equal of which for beauty and speed could not be found within a radius of many miles.

"If fancy togs will win Delilah from Henry Rollins I reckon Samson Haskell is the one to do it," he meditated, as he attached the prancing roadsters to the shining carriage, on the Monday morning following. "I hain't agoing to play no mean capers on Henry, but I'm agoing to win Delilah Gaylord on business principles, if sech a thing is possible, and if he wins the prize he'll have to travel faster than he ever has yet. Samson Haskell hain't never been beat out yet fer good, and so long as there is a chance to land Dave Gaylord's gal he'll never give up."

It was indeed a handsome outfit that drew up before the door of the Gaylord home at the usual hour, Samson himself attired in his best Sunday-go-to-meetings, and as Delilah glanced through the window, she fairly caught her breath at the sight before her.

A few moments later she laughingly seated herself beside him, chatting in a manner quite unusual to her, and asking all manner of questions regarding the recent purchases.

"It's real good of you to put yourself to so much trouble for me, Samson," she said, half apologetically. "It's a real pleasure to ride behind these chestnuts; and I'll always remember that I'm the first girl to ride beside you in this nice new carriage. And, if you'd just as soon, Samson,—although it is a little farther, I'd like to go round by Westover's Corners. Don't you think we'll have time?"

"I reckin this span can make it," he replied quietly, although there was a feeling in his heart that almost caused him to shout for joy; and taking the spirited pair well in hand, he sent them at a pace that made his companion gasp for breath. The speed was beyond anything she had ever experienced, and for a time she was afraid the flyers would break away from the driver; but noting the expert manner in which Samson guided them, her confidence returned, and she settled back in the cushioned seat with a feeling of the utmost safety. It was a new experience for Delilah Gaylord so far as Samson Haskell was concerned. And as for Samson, he could but accept the situation as a blessing from heaven for his long and patient waiting.

With but two minutes to spare, they drew up before the little school house, and as Samson lifted Delilah from the carriage—an act, by the way, she had never before permitted—she looked smilingly into his face, and said: "If the chestnuts need exercising next Saturday, Samson, I'd like to go to Ogden to see Cousin Jemima. I've been promising to go for more than a year but have had no one to take me," and she met his surprised look half questioningly, half mischievously.

"I'll be on hand, Delilah," and springing into the buggy, for he could withstand the heart pressure no longer; he permitted the horses to test their speed, while Delilah stood watching them until hid by a bend in the road.

"He is mine if I want him," she murmured whimsically. "But it is doubtful if I deserve him. And the change on my part would be too great." . . . .

If Henry Rollins resented the visit of Delilah and Samson to Ogden, which occupied the entire day and well into the evening, no one was the wiser. But that he was determined their intimacy should go no further, an incident of his deliberate planning fully proved. True, he caught Haskell napping; and while he did not tell an untruth outright, he slipped around it so nicely that Samson, with all his experience as a horse trader, was taken in bodily. To adopt his own vocabulary in later referring to the incident: "I was jest led gently like a sheep to the slaughter, and when all was over, I found mysilf the owner of the tarnalist kicking machine that ever was hitched to a wagon."

One morning Samson accidentally met Henry driving a strange horse—a sleek-coated brown gelding—that pleased him on sight. He was a rangy, high-headed animal, with a bright eye and intelligent face. His swinging gait suited him perfectly.

As they met, Henry drew rein, apparently pleased at Samson's admiring inspection of his recent acquisition, and awaited the complimentary words he felt were about to be expressed.

"A pretty slick one", remarked Samson, in his customary off-handed manner.

"None better in these parts", was the confident reply. "I reckon he can give the dust to anything in Bentley."

"Shouldn't wonder," assented Samson, looking the animal over critcally. Then, stepping from his wagon, he run his hand down the animal's limbs, the horse the while as critically watching every move that he made. "Want to swap?"

"Not for anything you've got," replied Rollins. "I bought him for a roadster, and intend to keep him. Delilah has been askin' me to get something that had a little speed in it, and I guess this feller will jest about suit her. If she don't take to him like a duck to water, I'll miss my reckonin.' "

"I'll give you my mare and twenty-five". Samson was not in sympathy with Delilah's taking to anything that belonged to Henry Rollins.

"I'd like to accommodate you tolerable well, Samson, but I hain't trading any more. Besides, your mare hain't nowheres 'longside this feller. He's jest what I've been waiting for a long time and I've promised myself not a little pleasure driving Delilah out of a Saturday,—pertickler when she wants to go to Ogden to visit her Cousin Jemima", and he gave Samson a knowing wink.

"I'll make it my mare and fifty." Samson was overstepping his usual tactfulness in his anxiety to secure the animal, and Henry was not slow to note it.

"Jump in, Samson, and take a ride behind him. I reckin you'll agree with me on his cleverness," and he made room for him on the seat.

Half an hour later Henry drove home with the mare in the shafts of his wagon, and seventy-five dollars in his pocket, Samson meanwhile congratulating himself on having gotten the better end of the trade. But a few days proved the fickleness of human judgment.

With his customary caution in handling new horses, Samson, on the following Monday morning harnessed the gelding to his "second-best" buggy, and drove over to the Gaylord farm, anticipating a pleasant surprise for Delilah when she came out to take her place at his side. The animal's behavior was all that could be asked for on the way, and apparently enjoyed the privilege of a test of speed, which was quite beyond the new owner's highest hopes.

As they stopped before the house Delilah appeared at the door, and inspected the horse with much interest.

"Where did you get him, Samson? He's awful pretty". But Samson failed to detect a gleam of amusement sparkling from the brown eyes.

"Traded with Henry Rollins. Hain't he a beauty?"

"How much did you pay for him?"

"My bay mare and seventy-five."

"Samson Haskell, I always gave you credit for knowing something about horses. But is seems you don't. I'd be ashamed to let Henry Rollins cheat me that way. You've lost a good mare, and you might as well have thrown the seventy-five dollars in the mill pond."

"Anything the matter with him—that you've heard of, Delilah?"

"Well, I should say as much," and she laughed outright. "It's common talk in the neighborhood that Henry Rollins traded you one of the rankest kickers that ever came into the country. And you a Haskell. It is a wonder you got this far without having the front of your waggon smashed to splinters. I heard Henry had been secretly training him with a kicking strap filled with nails."

"I reckin he'll take you over to Crow's Corner without a skip, Delilah," replied Samson, who, nevertheless, was becoming suspicious of his purchase.

"I reckon he won't. So you can go back and put him in the barn—if you can get there without a smash-up, which I doubt very much. I'll get over to the school some way. It is good walking, if there is no one to take me," and with a dismissing laugh she entered the house.

With a quick pull of the reins Samson spoke sharply to the horse. But instead of moving forward the animal, with a vicious look backward, let fly his hind feet, and in an instant every vestige of a dasher had disappeared from the carriage front, and the beast was frantically endeavoring to reach the occupant, who had taken refuge behind the seat, holding tightly to the reins. Presently the animal began to rear and plunge, and when the whip was brought into use he sprang forward, and dashed ahead at a terrific pace, never neglecting to place a kick where it would do the most damage. He had taken the bit between his teeth, and even the strong arms of young Haskell were powerless to check him. Finally, determined to teach him a lesson, Samson began to ply the whip until the gelding's body was a mass of ridges, but with no sign of yielding to his master's demand.

Presently Samson observed a team standing at the roadside, and facing toward the Gaylord farm. A second look revealed Henry Rollins seated in the waggon, with an amused grin on his lips, which broadened perceptibly as the combatant horse and driver approached.

"Give it to him, Samson; he ain't got no friends", shouted Henry, as they swept by."

"You won't have no friends when I see ye again, consarn ye," answered Samson, in tones of anger, and then he was out of hearing.

When they passed Houston's post-office store, all the young men in the village had congregated at its front to witness the panoramic view of Samson Haskell and his famous kicker.

The scene was beyond description. Samson's hat was gone, his nice new necktie was askew, his clean paper collar was broken at the ends, his eyes flashed fire, and the whip, which he continued to wield, was but half its original length.

A mighty cheer greeted his approach, and continued until he had disappeared from sight, and when, a few moments later, he guided the now fatigued animal into the home yard, the waggon was a wreck, and the beast was covered with foam.

But while the experiment was a costly one to Samson, and the punishment administered to the horse partook of cruelty, it was the turning point in the gelding's disposition, and from that hour, his submission was complete. He would follow his master about like a dog, eat sugar or candy from his hand, and in the harness was one of the pleasantest drivers to be found in the district. Within six months Samson sold the animal for the highest price he had up to that time received for a single roadster.

WESTERN CANADA

A BUMPER WHEAT CROP THOUSANDS OF MEN REQUIRED

This Year's Harvest promises to be be the largest in THE HISTORY OF CANADA

According to present indications the wheat crop of 1913 will be the greatest ever harvested in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta, thus requiring the farm laborers of the East to assist in harvesting the world's greatest bread basket.

The Governments of the respective Provinces state that many thousand men will be required for this year's harvest. These will have to be principally recruited from Ontario, and the prosperity of Canada depends on securing labor promptly. The Canadian Pacific, on which Company will fall practically the entire task of transporting the men to the West, is already making special arrangements for this year. Excursions from points in Ontario to Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta will be run and special trains operated, making the trip in about thirty-six hours and avoiding any change of cars or transfers. This will be a day shorter than any other route. Dates, rates and conditions will be announced in a few days.

To Show Mistakes In Roadmaking

Highways Commission will Conduct Educational Campaign

TORONTO, Aug. 15.—An educational campaign, with public meetings and addresses, demonstrating the mistakes which have been made in roadmaking and the scientific means of improving these conditions, will probably be one of the first steps in the program being prepared by the recently formed Good Roads Commission. At present, however, Chairman the Hon. C. A. Magrath, thinks any statement of policy premature, as the immediate task lying before the Commission is one of organization.

Frequent meetings are being held and everything is being done to put the machinery of the Commission in such a state of efficiency as will enable the work which the Government has entrusted to it to be done without loss of time and in a satisfactory manner. It is estimated that beside current expenses, between five and ten million dollars will be required for the renovation and improvement of the highways of Old Ontario, and it is likely that the first step in this direction will be a careful survey of the centres of rural traffic.

Free Trade Next British Election Issue

LONDON, Aug. 15.—Sir John Simon, Solicitor-General, has decided at the next general election to relinquish his safe seat in Walthamstow to contest Northwest Manchester.

He writes that it will be a critical campaign for many causes which Liberals hold dear, and amongst the most important is free trade. This intention, it is alleged in some quarters, is due to the desire of those Radicals devoted to Mr. Asquith to lessen Mr. Lloyd George's influence in the Cabinet. Radicals of the Asquith type know the Premier as much attracted to Sir John's free-trade advocacy.

They consequently feel that if Sir John Simon could win a free trade victory in Northwest Manchester at the next election and strengthen the free trade position generally in Lancashire, he would become one of the great prophets of the Radical party and help keep the Chancellor of the Exchequer a trifle more in the background.

Allegations of Most Shocking Cruelties

VIENNA, Aug. 15.—A deputation of highly respected citizens of Adrianople have arrived here to endeavor to influence the Austrian Government and the general public in favor of letting Adrianople remain in Turkish hands.

Mr. Orphanides, a member of the Turkish Parliament, said:

"The Bulgarians have turned Adrianople into a heap of smoking ashes filled with mutilated men, ruined women and murdered children. In Malagra and elsewhere the heads of hundreds of murdered women hang by the hair to the walls of temples. Scarcely a village or a hamlet is not in ashes, and on the banks of the rivers lie thousands of bodies with mutilated heads, bound hands and pierced bodies."

SULZER REFUSES TO HAND OVER OFFICE.

Albany, N.Y., August 15.—Governor William Sulzer today refused to quit the office of Governor of New York, in face of a written demand prepared by counsel for Lieutenant-Governor Martin H. Glynn.

The Glynn request for Governor Sulzer to hand over his keys marked the first attempt on the part of Mr. Glynn to take actual possession of the Government of the State.

Included in Governor Sulzer's refusal, according to D. Cady Herrick, chief of his counsel, is a proposal that Mr. Glynn and Mr. Sulzer prepare an agreed statement of the facts in the controversy and submit them to the courts to determine who is Governor of New York.

Hudson Bay Line Done in Two Years

J. D. McArthur in Ottawa Says Job Is a Big One But Work is Fast.

OTTAWA, Aug. 15.—J. D. McArthur, contractor for the Hudson Bay Railway, who is in the city interviewing the Department of Railways and Canals in regard to the work, states that he does not expect the road can be finished before the latter part of 1915.

"Two hundred miles of the line will be graded by the fall," said Mr. McArthur. "The progress is satisfactory. We are having no labor difficulties. However, it is a big undertaking and it is a question whether we can finish before the fall of 1915."

Rural Mail Routes Ousting Post Offices

OTTAWA, Aug. 15.—The rapidity with which the Postal Department is establishing rural mail delivery is shown by the fact that during the past four months two hundred postoffices were closed owing to the location of new routes. The majority of these are in Ontario, as rural mail routes are being established daily in this Province.

Prince Edward Island will soon have rural mail delivery over the Province, and no less than twenty-one country postoffices were closed during the four months. There is little attempt as yet to establish rural mail delivery in the West, owing to the distances between the settlers, the bad roads and difficulties in securing carriers. To establish sufficient postoffices to keep peace with the growth of the country is what the department wants.

A procession will be formed composed of the city regiments and School Cadets Corps, etc., accompanied by their bands, and proceed to the Queen's Park via Yonge street to College street to the special platform north of the Parliament buildings.

Militants are Now Slandering Ministers

LONDON, Aug. 15.—Militant suffragettes were behind scandalous rumors associating Cabinet Ministers' names with infamous trade carried on by Queenie Gerald in her Piccadilly flat.

These cruel reports, now shown to be utterly baseless, originated with militants, who crippled in other ways, seem to be driven to slander to promote "justice for women."

Miss Christabel Pankhurst's letter in a militant newspaper on the social evil shows an astonishing freedom in handling the topic, but the idea appears to be that "votes for women" can be best secured by vilifying the men.

To Study Conditions In Canadian West

OTTOWA, Aug. 15.—The Hon. Dr. Roche, Minister of the Interior, left today on his trip to the West, during which he will look into a number of gation who wish to make representation ment.

Dr. Roche will first spend a few weeks at his home in Minnedosa, and afterwards at Winnipeg he will meet a dele- matters directly affecting his depart- concerning the St. Peter's Indian reserves.

D. Roche will also personally inquire into the matter of grazing leases before putting into effect the recommendation of the Commission which reported on the subject.

Leaped From Aero To Balloon Rope

LONDON, Aug. 15.—The latest in moving-picture films is a balloon drama taken over Hampton Court Palace, 3,000 feet in the air.

In one rehearsed effect Marie Pickering, 18 years old, leaped from an aeroplane and caught the guide rope hanging from the balloon, but was too weak to climb the rope and had to be lassoed and hauled up to the basket

WHERE SHALL WE GO TO GET IT?

Wonderful how these live business men anticipate your needs.

Right now they are cleaning their August stocks and planning what they shall offer you at Christmas.

But the most important part in the merchant's fall and winter plans is to start with fresh new goods.

He must sell what he has right now. That's why August is a month of unusual retail sales. Better clear shelves and a temporary loss, than capital tied up in summer merchandise.

It pays to watch the advertising every day in the year, but it will never pay you better than right now in this month of August.

The time to buy is when the other fellow is anxious to sell and never are the merchants offering better inducements than now.

Pretty Girl is After Lost Mine

PASADENA, Cal., Aug. 15.—A young and pretty woman, said to be Miss Francis Leighton, of Oakland, is now and has for some time been digging from twelve to fifteen hours a day in the deep canyons of the Sierra Madre range, back of Mount Wilson, in an effort to locate the lost gold mine of her grandfather, John Easton.

Easton, who was killed in 1849, left a half-made chart showing where his mine was located, but search from that time to this has resulted in failures.

Now Miss Leighton, daughter of C. P. Leighton, of Oakland, says she will find it unaided. She has erected a log cabin with her own hands, and in this, with two great wolfhounds, she is living alone. She says she is enjoying life immensely and will never quit until her efforts are successful.

Drugs and Brandy Did Not Harmonize

LINDSAY, Aug. 15.—A Manvers farmer who came to town for the purpose of having a tooth extracted, was found after the operation in the rear of Mr. John Dennis' premises on Kent street, in an almost unconscious condition.

The man stated that he had received two glasses of brandy before having the molar extracted, and this with other drugs administered, had upset his stomach, leaving him in a dazed state.

A physician was called, who ordered his removal to an hotel for rest He recovered later on and was taken home.

New York Police Narrow Down Search for Murderer.

Deputy Commissioner Dougherty Says He Has Learned the Name of the Man Who Lured Wm. G. Martin Into Place Where He Was Killed—Cocaine Habit May Help Trace Perpetrators.

NEW YORK, May 15.—Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty tonight announced he had definitely learned the name of the man who on Monday night lured William Grieve Martin, the Toronto milliner, into a furnished room at No. 453 West Fifty-seventh street and helped to strangle him to death for the purpose of robbery.

The man who is described as being less than 25 years old, was a companion of the youth who rented the room, giving the name of Johnson, and arranged for living there for his supposed brother and sister-in-law.

"Until we arrest this man, which probably will be very soon, I do not intend to reveal hi sname," Mr. Dougherty said. "Early this morning we learned much of his past hitsory from a Mrs. Rose, who has known him since last March. Another acquaintance told us of his haunts."

The task of the detectives to find the two men wanted for the actual killing of Martin is made easier because of their manner of living and the few places frequented by their type.

Slips of paper similar to those in which cocaine is wrapped were found in the room where Martin was killed. Portions of a conversation overheard by Mrs. Theodore Jones, the housekeeper of the place, indicated that the two men were becoming crazed because they did not have money with which to buy more of the drug. These facts have led the detectives to believe Martin was robbed so that the men could get the drug they craved.

Mrs. Jones told Dougherty that the men and their woman companion seemed to be on the verge of starvation. One of the women living in her house on one occasion offered "Mrs. Johnson" something to eat, but she declined to take the food because she feared the anger of the man with whom she lived.

"That man had a wild stare that frightened me," said George Needham, 14 years, who lives above the room the couple occupied. "When he spoke to me I'd run away. But the woman was much nicer. She'd sit on the front steps in the afternoon while the men were sleeping in the back room."

A "stool pigeon" employed by the police in resorts frequented by cocaine users told Acting Captain Kerr that two men, whose descriptions tally with those of the men wanted for the murder, had made an effort to dispose of two diamond rings last Monday night. Two diamond rings were taken from Martin.

When the men failed to find a buyer they departed, saying they were going to the home of a friend uptown. They are well known to certain patrons of the place, and no one recalls having seen them since Tuesday morning.

SULZER HANGING ON

Impeached Governor Refuses to Give Up Privy Seal

He has Changed the Locks on the Doors Leading to the Governor's Private Office and has Stationed an Officer at Each—Secretary of State Transfers His Allegiance to Lieut.-Governor.

ALBANY, N.Y., Aug. 15.—(Can. Press.)—Preparations as if for a long siege were made at the executive chamber upon the arrival of Lieutenant-Governor Glynn at the capitol. The locks on every door leading to the chamber and the governor's private office were changed and an attendant was stationed at each entrance.

Secretary of State Mitchell returned from Saratoga this morning and called at the office of Lieutenant-Governor Glynn before the latter's arrival at the capitol. "I merely called to pay my respects," said Secretary Mitchell, "and to assure Mr. Glynn personally that I have decided to recognize him as acting governor of state. As I read the law I can see no other way to act consistently."

Formal demand for the surrender of the executive chamber and offices, the privy seal and all books, papers, records and documents relating to the executive department was made upon Governor William Sulzer this afternoon by Lieutenant-Governor Martin H. Glynn.

Governor Sulzer refused to comply with the demand.

Included in Governor Sulzer's refusal, according to D. Cady Herrick, chief of his counsel, is a proposal that Glynn and Sulzer prepare an agreed statement of the facts in the controversy and submit them to the courts to determine who is governor of New York.

Control of the National Guard, access to the great seal, recognition by New York's secretary of state and by the governor of the neighboring state of New Jersey were prerogatives stripped from Governor Sulzer, impeached, by Lieutenant-Governor Glynn, who claims to be the acting chief executive. Possession of the privy seal, whose imprint validates all documents coming before the governor on affairs wholly within the state and occupancy of the executive chambers remained with Governor Sulzer.

Lieut.-Gov. Glynn checkmated tonight the efforts of Wm. Sulzer to invoke the arbitrament of the courts on the question as to who is the present lawful chief executive of the State of New York.

Replying to a formal proposal by the impeached executive to submit the issue to adjudication on an agreed state of facts, Mr. Glynn tonight declared that it was beyond his power to "barter away any of the functions attaching to the office in which I am placed by your impeachment. Any attempt on my part to do so," he said, "or to stipulate a method by which it might be done, would properly place me in the position you now occupy—that of being impeached for malfeasance in office."

Mr. Glynn declared further that he proposed to perform every function of the office of governor, "except in so far as I am restrained by your illegal action or by physical force."

The announcement of the lieutenant-governor's policy came late tonight and followed negotiations between the respective counsel of the two men in the late afternoon, which it was then supposed had resulted in a virtual agreement to take the case to the court of appeals.

Mr. Glynn's letter was addressed to "The Hon. William Sulzer" and signed "acting governor." It says in part:

"I know of no way by which I could make and no condition that would justify me in making any such stipulation. The constitution was designed to, and I am advised and believe does, specifically and completely cover the juncture now existing, and is supplemented by statutes passed by the legislature and now in force.

"The entire matter is now in the highest court of the state—the court of impeachment—the most august body known to our system. No order that any lower court could make, no judgment that it could render, would have the slightest binding force upon this high court."

"No member of the court of appeals, certainly no member of the lower body, the supreme court, can in any degree, nor under any circumstances, interfere with the jurisdiction or the decision of such court of impeachment, save, and save only, as the members of the court of appeals shall cast their individual votes as such members of the court.

"The decision of the court of impeachment, once made, is binding on every court and every person in the state and must be so respected and treated. Any attempt to interfere with the jurisdiction or the proceedings of such court of impeachment, by any member of any lower court—and every court in the state is a lower one—would be as futile as would any attempt of a justice of the peace to enjoin the chief judge of the court of appeals from exercising his functions as such chief justice.

"The constitution has fixed this as the only way for the settlement of the matters now pending. I know of no other, and I must, therefore decline to enter into any stipulation whatever with you on the subject."

A Chance to Recoup.

BERLIN, Aug. 15.—Declaring that Baden-Baden was unable to attract the Americans and English as the other cures and resorts did, because there were no facilities for gambling, the municipal authorities have granted a concession to a company for establishing a miniature Monte Carlo, where the Americans and English may secure some excitement while they are waiting the effect of the waters, and at the same time give them a chance to win back some of the money which the hotels and doctors have taken away from them. It is expected that this will bring a much greater influx of visitors.

Met Death While Trespassing.

HAMILTON, Aug. 16.—"We the jury find that the deceased came to his death while trespassing on the C.P.R. property and being struck by one of their engines, and we attach no blame to anyone."

This was the verdict which was returned by the jury which was empanelled by Coroner Dr. Anderson to enquire into the circumstances of the death of an unknown man who was killed by a passenger train from Toronto on the James street crossing at the T., H. & B. station last Monday night. The body has not yet been identified.

New Dundee Wants Hydro.

GALT, Aug 15.—(Special.)—New Dundee is carrying on an active campaign with a view to securing Niagara power. The proposition is to connect with the Baden line at Petersburg and to carry power south to New Dundee six miles. Mr. Purcell, one of the engineers of the hydro commission, was in New Dundee and explained matters to the citizens. Farmers along the line are interested in the scheme of having power applied to farm machinery. A meeting last evening was addressed by a representative of the commission. Now it is only a question as to the amount of power to be subscribed. The villages of Phillipsburg and Wellesley are also seeking information with a view to carrying the power north.

Australian's Tip Aided Hawkins to Win King's Prize,

A story of the good sportsmanlike conduct of an Australian towards Pte. Hawkins when he was facing the supreme moment of making a tie for or a win of the King's prize at Bisley, is told by one of the Canadian team who were on the range at the time and gathered about the now famous Hawkins.

Hawkins' score stood seven behind that of Fenley, who had made 329, when he had three shots left. When he came to fire the shot before the last Hawkins wanted an inner to tie, or a bull to win.

Lying alongside the Canadian was an Australian whose whole attention was concentrated on this quiet battle for the cup.

"Say, raise her five degrees this time and it will wear a bull," he remarked to Hawkins.

"Five?" said Hawkins doubtingly.

"Yes, and you'll have her plump." The Australian was as serious as if he was making the shot himself.

Hawkins hesitated. His judgment told him the Australian was right.

According to the story, he raised his sight three degrees and hit the target. At the next shot he raised his sight the full five degrees and made the hit that won the King's prize.

Has Mania for Stealing Bicycles

George Washburne, of Kingston, a one-armed boy, 16 years of age, appears to have a mania for stealing bicycles. A few weeks ago he was arrested here, having in his possession a "bike" which he had stolen. He was allowed out on suspended sentence.

Yesterday he was again arrested here and he had a bicycle which he had taken from Kingston. He not only stole bicycles in Kingston, but stole two here and rode them to Kingston.

One of the bicycles has been recovered at Kingston. This morning Washburne appeared before Magistrate Masson and was remanded to jail for a week. The lad does not appear to be any too "bright."

Disastrous Fires In Tyendinaga

Mr. John Topping, a yeoman of Tyendinaga Township, yesterday suffered a severe loss. His barns, out buildings and all the season's crops were destroyed by fire, which originated in a bush, and swept everything before it. The loss amounting to some thousands of dollars, is only partially covered by insurance.

Graduate of The Belleville Business College

Wins Remington Gold Medal.

The Intelligencer is pleased to reproduce a letter from the Remington Typewriter Co. in New York and sent to Miss Mabel Miller of Belleville. We join in extending our hearty congratulations to Miss Miller on the occasion of being awarded a Remington Gold Medal for proficiency in Typewriting.

Miss Miller recently graduated from the Belleville Business College and has a splendid position with the Fairbanks Co., in Buffalo, N.Y. Her success in winning this medal speaks loud praise for the excellent and thorough training she received while a student of the Stenography Department of the B. B. C. The staff of the College is also to be congratulated on having trained a student to such a degree of proficiency. Miss Miller, on trial examination, wrote 1250 in 10 minutes, deducting errors she made an average of 115 per minute. She also transcribed from Shorthand dictation on completely new matter at 57 2 5 words per minute and has taken letters just as they were dictated without the use of notes.

325 and 327 Broadway,
New York.

Miss Mabel Miller,
Belleville, Ont.

Dear Madam,—We desire to extend to you our hearty congratulations for winning the Remington Medal awarded to the pupil most proficient in typewriting in the Belleville Business College.

In the field of human endeavor the greatest prize is the consciousness of duty well done, and that this has been accomplished by you is attested by your proving your right to wear the Remington Medal.

As a typewriter is an indispensible factor in the conduct of modern business, the skilled operation of it must be increasingly essential, and we are confident that the ability which you have acquired will contribute much to the success of your future career.

Yours very truly,

DOWN BY THE SEA

The favorite way to reach the attractive beaches of the popular resorts on Long Island Sound, in the vicinity of New London, Conn., is via the Grand Trunk Railway System and the Central Vermont Railway, tourists being given the choice of routes including that magnificent trip through the Thousand Islands and the exciting run through the rapids of the St. Lawrence River to Montreal which is one of the most delightful of summer trips. A side trip to the Capital of the Dominion-Ottawa, where the Chateau Laurier, the $2,500,000.00 Grand Trunk Hotel offers the best accommodation in the Dominion, and Montreal with its many attractions will also appeal to patrons of this route.

The seashore express for New London leaves Montreal every night at 8.30 with electric lighted buffet sleeping cars, and the day train at 8.30 in the morning with parlor and dining cars. The main attractions of Long Island resorts are warm surf bathing, deep sea fishing, sailing, driving and tramping and a temperate climate, the temperature rarely rising above 75 degrees. A week in this vicinity will do as much good as a sea voyage. For Seashore booklet giving full information, apply to H. C. Thompson, City Passenger Agent, G. T. Ry., Belleville. 1t

UNION BANK OF CANADA

QUEBECERS HONORED BY THE DIRECTORS OF THE BANK

Mr. William Price, Vice-President, Appointed Honoray President To Succeed The Late Honorable John Sharples, M. L. A. Mr. George H. Thomson Elected Vice-President Of The Bank.

At a meeting of the Directors of the Union Bank of Canada held in Toronto on Monday, August 4th, 1913, at which were present Mr. John Galt, President, Messrs. William Price and R. T. Riley, Vice Presidents, Lieutenant-Colonel John Carson, and Messrs. Stephen Haas, George H. Thomson, H. Ball, G. H. Balfour and H. B. Shaw, the General Manager and Assistant Manager of the Bank, the Directors manifested their interest in the birthplace and, for some forty-six years the head office of the institution in the City of Quebec, by electing two of their Confreres from that city. Mr. William Price, Vice-President of the Bank, Honoray President, in succession to the late Honorable John Sharples, and Mr. George H. Thomson, Vice-President, to replace Mr. William Price. No better selection could have been made, as these gentlemen have been identified with the institution for a very long time and have always manifested great interest in its welfare.

At this meeting the following resolution was passed by the Directors, in connection with the lamented death of the Honorable John Sharples, Honorary President of the Bank:

The Directors of the Union Bank of Canada desire to place on record their sense of the very great loss which the Bank has sustained in the death of their late, esteemed Honoray President, the Honorable John Sharples, M. L. A., whose great interest in the welfare of the institution has been so keenly manifested throughout the whole term of his long connection with the Bank, in the various capacities of Director, Vice-President, President and since the head office of the Bank was transferred from the City of Quebec to the City of Winnipeg, Honoray President.

Mr. Sharples' large and varied business experience, foresight and sound judgment have been important facters in the upbuilding of the institution with which he has been so long connected, and in which he has at all times taken such a deep interest. The Directors feel that they have individually lost an esteemd friend through the death of their late Honorary President, whose kindly disposition and unostentatious, liberal charity had so endeared him to the community in which he had lived and been respected throughout his whole life.

The Directors desire to respectfully convey to Mrs. Sharples their very sincere and heartfelt sympathy in the lose which she has sustained through the death of a loving and kind husband, and request the secretary of the bank to forward a copy of this resolution to her.

The Western and Eastern Directors of the Bank are at present making a tour of the branches of the Bank in the Province of Ontario and Quebec, accompanied by the General Manager and the Eastern Superintendent.

JAPAN'S REJECTION OF DIAZ

The strongest support that could have been given to President Wilson's position toward the Huerta administration in Mexico has come from the most unexpected source. A Tokio despatch of Wednesday said: "The Japanese Government intimated today to the Mexican Government that it would not receive General Felix Diaz as special envoy to Japan to express the thanks of Mexico for Japanese participation in the Mexican centennial. It declared that it would receive General Diaz only as a private individual."

While no explanation has been or is likely to be offered, the reasons for this action must be the same that have caused President Wilson to refuse to recognize the Huerta Government. Felix Diaz is under the same cloud as Huerta. If Huerta can be charged with any responsibility for the assassination of Madero, Diaz must bear equal responsibility. Moreover, Diaz was the leader of the barbarous insurrection which made the streets of Mexico City a battlefield for more than a week. The Japanese Government is saying, in effect, that it does not care to accord to this man the honors due to an envoy.

The action of Japan will be the more bitter blow to the Huerta following because it has been obviously trying to play off Japan against the United States. Evidently it has counted without warrant on Japanese sympathy and friendship, and it is not improbable that the course of Japan will have some effect in making Huerta more willing to listen to the propositions of the United States Government.

It is exceptional good luck for President Wilson to find this diplomatic ally, where he expected to find a diplomatic rival. Moreover, Japan has, whether intentionally or not, heaped coals of fire on the head of the Wilson administration. The California anti-Japanese legislation may be looked at from a somewhat different viewpoint in Washington hereafter.

THE LASTEST SUBSTITUTE FOR MILL

The latest thing in the dairy line, says the Canadian Farm, is the making of what is called vegetable milk. This is made by a special process from wheat, corn and one other vegetable compound, and a company has been formed in St. Louis to develop the idea, which it is claimed has been discovered by European scientists. The claim is made that this vegetable milk will keep twelve hours longer than the best cow's milk, and that it will stand chemical analysis, all of which is very interesting. We would not like, however, to commend the process until we had sampled the product. In any case, it does not appear to be anything the dairyman should worry about. It may be possible to develop a milk from vegetables for drinking purposes, but we would like to see the butter it would make. In fact our meagre information regarding this new product, indicates that butter cannot be made from it at all, nor cheese either. Therefore, if it does come to anything, it can be used only for drinking and perhaps for cooking purposes. And even here there are few who would be willing to drink a mere vegetable compound in preference to the genuine, good old cow's milk. The day of the cow is not ended yet. As the real food value of her product becomes better known it will become in greater demand. Then, too, it is quite possible that the cost of this vegetable compound will be as high, if not higher, than the cost of producing milk. There is no process of invention that can supersede the cow as a machine for producing milk economically, if it is properly handled. One of the chief reasons for the high cost of milk to-day is the poor cow, the cow that does not pay for her keep. If every man who owns cows had animals that produce at least 10,000 lbs. a year the supply would soon increase and the producer would make more profit.

LET US BE DECENT

Whether the Grain Growers' Guide has a chronic grouch, or delights in hearing itself criticise everyone and everything outside its immediate household, this cranky journal seldom, if ever, allows an issue to go forth without sending with it a spleenish influence that is anything but agreeable. It goes limping on first one foot and then another to the tune of opposition to every subject, good, bad, or indifferent, proposed by its contemporaries. We have forgiven its shortcomings up to the present, but when it takes a pessimistic view of conditions in its immediate portion of the country, just for the sake of being contrary, it has, in our opinion, gone the limit, and should be taken into the back yard and advised differently. Listen to its latest growl, under the caption of "Shall We Ever Grow Up?"

"When will the daily newspapers of Western Canada realize that the places in which they are published are grown-up cities and no longer infant prodigies? Every time a stranger with a title or an office comes to Winnipeg the daily papers record his amazement at the wide streets and magnificent buildings of this wonderful city. And if there does not happen to be anyone of distinction in the city for a day or two, they discover some commercial traveller from New York or Chicago in one of the hotels, and induce him to make a statement at the city's marvelous parks. In the same way, every visitor of note who sees Canada from an observation car is permitted at every place he stops off to express surprise at seeing a modern metropolis instead of the collection of shacks which, in his ignorance, he had imagined was called a city in the West. They all tell us that Canada has a great future before it, and that it is destined to be the granary of the Empire. Having seen this sort of thing in the newspapers every morning for the last fifteen or twenty years, it is almost time that we could take it for granted. It may be quite proper to admire a nice, fat baby, and to glory in the fact that it has cut another tooth, but the same sort of adulation bestowed upon a grown man is merely humiliating."

Never call any man a liar to his teeth unless they are false.

TOLD HIM WHERE TO GET OFF AT

Speaking of civic authority, some officials, once they have donned the uniform, go so far beyond their duties that they become a public nuisance. In fact many of them possess so little knowledge of where to begin and where to cease that they are eternally jumping the limit. Take, for instance, the following incident which occurred in Regina last week, where over-crowding of dwellings is an evil occupying the attention of the authorities, as is the case throughout Canada:

"A citizen was awakened from sleep and ordered to open his house to the inspection of a civic health officer at two o'clock in the morning. He refused to let the officer in. Also, he told him to go to a place that, everyone hopes, will not be overcrowded.

"Police court proceedings followed. The plaintiff said he had visited the house during the day and had found no one there. So he took no chances next time and called around two hours after midnight.

"The magistrate dismissed the case, with sarcastic remarks about an authority which would claim casual official entrance to a private dwelling in the name of the law at all hours of the night and morning. He took the view that the defendant had done the natural and proper thing in offering resistance to the early visitor, being frank enough to say that he would do likewise if similarly annoyed.

"Congratulations to the magistrate. Health inspection is an admirable thing. But so is private right. Officials who do not exercise common sense ought not to be supported by the courts."

We are glad to know the above does not apply to Belleville in any sense. Our officials have a degree of respectability that extends to the feelings of others.

FARM AND GARDEN

THE HORSE

As pastures become drier, the need for feeding the sucking colt increases.

While horses in Ontario increased 90,447 in the ten years, 1901 to 1911, their average value also increased $62.47 per head, according to the census report.

Much as horses like the new hay, we are told that it is not as good for them as old hay. Liveries and dray firms always buy old hay for their horses, and find that it is better for them than newly-mown hay.

Many importers of draft horses are landing new importations at this season. It is a good time to look these over, and select the horse to meet your desire before all the choicest have been disposed of. Real good horses are never very plentiful.

Be careful in commencing the horses, which have been at grass the greater part of the smmer, at the fall work. They are soft, and might easily be overdone. This is particularly true of mares sucking foals. Care must also be exercised that the colt does not get over-heated milk. Nothing is surer to bring on digestive troubles, and give his growth a serious set-back.

Whether dry or wet seasons have any affect upon the conception of mares or not, we are not prepared to say, but the Live Stock Journal, commenting upon the show season in England, has this to say: "The shortage of yearlings, and the full number of foals being shown this season, leads one to ask whether a hot, dry season affects the conception of mares. Two years ago the weather, for the sumemr months, was hot and dry, and there appears to have been a shortage of foals last year. On the other hand the breeding season of 1912 was cool and wet, which probably favored foal production, hence the increased number of show foals be seen. It is also a fact that most breeders have had a good deal of trouble with their broods mares this season, so it seems climatic conditions affect the foal crop, at least, to some extent."

CULTIVATE NOW

Another summer is fast drawing to a close, and again fields are rapidly being stripped of their golden harvest. Harvest is a busy season, but all seasons on a well-regulated farm are busy seasons, and it is well that it is so, for work rightly done is generally done at a profit, so the busier we are the greater should be our success. No sooner is one crop harvested than it becomes necessary to prepare for another. A twelve-month is, after all, a very short time, and with practically half of it winter, as far as cultivation is practicable. In the spring, as soon as the frost is out and the land is dry enough to work, we see teams rushing the work of plowing, cultivating, disking and harrowing. Why? To prepare a seedbed that the grain may fall upon fertile soil and bring forth abundantly. But is the getting of the land in fine tilth the only object of this great rush? No. Experienced men who understand things will tell you that tilling the soil, putting a layer of fine earth on top, conserves moisture for the use of the crop later on. Quite true. If tillage is good in the spring, why is it not benefical after the crop off? It is almost as necessary to conserve moisture now as just before the crop is sown, as it is such a short time until another crop must be put in. How often we hear it said that the land is too hard to plow. Much of this may be avoided by as soon as the crop is off, skimming the fields not seeded, down with a gang plow, or going over them two or three times with the disks or cultivator. After this give a couple of strokes with a good sharp harrow, to leave the land fine on top. It is seldom land, thus treated, gets so hard the plow will not take hold of it later on when it is necessary to give the deeper cultivation. A large amount of moisture is thus prevented from evaporating.

After harvest, cultivation does another great work for the man who practices it. Weed seeds of almost all kinds, germinate and grow rapidly in the late summer and fall, in an effort to produce seed again before the winter. These young shoots are very tender, and the later cultivation puts an end to their existence. This is one of the most effective means of fighting weeds, while growing crops, there is. The extra cultivation is worth while, if it did nothing else but put the soil in better tilth. Do not wait until next week. Cultivate each field as soon as the crop is removed. The gang plow does the best work, but the cultivator or disk helps the soil greatly.

IS IT ALL DUE TO IGNORANCE?

(Stratford Beacon)

It seems strange and yet the facts force the opinion that more attention is paid to the care of the life of the young of domestic beasts than that of human infants, else why should we read such startling facts as that in Montreal an infant dies every hour, or this: Dr. Mark S. Reuben of Columbia University, says that in the United States, infants under one year constitute 2.2 per cent. of the total population; in this 2.2 per cent. of the population occur 19.2 per cent. of all the deaths. About 3,000,000 who are born alive do not live to celebrate their first birthday. Even in our favored Ontario those who have given close attention to the subject tell us that about twice as many infants die as there should because of ignorance or carelessness in looking after them.

"I Never See You Dusting" said Mrs. White

"WELL, Mrs. White, I'll confess that I don't have to do much dusting since we got our McClary's Sunshine Furnace."

"You don't say so, Mrs. Wright. What difference does that make? Isn't one furnace the same as another?"

"Well, I'll tell you, Mrs. White—McClary's Sunshine is certainly different from our last furnace. It's a clean furnace. It has what McClary's call a sure-acting dust flue."

"A dust flue, eh?

"Yes, and when George, my husband, 'rocks' down the ashes—he doesn't have to break his back shaking the Sunshine, you know—the dust all goes up the sure-acting dust flue. It doesn't come up into the house."

"Wish our furnace was a Sunshine, Mrs. Wright. And you should just see Mr. White after shaking our furnace. Mad! Well, I should say so. And he sure looks his name. He is WHITE. His suits are ruined, he declares, as soon as he gets them, and he swears that the thing is not a furnace at all, but a patent coal-consumer gotten out to benefit the coal man."

"But why not get your husband to put in a Sunshine furnace, Mrs. White? You can persuade him to do most anything for you. And it will cut down your coal bills. We burn a third less coal with the Sunshine."

THERE'S a McClary agent in your locality who will gladly tell you all about the coal-saving, labor-saving and health-producing features of McClary's Sunshine Furnace. It will pay you to read the latest Sunshine booklet. Write our nearest office for a copy.

TINSMITH OR BALL PLAYER?

Boston fans think the Braves have the greatest shortstop ever in Walter Maranvillie, but there is one person bold as to declare Walter is not what he should be. It is the lad's father, who expresses the regret that his boy took up baseball when he did. The elderly maranvillie says Walter was doing nicely as an apprentice in a tinner's shop and he thinks he should by all means have struck to the trade until he had learned it. Because he jumped the tinning job Walter's father doesn't think much of him, and refuses to enfuse over his ball playing. Which reminds us that Tris Speaker's mother regretted that he took up baseball, because she said, Tristram would have made a splendid mechanic.

WHO WAS THE UMPIRE?

Eddie Ainsmith, who always catches Walter Johnson, told an amusing story of how Walter fooled at least one of the American league umpires last year.

Said Ainsmith: "The ump was new to the league and had never worked behind Walter before. We were playing one of the western clubs, and before the game started the umpire came to me and asked me what Walter pitched and if he worked the corners of the plate to any extent.

"I replied: Yes, Johnson works the corners a whole lot. You see, his fast ball has such a jump to it that when I catch it outside the plate it looks like a ball, but in reality it is a strike.

"That day," continued Ainsmith, "Walter was a trifle wild, and pitched a dozen or more balls a foot or so outside the plate about waist high. The umpire, to my surprise, called them all strikes, and then I remembered what I had told him.

"It would have made little difference, however, for our club scored seven or eight runs and the other fellows never had a chance."

NO BLONDES NEED APPLY

John McCloskey, when he managed the Milwaukee club, had several hobbies. One of them was players with black hair. Any player with a dark thatched roof could get a job on the Milwaukee club by just asking for it.

Garnet Bush, who is now umpiring in the Coast League, had just emerged from the secretive wilds of Michigan, and McCloskey on the lookout for new timber, called Bush aside and asked him if there were any players that looked promising in the league.

"Do you recollect what color hair he had?" McCloskey fired at Bush.

"In that case, don't bring him near me. I don't want any players around who have light hair. They can't play the game up to my standards," answered McCloskey.

ATHLETIC LEADER HAS NO PEER

St. Louis, Aug. 15.—Connie Mack is no rival of Charles Comiskey, who pays alleged fabulous prices for ball players. In fact, it's a heavy investment of the Philadelphia club if more than railroad fare from the player's home to Quakertown is laid out for a ball tosser.

The McInnis-Collins-Barry-Baker combination cost Mack something like a small dime. He has a couple of others on his roster now who were obtained for little or nothing. Both are college men.

One is George Brickley, a brother of Harvard's famous football stars. The other is pitcher Morey of Dartmouth, also a gridiron warrior, who was credited with outpunting Sam Felton in the Dartmouth-Harvard game last fall.

Brickley isn't with the team. He's in Boston, signed to a contract and awaiting a call from Mack. According to Brickley's father, George sacrificed a football career that would have been greater than his brother Charles' turning professional. Mack's seizure of young Brickley is said to have disappointed Harvard greatly.

He was the star football and baseball man of the Everett high school team and Harvard football men smacked their lips every time they thought of the younger Brickley. It is said that fancy inducements in the way of summer employments were offered to Brickley to enter Harvard. But he's a Mackman and under Cornelius's tutelage may become a second Eddie Collins or Frank Baker.

Morey is a pitcher. That Mack signed him is pretty good evidence that he has the stuff. Connie should worry if Comiskey pays half a million for Larry Chappele, to say nothing Col. Hedges' $3,500 for Sailor Flanagan.

Charles Comiskey, of the Chicago White Sox, would eliminate slang from baseball write-ups, while some of the professors want it kept up and improved upon. They should all get on to the fact that baseball is a separate language.

Joe Jackson still leads Ty Cobb for batting honors. Jackson is hitting .394 while Ty is clouting .385. Tris Speaker fellows with .364 and Henrickson is next with .351.

In the National League, Yingling of Boston is hitting .390, Walsh of Philadelphia .370, MacDonald of Boston .361, Gibson of Pittsburg .361 and Miller of Philadelphia .363.

Christy Mathewson is now twirling in his thirteenth consecutive year for the Giants, but is able to show up every young pitcher in the National league at that.

"I have pleasure in stating that I have been cured of severe Dyspepsia and Chronic Constipation by using "Fruit-a-tives." I was a terrible sufferer from severe Constipation for many years, and I tried every remedy I heard of, and also was treated by physicians without any permanent benefits.

Then I tried "Fruit-a-tives", and this fruit medicine has completely cured both the Constipation and Indigestion.

I cannot praise "Fruit-a-tives" enough".

THE RING.

CARL MORRIS TO TAKE BOXING LESSONS

Chicago, Aug. 15.—It's back to the primary grade in the school of pugilism for Carl Morris, the fighting giant of Oklahoma. He plans to come to Chicago within two weeks and place himself in charge of a skilled boxing instructor to acquire knowledge of glove fighting from beginning to end.

Larney Lichtenstein, manager of Steve Ketchel and a number of other fighters, is authority for the statement that Morris is "going to school" to learn all there is to know about glove fighting. Lichtenstein drilled the idea into the Oklahomo heavyweight while down in Clovis, N. M., with Marty Culer, a Chicagoan, whom Morris stopped in two rounds.

Morris, he asserts, plans to become a pupil of Harry Gilmore, of former lightweight champion and veteran instructor. Then, after a month's teaching he will go to the Pacific coast and attempt to arrange a series of contests that eventually will land him a championship math with Arthur Pelkey.

"It may sound amusing," said Lichtenstein, "but Morris is a vastly underrated fighter. Everybody made fun of him after the punching he got from Jim Flynn, but Morris was the victim of too much advice.

"Let me explain. When he first jumped into prominence he was a big, raw fighter without the slightest idea of defense. All he could do was to slam away with all his strength and take a chance of stopping his opponent with a punch. After whipping a few unimportant boxers he was matched to box Flynn in New York.

"Somebody conceived the idea that it would be a good thing for him to learn something about boxing after the match was made. So they got one man to teach him to punch, another to show him how to block, and still another to drill the idea of footwork into his head

"As a result of this teaching, Morris got into the ring with Flynn so bewildered and rattled that he honestly didn't know what to di. He had no idea of defense, which was most essential. He withstood Flynn's murderous attacks for 10 rounds and got one of the worst lickings a boxer ever received.

"But he didn't shew a streak of yellow for a minute. He assimilated Flynn's punches without a murmur and won the admiration of every man in Madison Square garden that night for his exhibition of gameness.

"Morris has the build, strength and determination to make a champion. He is 6 feet 4 inches tall and weighs 210 pounds in fighting trim. It is an established fact that he's one of the hardest punchers the ring has ever seen. With a sufficient amount of expert instruction he'll whip Pelkey, Willard and the rest of those heavyweights or I'll eat my hat."

WHERE THE PINS GO

Notice with much satisfaction that a Paris scientist, Dr. Xavier, has added to the general joy and the world's stock of knowledge by telling us where all the missing pins go.

They disappear, says the Professor, into thin air by changing into ferrous oxide, a brown rust that is soon blown away in dust. An ordinary hairpin took 154 days to blow away, a steel nib lasted fifteen months, a common pin took eighteen months to vanish and a polished needle two and a half years.

This is a subject that has puzzled mankind ever since the first paper of pins was unfolded.

The doubter, as he is ever with us, is recommended to gaze at a common pin steadily for eighteen months and go into the ferrous oxide business for himself.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

NO PRAYER DAY.

Governor of Kansas Doubts Its Power to Secure Rain.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 15.—(Can. Press.)—Prayers for rain were asked for in Kansas and Missouri today by citizens and clergymen, who believe that sporadic prayers are not sufficient to end the drought that has beset the southwest for more than three weeks. In Kansas hundreds of persons wrote to Governor Hodges, asking him to issue a proclamation calling for a day of public prayer. The governor declined. "I believe in the efficacy of prayer," said the governor, "but not in the case of flood or droughts."

Bishop J. J. Hennessy, of the Roman Catholic diocese of Wichita, Kansas, issued an order that on next Sunday an hour should be given in each church in the diocese for special devotions and "fervent prayer to our blessed Lord to terminate the present unusually protracted dry spell."

At Springfield, Mo., the Rev. J. F. McDonald, pastor of the St. Paul Methodist Episcopal Church, announced public services would be held tomorrow to offer prayers for rain. The region around Springfield is experiencing one of the most serious droughts ever known.

The letters to Gov. Hodges were from all parts of the state. Some urged the governor to ask that every resident attend church Sunday morning and that everyone make a prayer of his own. Others urged that the proclamation simply ask each citizen to offer a prayer at his home or at church.

The letters told of the suffering of the sick because of the dry weather and extreme heat, and of the suffering of live stock because of water shortage and of the loss of crops and forage and the drying up of pastures and wells.

All the letters to the governor declared the writers and their families and friends and the preachers generally had prayed and are praying for rain, but the prayers have not been answered. The writers declared their belief that if the entire citizenship of the state would join in a general prayer God would not fail to answer it at once and send the much needed rain.

In Kansas City today two persons died of heat prostration and a dozen others were overcome.

TROOPS IN CONTROL.

Nanaimo and Ladysmith Miners Reduced to Quiet.

VANCOUVER, Aug. 15.—The Vancouver and Victoria militia are now considered to have control of the situation in all of the strike and riot districts. Nearly 1,000 militia men are encamped in the centres of trouble and any further outbreaks are expected to be sternly dealt with. Those who are in close touch with the situation claim that the long drawn-out coal mining troubles will be settled in the course of a few days.

The miners spent most of the forenoon in session and at 12 o'clock named a committee of seven to talk things over with Manager Stockett of the Western Fuel Company. This fact alone caused a distinctly better feeling and the chance of trouble here now appears to be rapidly lessening.

The agreement suggested by the Vancouver and Nanaimo Coal Company has been endorsed by the men. It is expected, therefore, that the Jingle Pot shaft will resume tomorrow.

In Ladysmith men who are known to have been employed as strike-breakers have been warned to get out within twenty-four hours.

CORNERING MARKET.

James A. Patten Has Sellers of Corn in Tight Place.

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—James A. Patten, whose deals in grain and cotton in the last decade have attracted world-wide attention, is once more the central figure in a speculation that is causing the corn pit on the board of trade to boil with excitement.

Mr. Patten started to buy corn three weeks ago. His paper profits at the present time are said to be at least $500,000. According to reports, he is now in possession of contracts calling for the delivery of more than 5,000,000 bushels in September. As there are less than 1,000,000 bushels of contract corn available for delivery in Chicago public elevators, and the farmers are refusing to ship their old corn to market pending the outcome of the new crop, it begins to look as if those who have sold for next month's delivery are in a tight place.

September corn jumped to 75 cents on the board of trade today, the highest price of the year. The market recalled some of Patten's former deals, so intense was the excitment accompanying the advance.

JAIL BREAKER CAUGHT.

Cobalt Constable Captures Man Like in a "Movey."

COBALT, Aug. 15.—(Special.)—Frank Dunn, who broke jail at North Bay eighteen months ago, was smartly captured by Constable Robert Sharp here at 7 o'clock this evening. Dunn was sentenced here to six months in North Bay jail in Jan., 1912, and as at that time he was out on ticket of leave with five months of a previous sentence unexpired, he was sent down for eleven months altogether. Two months later he broke jail and has never been heard of since till Constable Sharp spied him at Sasaginaga Lake tonight.

Sharp plunged into the bushes when three hundred yards distant and stalked Dunn till he reached a clearing thirty yards away from the unsuspecting man. Then Dunn caught sight of the constable and bolted. Sharp drew his gun and ran after him, calling on him to stop. Dunn turned back and held up his hands, and Sharp still holding the revolver in one hand snapped the bracelets on with the other and led him off to the cells.

Labor Men in Force.

HAMILTON, Aug. 15.—(Special.)—Labor took charge of the organized festivities on the fifth day of Hamilton's Centennial Week.

Fifteen hundred union men marched in procession at 1 o'clock from Victoria Park to Britannia Park, and there listened to speeches and engaged in games until dusk. Each union was distinctively garbed. The blacksmiths wore leather aprons, which had plainly never felt the heat of a forge. The white suits of the painters were spotless, and no trace of engine grease marred the striped uniforms of the locomotive engineers.

WILL BREAK RECORD

Field Crops Give Fine Promise Says Official Report.

Fall Wheat Production is Estimated to Be Thirteen Per Cent. Greater Than Last Year, While Spring Wheat is Well Above the Average for the Past Five Years —Barley Yield a Bumper One.

OTTAWA, Aug. 15.—(Can. Press.)—In a bulletin issued today the census and statistics office reports that according to the returns made by crop reporting correspondents at the end of last month, the weather of July was on the whole favorable to the growth of grain crops. The conditions in the Northwest provinces were reported as generally excellent. Representing a standard or full crop by 100, the average condition thruout Canada of fall wheat is expressed as 77.75, of spring wheat as 87.62, of oats as 87.45, of barley as 87.58, of rye as 85.00, of mixed grains as 89.33 and of flaxseed as 83.85.

The percentages of the standard condition of spring wheat, barley and rye represent the promise of yields per acre for spring wheat of six, for barley of five, for rye of two and for flaxseed of one per cent. above the average yields per acre of the last five years.

All the field crops of Canada on July 31, excepting only fall wheat (77.75), hay and clover (74.67) and alfalfa (76.35), are reported as having a condition above 80, the range being from 82 for beans and corn for husking to 89 for potatoes and mixed grains.

In the three Northwest provinces spring wheat is reported as 84.60 in Manitoba, 89 in Saskatchewan and 88 in Alberta, the other grain crops being correspondingly high, barley especially in Saskatchewan and Alberta being 90 per cent. or over. Root crops are also particularly good.

The condition of buckwheat in the maritime provinces and in Quebec is 90 and over, but in Ontario it is down to 73.42. Flaxseed is above 80 in the Northwest provinces and in Saskatchewan, where the great bulk of this crop is grown, the percentage condition is 84.17. Sugar beet, grown for beet root sugar in Ontario and Alberta is 80.44 for the former and 92.31 for the latter province.

The preliminary estimate of the yield per acre of fall wheat is 22.33 bushels, which for the harvested area in Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia of 825,800 acres, indicates a total yield of 18,482,000 bushels, as compared with 16,396,000 bushels from 781,000 acres in 1912. This yield is 13 per cent. above that of last year.

The average yield per acre of hay and clover is estimated at 1.23 ton, indicating a total yield of 9,396,000 tons from 7,621,600 acres, as compared with 11,189,000 tons from 7,633,600 acres, or 1.47 tons per acre in 1912. Alfalfa, with an average yield per acre of 1.38 tons, shows an estimated total production of 143,000 tons from 103,250 acres, as compared with 310,100 tons from 111,300 acres, or 2.79 tons per acre in 1912.

WHEAT ON FREE LIST.

Ten Per Cent. Duty Is Stricken Off by U. S. Senators.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—(Can. Press.)—The Democratic amendment putting wheat on the free list and striking out the ten per cent. tariff rate, fixed by the house of Democrats, was adopted by the senate yesterday by a vote of 37 to 32. A subsequent motion by Senator Gronna, to fix a duty of six cents per bushel on wheat and one-eighth of a cent per pound on wheat flour, was defeated 37 to 31. Senators Ransdell and Thornton of Louisiana voted with the Republicans.

The Democrats also defeated an amendment proposed by Senator Gronna to restore the three cent duty on eggs, contained in the house bill. The vote of 35 to 28 in favor of the senate committee's proposal for free eggs, the first definite effort of the Democrats to secure an agreement for an early vote on the tariff bill, failed in the senate today, when Republicans served notice that consideration of the measure would be continued indefinitely.

Leading senators of both parties, as a result of the day's developments, last night predicted a session of congress that would run until late October or November.

BATHER DROWNED.

Camper at French River Got Out Beyond His Depth.

NORTH BAY, Aug. 15.—(Special.)—Nicholas McCullough, aged 21 years of Pittsburg, Pa., was drowned in the French River this afternoon while bathing with his brother, Thomas McCullough, Byron Connell and Reamer Sewell. The unfortunate young man came for a month's outing on the French River, arriving at North Bay on August 4th. His mother is a widow and resides in Pittsburg.

The young men were having a splendid vacation tenting on the river bank, and on Thursday afternoon Nicholas stayed at the camp while his companions left for a paddle around the island. When they returned he was missing, and as he could not swim they suspected that he had gone in bathing alone and got beyond his depth. The body was recovered at 9 o'clock at night and brought to North Bay, from where it was taken to his mother's home in Pittsburg for interment.

Judge Upholds Workman.

KINGSTON, Aug. 15.—(Special.)—The court case in which Fallon Bros., contractors of Cornwall, were the defendants, has been settled. George Austin sued them for non-payment of wages, rising out of his complaint about the contractors working men ten hours instead of eight, as the contracts calls for. Austin got the amount he claimed.

The Trades and Labor Council is still pressing the minister of labor to send a representative here to investigate the conditions under which the work of the causeway for Cataraqui bridge, for which Fallon Bros. have the contract, is being carried on.

Strathcona Gives Fat Cheque.

MIDNAPORE, Alta., Aug. 15.—(Special.)—Dr. Paul Faber, of Calgary collection committee, received a cheque from Lord Strathcona for $2000 towards Father Lacombe's orphanage here, which is suffering lack of funds.

APPEAL TO ENGLAND.

Chinese Anti-Opium League Wants Drug Kept Out.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—(Can. Press.)—Lieut.-Gen. Chang, delegate of the National Opium Prohibition Union of China, who has been in England for three months endeavoring to induce the British government to release China from her obligation to receive any more Indian opium, started today for China to report to Provisional President Yuan Shi Kai the failure of his mission. In a statement issued to the British public today Gen. Chang said:

"Our people are deadly in earnest in their efforts to rid themselves of the opium evil, and they cannot help feeling resentment against a country which is forcing upon us the very article by which we were degraded and disgraced. It is intolerable when we reflect we are sacrificing millions of revenue and hundreds of lives in struggling against enormous difficulties that a foreign country should force us to receive for two or three years longer the poison we so earnestly are striving to stamp out."

The lieutenant-general concluded by appealing to the British friends of China "to do their utmost to induce the British government to join with us in removing the root of wrong and in promoting righteousness in the world."

Ex-President Diaz of Mexico Hopes for Peace.

BIARRITZ, France, Aug. 15.—(Can. Press.)—General Porfirio Diaz, former President of Mexico, in a statement tonight, said that he did not desire to sit in judgment on the situation existing in his native country, but that he would like to proclaim as his most ardent hope that Mexico soon would find in peace a new era of strength and prosperity.

"Besides, I am not a man of words," said the former Mexican executive. "I always have been, and always shall remain, a man of action. I bow before the choice of administration made by my compatriots, and am resolved to maintain the strictest reserve. No words shall be spoken by me which might give rise to comment or argument between the armies in Mexico. I wish to keep outside of all discussions or dissensions. Old Time Cowboys.

In the Revolutionary war the "cowboys" were a set of Tories in Westchester county, N. Y., popularly so called because of the brutal roughness with which they treated their Whig or rebel neighbors.

Origin of Leap Year.

Leap year originated with the astronomers of Julius Caesar, 46 B. C. They fixed the solar year at 365 days 6 hours, comprising, as they thought, the period from one vernal equinox to another. The six hours were set aside and at the end of four years, forming a day, the fourth year was made to consist of 366 days. The day thus added was placed a day before the 24th of February, the day with us being Feb. 29.

Three Cars Run Away.

ST. CATHARINES, Aug. 15.—(Special.)—Three cars which broke from a Niagara, St. Catharines and Toronto railway freight train near Thorold early this evening and went down grade, gathering great speed, collided with three cars of cement that were being pushed in the opposite direction through St. Catharines by the electric engine. The engine is a total wreck, and all the cars except two are badly smashed.

One car was thrown from the track and struck the house of John Taylor of Westchester avenue, several boards of which were torn off, and bags of cement thrown promiscuously about the yard. The crew saw the danger in sufficient time to jump. No one was injured, but it seems almost miraculous that the runaway cars did not meet a passenger car.

Negro's Death an Accident.

KINGSTON, Aug. 15.—(Special.)—After making a thoro investigation, Coroner C. F. McPherson decided no light could be shown on the death of A. J. Williamson, the colored waiter on the steamer Kingston, and therefore called the proposed inquest off. Williamson's body was picked up near the wharf on Thursday morning. There were bruises on his head, but the coroner was satisfied that these were caused by coming in contact with boats. Williamson likely fell in the water while walking along the wharf.

No Interruption in Harvesting.

ARCOLA, Sask., Aug. 15.—(Can. Press.)—Arcola and the surrounding district entirely escaped the severity of last night's storm. The thunderstorm with rain, some wind and a little hail, in some places, did little damage to crops. Harvesting is well started. Barley cutting is practically finished and wheat cutting has begun.

Aeroplane Passenger Killed.

LEIPZIG, Germany, Aug. 15.—(Can. Press.)—Herr Ruetger, a passenger in an aeroplane driven by aviator Roempler, was killed here today when a sudden gust of wind caused the machine to turn over. Roempler was injured, but not seriously. The aeroplane was flying at a height of thirty feet when the accident occurred.

Be Careful When You Laugh.

Few people know what dangers lurk in excessive laughter. When we laugh our regular breathing is changed, coming in quick, short respirations because the throat muscles are contracted. It is for this reason that, when laughing very heartily at some good joke, we have often to gasp for breath. At times we are obliged to hold our sides on account of the pain a hearty laugh causes us, owing to the partial suffocation of the lungs through the cutting off of their proper air supply. Every muscle in the body becomes contracted during a continued fit of laughter. Often the blood vessels in the face become congested, causing it to turn red and even purple. Should this congestion continue for any length of time apoplexy resulting in death might well occur. It is better in these circumstances to laugh until we cry, for the shedding of tears relieves the congestion of the brain. Tears caused by grief do good in the same way, and that is now, after a great sorrow, many people have been saved from brain congestion and madness by the timely shedding of a few tears.—London Tit-Bits.

A Conservative Scotch Beadle.

Before he went to Glasgow Dr. Story was for many years minister of Roseneath, and his old beadle was often sorely perplexed by his "innovations"—standing to sing, kneeling at prayer and various other "seemly alterations." His method of objecting to the changes "was to enter the vestry at the close of the service, firmly clasping the big pulpit Bible and then to lay it heavily upon the table, saying, 'I'm dune wi' ye noo, I'm fair dune wi' ye; I canna thole it ony langer. I hae carriet the Bible for thretty years, but I canna cairry it ony langer; I'm fair dune wi' ye.'" Dr. Story would reply, "Hoot, toot, John; you'll think better of that." "Na, na, sir, I canna thole you. I'll cairry the buiks nae langer; I'm dune wi' ye." But the beadle thought better of it, and remained with Dr. Story "as his sure and trusty henchman", till the end of his life.—Westminster Gazette.

Adventures in a Kilt.

A Scotch military official has just finished an imperial tour in a kilt. He walked through India, Ceylon, Australia and New Zealand, covering over 50,000 miles, says the London Mail.

"The highlander's garb," he says, "attracted a surprising amount of attention. At Taranto, in Italy, I was arrested for doing an impromptu highland fling in the street. In Ceylon I came near to being murdered at a religious festival, for people took me for a devil. In New Zealand a Maori chief offered me a native bride in exchange for the costume. My kilt was certainly a nuisance sometimes. The sun in Australia is so powerful that I spent much money on eau de cologne with which to bathe my exposed knees in an attempt to keep off mosquitoes."

An Example of the Demand For the Graduates of Ontario Business College and How It Is Met

A representative of the firm of Rogers, Miller & Co., contractors on the Trent Canal, office at Trenton, Ont., called at O. B. C. on July 17, 1913, to secure a male stenographer and general office man. Arthur P. Bell, who had completed the Commercial course and was that day trying his final examinations in the Shorthand and Typewriting course, was introduced and recommended by Principal Johnson and engaged to begin work on July 21, salary to start $50 a month.

Mr. Bell is a Belleville boy. He began the Commercial course November 28, 1912, finished it March 8, 1913; began the Shorthand and Typewriting course March 10, 1913, and finished July 19, 1913. He completed both courses and was placed in a position starting at $50 a month, in less than eight months. Mr. Bell is only eighteen years old.

A business career opens to young men and women the best opportunities for success in life. Demands such as the above, with similar result, are coming constantly to the principals of O.B.C., J. W. Johnson, F.C.A., and I. L. Moore, from all parts of Canada and from the United States. September is a good time to enter. Send for the catalogue.

12 Tumors Removed Without An Operation

Silver Lake, Ont., Sept. 20, 1909.

Dear Mrs. Currah.—I am enjoying better health than I have for eight years, and I think I am entirely cured. I have none of the old symptoms. I am very grateful for my present health, and think Orange Lily is the greatest treatment for women the world knows. Its use in my case caused 12 tumors or growths of some sort to be expelled. Some were as large as a hen's egg, and others smaller, down to the size of a walnut. You may use my case in your advertisement, for it is the solid truth, and pen cannot describe all the good it has done for me. Mrs. Louise E. Bolteridge.

This letter gives an indication of the positive benefits that always follow the use of Orange Lily. It is an applied treatment and comes in direct contact with the suffering organs. It produces results from the start in all cases of women's disorders, including painful periods, falling of womb, irregularities, leucorrhoea, etc.

I will send a sample box containing 10 days' treatment absolutely free to any suffering woman who has not yet tried it if she will send me her address. Enclose 3 stamps and address MRS. FRANCES E. CURRAH, Windsor, Ont. 4

Farm and Garden

THE DAIRY

Ontario farmers sold $77,550,584 worth of live stock in 1911, and $35,385 worth in 1901, showing an increase of 42,165,208, or 119 per cent.

Cream cans should be covered with a wet sack to keep the temperature to the cream from rising to too high a point while on the road to the creamery.

In handling cream on the farm it is well to remember that it is the cooling of the cream and not the mere fact of getting it into water that is so important. If the cream is stirred faithfully it will in a few minutes be reduced to the same temperature as the water in the tank, while if put into the tank without stirring it may remain for several hours. It is needless to say that just as long as the cream stays warm the bacteria, which even under the most sanitary conditions have gained access to the cream, will not be hindered in their growth. The vast majority of milk bacteria, however, grow very slowly at the temperature of ordinary cold water; hence the importance of cooling the cream very quickly.

HANDLE THE COLT

It will be soon time to wean the colts, and before this come around it is always advisable to have the colt accustomed to being handled. If his mother is quiet, it is more than likely that it will not be a very difficult matter to get up to him in the pasture field and scratch him a little. All colts like to be scratched or rubbed. Begin cautiously, and each day handle him a little more than on the previous day. Soon he will become accustomed to these daily visits which need not take much time—a few minutes is all that is necessary. Most colts will turn their rumps to you at first. Be careful not to get kicked, for the kick of a foal is often dangerous. Begin by gently rubbing the parts he will let you touch. Gradually work towards his head, until finally he will let you handle him anywhere. Pick up his feet and tap them occasionally. Handling quietens the colt, and he gets better acquainted with his master, which is a great help during the trying weaning process.

What the Dominion Government Will Show at Canadian National Exhibition this year

Every day will be Friday bye and bye if the Fisheries Department of the Dominion Givernment accomplish the object of their exhibit at the Canadian Natiinal Exhibition this year. This exhibit is intended to show the people of inland Canada what they are missing in not using salt water fish as a steady diet. It will show the various varieties of the finy tribe, and just how each should be cooked to become a delicacy. The Department is spending $10,000 on this exhibit, so it will be seen they are in deady earnest. This should easily be one of the most interesting exhibits of the fair.

Cause and Cure of Headache

The cause of headache as you know, is the stoppage of the circulation resulting in pressure on the delicate nerves of the head. In time nature will start the blood going again, but meanwhile we suffer and are unfit for duty.

Assisted by two ZUTOO Tablets, which by the way are as harmless as the soda they contain, nature will remove the pressure and stop the headache in twenty minutes. Why continue to suffer? Why be unfit?

It is really remarkable how many people now use ZUTOO to cure their headaches. Do you? If not, why not?

Prince Edward Man Attacked by Bull

Mr. Darcey Young, a prominent yeoman who resides at Melville, in Hillier Township, Prince Edward County, was on Thursday evening attacked by a large bull, which he owns, and severely injured. The animal, which is four years of age, is unusually large and at times is none too quiet. Usually Mr. Young in taking out the animal carries with him a pitchfork for protection, but on this occasion failed to do so. When the bull was outside of the barn it suddenly charged upon Mr. Young and drove him with considerable force through a fence. The victim sustained severe injuries, consisting of several ribs being broken, body pierced by the blunt end of the horns and severe bruises. The condition of Mr. Young at present is such that he is by no means out of the danger zone.

CHAPTER VII.

A Warning from the Hills.

"So let the gods do to us, and more also, if we baptise not the streets of Bentley with the blood of her sons on cattle show day, in return for what Samson the son of Ezekiel hath done unto us.

THE MOUNTAINITES."

The above notice, in large pen-print was found tacked to the door of William Houston's post-office store early one morning two weeks previous to the date specified. The warning, formidable on its surface, made many of the villagers fearful for the safety of the young men who were to be called upon to face the iron-muscled woodsmen of the upper hills, meaning as it did, a terrific battle before either side would give way to the other, as past contests on similar occasions had fully demonstrated.

"It looks like systemized cussedness on the part of them bushwhackers", remarked William Feltus, when his attention was drawn to the notice. "And it's about time we showed 'em there was muscle an' backbone enough in Bentley to do more unto 'em than we ever have yet."

Two mornings later, plainly written upon a large card, appeared the following, nailed to the door of the mountain district school house:

"Hereby know ye, that by following the lead of Samson, the son of Ezekiel, the Mountainites shall on cattleshow day, be driven from before the Bentleyites with a high hand. Yea, verily, and because of their boastings, so great shall be their slaughter that the daughters of Bentley shall laugh them to scorn, crying 'AHA, AHA.' "

Upon previous occasions, when disagreements with outside aspirants for muscular fame were to be settled, Haskell and Feltus had consulted together and selected their men; but in this instance Samson had requested that he be left out of the contest, contending that to enter into a fight was to break the peace of the town, which was contrary to his profession.

"If them fellers come down here and force trouble on you, and there ain't no way of getting clear of 'em, mebbe it's jest as well to be ready for 'em when time comes, and if they get on you, Samson won't be very far away, and if he sees you are gettin' the worst of the fight—mebbe something out of the ord'nary will happen, but jest at present, don't count me in it—jest go on gettin' ready, same as we allus did, and see how the game comes out."

To be sure, such scenes were disgraceful, and condemned by the older and more staid portion of the inhabitants, and resolutions had been passed each year forbidding a repetition. Also, warning had been sent to outside gangs that further disturbance of the peace would be followed by arrest and heavy fine; but as it had been found that interference in a free fight meant entanglement in the melee, and bodily harm, efforts of a preventive nature finally ceased, and the encounters allowed to take their course, particularly as the Bentleyites had invariably more than held their own.

But the feeling this year had been intensified by the humiliating aspect of an exit through a window at the hands of one Samson Haskell, which could be satisfied only by a contest for supremacy in the most public of places—the cattleshow grounds.

The day of days to the people of Bentley and surrounding town opened clear and bright. Never, in the existence of the village, had such preparations for the annual fair been made. From the farms immediately surrounding, the interested ones came from the mountains and the vales; from the adjacent towns and beyond. On horseback, in trotting gigs, in buggies, in barges, in hay waggons; young men and their sweethearts; married couples and their babies; middle-aged and elderly people; all anxious to participate in the wonderful doings of Bentley's cattleshow, augmented this year by the uniting of two adjoining counties, making it a district affair.

The youths from the hills were treating their lady companions to candy, oranges, bananas, apples, or gingerbread; others strolled about, swinging their clasped hands as they went, crunching goodies, or industriously chewing a generous quid of spruce gum, fresh from the tree. It was all so interesting, and instructive, this annual outing, with so much to see and hear, and no one seemed to lack the anticipated enjoyment.

Horses, cattle, sheep and swine, each grouped in their kind, farm products displayed to the best advantage under a canopied apartment; while needle-work, socks, woollen mitts and gloves, tidies and iron-holders, home-made tweeds and dress patterns, attracted large numbers to a wooden apartment building in the centre of the immense field, from the elevated piazza of which the familiar strains of "The Girl I Left Behind Me", and other like airs were crudely rendered by the Trenton Brass Band of ten pieces.

At one side of the field, upon a large platform enclosed with hemlock bows, merrymakers were stepping about in time to the solitary fiddler, and in another direction, the seductive wheel of fortune was revolving to the disappointment of scores of patrons.

The day was well advanced, and the judges, having inspected the other live stock, called for the fancy driving horses, for the exhibition of which a half-mile course had been laid out. The animals entered for prizes were warming up on the far side of the track, and the judges were in the stand waiting for the drivers to collect at the starting point.

All was in readiness for the track exhibition, and the announcer had taken his position at the front of the stand, when a band of brawny-armed young men were seen to congregate on the course to the left of the judges' stand, about ten rods distant. They were stripped of hats, coats and vests, and their shirt sleeves were rolled to the shoulders. Each was girted with a strong leathern belt. Their appearance was formidable, and the attitude menacing, but few of the spectators realized the object of their strange qresence.

A moment later, about an equal number, attired alike, with dark close-fitting, sleeveless shirts, knee pants, without stockings, leathern belts, and thick soled shoes, spread across the track at the opposite side of the judges' stand, and about the same distance away. They were instantly recognized as the famous "Bentley Terrors," but minus their leader, Samson Haskell, the most accomplished athlete of them all. William Feltus appeared to be in charge of the band, his fine figure attracting the attention of the onlookers as he stood in the center of the line and awaited calmly the rush of the mountaineers, who, as the assailants, were expected to make the first move.

With a mighty yell the band from the hills started at a quick run, and only when they were opposite the judges' stand did it dawn upon the immense crowd that an item not down on the day's program was about to be enacted.

As they neared the waiting villagers six of the strongest bushwhackers bunched and drove for Feltus, hoping to cripple their opponents at the very beginning by putting their leader out of commission As they closed the great Feltus fist shot out, and coming in contact with the jaw-point of the foremost aggressor, sent him to the ground, followed by a blow with like effect by a comrade at his right, and another at his left, and ere a pass could be made by the assailants, the six were in a heap at their feet.

Then began a battle all along the line. Never in the history of Bentley had such an exhibition of athletic science been witnessed. The mountaineers showed training, backed by immense physical power, but were met at every point by a shower of blows that put them on the defensive. The fists of Feltus were like two sledge hammers, striking right and left with terrible effect.

A mix up was attempted by the outsiders, but again were they outpointed by their shifty antagonists. Then, by a special rush, Feltus was sent to the ground, and as a coarse-booted foot in a moment of frenzy, was about to crush his head, a powerful form cleared the fence that separated the track from the field, and the next instant the heartless brute sailed through the air, landing far out among the spellbound crowd.

Like demons each strove for the mastery, Samson, now thoroughly in the fight, assuming control, and generalling his comrades with an encouraging word here, a caution there, and presently, reforming the line, which had been broken at the time of Feltus' mishap, led a rush against the mountaineers that staggered them taking advantage of a weak point in their line to make an opening, and put them on the defensive.

At this moment a great voice sounded from the judges' stand: "At 'em, boys. Give the Philistines no quarter. Send 'em back to the hills from whence they came." It was the voice of Ezekiel Haskell, who for the moment giving way to an intense desire for the chastisement of the unwelcome bullies, leaned far out over the railing of the elevated platform, his eyes flashing, his rugged countenance filled with expectancy as he viewed the effective movements of his stalwart son. "Give it to 'em, Samson. Show the Philistines you're as good as your namesake of old."

His words, followed by a mighty cheer on the part of the crowd, was the pivot upon which the battle turned. With an answering yell and a combined rush, the Bentley boys completely shattered the ranks of their opponents, who turned and ran for the turnpike outside the fair grounds, followed closely by Samson and Feltus, who were determined to make the victory complete by chasing them from the village limits, which they did, to the great satisfaction of the officials of the fair.

In a general sense the village boys were a badly bruised lot of athletes. But despite their battered condition, a happier band of young men could not be found. A boisterous demonstration greeted them as they returned to the grounds where ladies vied with one another in doing them homage, even to wiping their wounds with dampened handkerchiefs, and words of commendation were on every hand. For once Bentley was proud of its fighting boys, as it was generally known who were the instigators of the disturbance.

Fairly beaten, the boys from the upper hills manfully accepted their defeat, extended the hand of peace, and ever after there existed the most friendly feeling, Samson Haskell, because of his expressed desire that good fellowship take the place of past antipathy, receiving the heartiest respect of all connected with the incident.

Bush Fires Cause Damage in Sidney

Residents of the township of Sidney, some two or three miles west of the city, were yesterday and last night busy fighting fire.

The fire broke out on Thursday in the bush near White's church, and, fanned by a westerly wind, swept over a considerable territory, burning not only the woods, but fences and pasture fields. Yesterday a large force was out fighting the fire, which was finally checked at Jones' Creek, about a mile north of Belleville cemetery. The fire raged for about a mile in width, and it was only after strenuous efforts that buildings were saved from destruction. It was reported that several farmers had a considerable quantity of fencing burned, in addition to having woods and pasture fields destroyed.

Women assisted in fighting the fire by drawing water.

THE QUINTE CENTRAL FAIR DATED FOR SEPT. 1ST AND 2ND

Special Efforts Under way to Make Belleville Fair the Best Ever - Note The Meeting at City Building Tomorrow Evening.

The directors of the fair have decided to hold the annual show at Belleville at the Driving Park on the first Monday and Tuesday in September in each and every year, being Labor Day and the day following. This is a very good move and should receive the earnest support of our citizens. Let us join together now, everyone, and make this the centre for a radius of at least fifty miles. Toronto has a big Canadian Exposition at the end of August and beginning of September and it accommodates a very large crowd of people, but there is also a large number of people who could not go one hundred miles or more to the fair and is it not desirable now to decentralise to a certain extent, that is, establishing fair centres one hundred miles apart throughout the province? In that case Belleville would be the centre for this district. Is it not now the proper time to come together and by our united efforts make this the central point. We have the natural advantages. We have the railways from the north, east and west and we have direct connection with the south as well by the boats plying on the Bay, connecting with Lake Ontario and the St. Lawrence river.

The directors of the Agricultural Society are energetically pushing forward the fair. It appears to us that it is up to the greater number, that is, our own energetic citizens who are not directly identified with the Board, to join with the association and give them every assistance to make the affair a success.

There is a meeting to be held, as will be seen by the advertisement, tomorrow evening in the city building, and it would be desirable that everyone interested, both ladies and gentlemen, should come and give a hand in making Belleville's Central Fair what it should be, the most attractive point in the district within a radius of fifty miles.

All get together now, and with the united effort boost Belleville's fair on the 1st and 2nd of September—Labor Day and Farmers' Day.

Serious Injury To Lindsay Man

LINDSAY, Aug. 16.—Mr. Alf. Turner, an employee at the roundhouse, met with a painful accident yesterday afternoon. While helping to remove the coils from an engine he had the thumb crushed off at the hand.
thumb crushed off his hand.

Mr. Turner is a boilermaker's helper, and was at work drawing the coils from an engine by means of a heavy chain and another engine. Mr. Turner was attaching the chain to the tubes when the engineer on the assisting engine, thinking he was ready, took a pull. The tightening chain caught the man's thumb fast against the coils and squeeezd it completely from his hand.

Mr. Turner was wearing leather gloves at the time. When he withdrew his hand so cleanly was the thumb severed that it was left in the glove.

Mr. Turner is a young man who has been employed at the round house for the past year. He is an Englishman and has a wife in England. He is a general favorite with his fellow workmen, and they were much grieved to hear of the serious accident.

Girl Burned To Death in N. B.

FREDERICTON, N. B., Aug. 16.—Miss Pearl Tibbits, sixteen years old, who made her home with her uncle and aunt, Mr, and Mrs. John Tibbits Little River, Sunbury County, was fatally burned this week.. She was alone in the house at the time of the accident, and how it occurred or what happened will never be known, and the girl was unable to give a coherent account, owing to her serious condition..

It is believed that she was working about the stove when her clothes caught fire. The accident occurred in the early evening, and D. W. Crockett was summoned from this City and made the trip to Little River by auto. He found two-thirds of the girl's body had been burned..

ASK KING'S INTERVENTION TO CHECK HOME RULE BILL

Scheme Originated Among Private Unionist Members, but is Denounced By the Party as a Whole.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—A movement has arisen among the Unionists, unsanctioned by the leaders of the party, to put pressure upon the King to withhold his assent from the Home Rule bill, or to secure another verdict of the country by dismissing the Ministry and dissolving Parliament on his own account after the third passing of the bill. Two Peers are getting up a petition to the King. They rely upon the precedent established by William IV. and Lord Melbourne in 1834.. That this movement has reached some importance may be judged from the fact that it is openly discussed by authorities as varied as the Spectator and Spender, the editor of the Westminister Gazette. Even the Spectator, a pronounced Unionist organ, denounces the plan as a mischievous movement to make the King commit himself.. Spender says: "This talk of royal intervention is moonshine.. it becomes evident that the new movement on coup e'etat lines would split the Tory party as effectively as the previous movement in 1910, while it would unite the Liberal party as one man to resist it."

THE SORROWS OF SATIATED BRITAIN, BY MARIE CORELLI

Wretched Indolent, Empty-Minded Nation is Tottering to its Fall, Says The Novelist, who, in a Fit of the Blues, Sees the English Merely Preparing the Soil for a New Race.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—Marie Corelli, the author, in a fit of blues, sends to the press, a wail on the British nation's iniquities and the nation's decline.

"Satiated with position, indolent through undisturbed prosperity and empty mind from lack of incentive to effort, the nation," she says, "is growing old, not gracefully, but with nervous irritation and restlessness.

"In techy humor it girds at its former ideals, its fine faith, its poetic dreams and all the romance and beauty that it could once have died to defend and preserve."

Unhappily, there is no hope for the wretched old sinner because, as Miss Corelli says, "we are pleased to imagine we are still going forward and live in a mist of delusion created by ourselves. The end of it all is that we are near the end of our tether and must furnish the soil merely for the growth of a new race."

Sad Scene In A Kingsion Store

Drunken Young Man Sends Cards to Mother and Daughter

KINGSTON, Aug. 16.—A sad spectacle was seen in one of the downtown stores on Princess street yesterday, when a young man who had indulged in liquor too freely, purchased some post cards to send home to his mother and other relatives, but he was too intoxicated to write. He got one of the store clerks to do the writing while he dictated.

The first card he had addressed to his mother and closed by saying that he was not drinking any more, and was still holding down the same job. After he had got the card written and addressed he said "that mother will have a good night's sleep when she reads this."

It seems the young man had been a little too fond of liquor, and became separated from his wife on that account. The poor fellow also had a card sent to his little daughter, whom it seems he had a longing to see once more. He added to this card that he might possibly be home at Christmas and bring something along with him for her.

Deer Flee From Forest Fires

PETERBOROUGH, Aug. 16.—A newspaper man from Minden, who is in town, reports serious conditions from extensive fires. In the townships of Digby, Lutterworth, Longford and Anson, it is impossible to estimate the extent of the fire, owing to the dense smoke, but wild animals—deer, beaver, and wolves—are being driven into the open. Some of the settlers have had to desert their homes.

Ashes in showers have fallen into the streets of Minden. The Donald chemical works on the G.T.R. between Haliburton and Gelert, is closed and all its employees have been sent to dig trenches to stop the progress of the fire, which is within about a mile of the works. In some places women join the men in the fire-fighting. Everything is cindering for lack of rain and the intense heat. Cattle and sheep are forced to eat leaves and weeds. Springs and wells have gone dry and stock has to be driven miles to water. Local people complain of the scarcity of fire rangers.

Fires in the Peterborough Lumber Co.'s limits, Cavendish township, and vicinity, are still raging and fresh gangs of men to fight the fires were sent out from the city yesterday.

Five Vagrants Sent To Central Prison

Five men, ranging from 22 to 35 years of age, were yesterday arrested in box cars near the G. T. R. station here. This morning all pleaded guilty to a charge of vagrancy, but alleged that they were trying to get out west to work in the harvest fields. The Magistrate, however, decided that a term in prison would be better for them and sentenced them each to six months in the Central Prison.

Canada as Second Best Customer to The United States

Exports to the Dominion Have Practically Doubled in Last Three Years.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug 16.—Details of the trade between the United States and Canada were made public to-day by Mr.. Redfield, Secretary of the Department of Commerce.

This statement follows the recent showing of Canada to be the second best customer of the United States Exports from the United States to Canada have practically doubled in the last three years.. Canada is now a larger purchaser of the products of the United States than any other country except the United Kingdom.

The total value of the exports from the United States to Canada in the fiscal year 1913 was $415,000,000, against $225,000,000 in 1910. The grain for the single year 1912-13 was $86,000,000, a larger increase than in any previous year.

Manufacturers form about two-thirds of the American merchandise exported to Canada,. and were the chief factor in the remarkable gain by which that trade has practically doubled in three years.

Man who was Run Over was Seriously Injured.

TORONTO, Aug. 17—Knocked down and thrown under the wheels of a buggy at the corner of Wilton avenue and Sumach street last night, Patrick Sweeney, 4 Sumach street, is in a serious condition at St. Michael's Hospital. He was attempting to cross the street, when a rig driven by two men, ran him down. Though the wheels passed over his abdomen, cutting and bruising him badly, the men whipped up the horse and drove away from the scene without even looking at the still form that lay in their wake.

Sweeney was taken to St. Michael's Hospital in the police ambulance. It is feared that he has suffered internal injuries, but he will likely recover. To-day he was resting easily.

Edward Maher, 112 Front street, was subsequently arrested on a charge of furiously driving a horse while intoxicated.

WESTERN CANADA
A BUMPER WHEAT CROP
THOUSANDS OF MEN REQUIRED

This Year's Harvest promises to be be the largest in THE HISTORY OF CANADA

According to present indications the wheat crop of 1913 will be the greatest ever harvested in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta, thus requiring the farm laborers of the East to assist in harvesting the world's greatest bread basket.

The Governments of the respective Provinces state that many thousand men will be required for this year's harvest. These will have to be principally recruited from Ontario, and the prosperity of Canada depends on securing labor promptly. The Canadian Pacific, on which Company will fall practically the entire task of transporting the men to the West, is already making special arrangements for this year. Excursions from points in Ontario to Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta will be run and special trains operated, making the trip in about thirty-six hours and avoiding any change of cars or transfers. This will be a day shorter than any other route. Dates, rates and conditions will be announced in a few days.

CONSTANTINE, TRINITY MAKER

Father, His Son and Holy Spirit Made One in Person.

TRINITY IS NOT IN THE BIBLE

Pastor Russell Says the Roman Emperor Put It In the Nicene Creed, A. D. 325 — Confusion Followed. Some Claim Three Gods In One Person—Others Claim One God in Three Persons—All Say Incomprehensible Mystery—Constantine's Trinity Fiat Enforced by Cruel Persecutions. Back to the Bible and Away from Creeds Is the Message of the Hour Urged Upon All Lovers of Truth.

London, Aug. 17.—Pastor Russell addressed the London Tabernacle congregation twice to-day. We report one of his discourses from the text, "To us there is one God, the Father, . . . and one Lord Jesus Christ."—I Corinthians 8:6.

The Pastor declared that the confusion which has rent the Church of God into hundreds of sects has come through neglect of the Bible. The confusion is recognized by all Christian people everywhere, but the cause is not generally discerned. Church creeds are admitted to be defective, notwithstanding the truths which they all contain. Creed clashings are the direct result of the serious errors in all creeds.

Realizing this, why should not all Christians abandon and demolish their creeds? They purport to be pen pictures of the Almighty God, and His attitude toward men and His resultant plans. No heathen idol is so grotesque, so terrible, so horrible, as that which the most intelligent Christian people have portrayed with the pen. We are all ashamed of having misrepresented our Creator as worse in His purposes toward men than the vilest of humanity—as bad as we knew how to picture Satan himself and his attitude. Why linger longer? If Jehovah be God, let us worship Him. If the horrible Baal of the Dark Ages be no longer our God, let us destroy his creed images and endeavor to forget them.

Emperor Constantine's Nicene Creed.

After the Christian Church had forgotten that the Master declared that His Twelve Apostles would constitute the chief foundation stones of the New Jerusalem, they began to recognize their bishops as successors to The Twelve—apostolic bishops. They overlooked the fact that while God had prophetically told that the place of Judas would be filled by another, this particularity itself intimated that there would be no successors to The Twelve.

The real successor to Judas, Bible Students recognize in St. Paul. Through him God has given us the major portion of the New Testament, and special light upon the Church's path, which is to "shine more and more unto the perfect Day." We now see that the eleven Apostles, before they had been confirmed in Apostleship by the Pentecostal blessing, erred in choosing Matthias, whom God merely ignored.

Under these circumstances the bishops rose gradually to power and influence as inspired oracles of God. And proportionately, The Twelve chosen as the Lord's mouthpieces to His Church lost their influence. It was easier to take the word of the bishops than to search the Scriptures at a time when copies of the Bible were very expensive, and only few were able to read.

Thus Bible study greatly declined during the second and third centuries, and disputes between Christians and Greek philosophers led some of the bishops to extremes. Not only did they maintain the Bible teaching that Jesus was the Son of God, and that He left His Heavenly condition and became a man that He might redeem Adam and his race; but, not content with this, some went further, and in their zeal claimed that He was the Heavenly Father Himself, who came down to earth and took man's nature and died, the Just for the unjust. In their anxiety to overwhelm the Greek skeptics, these Christian teachers involved themselves in absurdities, without realizing it. Those making the most absurd claims appear to have had the greatest influence with the illiterate.

Gradually the trinitarian theory was advanced; and the mystification of saying that the Heavenly Father was His own Son, and that the Lord Jesus was His own Father, and that the Holy Spirit was another person and yet the same person, appealed to people who delight to reverence most those things which they do not understand. Thus to-day when questions are asked respecting the trinity—how one could be three, and how three could be one—the answer which is given, and which satisfies the ignorant, is, Mystery, Mystery!

But the Bible makes no mystery of the matter. It never mentions trinity at all, nor anything that would give such a suggestion. The one text (1 John 5:7) which seems to give a color of support to the thought is now admitted by all scholars to be an interpolation dating from about the seventh century; for it is not found in manuscripts written at an earlier date. The Revised Version shows quite distinctly how the passage reads in the old manuscripts, and how the forgery to support the trinitarian theory was adroitly accomplished.

"To Us There Is One God."

The Old Testament Scriptures represent the Divine Message of four thousand years, and say not a word respecting the trinity. On the contrary, they declare, "Hear, O Israel, Jehovah thy God is one God"; "Thou shalt have no other gods." To keep in line with this definite statement, the trinitarian theory claims that this one God has three persons, although others claim that there are three Gods but only one person. It seems impossible to get a trinitarian to decide what he really believes; he hedges with the word "Mystery."

The New Testament is as explicit as the Old in its statement that there is but one Supreme God. Jesus testified to this, declaring, "My Father is greater than I"—greater than all. (John 14:28.) Jesus declared that of Himself He could do nothing; that He was merely the Mouthpiece of God in His teachings, and the Finger of God in His workings of miracles. He directed that His followers should worship the Father, and declared, when leaving, "I ascend to My Father and to your Father, to My God and to your God."—John 20:17.

Our Lord did indeed declare the oneness, or harmony, between Himself and the Father, but He explained that this was because He ignored any will of His own, coming not to do His own will, but the will of the Father who sent Him. He exhorted His disciples similarly to have the same mind, the same will, the same spirit, which actuated Him—the Holy Spirit, the mind or disposition to do the will of the Father in Heaven. His prayer for His disciples was to the same effect, "That they all may be one"—even as Thou, Father, and I are—one in heart, mind, will, disposition, or holiness of spirit, harmony with God.—John 17:20, 21.

What could be more explicit than our text, "To us there is one God, the Father, of whom are all things;" additionally, "To us there is one Lord (or Master), Jesus Christ, by whom are all things, and we by Him!" The Apostle here not only shows the relationship between the Father and Son, but he ignores and thus disowns entirely the Holy Spirit as another God. Clearly and plainly enough he sets forth time and again that the Holy Spirit is the spirit, will, mind, power, disposition, etc., in fullest conformity to that of the Father. There is no mystery about the matter, none whatever.

"The Alpha and the Omega."

Our Lord Jesus declared Himself to be the Alpha and the Omega of the Divine direct creation. (Revelation 1:8.) He was its Beginning and its End, according to John 1:1-5. Our Redeemer, known before He became a man as the Logos, was the Beginning of the Divine creation and the End of it in that, ever after the creation of the Logos, Jehovah operated in and through Him in respect to all the stupendous works of creation. His anme, the Logos, indicates all this; it signifies the Divine Message, or Messenger, the One through whom Jehovah's utterances and decrees went forth.

So we read in the Greek, "In the beginning was the Logos, and the Logos was with the God, and the Logos was a god. The same was in the beginning with the God. By Him were all things made that were made, and withuot Him was not one thing made. And the Logos was made flesh and dwelt among us, and we beheld His glory as the glory of the Only Begotten of the Father, full of grace and Truth."

Constantine the Trinity-Maker.

The Roman Emperor Constantine saw a vision—probably when wide awake—a vision of greater prosperity for himself and his Empire, by a recognition of Christianity as the religion of his Empire instead of paganism, which had previously been recognized. For that moment a certain portion of the Church of Christ had long labored. Abandoning the thought of the Second Coming of Jesus to establish His Kingdom, they desired marriage, or union, with earthly empire, thus to be set as a queen upon the throne of earthly dominion and honor.

Constantine's influence in Church affairs became great. He proposed the calling of a council of all the bishops, numbering about one thousand. He wanted to know why these apostolic bishops, all inspired with the same Spirit of God, taught so differently. He offered to pay the expenses of all the bishops to the Council at Nice; but the majority, fearing that the Emperor would be under the control of the Roman bishop (not yet claiming to be pope), declined to attend.

Only 384 came. But even they were unable to agree, the great point of dispute being the one we are discussing. Many held to the Bible teaching that Jehovah is the One Supreme God; that the Lord Jesus Christ was His Son and honored Agent in all His creative work; and that He, having manifested faith and loyalty to the Father to the extent of leaving the Heavenly glory, becoming a man and dying, the Just for the unjust, had been exalted by the Father to His own right hand of majesty and power.

But the mystification thought of trinity had gained a hold on some of the bishops, amongst others the Bishop of Rome. The questions at issue were argued for months. With all his powerful influence, the Bishop of Rome could not bring the majority of the Council to acknowledge the doctrine of the trinity. Thereupon Constantine decided the matter; and the Nicene Creed, backed by the Emperor's authority and power, was declared to be the Christian faith, and anything contrary to it, heresy.

Yet be it remembered that only about one-third of the bishops were present at the Council; and that they could not be coerced into substituting mystery for the Word of God, until the Emperor lent his influence. His decree was that Christian doctrine as thus defined in the Nicene Creed should have the prestige of the support of the Emperor and of all his subordinate officers throughout the Roman Empire. All believing contrary to this creed would be heretics, and be considered in opposition to the Emperor, and such had the privileg of leaving the Empire. Thus was the mystery of trinity enshrined by a heathen emperor, not baptized—not even sprinkled.

The history of the persecution of all who would not worship the trinitarian mystery would fill volumes. One sad illustration is familiar to all—the burning of Servetus, by good Brother Calvin's signature to the death warrant.

Is it any wonder that with such conditions prevailing for centuries, the Bible ignored and the creeds worshipped, the true teaching of the Bible on many subjects were completely lost sight of? Is it any wonder that, when in the sixteenth century God began to bring the Bible back to the attention of the world, it was burned by the bishops in front of St. Paul's Cathedral in London? Is it any wonder that the Presbyterians of that time were persecuted for studying it, and could meet only in secret?

Is it any wonder that the men who began afresh to study the Bible, but who had their minds tinctured with the creeds of centuries, were considerably handicapped? Is is any wonder if some of their conceptions of correct Bible interpretation were rude and crude? Have not our various Protestant denominations marked fresh endeavos to get nearer to the light?

Now as we are in the dawning of the New Dispensation, and God is lifting the veil of ignorance in general, is it any wonder that we can see the true teachinges of the Bible more clearly than did our forefathers? Surely it is what we might expect, as well as what the Bible distinctly declares: "The mystery of God shall be finished," which He has kept secret from the foundation of the world.

The Difficulty at Present.

It seems sad, indeed, that now, in the dawning of the New Era, and its clearer light on the Bible as well as upon all things, so few Christian people should be prepared to profit by these clearer views. Only in our day is thorough Bible study possible for the majority in civilized lands; for only of late is there a sufficiency of education to admit of intelligent Bible study. What is the explanation of the failure to make use of all these blessings, favors, privileges and opportunities for Bible Study? It is loss of faith; as Jesus said: "When the Son of Man cometh, shall He find the faith on the earth?" It would appear that with more advantages than any previous generation, ours has less faith in God and less trust in the Bible as His Word.

The cause of this can readily be traced, and it appalls us! Our great institutions of learning, founded by our Bible-loving, God-fearing forefathers, have become worldly-wise. They have followed the course of leaning to human understanding, against which we were forewarned by God—that the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God and will perish.

Following the guidance of so-called Higher Critics, the rank and file of professors of colleges have lost their faith, and at the present time, all over Christendom, are engaged in destroying the faith of the most intelligent young men and women of the world. Having lost faith in the Bible themselves, they think they are doing a real service in destroying the faith of others. Truly, they know not what they do; as the Bible declares, the wisdom of our wise men has perished; the understanding of the prudent men, the wealthy, etc., who govern these, is not apparent.—Isiah 29:14.

With college graduates sneering at the Bible, and ignoring Divine worship, except in the sense of drawing nigh with their lips, is it any wonder that the spirit of this infidelity is gradually extending to the masses—the less educated? Is it any wonder that thees who have nothing in particular to agin from religion except comfort and hope, bereft of these, care nothing for Bible study or for church attendance, except to hear the music or a brilliant address or to renew acquaintanceships?

The only remedy which can hinder the world from rapidly rushing on toward socialism and anarchy, in utter disregard of God and His Divine arrangements, is a return to Bible study. Nor need the people be invited back to study the Bible along the lines of the creeds. Indeed, in order to attract attention to the Word of God, it is necessary that Christians should unite in smashing their creeds and in telling the people plainly that thees creeds thoroughly misrepresent the Divine Character and the Divine Plan.

With other Bible Students, I make this my chief busines in life. Having found the true Message of God's Word to be beautiful, heart-comforting and head-satisfying, we are prepared to recommend it to theirs and to offer them a helping hand out of the mists, fogs, misunderstandings, mistranslations and interpolations of the Dark Ages. Following the words of Jesus and the inspired Twelve, and the Prophets of old, we find that our God is a wholly different one from the horrible picture-God in the creeds of the Dark Ages. We rejoice in the true God, and in the true Saviour, and in the Spirit of Holiness, which comes to us as followers of Christ in proportion as we receive Him and His teachings into our hearts and lives.

Gall a Grievance.

A State ball has rarely been known to be looked upon in the light of a grievance, but this was the case with the ball Their Majesties gave at Buckingham Palace at the end of last month. It is years since a ball was held so late as the end of July. The lady who does not wear a new and expensive dress at a function of the kind is decidedly "out of it," so that a ball means further expenditure on Court costumes at a time when society women are thinking of holidays on sea and moor and planning their outfits accordingly. There is an agitation afoot to secure the ending of the London season with June, and it is hoped there will be no State function in July next year.

Visitors Too Young.

The present-day craze for the higher education of children has roused the ire of Mr. Cecil Hallett, the official guide at the British Museum. "I take round parties daily," he says, "and think the education authorities send children who are much too young. It is rather difficult to explain prehistoric specimens to juveniles who are not tall enough to see the case unless they are held up. Then there seems to be no limit to age. It is disconcerting, to say the least of it, to try to lecture on prehistoric flints to a party which includes several babies in arms."

Bore All the Signs.

A miner, having a large piece of sticking plaster over the bridge of his nose, went into a local public house.

"Halloa!" breezily remarked the landlord, "going for your holidays, Jim?"

"Holidays? What holidays?"

"Well, I see you've got your trunk labelled," replied the landlord.

THE IMPEACHED GOVERNOR

The impeachment of Sulzer, Governor of the State of New York, is creating no little excitement among politicians in the United States. The Governor is fighting his enemies with vigor, refusing to yield any point, claiming himself Governor with all its powers until proved guilty of the misapplication of funds, with which he is charged.

From present appearances it is not at all unlikely that his term of office will lapse ere a final decision of guilty, or not guilty, is reached.

In the meantime the treasury of the State will suffer. It is calculated that it will be milked to the extent of the modest sum of $300,000. "Indications are," says the report, "that the trial of Governor Sulzer, if it consumes only one month—and the predictions are that it may last fully three months—will cost the State upward of $300,000.

"Senators will have some pickings, as they will receive extra compensation while sitting as impeachment judges. The pay will be $40 a day each for their services and an additional $10 a day each for their services as Senators. Consequently, each Senator will collect $350 a week. This alone will amount to a little over $17,000 a week.

"There will be stenographers' fees, large mileage charges for witnesses, and it is not improbable that high priced counsel will be employed to assist Tammany Leader Levy in his prosecution of the case.

"There seems to be no doubt that the Legislature will have to reimburse Governor Sulzer in the end for the large outlay of money he will make for counsel."

Charles Robinson, Kansas, 1862; acquitted.

Harrison Reed, Florida, 1868; office expired while proceedings were in progress.

David Butler, Nebraska, 1871; found guilty and removed.

A VERY BUSY YEAR

There has been no complaint in the Province of New Brunswick this year about scarcity of work for either mechanics or laborers. It has been a very busy year, so much so that when nine saw mills at St. John ceased operations because of a dispute about wages, the men found no difficulty in getting other work. There has never been a year when there was less complaint on the score of inability to secure work by any class of men than there has been thus far in the present year. When to this is added the fact that the farmers are gathering an excellent hay crop of good quality, and are promised a large yield of grain, roots and vegetables, and that the fishermen along the shores of the province have had a generally successful season, it will be seen that the industrial and commercial outlook in New Brunswick is excellent. It is worthy of note that the ready-made farm scheme is being worked out with success, and there is a gradual increase in the number of people taking up farms. The Provincial Department of Agriculture has decided to give special encouragement for the cultivation of alfalfa and excellent results are expected from this source.

THE GOOD ROADS MOVEMENT

It is said that one of the questions to be discussed at the forthcoming conference of the Provincial Premiers has to do with the Good Roads Movement. Almost every province in the Dominion and every state in the Union, is devoting a large portion of its revenue to the improvement of rural roads. In the province of Quebec considerable progress has been made on the one or two main highways of transportation which the Government decided to build between Montreal and the international border and between Montreal and Quebec.

This question of improved highways is one of the most important, if not the most important question confronting the Provincial Governments at the present time. In Canada we have been especially generous with our cash subsidies, land grants, loans and other aids to railroads. Altogether we have granted over $600,000,000 in aiding in the construction of our railroads and canals. Today we have a splendid supply of both rail and water roads, probably unequalled by any young country in the world. We have, however, totally neglected our feeders to the lines of railroad, or in other words, our rural roads. Farmers who have been taxed to pay for railroad subsidies, are now beginning to demand that the Government should assist in building and maintaining great thoroughfares through the country. The probability is that in the next decade, more attention will be paid to rural roads and more good roads built in this country than have been built in the past fifty years.

The important point to be remembered, says the Journal of Commerce, is that good roads have a direct bearing upon the cost of commodities and have also a direct and favorable effect upon the farm lands adjoining a good road.

That good roads have a direct effect upon the economic welfare of communities is shown in several concrete illustrations gathered by the United States Department of Agriculture. The department has just issued a statement on the subject, based upon a mass of information gathered by the office of public roads, which is making a special study of the economic effect of road improvement in the country. According to data gathered, where good roads replace bad ones, the values of farm lands bordering on the roads increase to such an extent that the cost of road improvement is equalized, if not exceeded. The general land values, as well as farm values, show marked advances, following the improvement of roads.

TOOK 100-MILE FLIGHT WITH COL. CODY

Guelphate Who Knew The Dead Aeronaut Intimately

In connection with the recent death of "Col." F. S. Cody, who was killed in the fall of his aeroplane at Aldershot, it is not uninteresting to know that among his intimate friends was a Guelphite, Mr. Douglas D. Mansfield, of the staff of H. Worden's barber shop.

Mr. Mansfield was with Col. Cody last November on a trial fight of 100 miles at Farnborough, near Aldershot.. The Colonel had a strong dislike for monoplanes, says Mr. Mansfield, and until last November had never made a fight in one. His preference was for biplanes or machines constructed on the biplane principle.

Of the incident of the killing of the cow, Mr. Mansfield says that it was a day of days for accidents in the Colonel's family. The Colonel was flying low, when the engines became unmanageable, causing the aeroplane to soar gradually to the ground. While skidding along the ground a cow ran across its path, and was cut in two by the propeller. The Colonel himself was slightly injured and his son, who was there, while riding home on his bicycle to relate the accident to his mother, ran over a dog, was thrown from his wheel and sustained a fracture of the skull and a broken collar bone. As if to add to his troubles, the Colonel was summoned to court to answer for the cow's death. In court he stated "that the cow had committed suicide by running in front of his machine.

FORTY THOUSAND MEN REQUIRED

Farm Laborers' Excursion—This Year's Wheat Crop will be the Largest in THE HISTORY OF CANADA

The wheat crop of 1913 will be the greatest ever harvested in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, thus requiring the farm laborers of the East to recruit and assist in harvesting the World's greaest bread basket

The Governments of the respective Provinces state that forty thousand men will be required for this year's harvest. These will have to be principally recruited from Ontario, and the prosperity of Canada depends on securing labor promptly. The Canadian Pacific, on which Company will fall practically the entire task of transporting the men to the West, is already making special arrangements for this year. Excursions from points in Ontario to Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta will be run, and special trains operated, making the trip in about thirty-six hours and avoiding any change of cars or transfers. This will be a day shorter than any other route.

WHOLESOME FOOD FOR KING'S SAILORS

Within the past decade the dietary in the Royal Navy has altered greatly for the better. Gone are the days of biscuits so full of weevils that they had to be rapped on the table before being eaten; of salted meat so tough and hard that it could be manufactured into snuff-boxes; and of beer and water which, through long keeping in wooden casks, was as often as not quite unfit to drink.

Beer—of which the Elizabethan seaman received a gallon a day—has been supplanted by rum; while the water on board is now kept in iron tanks, which are refilled from the shore, or by the distilling apparatus on board, at frequent intervals.

All modern ships are fitted with bakeries, so Jack receives his fresh, newly-baked loaf every day of his life. There is also a refrigerator on board, in which is stowed enough fresh meat and vegetables to last every man in the ship for a month, so the sailor is no longer subsisting on salt beef and pork within a few days of leaving harbor.

Like a Big Hotel

A modern battleship, in fact, only carries about two days' salt meat—that is, if she is fitted with a refrigerator; and it is then carried merely as a "stand by," to be served out in very exceptional circumstances.

The ordinary daily menu of every man in the Navy is 1 pound of fresh bread; ½ pound fresh meat; 1 pound fresh vegetables; 4 ounces sugar; ½ ounce of tea, or 1 ounce of coffee for every ½ ounce of tea, if preferred; ½ ounce of drinking chocolate, or 1 ounce of coffee if preferred; ¾ ounce of unsweetened condensed milk; 1 ounce of jam or marmalade; and 4 ounces of preserved meat on one day of the week in harbor, or on two days while at sea.

Mustard, pepper, vinegar, and salt are served out as required, while ½ pound of biscuit or 1 pound of flour is issued instead of the bread if the latter is not available. A man over the age of twenty receives one-eighth of a pint of rum daily, but those who desire it can receive money instead.

Origin of Grog

The rum itself, to all men except warrant and chief petty officers, is served out in the form of "grog"—three parts of water to one of rum. It is called by this name as the mixture was first issued by Admiral Vernon in 1740, for he, from the fact that he wore breeches made of a stuff called grogram, was known to his men by the nickname of "Old Grog."

The sailor, in addition to his stated ration, is granted a messing allowance of 8 cents a day by the Government; and with this sum he can purchase extras from the stores on board. All the ordinary articles, such as bread, meat, vegetables, tea, coffee, cocoa, condensed milk—everything, in fact, except rum—can be bought in this way, but additional delicacies like tinned salmon and rabbit, raisins for puddings, dried beans and peas, pickles, suet, etc., can be procured if required.

All these articles are of the very first quality, and as they are bought by the contract department of the Admiralty in enormous quantities, there is no doubt that Jack gets the finest value for his money.

Economy is Possible

A man, moreover, is not forced to take up his full allowance of provisions. He must draw one-third of his amount of meat and vegetables, but for the remainder, if he likes, he can be paid their equivalent value in hard cash.

Once a month each sailor can buy one pound of tobacco free of duty. It is issued in leaf for 24 cents a pound, and as many officers smoke nothing but this brand, it speaks well for its quality. All this tobacco comes from special tobacco plantations in South Africa, and could not be bought ashore under $1.50 a pound.

"Undesirables" in Japan

In an article in a Japanese periodical, Nogyo Lassh, M. Sawada Gentoku enumerated ten classes of young men who are useless for Japan. They are intensely interesting, as affording some indication of the ethical spirit of modern Japan. First in the list of "undesirables" come those youths who have received a complete education, and find themselves immediately able to cope with the difficulties of life. Second are those whose bodies are insufficiently developed and a prey to nervous disorders, owing to ex-excessive intellectual labor. Third are the young men who have no education, and are stupid and narrow-minded. The fourth and fifth classes together comprise those who have not lived in the protection of family life and are thrown too early into the difficulties of the world.

CLEAN THE WATERING TROUGHS

If there is one animal on the farm which is deserving of the fresh, cool water, it is the horse. Hardworked as he generally is, the hot weather is doubly trying on him. How often does his driver take a refreshing drink? And the driver always insists upon the clean water. So often at this season of the year the watering troughs become filthy and slimy from a growth of the lower forms of the plants. This is due to the fact that stagnant water is allowed to remain in them day after day and week after week, without being cleaned out. The horse does not relish a drink from such a trough. Let all the water out of the trough from time to time, and take an old broom and give it a thrugh rinsing out. Then pump it full, and see how the thirsty horses will shove their noses down into it and drink their fill, going away refreshed and satisfied.

IMPERIAL OXFORD

Gurney-Oxford
The Aristocrat of the Kitchen

After a glimpse into the kitchens of thousands of well managed homes throughout Canada, the Gurney-Oxford Range may truly be spoken of as the "Aristocrat of the Kitchen." It is the first range to-day in Canada both in point of appearance and cooking efficiency.

With a bright nickle trimming that never tarnishes and that can be lifted off and polished with the silverware, this range is to woman just one beam of gratification.

But besides its handsome appearance, the Gurney-Oxford more than fulfils the purpose every range is built for—successful cooking. It contains a device called the Economizer which not only actually saves one ton of coal in every six burned in the ordinary range, but so regulates the heat in the oven that deliciously dainty cakes, golden brown biscuits, and light flaky pastry are sure results from every baking.

It is a range which elevates woman from the constant toil and labor in the kitchen to a higher level of life. Its Economizer allows her to go visiting or shopping and keeps a low fire ready for her return, when by simply turning the lever a hot fire is quickly produced.

Employ the Gurney-Oxford in your household.

British House Prorogued Till February Next

LONDON, August 16.—The British Parliament was prorogued to-day, and will not convene until February next year, unless something extraordinary happens.

The King's Speech, read in the House of Lords, was even more colorless than usual. The only reference in it of the slightest interest to the United States was a clause expressing the confident hope that the recent loan of $15,000,000 to the Government of the Soudan, guaranteed by the British Government, would result in "increased sources of supply for the cotton industry of this country."

THEIR NEW DOCTOR

Excitement in Mayville When Old Physician Is Supplanted by Young Man.

By MILDRED CAROLINE GOODRIDGE.

There was great excitement in the social circles of Mayville when the successor to the practice of old Dr. Cyrus Dall arrived. For forty years the latter had been the chosen physician of the town. When he had sold his practice to Dr. Brian Eversley, a young, handsome and wealthy member of the profession, all Mayville was agog, and speculation and gossip held the various social coteries in a kind of pleasant thrall.

The young doctor had purchased The Oaks, a beautiful estate near the edge of the village. A maiden sister was to be his housekeeper. When a new automobile and some wonderful house furnishings arrived, Miss Cyrille Rushton, aged thirty, but passing for twenty-two, as the real leader of the real social set of Mayville, was said to brighten up at a chance to once more angle for a husband. When it was further announced that the young physician was philanthropically inclined, Miss Breda Dorman, president of the Ladies' Aid society, was in transports of anticipation and delight.

The young doctor arrived, and he was not a disappointment. He was something more than handsome—earnest, affable and intellectual. He was pleased at the gracious attentions of Miss Rushton, and it seemed to interest him to listen to the ceaseless chatter of Miss Dorman. High society shrugged its shoulders at his "free dispensary" ideas for the benefit of the poorer classes living over on the flats. Still, an exhibition of his skill in their own service caused him to be received as a fit successor to the old practitioner, Doctor Dall.

The Ladies' Aid society held weekly meetings in an old store, which had been neatly fitted up for them. A Mrs. Fulton lived in apartments behind, and kept watch and ward over the place. Miss Rushton had recently joined the circle, and Miss Dorman had never been so active in her supervisory duties. The society clothed the ragged, fed the poor and had done some free nursing—Miss Dorman very little, however. She acted as the ornament of the group. As to the haughty Miss Rushton, all she pretended to do was to donate the raw material for the really industrious ones of the club to sew into garments.

"Miss Lane!" He Exclaimed in Wonderment.

One of these latter was Nettie Lane, who sat in a corner of the room now, engrossed in the task of making four tiny night robes. The rest of the group were chattering and gossiping. Whenever Doctor Eversley's name was mentioned, Nettie's eyes brightened with interest. It was mentioned very frequently.

"The way Cyrille Rushton has set her cap for the doctor is simply brazen," observed Sarah Bates, who had graduated into old maidenhood several years ago.

"Not half as bold as Breda's sly puss way," broke in cynical, wasp-armed Selina Marton. "She pretended to have neuralgia, just to get the doctor's attention."

Plain, quiet Nettie smiled to herself. She was happy in knowing that the doctor had made quite a friend and confidant of her. Miss Eversley had taken a decided fancy to her. Nettie was, in fact, very close to the doctor; something in their natures harmonized. Miss Eversley had seen through the feigned illness of several young ladies who had called for her brother's professional care. She had laughed over these plausible subterfuges with Nettie.

If anybody had told Nettie that these ripening friendships indicated a chance to capture the handsome young physician, she would have been overwhelmed with confusion. Such an idea had never entered her sensible little head. For all that, she knew she had never met a man whose kindly, human spirit had so awakened respect and admiration in her pure, gentle soul.

"And what do you say of all this babble, our little busy Dorcas," challenged Miss Bates, noticing the unobtrusive Nettie.

"I only know that Doctor Eversley is a very splendid man," replied Nettie softly. "Why, I am making these little trifles for a child who belongs to a family that the doctor has practically taken charge of at his own expense. He is a good, good man."

Nettie grew so enthusiastic that she flushed consciously. Miss Bates gave gave her a keen look and whispered to Miss Morton.

"It can't be possible that little nobody has ideas—"

"About the doctor," said Miss Morton. "Oh, ridiculous."

Nettie finished her work somewhat later and went home. Miss Rushton came in, then the lady president, and then a messenger arrived. He brought a note from Doctor Eversley. It was addressed to the society. A contagious sickness had broken out in a poor family without means or friends. Could the society appoint some one to give half a day for a week to day nursing for two little children in the family?

There was dead silence at the word "contagious." Miss Rushton had an urgent engagement. Miss Dorman talked of "volunteers." The group gradually broke up and the doctor's note received no reply.

That afternoon Doctor Eversley's automobile stopped in front of the poor home where his services were so sorely needed. He was a trifle disappointed at receiving no recognition of his message, and had decided to enlist the sympathies of his sister. His knock brought a neat figure wearing nurse cap and apron to the door.

"Miss Lane!" he exclaimed in wonderment.

"Yes, it is I," Nettie smiled back. "A neighbor told me of this case, and I have so wished to see if I have the patience and skill to act the nurse."

"You are an angel," said Doctor Eversley with heightened color as he entered the sick room.

Never had a poor family such royal donations as those received by the one now under the care of Doctor Eversley as physician and Nettie Lane as nurse. Miss Rushton sent delicacies from her table every morning. The Ladies' Aid society invested all its surplus funds in sheets, pillow cases, comforters, an invalid chair and clothing.

That dread word "contagious" made greetings on the street quite few and far between for the doctor. His sister, however, was visited daily by the anxious young ladies, hoping the dear doctor was not overworking himself, that the dreadful disease would not spread, and eager to learn the real sentiments of the Eversleys as to "poor Miss Lane, who was just cut out for a nurse."

When the truth got out that the contagious feature of the case did not extend beyond light measles, Miss Rushton bit her lip and Miss Dorman denounced Nettie as a schemer.

"This is one of the great pleasures of a physician's life," said Doctor Eversley, as he and Nettie walked away from the home where they had taken the part of true ministering angels.

Nettie fully understood him. They had found the poor home filled with squalor, illness and suffering. They had left it supplied with the comforts of life and the inmates happy and hopeful.

There came a day when Miss Rushton took a sudden journey to relatives, and Miss Dorman resigned from the Ladies' Aid society. Two lines in the weekly announced an important engagement.

"You see, my brother is a very practical young man," was the way Miss Eversley explained the situation. "He thinks, as I do, that a good nurse makes a good doctor's wife."

PASSING OF SUNDAY SUPPER

Chafing Dish Messes Now Seem Largely to Comprise the Sabbath Evening Repast.

Time was when the Sunday night supper was of even more vital importance than the midday dinner, especially in those towns and villages where strict religious principles prohibited cooking on the Sabbath.

It was not considered wrong to mix a pan of biscuits the night before and bake them for supper, so that these hot, puffy features of the meal, with honey or some of mother's quince preserves or canned cherries, were looked forward to with joyous anticipation.

As time passed, the stringent line relaxed as far as cooking for supper was concerned, and, in addition to cold salads, there would always be some hot dish, such as the real old-fashioned hash or scrambled eggs, with creamed potatoes.

City life has changed all this. Even the suburbanite who apes city ways has the mahogany table cleared, the doilies used in place of the regulation dinner cloth, and the chafing dish placed in front of the hostess, the ingredients at hand, and the lamp trimmed and burning. From this she turns out creamed chicken and ham, deviled sardines, mutton ragout and other "messes"—her grandmother would call them, as she waxes reminiscent on the honey and hot biscuit era.

Won't Hurt Bill.

A certain Indianapolis Sunday school, which is conducting a recruiting campaign by modern advertising methods, through a publicity committee, has received a suggestion for an appeal, to be posted abroad. It reads:

"Hello, Bill. Come, let us save your soul. It can't hurt you, and it will help us. Be a good fellow!"

The committee has the suggestion under advisement.

OLDEST LIVING THING

The Famous Cypress in the Churchyard of Santa Maria del Tule

In southern Mexico there stands the oldest living thing in the world—the famous cypress in the churchyard of the village of Santa Maria del Tule. The tree is situated in the intendency of Oaxaca, a few miles east of the city of that name. Experts judging by the gigantic bole of the Santa Maria del Tule cypress and by the slow growth of the species, have estimated the age of the monster to be between 5,000 and 6,000 years. These figures are staggering to the imagination. Taking the lowest computation, when the seed from which the tree sprang fell upon the earth, King Menes was reigning in Egypt—3,000 B. C. When Cheops drove his subjects with the lash to the labor of building the great pyramid, it was a slender stripling of 200 years. And it had reached a lusty youth of 1,500 years when the Hebrews made their exodus from the land of the Nile.

The discovery of America and the conquest of Mexico by Cortes would seem, in its life, things of only a few months ago. The last scientific measurement of the Santa Maria del Tule cypress was made by Dr. von Schrenk in 1903, a century after Humboldt discovered it, while on his famous tour of equatorial America. Dr. von Schrenk found that its trunk, four feet from the ground, had the astounding girth of 126 feet.

Before the broad and towering bulk of this one life, which has persisted without interruption since the date of the dawning of history, Dr. von Schrenk halted in awe. Had the foliaged creature possessed eyes and a tongue, what treasures of information could it have added to the annals of man. What revolutions in Mexico it could have related, what rises and falls of monarchies and civilizations in tropical America.

But flights of fancy gave way to immediate scientific duties. Authorities on trees had declared the discovery of the approximate age of this cypress to be one of the most important problems in aboriculture. They had expressed a hope that the next scientist who should visit the ancient living monument would not fail to complete the evidence needed.

The Mayor of Santa Maria del Tule however, opposed a barrier of adamant. Measure the circumference of the tree? Surely. Photograph it? Indeed, yes. But to take an instrument and bore from the trunk a plug two feet deep and one-half an inch in diameter? Horrors, no!

In vain Dr. von Schrenk urged that this experiment had been made hundreds of times without damage to trees, and that by counting the rings shown on the plug he could learn the tree's average rate of growth and thus solve one of the greatest scientific problems of the world. The Mayor was all humility and submissiveness. Anything he possessed was at the disposition of the scientist. But touch the tree he should not.

So Dr. von Schrenk was compelled to content himself with measuring the bole and taking some photographs of the tree. He also observed a wood tablet which Humboldt 100 years before, had nailed to the tree the unimpaired vitality of which for all its fifty centuries, had been shown by a growth of bark covering the tablet.

DID HIS DUTY

How the King, When a Prince, Deferred to Discipline

Presiding at a meeting at Devonshire House in connection with the "Duty and Discipline" movement, the Earl of Meath said: "We have in the King one who recognizes the meaning of the words 'duty' and 'discipline.'"

On one occasion, said the Earl, the King, then a Prince and naval officer arrived at Gibraltar, and rowed for an hour and a half in the teeth of a gale in order to pay respect to a senior officer.

On another occasion an order was given to the Prince to run out a torpedo-boat when he much desired to attend Goodwood Races. His senior officer suggested that perhaps the Prince could arrange with someone else to take his place. "No," he replied. "If it is the same to you, sir, I would rather do my duty."

The object of the Duty and Discipline movement is to bring home to parents and teachers the danger of allowing children to grow up without control.

Collapsible Tubes For Butter

They want butter in collapsible tubes in India. The heat is so intense there that it is almost impossible to pack butter in tubs or tins, as it is fluid almost from the moment it is made. Then, again, it spoils rapidly when exposed to the hot, moist air. This seriously retarded the efforts of the Government to stimulate the dairy industry. So the Director-General of Commercial Intelligence opened negotiations with the makers of machinery for the manufacture and filling of such tubes as are used for oil-paints, vaseline and tooth pastes. One of those manufacturers says the tubes would have to be made of pure tin, as the volatile fatty acids of the butter would act upon lead and copper and form poisons. And such parts of the filling machines as are now made of copper would have to be of porcelain.

Skins Improve Flavor

New Zealand cattle raisers have found that the meat of dressed calves retains its flavor better when exported long distances if the skins be left on until ready for market.

Sugar has been added to the list of antiseptic and aseptic dressings, and we are told it not merely preserves the cells, but furnishes a nutrient element for them.

HAWKINS IS HONORED

King's Prize Marksman Gets Big Ovation in Toronto.

Sharpshooter is Royally Welcomed by His Comrades of the City Militia—Met at Station by Civic and Military Authorities Who Present Him With Tokens of Recognition of His Feat.

TORONTO, Aug. 18.—Pte. Hawkins, who won the King's Prize at Bisley, returned to Toronto Saturday night. More eloquent of the admiration which his achievement has gained for him than the illuminated address composed by the city council was the roar of cheers which welcomed him as the hero-bearing train steamed slowly into North Toronto station at ten minutes after eight.

Lining the track clear across from west of Yonge street to the station enclosure was a dense crowd of civilians and soldiery, altho the drizzling rain which fell undoubtedly had its effect in reducing the numbers of those who greeted him. The men of the 48th, wearing the white shell jackets of their drill order uniform, stood at attention, as did also the companies of public school cadets, whose red coats brightened the too gloomy scene. But as with grinding brakes the train stopped ranks were broken, discipline was forgotten, and kilties and cadets alike pushed with the straining civilians to get a glimpse of Hawkins when he should alight.

Then, above the cheering, could be heard the notes of the salute. The band had not forgotten its duty. Twice the salute was played and then "God Save the King," and Private Hawkins appeared on the steps, escorted by Col. Currie of the 48th. Until that moment he had been Private William A. Hawkins. In a trice he became "Billy Hawkins" and nothing else. His honors, the crowd, the presentation rifle from the Ross Company, which has been his delight since it was given him at Quebec—all were forgotten except the little wife at his side and the boys who called him "Billy" and extended eager arms from every side.

The mayor, in welcoming Hawkins, announced that the city would donate $600 to him.

To this $600 will be added over one thousand dollars contributed by the officers and men of the Highlanders, and the amount will be still further increased by private subscription. The gift of a house was decided upon as a step most likely to encourage Hawkins to remain a resident of Toronto. It is expected that the provincial government will recognize the worth of Hawkins' achievement, and a project is on foot to obtain for him a position in the Dominion customs here. The importance of Hawkins' comparative youth—he is under thirty—was emphasized in the speech of Col. Currie.

Hawkins' education fits him for engineering work, but as this will not allow him to devote much time to shooting, those interested in his future as a marksman hope by obtaining for him work in the civil service to keep him on the ranges as an example to the young men of the regiments.

ROBS PASSENGERS.

Bandit Rifles Pockets of Travellers Near Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 16.—(Can. Press.)—A bandit who boarded a Pullman car on the St. Louis and San Francisco passenger train, known as the Meteor, at the Union Station here tonight, held up four of the passengers on the car, soon after the train left for Oklahoma and Texas. The robber escaped by jumping from the train.

The bandit has purchased railroad and Pullman tickets and entered the train as a regular passenger. The train had passed scarcely beyond the limits of the city when suddenly the man stood up and, flourishing a pistol, demanded that the other passengers in the car give him their money and valuables.

The passengers in compliance with his demand held up their hands and four men readily surrendered their pocketbooks containing $106. The man evidently intended to rob all the passengers in the car and probably had planned to enter other coaches, but he became startled when he discovered that one of the passengers at the end of the car had disappeared while his attention was concentrated on pocketing the money he had received.

Evidently believing that the train crew would rush in on him in a moment, the bandit backed out of the coach and hurrying thru another car to the platform, jumped to the ground and disappeared in the darkness.

Trainmen Must Report Dresses.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 16.—Following yesterday's public statement to the effect that many accidents to women on car steps are the direct result of high heels and hobble skirts, the Pennsylvania railroad posted today on every trainmen's bulletin board along the main line an order that the dress of women shall be specially noted and reported whenever such an accident occurs.

The order directs that trainmen at all times, as in the past, shall lend passengers assistance, and that whenever a woman falls on or near a train the trainman who sees it shall jot down the width of skirt and height of heel. The trainmen are not to be equipped with measureing tapes or dules, but they are to make a calculation.

ROOSEVELT BACK.

He May Seek Regular Republican Nomination in 1916.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—Republican leaders in congress, progressives as well as regulars, have come to the conclusion that Theodore Roosevelt will enter the Republican presidential primaries in 1916 in the hope of capturing the Republican nomination.

This conviction has gradually been settling down on everybody here, but it was not until recently that the leaders began to show evidence of grave concern. They acknowledge now that the work of reorganizing the party must not be long delayed if the Roosevelt nomination is to be avoided.

Senator Cummins of Iowa said today that unless congress adjourns to September 1 the instructions of the recent session of the Republican national executive committee in Washington for the calling of the "national committee within sixty days after the adjournment of congress" would not be strictly observed, but that a movement would be started at once for calling the committee together looking to a national convention or conference.

Senator Cummins is of the opinion that the matter is of too much importance to be delayed waiting for congress to adjourn.

In view of the fact that there is no possibility of the adjournment of congress until after Sept. 1, it appears to be a foregone conclusion that the Republican national committee will be asked to meet in October or November to discuss plans for rehabilitating the organization.

Whether or not the growing impression among Republicans in congress that Col. Roosevelt wants to capture the party nomination in 1916 has hastened the plans looking to reorganizing and rebuilding the party cannot be definitely stated. Of course the Republican leaders would not admit today that the colonel's suspected plans have moved them to renewed energy. But there has been much discussion, especially in the senate, within the last week of the activity of Roosevelt's friends and its possible significance.

LOOTING IN CANTON.

Chinese Rebels Are Butchering Thousands, Say Reports.

HONGKONG, Aug. 17.—(Can. Press)—The federal general, Lung Chi Kuang, who is President Yuan Shi Kai's candidate for governor of Canton, disembarked from a government gunboat at Hongkong Saturday to take charge of the city.

Guerilla fighting, in which the rebels are being aided by pirates, is proceeding against the government troops some miles beyond Canton. The guerillas are prosecuting their warfare principally for the purpose of looting.

On one street corner in Canton the bodies of sixty-four persons who were killed in the fighting of Friday were found. All the men wore new uniforms. The Red Cross has been unable to reach the scene of fighting in Canton, where frightful conditions are reported to exist among the wounded owing to the great heat.

The governor's yamen, which was destroyed during the fighting, was the scene of wanton vandalism. The valuable furnishings, such as vases, black wood, screens and other articles were taken to the streets and smashed, while stationary objects which could not be removed were battered to pieces with the butt ends of the guns of the rebels. Near the yamen the body of a Chinese woman, dressed in silks and having large pearls in her ears, was found. She had been shot thru the head. The treasury building, which was damaged by shells, was looted. The rebels in their fighting are animated by the spirit of loot, and not patriotism.

Battle in Progress.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 17.—(Can. Press.)—Advices received from Nankin, under date of last Friday, say that a sharp struggle was then proceeding for the possession of Purple Mountain. Government troops from Chinkiang were pouring up to reinforce the besiegers. A steady artillery duel was proceeding between the rebels on Lion Hill and the northerners at Pukow. Foreigners in Hsiakwang, a suburb of Nankin, have taken refuge on the warships out of the lind of fire.

FOUND DEAD IN TRAIN.

Notorious Countess Either a Suicide or Murder Victim.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 17.—The Countess Tarnovska, who in 1910 was convicted in Venice of complicity in the murder of Count Kamarowsky and sentenced to eight years imprisonment, was found dead on a St. Petersburg-Kiev express train today. She had been hanged. The police are investigating in an effort to determine whether it is a case of suicide or murder. The countess was pardoned last year.

The Countess Marie Tarnovska, a beautiful Russian woman, was charged and found guilty of having persuaded a jealous youth, Nikolas Naumoff, to go to Venice from Vienna, and kill Count Kamarowsky, in order that she might obtain $100,000 life insurance, the policy for which Kamarowsky had taken out in her name. The countess, it was said, was engaged to marry Kamarowsky. It was charged at the trial that the countess had a mania for making men love her and then turning them against one another. It was testified that she had repeatedly embraced Count Kamarowsky in the presence of young Naumoff and had shown Naumoff forged love letters in order to arouse his jealousy. The court also found Naumoff guilty but mentally unbalanced and sentenced him to three years imprisonment.

Missionary Murdered.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 17.—(Can. Press.)—An official despatch received by the government today confirms the murder last week of the Rev. Charles H. Holbrook, a missionary, at Soushehir, Asiatic Turkey. The report said Mr. Holbrook had been shot by an unknown man while reposing in a garden.

The murderer escaped, but the authorities of Soushehir arrested several persons who are believed to have been connected with the case and have taken steps to punish the instigators of the crime.

Mr. Holbrook was a native of Lynn, Mass., and was connected with the American board of commissioners for foreign missions at Sivas.

Knowles to Take Rest.

GALT, Aug. 16.—(Special.)—The indisposition of Rev. R. E. Knowles, M. A., minister of Knox Church, and author of several popular works of fiction, is causing grave anxiety to his family and friends. It is no secret that since the railway accident in which he was injured five years ago, he has not been physically well.

LAURIER OPENS TOUR

Liberal Leader Begins Quebec Campaign at St. Hyacinthe.

After His Rest Sir Wilfrid Returns to the Attack on the Navy Program and Demands an Election—Town is Overrun With Visitors and Six Thousand Assemble to Hear Leader Speak.

MONTREAL, Aug. 16.—(Can. Press.)—"The Conservatives may put off an appeal to the people—they may delay from day to day, from week to week, from month to month—but the appeal must come; and the longer it is put off the more bitter will be the retribution, the more glorious the triumph and victory of the Liberals."

This was the tenor of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's speech when he began his Quebec campaign at St. Hyacinthe. The town was crowded with visitors and was decorated for the occasion. It is estimated that six thousand persons heard the Liberal leader's speech.

St. Hyacinthe was overrun with the incoming visitors, who came from every point of the province on special trains. The streets were festooned with flowers and bunting, special arches of greenery being thrown across at various points. In the latter little girls dressed in gala attire sprinkled fresh cut flowers on the roadway as the Liberal chieftain passed. Addesses were read on behalf of the citizens, as well as on behalf of the various Liberal clubs represented at the demonstration.

Sir Wilfrid, who gave all evidences of having profited by his repose of the past few months, made a speech which was described by several of his followers and colleagues in the house as one of the most vigorous and eloquent in years. There was something of the old resonant voice and graceful poise which were characteristic of the Laurier of the old days.

Sir Wilfrid took up the naval question and in rounded sarcasm dealt with the position of the Nationalist "patriots," who had been, he said, traitors to all their pre-election promises. Conservative extremists, he declared, were made up of the imperialists on the one side and the Nationalists on the other. They together constituted a body of which the imperialists were the head and the Nationalists the tail, or, to use another figure, said Sir Wilfrid, they might be described as an equipage drawn by a bull and an ass—he added that he would not say which was the ass.

As to the naval question, said Sir Wilfrid, tho the Nationalists had begged to have only twenty of their number elected, promising, in that event, they would soon have the "damned" question settled, it was now a more burning question than ever before. Sir Wilfrid also scored the "closure" as a death blow dealt at the educational liberty of the people by the Conservatives, whom he described as a part of the privileged classes as opposed to the masses. He averred that the whole policy of the Conservatives tended towards bringing Canada back to the day of 75 years ago, when the people counted as nothing, and when everything in the matter of government was directed from the highbrows of Downing street.

Silas Duclos and F. H. Boisseau presided. Following the speech of welcome by Mayor Payan, the other speakers were: Armand Boisseau, representing the Young Liberals; T. D. Bouchard, M.L.A., of St. Hyacinthe, and Senator Dessaulles.

SLAYERS DESCRIBED.

New York Police Send Out Circulars in Martin Case.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16. — Harry Schaeffer, alias Shafer, alias Murray, and Mike Sirrocco, alias Sago, alias Santo, are the men sought by the New York police as the murderers of William G. Martin, the Toronto milliner, found dead in a furnished room house early this week. Descriptions of the men were sent out broadcast this afternoon.

Schaefer is described as a good-looking, clean-cut, fairly well dressed young man, 20 years old, 5 feet 7 1-2 inches tall and weighing about 145 pounds. He has a necktie pin initialed "H. S."

Sirrocco is described as a barber by occupation; Italian, 20 years old, 5 feet 2 inches tall; weight 147 pounds; stockily built, round face, pale, olive complexion; black curly hair, parted on the side; brown eyes; high cheekbones, straight nose.

According to the circular, whoever murdered Martin took this jewelry: Hunting case gold watch, marked "W. G. M."; gold watch chain; old gold locket, marked "W. G. M."; one-carat diamond ring; half-carat diamond ring.

The circular concludes that the alleged fugitives "spoke of going to San Francisco, to which city they may now be en route, stopping off on the way."

Through Panama in Small Boat.

BANGOR, Aug. 18.—Capt. Mathias Johnson of Perth Amboy, N.J., who sailed from Eastport Aug. 3 in a twenty-five foot motor and sail boat for San Francisco, proposes to go via the Panama Canal.

Capt. Johnson's boat is said to have been the gig of Dewey's flagship Olympia at the battle of Manila Bay. In the course of this run the little boat will cover 7000 miles and make port thirty-five times on the Atlantic.

Capt. Johnson says he has been informed he will be able to get his small craft thru the canal in October. He plans to make his expenses by selling post-cards and placing his craft on exhibition.

Want a Silencer for Drunks.

SARNIA, Aug. 17.—(Special.)—The cursing and swearing of prisoners in the police cells here has aroused the wrath of some of the prominent citizens of the town and efforts are being made to have a change made, so that the language of the drunks and other prisoners in the city cooler cannot be heard on the streets. The management of the Northern Hotel, which is only a few feet from the windows of the cells, has made a complaint about the matter. What action the town fathers will take is not known.

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 17. — (Can. Press.)—Nils Stenstroem, a Swede, today swam across the Sound from Landskrona, Sweden, to Skodsborg, Denmark, a distance in a direct line of about 10 miles. Stenstroem, however, had to contend with stormy weather, a rough sea and strong current, and was nine

HARRY THAW IS FREE

Slayer of Stanford White Breaks From Asylum.

Millionaire Murderer With the Aid of Confederates Makes a Dash for Liberty and is Now Out of the Jurisdiction of the State of New York—Only Long Litigation Can Take Him Back.

MATTEAWAN, N. Y., Aug. 17.—(Can. Press.)—Harry K. Thaw, the slayer of Stanford White, escaped from the Hospital for the Criminal Insane here at 7.45 o'clock this morning. A dart for liberty thru an open gate, a dash in the open door of a powerful automobile that stood quivering outside, and a flight like a rocket for the Connecticut state line, 30 miles away, accomplished his escape.

Tonight he was still at large and the hospital authorities felt certain he was outside the state. Once beyond its boundaries Thaw is free. Only months, perhaps years, of litigation can bring him back to Matteawan, and then only in one event—that he be adjudged insane in the state to which he has fled.

Five confederates manned the car in which Thaw escaped, and a big black limousine which trailed it past the asylum gate. The police have their descriptions and the names under which they registered at a local hotel Friday night, and are seeking them.

The hospital authorities believe that Thaw has fled to the shore of Long Island Sound and boarded a yacht waiting with steam up, to rush him to Europe.

A reward of $500 for Thaw's apprehension has been offered by Mr. R. F. C. Keib, superintendent of the asylum. Howard H. Barnum, the attendant at the gate past whom Thaw flashed in his break for freedom, is under arrest, and other arrests are expected to follow.

room this morning. He was fully [illegible] walked into the storeroom and into the outer court or yard of the asylum grounds. Barnum, sole attendant at the rear gate, was pacing back and forth when Thaw closed the storeroom door behind him and apparently did not grasp the significance of Thaw's early rising.

Long years of residence at the asylum and repeated declarations by Thaw that he would never attempt to obtain his freedom except by legal means had established the madman's status as a "trusty." There was little out of the ordinary in his appearance, even at so early an hour, in the courtyard, and if Barnum saw him—as to this no one save the hospital authorities could say tonight and they refused to talk—he raised no question.

A six-cylinder black Packard touring car of sixty horse-power, followed by a limousine, also black, loafed lazily along the road as the milkman drew near the gate. Thaw standing a few feet away, apparently unconcerned, waited till Barnum unlocked the gate and swung it wide to let the milkman enter. At the same moment the two cars drew up on the further side of the road opposite the gate, and the touring car stood still, its engine throbbing.

As Barnum stepped aside for the milkman to drive into the grounds he heard the gravel crunch beneath Thaw's feet, and looking up saw the madman flash past him with the speed of the wind straight for the waiting car. With a shout Barnum started in pursuit, but a flying leap landed Thaw safe within the car. The great wheels were slowly turning before the keeper had fairly reached the roadway. They were throwing up a cloud of dust before he had gone twenty-five feet.

Down the roadway the cars sped in a whirling cloud of dust that spread over their trail like a mantle and blotted them from sight.

For a moment Barnum shaded his eyes with his hand against the low lying sun and watched them; then, with the first great blot on his career of 20 years as keeper, he dashed madly back into the grounds and locked the gate.

"Thaw's gone—escaped!" he shouted, bursting into Dr. Keib's presence. And in a moment the hunt was on.

The great black car flashed like a thunderbolt thru Stormville, 10 miles east of Matteawan, along the road to the Connecticut line. Early risers in the little hamlet saw three men—and Thaw—crouching low to escape the sweep of their rush thru the air. They were going 70 miles an hour. They were ten minutes out of Matteawan. Stormville marveled at their speed and watched them melt away in the dust of the state road. The limousine had been left behind. At the speed which the black car traveled thru Stormville he should have reached the state line within half an hour.

Barnum's breathless declaration at the asylum brought Dr. Keib to his feet like a pistol shot. Within a moment he was standing at the telephone and, as Barnum poured his story into his ears, repeated it over the wire to police headquarters. Matteawan became the centre of a widening ripple of telephone and telegraph alarms as Dr. Keib planned pursuit.

Yachtsmen Nude.

KINGSTON, Aug. 17.—(Special.)—The fact that prominent members of the Kingston Yacht Club have been taking their morning "dip" from the yacht club wharf in a nude condition has caused no end of complaints from people passing thru the harbor in boats. The matter has been discussed for weeks thru the local press, many letters being written pro and con on the question, until at last the matter has come to the attention of the police, and now they have their big stick out after the offenders. They will see that the bathers are properly garbed just the same as at other places along the shore in the city.

It seemed to be the popular opinion that because the yacht club

Little Girl Struck By an Automobile

Edna Chatham, aged six years, whose parents are but recent arrivals in the city, was on Saturday the victim of an automobile accident, which, it is confidently expected, will not result fatally.

It appears that Mr. Grass was driving a car on Moira street west, near Purdy street, when the little girl attempted to cross the street in front of the car, and tripped and fell directly in front of the machine. Although Mr. Grass was driving very moderately at the time, the actions of the child were such that he could not stop the care before it struck her. Fortunately no wheels passed over the prostrate form. The force of the blow, however, caused severe injuries. Mr. Grass placed the little girl in the car and drove her to the hospital, where medical aid was administered. For some hours the little victim was unconscious, out to-day was reported to be progressing favorably.

There appears to be no fault whatever on the part of Mr. Grass, the occurrence being purely accidental. The child was staying with friends on Howard street near where the unfortunate affair occurred.

WESTERN LETTER

CALGARY, Alta., Aug. 16.—With grain cutting in full swing in Western Canada under ideal conditions, the entire country is looking forward to a prosperous fall and winter season. Already the tightness of money, which has been the bogey for the past six months, is disappearing and there is every prospect of renewed activity in all lines of business.

The crop which is now being harvested promises to be the greatest in the history of Canada, and everywhere where modern farming methods prevail, the yield will be a bumper one.

The electric light department is one of the municipally owned industries of Calgary which returns a large dividend to its owners, the ratepayers and residents generally. According to the report of the city electrician the system cleared $24,913 for the first seven months of the present year. The number of customers using city electric light and power is 11,338.

The total amount of wire now in use by the Calgary Electric Light and Power department is close to one million pounds. The growth of this during the same period has been some thirty thousand pounds, while the mileage of pole lines is 207, an increase of 21,700 feet for the seven months.

The City of Calgary buys its power en bloc from the Calgary Power Company, which has two large hydro electric sites on the Bow river, some fifty miles west of this city. The city then retails the power to manufacturers and to domestic consumers. The power company is at present busy developing its second site, which is situated at the Kananaskis Falls. Here twelve thousand horsepower will be generated and officials of the company declare it will all be needed by the time it is turned on early in the coming winter. This power is of course also used to run the Calgary Municipal Street Railway.

A pipe line forty-four miles long to bring water for the citizens of Calgary, from a spot high in the foothills of the Rocky Mountains is the plan which has been drafted out by A. W. Ellson Fawkes, waterworks engineer, of this city.

At present Calgary gets pure, ice cold water from the Elbow River, the intake being situated about twelve miles west of the city. The new plan is to go thirty-two miles further up the river and build a gravity line which will do away with the necessity of pumping, either for fire fighting or any other purpose.

It is expected that the plan will cost over a million dollars, but the great pressure that will be obtained will prove a big saving in the long run, as the maintenance cost will be small once the pipe line is built.

Calgary doctors have been greatly interested in the case of Mrs. W. H. McMillan, a well known local woman, who has just come out of a trance of four days' duration. Mrs. McMillan's condition was that of a complete trance in which the ordinary functions of the body were suspended without life becoming extinct. The case was under observation by a score of Calgary doctors while she was being cared for by her family physician at the General Hospital here. None of them could ascribe any cause for her abnormal condition.

Welland to Get a Second Member

WELLAND, Aug. 16.— Welland county will be represented by two members in the next Provincial Parliament. A change will undoubtedly be made before the next election by which Wainfleet and Pelham townships, now in the electoral district of Monck, will be added to Welland county for Provincial electoral as well as for municipal purposes. This will necessitate an increased representation in this county.

The other townships in Monck will be given over to Haldimand. Evan E. Fraser, M.P.P., is authority for the statement that redistribution will take place. The two members to be elected for Welland will be one from the east of the county and one from the west.

Plot to Murder Lord Kitchener

LONDON, Aug. 18.—Special—The Daily Express prints a story to the effect that the Government has learned of a plot by the Egyptian nationalists to murder Viscount Kitchener, Agent and Consul-General in Egypt since 1911. Lord Kitchener has been staying in England for some weeks. The Scotland Yard authorities are looking for an Egyptian student who was lately at Oxford, and who is alleged to have been engineering the plot for the assassination of Lord Kitchener through an Egyptian Nationalist society. This student is actively associated with Mohamed Farid Bey, the notorious Egyptian Nationalist extremist. It was Farid Bey who at the National Egyptian Congress at Brussels, in September, 1910, denounced Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, who had been stirring England up for alleged neglect of affairs in Egypt as the threat-bearer of Sir Edward Grey, the British Minister of Foreign Affairs.

At this same congress, which was forbidden to meet on French territory, Farid Bey declared that the program of the "Young Egypt" party consisted only of two words: "Evacuation" and "Constitution." He declared that nothing could stop this programme, not even the speeches of British Ministers nor the "twaddle" of Mr. Roosevelt.

SAMSON HASKELL OF BENTLEY

—BY—

CHARLES A. MACFARLANE

(Copyright Applied For)

CHAPTER VIII.

Samson's Business Sagacity.

The "Dave Gaylord Farm" was considered one of the handsomest and most productive properties in the district. For the past twenty-five years his energies had been devoted to bringing the ground from a bush-covered condition to a state of profitable cultivation, with the result that at the date of our story he was in comfortable circumstances, with a money surplus of two thousand dollars in the Trenton Bank.

But, like many another man of ambition, the head of the house of Gaylord was ever on the lookout for opportunities to increase his holdings, even, at times, to the overstepping of caution in his dealings with those unknown to him.

One day two strangers visited his home, professing to be selling territory for the agency of a new patent mowing machine, the most improved on the market. The agreement was that three hundred dollars should be paid upon the delivery of a sample machine, within thirty days. They had first approached Samson Haskell, offering him the district on identical terms, but not liking the wording of the agreement, he had declined to do business with them, suggesting that perhaps his neighbor, David Gaylord, might be willing to take up the enterprise. And David swallowed the baited hook.

The agreement was signed, and the mowing machine was to be shipped at a certain date; but it never came.

A month later Samson received word from Delilah Gaylord that his company would no longer be welcome at the home of her parents, for what reason she did not state. Theresa Harding, who conveyed the message, could give no explanation, because of her own ignorance of the cause.

Mr. and Mrs. Gaylord also refrained from recognizing Samson upon a chance meeting, and as the days, weeks and months passed, the mystery deepened so far as young Haskell was concerned.

The estimable couple seemed to age rapidly, and by the following spring ten years had apparently been added to their lives.

Delilah no longer attended the socialities of the neighborhood, and when she did go out, it was either to the church, where she played the organ, or in the company of Henry Rollins, which was not often. She continued to teach the school at Crow's Corner, and of a Friday evening returned home to remain in comparative seclusion until the next Monday.

A year passed, when Samson, no longer able to bear the strain, waited upon Neighbor Gaylord, determined to settle the difference, of whatever nature it might be. He found the farmer pacing his yard, and as the young man approached, he turned to enter the house, as if to avoid an interview. Not to be outdone, however, Samson stepped quickly in front of him, and said in a firm voice:

"Lookey here, Dave Gaylord, we've got to stop this tarnal foolin', and settle our differences, whatever they be, right here and now. It's killin' both you and your wife, and, if I'm in any way to blame for it, I'll make things right if it takes my last penny."

"Samson," and the farmer's voice trembled with emotion, "did you have anything to do with them swindlers as was sellin' territory for mowin' machines?"

"No siree," was the energetic reply. "They came to me, and I wouldn't touch it. But I told 'em they could try you if they wanted to, never supposing you were fool big enough to tumble into their trap."

"Well, I took hold of it, as they said you had shares in the company that made the machines, and I supposed it was all right. I signed a paper for three hundred dollars, payable at the Trenton Bank. They raised it to three thousand dollars, and manipulated it into a promissory note, payable in thirty days. I had two thousand in the bank, but I had to give Rasmus Hale a mortgage on the farm and stock for one thousand, at ten per cent. The mortgage is due tomorrow, and I must take five hundred dollars over and above the amount borrowed, with one hundred dollars interest, for the farm and stock, or he forecloses, lest I can raise the eleven hundred."

For a moment or two Samson was too indignant to give expression to his feelings. It was like "Deakin" Hale to do such an injustice, he knew; but that he should take advantage of one of his brothers in the church, was beyond his conception of even business integrity.

Then a radiant light came to the gray eyes. Young Haskell was familiar with the condition of the Gaylord farm, and also its possibilities under the energies of an expert agriculturist, and, having the ready money to invest, he decided to propose a copartnership.

"Dave, I'll give you three thousand dollars for a half interest in the farm, buildings and stock, not including household goods. I'll come and live with you, put my time agin yours, pay half of all the expenses, and hire a strong girl to help do the housework."

Hardly were the words spoken when tears began coursing down Mother Gaylord's cheeks. She had come to the door upon hearing Samson's voice, and was delighted to know that he, the son of her two best friends, was in no way responsible for her husband's misfortune.

"Samson Haskell," and placing her hands up his broad shoulders, looked him steadfastly in the eyes. "Samson Haskell, do you mean what you say?"

"If you and Neighbor Gaylord will come over to the town house we'll have the bargain recorded inside of two hours," was the hearty reply. "And, what is more, you can depend on Samson Haskell to live up to the letter and spirit of his word."

That night David Gaylord and his wife slept soundly, knowing that Rasmus Hale had no longer a claim upon their beloved homestead, and, locked in the top bureau drawer, were one thousand, nine hundred dollars in cash, which the next day, with one hundred dollars more, would be deposited in the Trenton Bank.

The next Friday evening, when Delilah entered the home, and found Samson a part of the family, she would not be convinced that his purpose was an honorable one, and expressed her conviction in unusually plain English. But her eyes were not closed to the manner in which he assumed his share, and more, of the farm's burdens, noting also, the many improvements over her father's system of work, and it was not long before she had become perfectly satisfied with the new order of things; not that she expressed herself in so many words, but by asking for a ride behind the chestnuts, which was her only mode of showing approval.

The following Monday morning she requested Samson to have the pair and new buggy ready at the usual hour for the trip to Crow's Corner, stating also that henceforth it would be his duty on the first of each week, to see that she was at her school promptly at nine o'clock.

But while he was permitted to resume the weekly privilege of conveying her ladyship to the school, she was by no means ready to listen to a declaration of love—which assumption would have been equivalent to a request for his dismissal on the spot.

Then came the Sunday evening request to be driven to the church, a distance of half a mile from the farm; and when he lifted her from the carriage at the steps, he took it for granted that she would go straight to her place at the organ. But when he returned from fastening the horses in the shed, he found her waiting for him at the church door, remarking that Theresa Harding had usurped her place at the instrument, and they would have to occupy the family pew next to the front. Asking him to lead the way, she followed closely up the aisle, entering the pew as naturally as if it were a weekly occurrence.

In the village of Bentley it was considered a sign of engagement for a young lady to be taken to a place of worship by a young gentleman; but Delilah paid no attention to the knowing glances. She entertained her own ideas of propriety, and permitted none to dictate her preferences.

At the conclusion of the service Samson reined up at the church steps to find the two girls waiting. Delilah had invited Theresa to take a ride with them, having in her mind a ten-mile circuit of the town, and giving such directions to Samson as they left the church yard.

The memory of that drive, over the hills and through the vales remained with Samson for years—in fact he speaks of it to this day, when referring to the more joyous incidents of his early manhood.

Delilah was unusually jolly that evening, and Theresa was brim full of fun; for were there not signs of a change coming over Delilah, with a consequent ray of hope for herself?

Sweet and clear rang Delilah's soprano upon the mountain air, Theresa's pretty alto joining with perfect harmony, while Samson's strong tenor supplied what might be lacking in the chorus.

It was eleven o'clock when they left Theresa at her home, and a half hour later when the span was stalled for the night.

Upon entering the dining room Samson found Delilah waiting for him with a plate of cookies, another of gingerbread, and a two quart pitcher of milk on the table.

They were both ravenously hungry, and as they partook of the food, each kept up a raillery of light conversation, their cheery laughter awakening the elders of the house, who wondered at the sudden cordiality existing between the two, who, during their entire existence had been at sword's points.

Finally, refusing to supply more food, "lest Samson should be taken ill from over-eating," Delilah cleared the dishes from the table, and laughingly ordered him to bed, warning him to be on hand with the chestnuts in the morning for a flying drive to the school. And her "good night, Samson," was said so pleasantly, that his throat filled, his heart expanded, and only his exit from the room hid the tears of joy that filled his eyes. It was all so new to be addressed in terms of friendliness by David Gaylord's daughter that he seemed to have entered another world.

That night Samson Haskell dreamed of hearing wedding bells, with Delilah Gaylord and himself as the most interested participants.

MANY LONDONERS VICTIMS OF OPIUM

Gilded Palaces Bring in Huge Sums to Their Proprietors—Luxurious Dens in West End

A newspaperman accompanied by an ex-inspector of Scotland Yard, dressed in the plainest of plain clothes, spent several days, and nights in exploring the fashionable haunts where many Englishmen imitate the habits of the Chinese, and their researches proved that, without a doubt, the opium den is as well, if not better, patronized by the fashionable "West Enders" as it is by his more humble and poverty-stricken brother in the east end of London.

In the East end the Chinaman or his opium-drugged English brother lies in an open cubicle upon a none too clean mattress. For the privilege of paying a few pence he is allowed to squat in a grimy hole, where he rolls his opium into his beloved pea, lights it at the flame, plugs it into his pipe, and sucks until he is literally wafted into the opium maniac's heaven. But the difference between an east end and a west end opium den is almost as vast as the area which divides the North Pole from the South.

In a so-called fashionable West End den some sort of introduction is essential before a visitor is allowed within the sacred precincts of the "exclusive circle." Indeed it is safe to say that rarely, if ever, has a casual visitor effected an entrance on his own footing.

However, the detective stated that there are, not a hundred miles from Piccadilly, numbers of touts who act in the capacity of "introducing agents" to the proprietors of these opium palaces. Those who are familiar with the haunts of Englishmen infected with an insatiable taste for opium would, indeed, be amazed at the luxury and elaborate upholstering which characterizes the West End headquarters of the opium fiend. Everything breathes of comfort. The most elaborate Eastern hangings adorn the walls, while Turkey carpets, into which the feet sink almost ankle deep cover the floors.

In various parts of the room divans, couches, and settees are scattered around, it would be almost impossible to imagine any Eastern palace more luxurious in every detail. Morning, noon, and night there is always a staff of waiters ready to administer to the wants of privileged patrons, whose requirements are faithfully carried out in every detail. For the proprietor of a fashionable opium den amasses a small fortune in a very short time, and, therefore, it pays him well to study the whims of those who come to him to satisfy their cravings.

"The most curious thing about opium dens in London," said the Scotland Yard man, "is the rapidity with which they spring up and flourish. Indeed, they seem to become widely known almost as soon as they are founded. Your opium den runner, strangely enough, has no need to advertise his ensign. He needs no advertisement; give him a couple of customers and, sure enough, in less than a week his clients will increase and multiply as carrion flock to the carcase."

Perhaps the most striking feature of London's opium dens is their indescribable art of secreting themselves. Indeed, it is safe to say that hundreds of thousands of people pass by these "havens of rest" daily, and yet not one person in a thousand would believe that "this respectable-looking house" is an opium den.

New Rifle Tested

King George was an interested spectator at Aldershot of trials with a new service rifle, slightly longer than the one generally in use and having as an additional feature an aperture sight. The King thus saw a firing squad at work with the new rifle at 500 yards. The targets used were a foot square, made of solid steel, three-eighths of an inch thick. One of them which had been in use was shown to the King and Queen. It had four bullet-holes in it, perfectly drilled as if the metal had been punched out with a machine tool.

Eight men of the Suffolk Regiment, who had been drawn from the same company, and were not picked marksmen, fired with the new rifle at twenty-four targets. Each man had twenty rounds, and when their ammunition was exhausted all but one of the targets had been brought down.

Lady's Share Deals

It was stated at a meeting at the London Bankruptcy Court of the creditors of Miss Cecilia Georgina Susan Lennox, of East Pallant House, Chichester, that in three years the lady had lost $100,000 in Stock Exchange dealings. Of her losses in speculation, she had paid $75,000. Miss Lennox is a daughter of the late General Sir Wilbraham Oates Lennox, V.C., who died in 1897 and of Lady Lennox-Sinclair. She is a great-granddaughter of the Fourth Duke of Richmond.

Home Manufactures

Strong appeals were made in speeches at a meeting of the Cork Industrial Development Association in favor of support for Irish manufactures. The City High Sherif said their splendid motto was: "Go buy the products of your own land," and it should be impressed on the mind of every man and woman in the country.

DROWNED ON THE EVE OF STARTING FIRST JOB.

Thorold, Ont., Aug. 18.—John Boyd, a native of Drunsmudden, Ochildrie, Ayrshire, Scotland, was drowned while bathing in the Welland River near the Montrose Mill last night. Boyd, who was nineteen years of age, was to have commenced work on his first job in this country this morning, he having arrived here two weeks ago from the old land. His only relative in Canada is a brother, who almost lost his life near the same spot a few days ago, he having been rescued when going down for the last time.

Sneezed Teeth Out Of Window

He Was Afraid to Tackle Toronto Beefsteak Without Them.

TORONTO, Aug. 18.—As the Winnipeg express on the C.P.R. neared the depot today, Herbert MacCrosson leaped from the train and ran back. The conductor did not know what was the matter, but thought he would better halt the train, so he held it until MacCrosson had run about a hundred yards away and had returned.

"I'm glad I got 'em," he wheezed.

"Got what?" anxiously asked the conductor.

"My teeth," replied Mac. "I sneezed just before we got to the station, and they hopped right out of my mouth and fell by the track."

RAGING BUSH FIRES CAUSING UNTOLD LOSS

Whole of Muskoka and Haliburton District Fighting Flames—Bear was Burned Out—Men and Women on Bucket Brigade.

TORONTO, Aug. 19.— Special — Throughout practically the whole of the Muskoka district bush fires of a more or less serious character are raging.

The whole district around Lake Joseph has been the scene of strenuous struggles with a violent and obstinate outbreak. To stem the onrush of the flames, campers and cottagers have had to turn out and fight side by side with buckets as their only appliances. They battled long and vigorously, but were steadily driven back by the heat and dense volumes of smoke, and the flames leaped onward converting the water into clouds of smoke. So fierce was the heat that it was practically impossible to make any effectual headway with buckets, and as a last resort a number of business men spending their holidays in the district procured ploughs and turned up the earth in the path of the advancing fire, thus placing a safety zone around their temporary homes.

At Keene and other points in the Trent River district fire is also rushing through the bush, consuming everything in its path, the fire-swept zone stretching along the north and south shores of Rice Lake and as far west as Newcastle.

Dominion Must Stir Re Navy

Sir Richard McBride Half Ashamed to be Canadian Otherwise

MONTREAL, Aug. 18.—"Believe me, I am not a faddist on the navy question; but when I saw 100,000 Canadian lining our shores recently, looking with admiration upon the fine vessel which little New Zealand has contributed for the common defence of the Empire, I was half ashamed to call myself a Canadian."

"What we want," continued Sir Richard, "is a foreign nation to send its ships up the St. Lawrence and then we should see where we stand, and know what the Union Jack stands for. Everything we have to-day, all the privileges we enjoy come to us because of the protection which the Old Flag gives us."

Canoe Upsets In the Rapids

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Aug. 18.—Just as the Government lookout man had dragged his two brothers, Munn and William, to safety, Dwight Maclachlan, aged 25 years, sank to the bottom of the little rapids, a mile below the city.

His body has not been recovered. The three lads had been canoeing yesterday and it was in the evening when they reached the swift rapids, on their way home, that the treacherous current caught their canoe and overturned it.

Body Brought to Belleville for Burial

The body of Mrs. Isaac Wolever was brought from Montreal, where she died from the result of a fall, on the 17th of August, by her son, Mr. Frank Wolever, for interment in the Belleville cemetery.

The late Mr. and Mrs. Wolever were formerly residents of Belleville and Stirling, well and favorably known by a large circle of friends and relatives. Mrs. Wolever was born in Picton in 1830, and her maiden name was Clute and she was an aunt of Mr. Justice Clute, of Toronto.

MAY LET INSANE MURDERESS VISIT DYING TORONTO SISTER

Woman Killed Husband Eleven Years Ago and in Now is Asylum at Buffalo.

BUFFALO, Aug. 19.—Special—The advice of District Attorney Dudley has been asked by Mr. Hurd, superintendent of the Buffalo State Hospital, today in dealing with a request for permission to allow Mrs. Elizabeth Meyer to visit her dying sister in Toronto. Mrs. Meyer was committed to the State Hospital as an insane person in the fall of 1902, after killing her husband, Dr. Jacob Meyer, a prominent physician here at that time. The Meyers lived then at 191 William St. After being held by the police authorities some time, but being never tried, she was declared to be insane and later committed to the State Hospital, where she has made her home ever since.

Asked if there were not points of similarity between this and the Thaw case, Mr. Dudley said there were in some respects, but the difference is that the woman is still under indictment and could therefore be brought here, while Thaw, having been acquitted of murder on the ground of insanity, is not under indictment.

The State Hospital authorities were asked tonight for the name of the aunt in Toronto, but they said they did not know, and there was no way of finding out.

Famous Russian Aviator Goes Mad

ST. PETERSBURG Aug. 18.—The alarm bells of the Winter Palace were set ringing the other day by a terrified watchman who found himself engaged in a fight with a man who was attempting to force his way in, and was demanding to see Emperor, who was at that time, at the Peterhof palace.

The invader was overpowered and proved to be Otochkin, one of the earliest and best of Russian aviators.

For three nights before he had slept under the sky and had scarely eaten For the present he is being treated as a lunatic. The incident was kept secret for two days until it was clear there was a political side to it.

A NEW SENATOR

The Official Gazette of the 30th July contains the following notice of the appointment of a Senator to fill the seat made vacant by the death of Senator Ellis:

Lord Strathcona Not Retiring

OTTOWA, Aug. 19.—(Special.)—The London cable, announcing anew the probable retirement of Lord Strathcona, is regarded here as similar to the same reports to the same effect in the past. Lord Strathcona is very old and his retirement, naturally, is only a question of time, but so long as he is able to fill the position, the government wish him to retain it. A successor will not be considered until there is a vacancy, and of that there is, as yet, no official intimation.

Dies in Stable Fire Horses are Saved

MONTREAL, Aug. 18.—Special—David Williams is dead, and William McLean is suffering from severe burns on the face and hands as the result of a fire yesterday afternoon, which did little damage to the stables of Crock & Gerry, St. Antoine street. The flames spread so rapidly that the escape of the two men was cut off, and they were taken from the building by firemen. The horses stabled in the building were saved.

Returns to Kingston And Answers Charge

KINGSTON, Aug. 19.—Special—Arthur Chaddock, of Collins' Bay, who suddenly disappeared the day he was to have appeared before Justice of the Peace George Hunter on a charge of assault, has turned up. He appeared before the Justice and pleaded guilty to the charge of common assault and paid a fine, and also gave bonds to keep the peace for one year. The housekeeper who laid the charge against the accused of threatening to kill her, withdrew this charge.

Dynamited Trestle To Stay the Fire

From a grass fire the trestle work for the fill-in on the C.P.R. right of way near Shannonville caught fire yesterday, and the whole structure was threatened with destruction. In order to stop the fire, a portion of the trestle work was dynamited.

PROTECTING THE PUBLISHER

A new newspaper law has been passed, which in a measure protects the publishers of newspapers from being defrfauded out of back subscriptions Frequently cases comes before the publisher where persons cancelled their paper, but incidentally "forgot" to pay arrears of subscription. Under the new law, however, the publisher can continue to send his paper (even if refused) until such time as said arrears have been paid. Several cases of this kind have come beneath our notice, and we must say it is a very cheap way of getting out of an honest debt. The courts class such an act as "willful fraud," proceeding upon the basis that a man must pay for what he uses. This new law has passed in effect but a few weeks and will most effectively assist the publisher in his fight against these "cheap skates."—Exchange.

Blinded, he was pulled from the flames by his little sister who was also badly burned.

STEAMER GOES DOWN TWO SCORE DROWNED

Liner Strikes a Rock Off the Alaskan Coast and Founders Within a Few Minutes—Passengers Imprisoned in State Rooms, Perish Like Rats in a Trap—Rafts Saved Survivors.

JUNEAU, Alaska, Aug. 18.—(Can. Press).—Twenty-five or more passengers and seven members of the crew of the Pacific Coast Steamship Company's steamer, State of California, perished Sunday morning in Cambier Bay, 90 miles south of Juneau, when the vessel struck an uncharted rock and sank in three minutes with many passengers imprisoned in ther staterooms. The steamship left Seattle last Wednesday night for Skagway and way points. The purser lost all his records and it is not possible to give a complete list of the missing.

Following is a list of the dead whose bodies have been recovered:

Mrs. A. Birnbaum, Miss Lillian Ward, daughter of Edward C. Ward, assistant manager of the Pacific Coast Steamship Co., died after being taken off a life raft; Mrs. Stella Reardan, Mrs. Clara Vanderlass, Mrs. Nellie B. Ward, mother of Miss Ward; four unidentified women.

The Missing.

Following is a partial list of the missing, who are believed to have perished:

Miss Anne L. Cassidy, Miss May Dixon, W. A. Dyer, Blanche Frick, Minette Harlan, Leslie Hobro, manager of the Pacific Coast Steamship Co.'s office in San Francisco; J. Holman, Miss Alice Johnson, Lillian B. Norman, Nick Pittulas, Miss Reardan, Mrs. C. E. Spithill and child, Ben A. Wade, Miss Wilson.

The survivors, crew and passengers, are being taken to Seattle on the steamer Jefferson, and will arrive there Thursday.

A great hole was torn in the bottom of the State of California. The vessel and cargo, mail and express are a total loss.

The ship was valued at $400,000. The steamship Jefferson of the Alaska Steamship Line, southbound, heard the wireless call of the sinking vessel and turned back to rescue the survivors, who had taken to small boats and life rafts. Ten of the passengers had suffered so severely from exposure that it was necessary to take them to a hospital in Juneau for treatment.

The State of California, an iron steamship of 2276 gross tons, was built at Philadelphia in 1879 and carried a crew of 75 men. For many years she had carried passengers between Puget Sound and San Francisco.

The wrecked vessel was commanded by Capt. Thomas H. Cann, jr., who had command of the steamship Valencia on her last trip from Seattle to SanFrancisco, and who was transferred to another steamer when the Valencia reached that port, thus barely missing being on that ship when she went ashore at Cape Beals, B.C., Jan. 22, 1906, with a loss of 117 lives.

The State of California was goingg at full speed when she struck the reef, and a great portion of the ship's bottom was torn off, letting in a flood of water which quickly engulfed the boat. Most of the passengers and members of the crew who perished were in their staterooms, and there was no time to get them out before the boat went down.

The crew numbered 52 men. Captain Cann and 40 men are on the Jefferson, returning to Seattle; seven perished and First Officer Abernathy and three men are standing by the wreck. The ship is sunk in deep water, and there is no hope of salvage. The Jefferson was only a short distance away when she picked up the S.O.S. call, and when she arrived at the scene of the disaster the survivors were in the lifeboats and on life rafts. It was broad daylight. There is no possibility that any of the missing reached shore.

Gambier Bay is accounted by mariners as one of the most dangerous stretches of water in Alaska. The bay had never been navigated by large vessels until last year, and it is said it has never been officially surveyed. There is a reef that must be skirted for a long distance, and big boats have very little room in which to turn.

Brave Rescue of Boy.

BRANTFORD, Aug. 18.—(Special.)—Thos. Harbor was the hero in a rescue in the Grand River on Sunday. He was swimming below Jubilee Terrace when he heard the cries of a boy some distance up the river. He got to the spot, passing two men, who also heard the boy's shouts, and plunged into the rescue of Leo O'Reilly, son of Jas. O'Reilly, proprietor of the American hotel. The boy had gone down the third time and it required a half hour's work by the rescuer to bring him to consciousness. There is a movement on foot to secure Harbor a life-saving medal.

Young Man Was Stolen by Gypsies Seventeen Years Ago.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 18.—(Can. Press.)—Word reached here today that Frederick Brosseau, aged 24, who was kidnapped by gypsies 17 years ago, has been restored to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Brosseau of Sissonville, St. Lawrence County, N. Y. They had long mourned him dead.

On Oct. 14, 1896, when but 7 years of age, young Brosseau left home to meet his father at the edge of the village. That was the last seen of the boy in Sissonville.

About a week ago a young man deserted from a band of gypsies in the Canadian wilds and took refuge with the monks of Oka. He could remember nothing of his history previous to becoming a member of the band, other than he had been called Frank and that his former home was in northern New York.

The presence of the wanderer was reported to the Montreal police, and an aunt of the young man recognized his picture in a newspaper. The parents were notified and went to Montreal, where they positively identified Brosseau by a birthmark. He is being detained by the police as a witness against some of the gypsies, who are under arrest, charged with diknapping

BIG RUSH GOING ON.

EDMONTON, Alta., Aug. 18.—(Special.)—Roused by recent discoveries of rich undeveloped mineral, asphalt, gas and oil resources in various parts of the western provinces, scores of prospectors and experts known in many camps thruout the United States and Canada and Mexico are making exhaustive searches in the Peace River country and other northern districts. Central and Southern Alberta are also being prospected as never before.

The Dominion and provincial governments have their experts in the field, and even some of the northern Indians and halfbreeds, who usually confine their operations to trapping furs, which is no mean industry when it is recalled that pure black fox whelps bring as high as $10,000 a pair in this and outside markets, are using the pick, pan and drill to uncover wealth hidden in the hills, canyons and river beds all over the west.

Boy Nearly Killed.

BRANTFORD, Aug. 18.—(Special.)—Freddie Guest of Paris had his skull almost completely lifted from its base in an accident at the Penman mills on Saturday. He was caught between a horizontal bar and a desending elevator, but his predicament was noticed by another boy. It is believed that the boy will recover, altho his nose, jaw and skull were broken. He is the son of Edwin Guest, who met death in a shooting accident at Paris a year ago.

Assassin Failed.

VIENNA, Aug. 18.—When Baron Skerlez, Ban of Croatia (ban meaning royal commission or governor), was leaving church at Agram today at the close of a High Mass in celebration of the Austrian Emperor's birthday, a youth leaped past the ban's guards and fired point blank at him, but Baron Skerlez escaped with a slight flesh wound in the arm.

THAW IS STILL FREE

Fugitive Murderer Eludes Police of Canada and U.S.

Officials Now Hope to Get Him on a Charge of Conspiracy With Others to Escape From Matteawan and Think They Will Be Able to Extradite Him Without Difficulty.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—(Can. Press.)—Sundown tonight marked the 36th hour of Harry K. Thaw's freedom and the police of the United States and Canada had not picked up his trail. They seek him not as the slayer of Stanford White or as an escaped lunatic, but on a warrant issued at Poughkeepsie today, charging him with conspiracy with the aged keeper, Howard Barnum, and the five men who managed the asylum delivery. On such a technicality does New York State base its hope of bringing about the fugitive's return. Both factions of the double-barreled government at Albany have promised rigid investigations and the exertion of every effort to bring about his capture.

Thaw's seclusion today and tonight was absolute. Out of the cloud of rust which swirled in the wake of the black automobile bearing him and his liberators from Matteawan Sunday morning, nothing tangible had come except a laconic letter from Thaw himself, assuring his aged mother in New York that he desired rest, and would, in due time, join her at the Thaw country place, Elmhurst, at Cresson, Penn. In obedience to this plan, Mrs. Thaw purposes to start for Cresson tomorrow morning. Happy, girlish almost in her joy, Mrse. Thaw exhibited the hastily scrawled note from the son whose escapades have cost the family a million, and added that whatever Harry did would meet with her approval.

This, in view of his announced intention of entering Pennsylvania, gave basis to the belief that Thaw was preparing to take his case before the courts of that state and, relying on the kink in American laws relative to the insane charged with no crime, to oppose extradition and duplicate in Pennsylvania, if possible the course of John Armstrong Chaloner in Virginia.

It was in anticipation of such a move that the New York authorities caused a warrant to be sworn out at Poughkeepsie. Conspiracy, according to the district attorney of Dutchess county, constitutes an extraditable offense.

Close associates of the family indicated tonight that the groundwork of a legal fight in Pennsylvania had already been laid. Dr. Britton D. Evans, the alienist who testified in Thaw's behalf at the murder trials, held a telephone conference with Mrs Thaw this afternoon, and it was said he would accompany her to Pennsylvania tomorrow. There are to be conferences with counsel, and meantime, it is understood Thaw is to remain in hiding.

Figuratively as well as literally, Thaw left behind him only a cloud of Dutchess county dust. Rumors of his passage, descriptions of black automobiles, tales of yacht boardings in Long Island Sound, speckled the day's news. The yacht Endymion of George Lauder, jr., a distant relative of the Thaws by marriage, found mention in the crop of rumors. After having left Vineyard Haven, Mass., the craft was reported as cruising somewhere in the Sound, possibly not far from South Norwalk, Conn., repeatedly mentioned as an objective point for Thaw had he cared to take to sea. Enquiry at the New York Yacht Club disclosed that the Endymion was a slow boat and attaches there scouted the idea that Thaw would have gone aboard.

While there was nothing to support the theory that Thaw had taken to the seas, this seemed to those who have followed the case to be the likeliest course. Leaving Matteawan only two routes to double back into New York State lay open to him. One lay north by land to Canada then southwest along the border of the great lakes and across Lake Erie to a north-jutting point of Pennsylvania. The other is the water-route. Aboard ship in the Sound Thaw could bide his time in comparative safety and make his way to Philadelphia via Delaware Bay and the Delaware River.

In view of the fact that entrance into Canada might mean a clash with the immigration authorities there the theory was advanced that Thaw's advisors would not have him take any such risk.

Despatches from Ottawa, tho quoting no official, said that if Thaw halted within the Dominion he might be deported as an undesirable alien, altho if he had a thru ticket to Europe there would be no halting him. The state authorities at Harrisburg, Pa., indicated that if he came within that state his case would be referred to the attorney general's office provided New York asked for his extradition. The Philadelphia police said they would detain him if New York requested it. Connecticut took the view that he could be held there as an insane fugitive, but Massachusetts officials were inclined to think that nothing short of a criminal charge would warrant his detention in that state.

Second only to the search for Thaw is that for Richard J. Butler, Roger Thompson, Michael O'Keefe, Eugene Duffy and Thomas Flood, the quintet whose muscle and nerve and skill with automobiles did the stop watch work outside the asylum walls. These five did the "rough work".

Who was the brains of the plot—whether Thaw himself or some astute lawyer—will have to be developed later.

The description of Butler tallies closely with that of ex-assemblyman Richard T. Butler, from New York City. Wm. Gordon, proprietor of the little hotel at Fishkill Landing, where the five made their headquarters for two days prior to Thaw's escape, identified tonight a photograph of the ex-assemblyman as one of his late guests. The clerk of the hotel bore him out.

In New York trace was found of a Butler of the same initials, familiarly known as "Hooks" said of late, to have operated taxicabs and formerly to have been a longshoreman. Ex-assemblyman Butler is said to have been identified with the longshoremen's union. Mrs. Butler said tonight that her husband was absent from home from Friday afternoon until Sunday night last. She did not know where he had gone.

UNIQUE INDIAN PROBLEM FOR THE GOVERMENT NOW

Iroquois Tories and Radicals Both Send Delegations to Premier—Politics in Tribes Create an Odd Situation.

OTTAWA, Aug. 19.—Claiming that the Iroquois chiefs, who composed a delegation that met the Government here last week, did not represent the real sentiment of the tribe, another deputation, representing a different school of Indian thought, will be in Ottawa in a few days.

The Iroquois have divided on political lines, and now have their Conservative and Liberal leaders.

The Conservative element was represented by the Chiefs who were here last week, while the Radicals, or Liberals, are coming in a few days.

As the heritary enemies of the French, and the allies of the British in all battles aroung which hinged British domination in North America, the Iroquois do not regard themselves as a conkuered race, but as worthy victors and therefore sharers in the fruits of victory. They scorn the appellation "Wards of the Nation."

The chief bone of contention between the Radicals and Conservatives, who are known respectively as the "Warriors" and the "Chiefs," is the method of appointing the Chiefs of the tribe. The old custom of allowing two prominent squaws of the tribe to appoint chiefs is being attacked by the "Warriors," or Radicals, who want "government by the people," while the "Chiefs" would fain preserve the old custom.

MISSION IS FAILURE

Huerta Rejects John Lind's Proposals for Peace.

U. S. Envoy to Mexico City Receives Uncertain Rebuff From President of Southern Republic and United States is Given Until Midnight to Officially Recognize Huerta Government.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 18.—The United States government has been given until midnight tonight by President Huerta to recognize Mexico, it is officially stated.

The government is not specific in the public announcement as to what course will then be pursued, but it is understood that it means the severing of all relations between the two countries.

Replying today to President Wilson's note, which was recently delivered to the Mexican government thru ex-Governor John Lind, Huerta refuses mediation in the Mexican situation or any similar suggestion made by a foreign government.

Mr. Lind has forwarded Gen. Huerta's answer to Washington and is awaiting a reply.

President Huerta, in his reply told the United States that he would tolerate no interference, even tho that interference might be characterized as friendly mediation. The character of the reply of Washington to President Huerta's note will determine the next action in the international drama.

All those connected with the American embassy refused to admit the receipt of the note, and that it had been sent was not admitted officially by the Mexican Government. At the embassy there was an evident desire to appear optimistic, and one was led to believe that Mr. Lind still hoped for a continuation of the negotiations. Those familiar with the workings of the Mexican administration expressed doubt as to the government again opening the subject for discussion.

Unofficial Note Received.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—President Wilson and Secretary Bryan received unofficial reports from Mexico City tonight that President Huerta, after rejecting the proposals by Mr. Lind, issued an official statement, in which he gave the United States until midnight tonight (Mexican or Central time), to recognize him (Huerta).

The despatches did not indicate what steps Huerta would take if the American Government failed to extend the recognition.

President Wilson and Secretary Bryan, while impressed with the reports, would not accept them as authentic. Both will await official despatches before deciding on any action. The president will not recognize Huerta.

After receiving the despatches, the president and secretary of state on retiring for the night, indicated that nothing would be done by them until tomorrow at the earliest.

Rescued Boy From Fire.

BERLIN, Aug. 18.—(Special.)—Fire did $1000 damage to the residence of J. R. Strickland, G. T. R. agent at Waterloo, here this afternoon, caused, it is thought, by a defective electric meter in the garret. A little son asleep upstairs was heroically rescued by John Bullock, who was working near the residence at the time. Amidst fire and smoke he managed to get upstairs and rescued the child from his cot. It took 18 minutes for the firemen to reach the scene, and corporation workers lent valuable assistance in getting out the furniture.

Oakland Preacher Has Close Call in Water

LINDSAY, Aug. 18.—Yesterday afternoon a preacher from Oakwood had a very thrilling experience. He was bathing at Sturgeon Point, and was out a considerable distance when he took a cramp and could no longer keep himself above water. Mr. Harold Hogg, who was passing by in a canoe, with a young lady, heard his cries for help, but at first thought that he was not in earnest. When he noticed the man sinking beneath the water he hastily landed the young lady and returned to the rescue. He reached the spot just as the drowning man rose for the last time. When Mr. Hogg seized him, as he had foreseen, the boat was overturned. By clinging to the boat, however, they were able to reach shore.

It is reported that much excitement ensued when the overturned boat was seen floating on the water. People who had not seen the rescue thought that the occupants of the boat had been drowned.

THAW'S ESCAPE

Neither the New York State authorities nor the general public are likely to believe that Harry K. Thaw accomplished his escape from Matteawan without aid from officials of the asylum. Every circumstance of his flight is evidence of bribery and of a determination to succeed at any cost. Some we may be sure, through any personmen have betrayed their trust, not, al loyalty to Thaw, but because of their base cupidity.

There can be no possible sympathy with Thaw; and his escape is the most humiliating blow from which justice has recently suffered. Whatever may be said of the jury that acquitted him of murder on the grounds of his insanity, there was a genuine feeling of relief when subsequent juries refused to release him from Matteawan. The best testimony declared him a paranoiac, and the expensive efforts of his relatives failed. The general public felt that so obvious and reckless a degenerate was in his proper place under lock and key.

Now that Thaw has escaped there seems little hope that he will ever be recaptured. His peculiar maladies may get him into trouble in some other state or country, and if so he need not expect mercy. This history of his exploits and of the exploits connected with him, is a history of shame and humiliation for mankind. There was not a redeeming feature in the whole wretched business. Whatever the law may say, Thaw is a murderer in the eyes of the public. If the law cannot deal with him, there is still public opinion; and he may find the outer world a prison and persecution far more terrible than any which stone walls can make.—Montreal Star.

THE HUDSON BAY CO.

The Hudson Bay Company has become mercantile in its business on a large scale, in addition to its fur business. There is to be a unique gathering in Calgary shortly in honor of the opening of a new store which it has built in that city at a cost of $2,000,000. The company has some sixteen stores scattered throughout the great west, by far the largest system in Canada, with possibly one or two exceptions the heads of all these various units will assemble at Calgary to attend the opening ceremonies of the new store which has been erected and equipped at a cost of two million dollars.

Another interesting feature of the banquet will be the presence of a number of the company's fur traders. It will be a meeting of the new and the old, the mingling of the men engaged in the company's old and exclusive business of buying furs and those who represent its new and great mercantile policy which is due eventually to grow to proportions far beyond the imagination of the old Company of Gentlemen and Adventurers of England Trading Into Hudson Bay.

From the captain of industry to the hod carrier—from milady in the auto to the woman with the scrubbing brush—the accomplishments of every one of us depend absolutely on the accomplishments of our stomachs. Backed by a good digestion, a man can give the best that is in him. When his stomach fails, he becomes a weakling.

To this loss of power no one need submit. Right habits of eating, drinking, sleeping and exercise, aided by Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets, will restore and maintain the full efficiency of the human mind and body.

Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets contain the active principles needed for the digestion of every kind of food. They go to the assistance of the weakened stomach, and enable the sufferer, right from the start, to assimilate and get the benefit of the food eaten. With this assistance, the digestive organs regain their tone, and soon the use of the tablets is no longer necessary.

If your stomach is not working properly, try Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets. 50c. at your druggist's. National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, Montreal. 245

THE SAN FRANCISCO FAIR

The Fair to be held in San Francisco, in 1914, in which all nations are invited to take part, does not give evidence of being as successful as was anticipated by its originators, many nations having indicated their intention not to take part in the celebrations, each having a reason for declining.

England, through its Cabinet, has intimated that to properly represent the country would cost some $500,000, from which no commercial advantage would result, owing to the United States tariff, hence it would be money thrown away. This reason is denounced by sentimentalists as mercernary. Business men, however, approve, being more practical than sentimental. Journals in the United States attribute the action of England to the dispute which now exists as to the construction put by the United States Senate and the late President, on the right of nations, other than the United States, to navigate the Panama Canal upon equal terms with the United States. Englishmen are a practical race, therefore the financial view of the question is likely to be the correct one. There are others, however, who look upon the question from a sentimental standpoint. Telegrams inform us that Leo George Chiozza Money and other publicists have articles in the Daily Chronicle of the 15th August, giving their reasons why Great Britain should participate in the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

The Chronicle also prints an editorial which expresses the belief that the government will reverse its decision not to take part in the exposition.

Lord Blyth, who has been the chairman of organizing committees for various expositions in which Great Britain has participated, and who has written extensively on the fiscal and commercial policy of the Empire, in a long letter in the Times warmly urging British participation at San Francisco, asks: "How can we expect Americans to support the Peace Centenary exhibition in London in 1914, if we decline to be represented at San Francisco?"

Telegrams from Germany of the 15th inst., say alleged sharp practices in trade competition by American textile mill owners and textile merchants are in part responsible for the reluctance of German and French business industries to take part in the Panama Exposition.

Switzerland also declines to participate in the San Francisco fair, the excuse being that the United States insufficiently protects foreign patents. The watch-making and embroidery trades lead in this movement, which is supported by many other trades.

These countries have a full year to consider the question, and may possibly reverse their present decisions.

Harry K. Thaw, the murderer, has escaped from the lunatic asylum, and is still at large. Five hundred dollars has been offered as a reward for his arrest, with a hope, we venture the opinion, that he will never be captured. Too much attention by the press has been given to this lawless reprobate.

ANNOYING DANDRUFF

WILL MAKE CANADA A BALD-HEADED NATION IF NOT CHECKED.

M. Pasteur, the great French Physician of Paris, once said: "I believe we shall one day rid the world of all diseases caused by germs."

Dandruff is caused by germs, a fact accepted by all physicians.

Dandruff is the root of all hair evils If it were not for the little destructive germs working with a persistency worthy of a better cause, there would be no baldness.

Parisian Sage will kill the dandruff germs and remove dandruff in two weeks or money back.

It will stop itching scalp, falling hair, and make the hair grow thick and abundant.

It puts life and lustre into the hair and prevents it from turning gray.

It is the hair dressing par excellence—daintily perfumed and free from grease and stickiness. It is the favorite with women of taste and culture who know the social value of fascinating hair.

Comes in large 50 cent bottle at W. H. Lattimer's and leading druggists and toilet goods counters everywhere. "The Girl with the Auburn Hair" is on every package.

Grand Lodge of British North America

The Most Worshipful Orange Grand Lodge of British North America met for the first time since its organization, out of Canada. it having accepted the invitation of the brethren of Newfoundland, and celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of the opening of the first Orange Lodge in that colony by assembling in the city of St. John's on the 30th of July, 1913, and was, we learn from those who were present, one of the most successful gatherings ever held.

We are indebted to the Orange Sentinel of the 14th inst. for portions of the following account of the reception of the delegates from the west, which extended from Vancouver, B.C., to the eastern limits of Canada, including a representative from the Orange Grand Lodge of the United States.

The visit of the Grand Lodge of British North America to New foundland was quite an education for members of that body. There were few, if any, who had ever before visited the island. It was consequently to them a new discovery, and one which was made under the happiest auspices.

THE RECEPTION.

The welcome accorded them on their arrival, and the generous hospitality extended to them throughout their stay, made them feel that they were in the land of warm-hearted brethren.

The Orange Association has a wonderful hold upon the people of the Island. It is the dominant fraternity. There are whole villages where almost every adult male has the passwords of the Order. Their social life centres around the Orange halls. Many of these are splendid buildings, and are evidence of the spirit which animates the rank and file of the society. To the scattered settlements, no less than to St. John's, the vis't of so many leading members of the Order was an occasion of extraordinary importance. As the train bearing the delegates stopped at out of the way stations, big, husky brethren were there to extend a greeting.

AN UNRIVALLED SHOWING.

An idea of the strength of the Association is gathered from the statistics of the colony. The male population of the Island is 124,305. Of these approximately 41,000 are Roman Catholics. This leaves a male Protestant population of 83,000. Therefore the 16,000 Orangemen in good standing, which there are in the colony, represent one in every five. If a conservative deduction of one-half is made for males under age, it will be seen that of every two and a half males eligible for membership, one is an Orangeman. That is a showing which cannot be surpassed in any part of the world.

THE PARADE.

There was a parade about a mile long, and it was a magnificent affair. The whole body of citizens thronged the streets. Thousands of women, old and young, wore orange colors to show their approval of the organization. And many of them continued throughout the week to wear the colors. It must be said for the fair sex of St. John's that they are quite as thoroughly Orange as their male relatives.

GOVERNOR'S RECEPTION

The parade, which started from the British Hall, moved in orderly fashion through the principal streets to the residence of Governor Davidson. There the leading members and grand officers countermarched, and were received by the Governor and Mrs. Davidson at the door of the vice-regal residence, and were introduced to His Excellency by Brother Squires, Provincial Grand Master of Newfoundland, after which the Most Worshipful Grand Master, Lieut.-Col. Scott, addressed His Excellency in felicitous terms, assuring him of the undying devotion and loyalty of Orangemen to the Crown, to which His Excellency responded as follows:

Gentlemen:

I welcome you here as delegates to the Grand Lodge of British America of the Loyal Orange Association and I thank you for your dutiful expression of loyalty to our King and country, as expressed in such felicitous terms on your behalf by Mr. Squires. It is with genuine pleasure that I welcome all such associations as yours, assembled to greet me as the King's deputy in Newfoundland.

I know that, in years gone by, all these associations owed their origin, in part, to the expression of political and religious opinions. But these fine associations have long ceased, in Newfoundland, to bear a political character, and it is a very keen pleasure to me to recognize that the chosen representatives elected by the people are gathered from the best we have, regardless of any differences in the manner in which we worship God. All such differences die out when men of our race are gathered in communities with equal rights under equal laws.

The grand words of the Declaration on which your Association is founded must thrill the hearts of all citizens of our great and well-ordered Empire. Your Association is founded to support the principles and practices of the Christian religion, and to promote such laudable and beneficent purposes as may tend to the due ordering of religion and Christian charity and the supremacy of law, order and constitutional freedom, and to afford assistance to distressed members of the Association. These are fine principles on which to base the constitution of your Association.

And in the Act of the Dominion of Canada, you are formed into a body corporate to unite fraternally, to give material aid to distressed members and their dependents, and to establish a fund for the relief of sick and distressed members and a benefit fund, under the Insurance Act, for widows and orphans, And there is one more magnificently worded clause; your Association is formed to educate its members socially, morally and intellectually and to inculcate loyalty to King and country.

These are noble sentiments. They greatly become freeborn citizens who act with a sense of grave responsibility and are bent on bequeathing to their descendants these glorious traditions of our race in the principles of self-help.

The special occasion of your visit to Newfoundland, this ancient and loyal colony, is the celebration of the 50th anniversary of the foundation of the Association in Newfoundland. Long may it live and prosper to carry on its beneficent objects and to bind together its members in the noble work of social, moral and intellectual advancement, and in the practice of devotion to our King and to our country.

This official reception was as gratifying as it was unique in the history of the Order.

GARDEN PARTY.

A further and more elaborate function at government house took place on Friday afternoon, when a garden party was given in the grounds for the delegates and their friends. Following the reception of their guests, His Excellency and Mrs. Davidson spent an hour on the lawn, where they met and conversed at length with the Canadians. It is needless to say that the attention shown by the Governor and Mrs. Davidson was highly appreciated by the visitors.

AMIABLE RELATIONS.

The most amicable relations exist between Protestants and Roman Catholics. It is apparent on every hand that the leading men exhaust their energies to maintain that state of affairs.

During the whole course of the meeting there were evidences of a sincere desire on the part of both sides to avoid friction. The Orange leaders discountenanced inflammatory utterances, while Roman Catholics were not slow in showing a friendly attitude toward the gathering. Instances were reported of Roman Catholics lending their aid to decorate the city, and of putting themselves to some inconvenience to make the delegates welcome. For example, the Premier, Sir Edward Morris, and Mayor Ellis—both Roman Catholics—deferred their departure from the city for the space of two days in order that they might receive the body of Orangemen who arrived on Monday morning—a gracious compliment by the Roman Catholic community as well as an individual courtesy by the Premier and the Mayor.

THE POPULATION.

This incident is noteworthy from the fact that the city of St. John's is almost equally divided between Protestants and Roman Catholics. To be exact, there are 16,339 Protestants against 15,953 Roman Catholics, according to the last census. Over the whole Island, however, the Roman Catholics are a little less than one-third, 81,177 out of 242,619. This division is officially recognized by giving the Roman Catholics three of the nine members of the Executive Council, Bro. Morrison, a Past Provincial Grand Master, being Minister of Justice. But in the city of St. John's five of the six members of the municipal council are Roman Catholics.

Says Innocent Man Is in Penitentiary

MONTREAL, Aug. 18.—Geroilmo Fatzari, convicted in the Court of King's Bench on a charge of attempted murder in connection with the battle between waring elements, which occurred in a house in St. David's Lane, in March, 1908, may probably within short delay, be a free man. Fatzari was condemned to a fifteen years' term in the St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary.

It is claimed by the local police that the condemnation of Fatzari was a gross miscarriage of justice, being convicted on the evidence of murderers. One of the men, they say, has been hanged in connection with the murder of a Syrian peddler named Green, in New Brunswick, whilst the other, it is claimed, is now serving a life term in a New Brunswick penitentiary. Both, according to the police, although at the time were considered trustworthy witnesses have since been proven to have been bandits and robbers of the worst class.

Chief Campeau is convinced of the fact that a miscarriage of justice has taken place, and he has accordingly authorized his officers to take whatever steps they deem necessary to remedy matters.

Mr. Leopold Houle, acting for the condemned man, made formal application to the Hon. C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice, today for a complete pardon. The petitioners do not ask for a ticket of leave, or new trial. They want a full pardon under the Great Seal of the Governor-General in Council.

BIG FALLING OFF IN CHEESE OUTPUT

KINGSTON, Aug. 18.—Special—That there is a great falling off in the make of cheese, owing to the exceedingly dry weather is the statement of G. Publow, chief dairy instructor in eastern Ontario, who has just returned from a trip through the eastern district.

There are between 800 and 900 factories in Eastern Ontario and he estimates that the output is fully one cheese per day per factory less.

THE RING

PELKEY AND JOHNSON MAY MEET IN PARIS

San Diego, Aug. 18.—"I'll beat Jack Johnson at his own game. When he stalls I'll stall, and when the referee steps in and makes us fight I'll go after him and get him."—Arthur Pelkey.

On the theory that the first good white man who meets Jack Johnson will put him away. Arthur Pelkey of Chathamñ Ont., the white champion and latest white hope, and Tommy Burns, his manager, express their willingless to-day to arrange a fight with the black man any time in any place, so long as the financial arrangements are satisfactory. Three days ago Pelkey declared that he wold never meet Johnson or any other negro. Yesterday after receipt of a cable from Jim Pratt, the big pugilist announced that he would forget the color line just once, do his valiant best to reclaim the championship for the white race, and put the "big smoke" back among the hasbeens.

"I draw the color line, but the fact that Johnson won the world's championship from me, will let Pelkey box Johnson or any colored man if terms are fair," replied Burns. Burns is not expecting a reply for a couple of days.

"I know that I am going to be criticized," said Burns, "but I am going to take this one chance—just one. If I was not absolutely sure that Pelkey can win this fight I would not arrange it, but Pelkey can win, and when I talk about Johnson I know what I'm talking about. I've fought him and I know him—every kink in his nature."

While Burns is relying for victory on his own knowledge of the two fighters, Pelkey is relying on his youth and strength and clean life to bring him through.

"In reach and measurements there is not much to choose between us," said the young Canadian fighter. "We are almost the same height and weight. Johnson is thirty-six and has lived pretty fast. I have it on him by two or three inches in reach. That will help some, as when he plays that trick of hanging on to a man and letting the other fellow do the work I can go him one better."

CORBETT'S LAST FIGHT

It seems but yesterday, but in reality it was just ten years ago Saturday that Jim Jeffries and Jim Corbett mingled in their second battle. As the poet says, "How swift the years, how swift and fleet, how very fast upon their feet."

That battle marked an epoch in the boxing game. It was Gentleman Jim's last appearance in the ring. It was Jeff's last important fight with a paleface. Also, it was the last big bout between white heavyweights to date. And it was the very apotheosis of Jeff's fighting career. And it all took place ten years ago.

On the fourteenth of August, 1903, the whole sporting world awaited with bated breath the news from San Francisco. The fans were on the qui vive with excitememnt, and there were not half enough qui vives to go around. Local dealers reported at the time that there never had been such a demand for qui vives..

Every train into San Francisco, according to an ancient print of that period brought crowds of fans into city. The gate receipts were $63,340, which broke all world's records except for the Jeffries-Sharkey fight in New York.

In the first Jeffries-Corbett battle in 1900 Gentlean Jim made his former sparring partner look foolish for twenty rounds, and it looked like Jeff was due to become and ex-champion. A desperate rally in the twenty-third saved him.

Corbett believed that Jeff had won by a lucky punch, and yearned for another chance. The pompadoured one had been a bank clerk in San Francisco before he took to the fighting game, and he had many friends in California who believed that he could win. It was a new Jeffries that fought Corbett that day. At last he had learned something of the art of boxing, and Corbett, the master of glove work and foot work, met his match at every point of the game, and in the tenth was stretched out for the count.

Corbett, the most perfectly and beautifully constructed human animal in the world," as Mark Twain wrote of him, thenceforth devoted himself to the uplifting of dramatic art. With the exception of a brief bout with Jack Munroe the folowing year, Jeffries did not fight again until the Reno affair of 1909. The battle was the swan song of the white race, the beginning of the end of the White Man's surpremacy. For a little while Tommy Burns would uphold the hope and heritage of a conquering race. Then the black clouds would close down and the sporting world be enveloped in darkness and despair.

BASEBALL.

A FANNING BEE

Milwaukee, Aug. 18.—Taken on the whole, it is not considered by critics that many stars have been developed in the American Association this season who are available for purposes of barter by the Majors, although it is safe to say each club will lose by draft rules.

While in Chicago Joe Cantillon was a member of a fanning party which included "Germany" Schmidt the old pitcher. It resulted in one of Joe's stories as follows: "Schmidt had written a book of baseball happenings and incidents which was hawked through the stands at Baltimore. One day when I was umpiring there I could see that "Germany" was trying to hear something being said in the stands.

"Finally he ran over to me and said, "Call the game a minute, please."

"What for?" I asked.

"Never mind, it's important."

"So I called the game and Schmidt went over to the wire screen and shouted to the vendor o his book, who was calling the title but not the author. "By who? By who?. Tell them who wrote it."

"At that time I believe McGraw was straining his conscience to let Scchmidt start and finish a ew games to help the sale of his book."

ATHLETICS

MADE NEW RECORD

New York, Aug. 18.—By throwing the 16-pound hammer a distance of 189 feet 6 1-2 inches at Cetic Park yesterday, Patrick Ryan, of the Irish-Americans A. C., established a new world's record for this event. The former champion, 187 feet, 4 inches, was made by the Olympic champion, Matt. McGrath, on October 29, 1911.

On the same grounds Hannes Kolehmainen, the great Finnish and Olympic distance runner, made a new American record of 14: 22 3-5 in winning the three mile handicap run from scratch. Both the outdoor American record of 14:32 and indoor of 14:28 2-4 for this distance were held by George Bonhag, of the Irish Americans A. C., for the last three years. Kolehmainen's time is exactly five seconds slower than the world's championship time made by Al Shrubb at Stomford Bridge, England, May 21, 1903.

TORTURED WITH TERRIBLE ECZEMA

Had To Wear Rubber Gloves Until "Fruit-a-tives" Cured Her.

GRANDE LIGNE, QUE., JAN. 2nd. 1910

"My wife was troubled for three years with Eczema on the hands, which made her hands almost useless. The doctor gave her several ointments to use, none of which had any effect. He also advised her to wear rubber gloves (she wore out three pairs).

I persuaded her, as a last resort, to try "Fruit-a-tives". The effect was marvellous. Her hands are now cured. We both attribute our present good health to "Fruit-a-tives"

LLOYD GEORGE'S SERMON

Insurance Act a Huge Co-operative Benefit and Success, He Says

"We are teaching the people of this country, through the medium of an Act of Parliament, the great Scriptural lesson, 'Bear ye one another's burdens,'" said Mr. Lloyd George in a speech at Criccieth, Wales, on the Insurance Act. "You will find that text on every insurance card. In practice the employers help the employed, the hale working man helps the sick, the strong man helps the feeble children, and those who are neither employers ncr employed help as ratepayers and taxpayers. They said we should have no doctors; we have an army of 15,000 guarding the sick beds of our industrial homes.

"They said we should have no sanatoria; we have 6,000 workmen in excellent institutions receiving the best treatment; and they thank God for that Insurance Act. We have scores of thousands receiving sick pay who, but for the Insurance Act, would be at this moment without a spare penny.

"When you consider the gigantic character of the task we had in hand it is marvellous to me so much has been accomplished. Before the Insurance Act we had barely 5,000,000 of the industrial population of the country insured against sickness. You have now 14,000,000. The old societies alone have increased their numbers by 2,500,000; new societies have sprung up with an aggregate of 5,000,000 members.

"Just imagine if the Insurance Act had not been passed and what would happen if suddenly the population of this country had voluntarily thronged to the offices of friendly socieltles and the insurance companies and asked to be insured against sickness. You can imagine the disturbance, delays, and confusion which would necessarily arise in all those offices."

CHIEFS FROM NIGERIA

They Journeyed to England to Assert the Rights of Natives

Among a party of Nigerian chiefs who arrived at Plymouth was one huge fellow about 6 feet 6 inches in height and broad in proportion. The chiefs came as a deputation to the Colonial Secretary to urge that certain rights of the natives should not be infringed. The names of the visitors were: Prince Bassey Duke Ephraim, Prince James Eyo Ita, Chief Mko Goodhead, Chief Richard Koko.

Prince Bassey Duke Ephraim was educated in England for six years, returning to Nigeria in 1892. Neither he nor his companions would say anything definite about their mission except that the result would affect millions of natives. He expressed gratitude for the advantages brought to their country by Great Britain, but said that they would now rather govern themselves.

They were granted certain rights, he said, when the protectorate was established, and they were anxious to preserve them. They had, he said, abolished the title of King among themselves, recognizing that they could only have one King—he who had established the protectorate over them. They had substituted the title of Obon for their chiefs.

While admitting that the late "King"—the last to hold that title—had 120 wives, Prince Bassey Duke Ephraim would not say how many wives he had.

Asia has 17,057,666 square miles and 850,000,000 inhabitanes.

PERILOUS JOURNEY IN UNKNOWN LAND

Ice Found on Mountain Top Near Equator—Strange Dwarfs in High Altitude

After encountering great hardships, and losing three of their members, a British expedition led by Dr. A. F. R. Wollaston penetrated to the Great Snow Range of New Guinea for the first time, and made a successful ascent of Mount Carstensz, almost to the summit. A valuable collection of birds and plants was obtained. Although it was only sixty miles from the spot where the expedition landed to the highest point reached, almost incessant rain, swollen rivers, and the difficult country made the work so hard that to cover this apparently short distance occupied four and a half months. At the end the expedition nearly came to grief through the capsizing of Dr. Wollaston's canoe. The explorer was rescued with difficulty, but lost diaries covering three months and a large quantity of kit. Three members of the expedition died.

Dr. Wollaston left England determined to ascend Mount Carstensz, the highest peak of the Nassau Range in Dutch New Guinea. He was a member of an expedition which unsuccessfully tried to accomplish this feat three years previously.

After conferring with the Dutch authorities at Batavia the doctor went to Borneo, and spent eight weeks collecting Dyaks before returning to Batavia. Here he was joined by Mr. C. B. Kloss, curator of the Kuala Lumpur Museum, and the two, with five native collectors and seventy-four Dyaks, proceeded by boat to the south coast of Dutch New Guinea. They were escorted by forty Dutch soldiers and eighty convicts from Batavia under a Dutch officer.

The party disembarked at the mouth of the Utakwa River, which had been ascended by Dutch travellers two years previously, and appeared to be the best route into the unknown interior. From the deck of the ship could be seen the snow-capped peaks of the mighty Carstensz. A motor boat, built in England, and all the stores and equipment were landed, and a base camp was made twenty miles up the river.

All this region was quite uninhabited, and the expedition had to carry every bit of its own food. Canoes were made by the Dyaks, and the river was ascended for two days beyond the base, but after that the expedition travelled by land. Depôts were established three days' travel apart, the first being three days' march up the foot hills of the Snow Range.

From the fourth depôt the ascent was made to the snow line. Progress was very slow, the ridges being appallingly steep and the track rough. In the high mountains the sun was never visible except for an hour in the morning, and the travellers were always in the clouds.

At an altitude of about 5,000 feet, the expedition met some curious, but friendly folk, small of stature, but not pigmies, who showed the travellers their track and helped them. The highest point, 15,000 feet, was reached after five days' march from the last base. The rain descended in a continuous torrent, and although Mount Carstensz is almost exactly on the equator the fog-laden air was freesingly cold.

During the ascent a fine panorama was observed, but the mist again closed in, and when the party were within a very short distance of the top the steep ice and dense fog necessitated a retreat. Two attempts to reach the actual summit were made, but eventually food gave out.

It was as the last load was being taken to the base camp that the canoe containing Dr. Wollaston and six Dyaks struck a snag in the swirling torrent, and capsized. Dr. Wollaston was carried a long way down the stream, and was almost exhausted.

A Royal Jewel Squabble

The jewels which the Duchess of Cumberland wears on state occasions recall a memorable Royal squabble which took place over them, in the course of which Queen Victoria, on one of the few occasions in her reign, made a mistake. When William IV. died these jewels were in England, having been brought over in the reign of George II. The pearls alone were valued at over a million dollars. The young Queen Victoria wanted them badly, and Prince Albert did his best to retain them. A commission of judges, however, in 1857 found against the Queen, and the pearls had to be returned to Hanover, much to the chagrin of Queen Victoria and her Consort. The Duchess of Cumberland is the mother of the young prince who married the German Emperor's daughter.

PROTECTION OF DOCTORS

New Association's By-laws Approved By Order-in-Council

OTTAWA, Aug. 18.—The by-laws adopted by Canadian Medical Protective Association, incorporated, at the last session of Parliament, have been approved by order-in-council. The organization is open to any physician in good standing in the Dominion and is designed to protect the profession upon an action being threatened or brought for malpractice against any member of the association.

It is to be his duty to communicate forthwith the facts to the secretary. The executive committee will then decide whether the defence is one the association should assist and, if so, shall retain counsel and continue the member's defense as long as it appears meritorious.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

MARKSMEN BUSY.

O. R. A. Matches Open With Some First-Class Scores.

LONG BRANCH, Aug. 17.—(Special.)—With a heavy mist overhanging the targets, the 1913 matches of the Ontario Rifle Association were opened here this morning under weather conditions anything but favorable to accurate marksmanship. In spite of the handicap, however, the shooting at the morning session was fairly good, while in the afternoon session, when the haze had cleared somewhat, the marksmanship was decidedly of the high-class order.

Considerable comment was indulged in on the new ammunition being tried out for the first time at the match. At first the change in the trajectory had the marksmen all at sea, especially on the shorter ranges, but after the men had got used to it the general opinion was that it was superior to the old kind.

Whether or not the new ammunition was deceptive, Pte. Wm. A. Hawkins the King's prize winner at Bisley, had a poor day, being eliminated from the City of Toronto match in the first stage, in which he finished 102nd, with a score of 63 out of a possible 70, and 116th in the Osler match, scoring 45 out of 50.

Pte. Clifford, who also bears the distinction of having won the King's prize, was well up in the Osler match with 48 out of a possible 50, but fell to the 100th mark in the City of Toronto event, with 64 out of a possible 70.

Two Smiths Lead.

Sergt. W. A. Smith and Capt. H. Smith divide first and second prize money in the Osler match, both scoring a possible 50, firing ten rounds at 100 yards.

The best day's score in the first stage of the City of Toronto match was made by Sergt.-Major H. W. Patterson and A. H. Ferguson, both scoring 69 out of a possible 70. The second stage of this event will be shot off today at 800 yards.

In the extra series event, Hawkins shot two possible cards, but on scoring an inner retired.

The surprise of the day was the splendid shooting of the cadets. The Ottawa C. I. Cadet Corps carried off first prize in the militia team prizes in the City of Hamilton contest, winning the Hamilton Centennial Challenge Trophy and $30 with a score of 154. The 91st Highlanders' first team won the second prize of $25 with a score of 149.

In the Hamilton tyro match, Pte. G. Tait won the O.R.A. silver medal and $10 for first place with a possible 35.

First and second in the civilian events in the City of Hamilton contests were carried off by Dungannon R. A., 155, and Colborne R. A., 149, respectively.

TURKS DEFY POWERS.

The Porte Has No Intention of Evacuating Adrianople.

LONDON, Aug. 18.—(Can. Press)—The situation between Bulgaria and Turkey is becoming critical. Prince Said Halim, the Turkish grand vizier, admits that the Turks have occupied Demotica, 25 miles south of Adrianople, and other strategic points on the right bank of the Maritza River, but he explains this was done only for the protection of the railway which runs along the right bank of the stream. Said Halim denies that the Turks have occupied Dedegatch, the terminus of the railroad on the Gulf of Enos, or that they are advancing on Gumuljina, about 25 miles to the northwest.

The Porte clearly has not the slightest intention to abandon Adrianople, where Enver Bey has 250,000 troops, and where the number soon will be increased to 400,000. Despite official denials, it appears only too probable that the Turks are projecting, if they have not already begun, the advance against Bulgaria, a note of protest against which the Bulgarian Government presented to the foreign legations at Sofia Sunday. This note said the Turks had advanced to a point 45 miles west of the Maritza River, and were marching toward Kirjali and Gumuljina.

McALPINE MURDERED.

Duluth Lumber Magnate Was Killed by Unknown.

DULUTH, Minn., Aug. 18.—(Can. Press)—Murder was the verdict returned late today by the coroner's jury, which investigated the death of John McAlpine, Duluth's wealthy lumberman, found shot to death in the basement of his palatial east end home last Friday.

The jury found that death was caused by a gunshot wound in the head, the weapon being in the hands of a person unknown. The next official body to take up the mystery probably will be the grand jury, which meets in September.

McAlpine was found dead in his home about 3 o'clock in the morning of August 15 by his stepson, Dale McAlpine. He had testified that when he first went into the basement, he did not see the revolver, which was later found a short distance from the body. Others in the house were the wife of the deceased, Mrs. Dale McAlpine, and Miss Margaret Bergen, the maid. All declare they heard no shot fired.

Tries to Kill Wife.

KINGSTON, Aug. 18.—(Special.)—During the severe hot spell today, Marlin Byrne, a prominent farmer of Howe Island, went suddenly insane. He made an attempt to kill his wife with a butcher knife. He grabbed the knife off the table and chased her around the room, but she was able to dodge him and get out of the room, and made her escape. After making the attack on his wife he suddenly disappeared. Armed with a revolver, Constable Smith and a posse of men went after him, and, finding him, he was overpowered and arraigned before Justice of the Peace George Hunter and committed to jail for ten days to be medically examined.

Hunger Striker Rejected.

BERLIN, Aug. 18.—(Special.)—Provincial Bailiff Jack Ryan, accompanied with prisoners from London and Stratford, stopped off here this afternoon and took along with him William Johnston, colored, sentenced to six months. He refused, however, to take along Joe Wood, the hunger striker, as he considered him of unsound mind.

Record Rain in West.

MEDICINE HAT, Alberta, Aug. 18.—(Can. Press.)—The heaviest rainstorm of the year occurred here early this morning, but so far as can be ascertained no damage was done to the crops, owing to the stalk being short and strong. The precipitation was 1 1-2 inches.

Must Muzzle Dogs.

SARNIA, Aug. 18.—(Special.)—So many complaints have reached the police of children being bitten by dogs in various parts of the town that the mayor has proclaimed that all dogs running around without muzzles will be seized and shot. In addition to the five dollar dog tax this hits the owners of canines pretty hard.

Innovation Made in Hospital.

KINGSTON, Aug. 18.—(Special.)—Kingston General Hospital now has both male and female nurses. The need for male nurses has been felt for some time. The hospital is filled to over-flowing with patients.

Minuteness of Molecules.

If we try to count the number of molecules contained in one cubic millimeter of hydrogen gas, first arranging them in groups of a billion each, it would take a thousand years to count these groups. So writes M. Boll, a French physicist, in illustrating the powerlessness of figures.

Wide Apart In Horses.

The Argentine has as many horses as people, while Switzerland has only three horses to every hundred inhabitants.

Cork Paper.

Half a million dollars' worth of cork a year is used for very thin paper. This is supplied in sheets about four inches wide by six to ten long, and nearly all of it—about 100,000,000 sheets—is used in automatic machines for applying as tips to cigarettes.

Bark For Tanning.

Quebracho bark, one of the chief exports of the Argentine, will tan leather at least three times as fast as the bark of the oak or the hemlock. Nearly a million tons of the wood or the dry extract are sent to the United States and Europe annually. The growth of the tree is of the slowest, and it is estimated that a thousand years are required for it to reach maturity.

Fast Cycling.

An eminent doctor says that he has found a cyclist's pulse to beat as high as 250 times a minute immediately after making a fast mile. This illustrates the danger of "scorching."

Table Linen.

If you wish your table linen to look nice do not put it through the wringer, as it makes creases that will not come out even if the cloth be ironed when very damp. In fact, any clothes that you wish to look very nice when ironed will be better if they are wrung by hand.

EXPOUNDS THE LAW

N. Y. State Secretary Says Glynn Must Rule Affairs.

ALBANY, N.Y., Aug. 18.—(Can. Press). — Lieut.-Gov. Martin H. Glynn is the lawful chief executive of New York State, pending the outcome of impeachment proceedings against Gov. Sulzer, according to an official opinion rendered today by Attorney-General Thomas Carmody to Secretary of State Mitchell May. Mr. Carmody holds that the assembly was within its rights in instituting impeachment proceedings at an extraordinary session.

"When the governor is impeached," says the opinion, "all of his powers are automatically suspended until he has been acquitted or the impeachment proceedings dismissed by the court of impeachment. In the meantime the lieutenant-governor acts as governor. This is the plain intent of the constitution. Any other construction would nullify its express provision."

With reference to the authority of the assembly to initiate impeachment proceedings, the attorney-general says:

"It is my opinion that if the assembly was not assembled, either in extraordinary or regular session it might assemble itself and proceed to the discharge of its powers in this regard. Otherwise the governor of the state could prevent the impeachment of himself and his friends in office for crimes, however great, after the adjournment of the regular session of the legislature by the simple process of omitting to call the legislature in session."

FREED AFTER 27 YEARS.

KINGSTON, Aug. 18.—(Special).—John Desrosiers, the oldest inmate of the penitentiary, having been sent here from a western town 27 years ago on a charge of murder, is to be paroled. He is to be handed over into the care of the Salvation Army. Major Fraser of the social and prison branch of army work in the city is to take charge of him. Desrosiers is over 60 years of age.

Major Fraser had an interview with him this morning, and the man was delighted with the news that he was about to get his freedom. He has been in prison so long that all his relations have been lost track of. He says he expects to see a wonderful change in the world after his long stay of over a quarter of a century behind the big walls.

Bather Electrocuted.

A stream of water running from the bottom of her skirt formed a circuit with a third rail she was stepping over on her way home from her bath. The current knocked her down and threw her against another highly charged third rail. Her bare arms struck against the metal and the electricity killed her instantly.

Miss Wesley was a maid in the household of Mrs. Jennie Henry.

Galt Feature Passing.

GALT, Aug. 18.—(Special.)—Today witnessed the beginning of the end of the Main street pond in Galt, an outstanding feature of the town for 100 years. Not exactly a landmark, for it is Mill Creek water, the pond has survived all sorts of attacks on its existence by successive councils, corporations and individuals, until at last the C. P. R. bought the property on which it lies to erect a $100,000 freight shed. The work of filling in began at noon.

The Joy

The joy is in the doing,
Not in the deed that's done;
The swift and glad pursuing
Not the goal that's won.

The joy is in the seeing,
Not in what we see;
The ecstacy of vision,
Far and clear and free!

The joy is in the singing,
Whether heard or no;
The poet's wild, sweet rapture
And song's divinest flow!

The joy is in the being—
Joy of life and breath;
Joy of a soul triumphant,
Conqueror of death!

Is there a flaw in the marble?
Sculptor, do your best;
The joy is in the endeavor—
Leave to God the rest!

THE PERFECT BABY

First Prize Girl Not Restricted to Fancy Diet

All theories of diet are upset by Dorothy Klusmeyer, a Des Moines girl, awarded first prize as the most perfect baby in a big baby health contest.

Plain cow's milk when she was a tiny babe and later most anything to eat was the diet of this two and a half year old Baby Venus.

But she proved one big point for which the women physicians back of the contest contended, and that is that fresh air is highly beneficial to babies. When she was little she took her daily nap outdoors. She always slept with the windows open even in the coldest weather.

MUCH TROUBLE GETTING SOLDIERS

Canadians None Too Willing to Leave Their Jobs For Training at Annual Camps

That Canadians are a war-like people when their home or liberty is threatened or when the Motherland requires assistance, has been amply evidenced by the part taken by Canadian militiamen in the war of 1812-15, in the Fenian Raids of 1866 and 1870, the Red River Rebellion of 1870, the Northwest Rebellion of 1885, the operations on the Nile and throughout the South African war. But in "the piping days of peace," when the Department of Militia and Defence issues its call to the rural regiments to muster for a two-weeks' training camp, the amateur soldiers are not so ready to respond to the stirring notes of the bugles. Well the officers of the rural battalion understand the effort necessary in recruiting for camp, and they have come to half-dread the annual training period. One of them is authority for the statement that approximately one-half of the members of a rural corps are sons of the farmers, farm hands, and men legitimately recruited in the regimental recruiting area. The other half are men who, out of work through circumstance or inclination, and without prospect of immediate employment, are ready to shoulder a rifle and draw the Government's good money for two weeks, or four weeeks if they can re-enlist with another regiment when the first camp breaks up, as some do.

When a recruit takes the oath and signs the muster roll of a company, he swears that he will turn out with the regiment on all occasions during a period of three years. Less than one-quarter of those enlisting every year ever come to camp again. New men have to be found to take their places in the ranks and the regimental drag net is spread out, bringing in a motley catch.

One reason, of course, for lack of enthusiasm is that the pay is small compared with what an average man can earn in almost any line of industry. The system of efficiency pay is another bone of contention. If a man cannot shoot he cannot get the extra money. Naturally in the eyes of the Militia Department this is a wise provision, but not so does it appear to the recruiting officer. The men whom he should have under his command, the steady, industrious citizens or workmen can earn more money at home and not take any chances of not getting it because they cannot shoot.

FISH MEAL FOR CATTLE

Much Used in Germany, Canada Might Profit by It

The use in Germany of fish meal as a supplementary food or relish for young cattle, and especially for pigs and poultry is continually expanding, according to a report made by Mr. C. F. Just, Canadian Trade Commissioner at Hamburg. Germany's entire consumption is imported, chiefly from the British Isles and from Norway. These imports within five or six years rose from a few hundredweights to nearly forty thousand tons worth on an average from $45 to $50 per ton. Difficulty is already experienced in meeting the rising demand for fish meal, and German importers are looking for a fresh source of supply.

In England the use of fish meal is spreading rapidly, and the same article is extremely valuable as a fertilizer.

Fish meal is produced in various kinds and mixtures according to the varieties of fish that are utilized. White fish, including the cod family, provide the best article, and with the lowest percentage of oil. Next come herring, which are taken in vast quantities purely to convert into meal by the factories in Norway. In England and Scotland the offal of all kinds of fish and the refuse and surplus fish indiscriminately are most successfully manipulated. White fish and cod are dried in the open air, and subsequently subjected to hot air blast in cylinders, the resulting product is finally ground into a coarse meal. Herring are first steamed, then pressed, dried and ground into a fine meal.

The conditions surrounding the Canadian fisheries on the Atlantic are, it is believed, favorable for the establishment of fish meal plants, whereby a commercial use can be made of the superabundant fish and offal.

Wealth From the Forests

It is now commercially possible to reduce the fifty to sixty per cent. waste formerly left in the woods by the lumbermen to no more than five per cent., by a combination of three well-developed chemical industries, namely, paper-making, wood-distillation (in a modified form) and the manufacture of resin oils. Practically all the valuable constituents from the stumps, tops, branches and defective stems which would otherwise be left to rot in the forest are thus converted into useful commodities.

INTERESTING FACTS ABOUT NASAL ORGAN

No stove or furnace that ever was made by man can equal in efficiency the human nose. For the nose, in the space of three inches and in two seconds of time can raise the temperature of the air it draws in nearly 50 degrees, and at the same time saturate it with moisture and thoroughly purify it. It is also a perfect filter, and thus the most important guardian of the body against disease. All air that is breathed into the lungs should be at a temperature of nearly 90 degrees Fahrenheit. It should also be moist, even wet. Cold, dry air is fine for the outside of the body, but has no place in its interior. In heating the air the nose works on the principle of a steam coil. It is not merely two tubes leading up into the head, and so down to the throat, but from the bones on either side three twisted bones curl out into the passage, one above the other, each coated with elastic cushions of blood-vessels and tiny glands. These form coils with a great, hot, damp surface, over which the air spreads as it is drawn up. Thus is the air warmed for its entrance to the lungs. The entire surface of the inside of the nose is composed of a membrane that pours forth a fluid called mucus. This is composed largely of salt water, which is taken up by the passing air until this is saturated before it reaches the throat. This mucus is also a microbe-catcher and a dust catcher. Almost all the dirt and germs of disease that enter with the air through the nostrils are trapped by the mucus. The living enemies are killed, for the mucus is antiseptic and bermicidal. Thus the air is heated, moistened, and purified before it reaches the lungs. Air breathed in through the mouth is not warmed, moistened or purified, except to a very slight extent. Consequently it reaches the lungs cold, dry, and laden with dust and disease. Bronchitis, tonsilitis, diphtheria, and consumption are the result.

The Real Horseman

Real horsemen are born, not made. Go into the stable and select two teams of equal merit and usefulness. Give one over to the care of a real horseman, the other to the abuse of a mere teamster, and compare results. The first named will do double the work with half the feed and keep his charges sleek, ambitious, and attractive, while the latter will not only utilize more grain and hay, but will ruin his horses by general mismanagement and abuse, and yet his work will be poorly executed. The animal that does the same kind of work every day, rain or shine, is easy to feed and care for, but the team that is idle one day and overworked the next presents a real problem. A bushel of care is worth two bushels of feed, and a combination of both is essential. Regularity of feeding, with amounts of grain and its mixture measured according to actual work done, is the only successful practice. Watering before feeding, noon and evening, and not for at least two hours after the meal, will prompt better digestion.

A society Belle—queen of hearts.

A spinster—a single heart.

Pioneer Steamship Line

The Cunard Line was a pioneer in the evolution of ocean traffic. Samuel Cunard, the founder of the firm, was a Nova Scotian. It was in 1838 that Cunard and his associates obtained a Government subsidy for a fleet of four ships to carry the mails to and from England and the United States, but it was ten years later before the first ship was in commission.

Arming Our Liners

The precedent set by the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company in placing two guns upon their vessel, the Aragon, will be followed in the case of other ships ordered from Messrs. Harland and Wolff. It is probable that on one or two new vessels provision will be made for mounting four guns, instead of two.

GREGG OWES SUCCESS TO SPOKANE MANAGER

Big Left-Hander Was Discovered by Catcher Ostedeick—Has Great Control

Vean Gregg, the big Cleveland southpaw, owes baseball life to Harry Ostedeick, former catcher and manager of the Spokane team in the Northwestern League, who saw possibilities for the big fellow and persuaded Joe Cohn, the owner, to keep him, according to W. A. Moriarity, who played in the outfield with Spokane several years ago. Moriarity now is a printer in Duluth.

"Gregg was one of the greenest and most bashful ball players I ever met," says Moriarity. "He played at Wallace, Idaho, where Spokane got a line on him. That was seven years ago. At this time Gregg was setting the bushes afire in Oregon. His home was at Lewiston, Idaho. Tales of his prowess as a strikeout man travelled quickly in that country, and soon was pretty well known.

"It had become advertised around that he would pitch as a trial at Wallace Sunday afternoon. There was a big crowd of rooters.

"Gregg left Baker City the Saturday morning before, appeared in the box Sunday afternoon, pitched the game, struck out 15 men and allowed but four hits, and then asked me if I thought the manager would lend him half a dollar to get something to eat. He hadn't eaten since Saturday morning. He had $25 coming for pitching the game. He got a regular berth after that.

"Later he was sold to Cleveland for $4,500. He didn't report because he said he could make more money working at his trade as a plasterer. The next year, however, he agreed to report to the Naps., and his progress needs no rehearsing.

"Gregg is from pretty much the same territory as Walter Johnson, world's record holder for scoreless innings, and Claude Henrix, the Pittsburg star. The fans around that Northwestern circuit are certainly a most rabid variety. There is big money up on every game, and it is as much as a player's life is worth to make a flagrant error.

"Gregg showed his pitching ability early. He had the steam, and certainly had control of the ball. For a time when he was threatened with extinction by the owner of the Spokane club he was in ill-health, and Ostedeick knew he would be good later on. He had been catching him, and in those days the battery of Gregg and Ostedeick drew attention."

DREAD OF CATS

Investigator Thinks We May Once Have Been Birds

Aelurophobic means a positive and utterly unreasoning hatred of cats. It comes from the Greek word meaning "tail wavers," and is being applied by scientists to that class of people who cannot stand the presence of even a most harmless kitten.

It seems that thousands of years ago Herodotus, the Greek historian, took a delightful journey through Egypt and brought back as many wonderful stories as any modern traveler ever collected, and he met cats in this Egyptian country and gave them a name of his own, "aelurophobic."

Not long ago a noted physician undertook an investigation of this subject and sent out a list of questions to all aelurophobes whom he could locate. Answers came from England, Germany, France and Russia. Much curious information was obtained. He found thirty-one well authenticated cases in which these aelurophobics could tell when a cat was near, though they could neither hear nor see it. He learned that cats cause asthma in some patients, that some people even suffer lockjaw in the presence of a cat, and temporary blindness, hysterical convulsions, and seasickness may also be ascribed to the same cause.

But why are people afraid of cats? Why is the hero who can face a tiger terror stricken at the sight of a cat? Why does a certain well known General grow pale, faint and unable to breathe when he knows there is a cat in the room? Why does an equally distinguished physician grow almost seasick in the presence of an innocent puss? These are all strong men.

His answer is not thoroughly satisfying. He says it is an inherited remainder of an animal instinct which we possessed in the days before we were humans, and probably used this instinct for our defence. That leads us to think that we were once birds or mice, for no one claims that the apes, our supposed ancestors, are afraid of cats.

Rush of New Metals

Modern research has brought to our industries, at a marvellous rate, not only new compounds but even new elements. Prof. H. T. Kalmus, of Toronto, notes that of the fifty metallic elements now known, only seven were in commercial use 2,000 years ago, and until 100 years ago the rate of addition was less than one metal for each two centuries. Within the last twenty-five years about fourteen metals have been added to commercial use—an addition at more than one hundredfold the previous rate.

Birds That Change Their Food

It is well known among naturalists that while many birds are exclusively flesh-eaters, few are exclusively vegetarians. The latter seek a change of food, not because of its scarcity, but from choice, and this choice is nearly always exercised when they are feeding their young. All gardeners know that sparrows are ordinarily vegetarians, yet they eat insects off of plants.

SMARTER CLOTHES FOR TOMMY ATKINS

Brilliant Uniforms Attract Men to Serve the Flag—Poverty a Contributing Factor

According to London recruiting sergeants reforms are urgently needed to encourage promising men to enlist in the British Army.

"For a long time complaints have been made in military circles," a recruiting sergeant said, "that the number of candidates for the 'shilling' is regularly and steadily on the decrease. But I, for one, am far from surprised, for the 'powers that be' seem to overlook the fact that at present no great inducements are offered—in times of peace, at any rate—to join the army. For instance, I feel sure that more men would speedily enlist if, after a number of years' service, soldiers were allowed to wear civilian clothes on their 'evenings out' so to speak. A large number of the best and most conscientious soldiers I have ever met have frequently complained to me that it seems unjust to them to have to wear uniform when going to the theatre, or to visit their friends.

"Again, uniforms should be made smarter than they are, for what invariably attracts the man with a much-depleted wardrobe is the prospect of getting a really smart, well-fitting red coat for the asking—that is to say, always providing the difficulty of passing the doctor is overcome. Moreover, from the standpoint of enlisting, at any rate, I think the fact that red coats will probably never be worn again in action has had a depressing effect on candidates for the 'King's shilling.' You see, the average class from which privates chiefly spring have, since their earliest days, heard tales of the gallant deeds of bygone wearers of bright red uniforms; and therefore, although many people may laugh at the apparent paltriness of such a consideration, the prospect of going into action in khaki instead of scarlet is not so alluring to the enlister who has not quite decided whether to 'take the shilling' or not.

"And there is another point. I do not think the number of candidates for enlistment will increase to any great extent until better means of obtaining employment are found for soldiers when they have to leave the Army.

"Of course, it is the primary duty of a recruiting sergeant to make the prospect of 'taking the shilling' as alluring as possible, but many men come to them only as a last resource when they have failed to earn a living in absolutely every other walk of life."

It is in the East End of London in the poorest districts, that recruiting sergeants have, as a rule, the busiest time. "People who don't know what it is to want a meal would not believe how often men who haven't tasted food for hours, and sometimes for days, come to me and want to enlist," said a recruiting sergeant in the neighborhood of Bethnal Green, "simply to procure food to keep body and soul together. And very often these men turn out to be first-rate soldiers when once they have learned what discipline means, and what it is to be able to hold up their heads without fear of a policeman telling them to move on."

WHERE CANADA LEADS

Montreal has the largest grain conveying system in the world.

The largest pulp wood resources in the world are in the Dominion. These are being renewed by fresh growths, so that the supply will be inexhaustible.

Canada has the largest consecutive wheat field in the world—an area which is constantly extending and which justifies the prediction of Lord Strathcona that Canada will soon be the granary of the world.

The greatest sea fisheries in the world are those of the Dominion. These are worth, east and west, almost $50,000,000 per annum, and are capable of indefinite expansion. The salmon industry in British Columbia, great as it is, is in its infancy.

Canada has the largest nickel mines in the world; upon these the naval authorities are in great measure dependant, as nickel is employed in the armoring of warships.

The Dominion possesses a greater railway mileage than Australia and New Zealand or Italy and Spain combined, and more than all the South American countries.

SAMSON HASKELL OF BENTLEY

—BY—

CHARLES A. MACFARLANE

(Copyright Applied For)

CHAPTER IX.

Rollins Takes a Mud Bath.

With the changed conditions at the Gaylord home, the rivalry for Delilah's favor increased in interest, with Samson slighty in the lead. Had young Rollins been content to silently bide his time, instead of freely giving expressions to his feelings when in the company of the village boys, who were Samsmon's friends as well as his own, the clash might have been indefinitely postponed. He felt keenly the indignity laid upon him by the taking of Samson into the family, followed by frequent long pleasure drives, and determined to assert his privileges on the grounds of priority of affection for Miss Gaylord, who until the formation of a co-partnership between her father and young Haskell, had apparently given his company the preference.

Samson in no wise considered himself responsible for Henry's antagonistic attitude; he had always placed implicit confidence in Delilah's judgement, feeling assured that when the time arrived for her to make a selection between himself and Henry, it would be of her own free will, without suggestion from either.

But when Henry's assertions became village talk, and threats of bodily harm reached Samson's ears, it was deemed time to draw the lines, and acquaint him with the necessity of more discreet behavior.

But Samson did not put himself about to meet his rival, feeling that an encounter would be a one-sided affair, because of the marked difference in stature and strength, to say nothing of the disgrace a street fight would bring upon both. The meeting, which was quite by chance, took place in front of the post office. Henry, who had been conversing with several of the boys while standing in the street, observed Samson approaching, and pointed him out for ridicule.

Samson said nothing in reply and was about to enter the store, when Rollins stepped in front of him and demanded an explanation of his monopoly of Miss Gaylord's company.

"Lookey here, Henry," remonstrated Samson, in a fatherly manner, "me and you don't want to disgrace ourselves by having trouble in the street; if you've got anything agin me, we can settle it quietly, and in a Christian way. But, I want you should remember this, Henry: if I hear you mention Miss Gaylord's name in sech a common way, there's agoin' to be somethin' doin' on the spot. She's too good a gal to be made the subject of a street disturbance 'twixt me and you, or anybody else."

"I suppose you think, because you've gone into partnership with Dave Gaylord, you've bought an interest in his daughter, too; but I reckon Delilah will have her say about who's to be her company," retaliated Henry, assuming a menacing attitude.

"Me, and you, and even Deakin Ras Hale hain't got money enough 'tween us to buy one hair out'n Miss Gaylord's head, Henry. She hain't fer sale, as you'll find out, if you try it."

"I wouldn't belittle my good opinion of her by naming a price for her affections," was the stout reply. "Miss Gaylord's affections are beyond price and can be had only as a free-will gift."

"It won't be Samson Haskell that will get 'em, anyhow," sail Henry.

"Mebbe not, Henry, but we won't discuss the matter here," and Samson turned toward the store door.

Determined to make his boasts good that Samson would not be in a condition to appear with any respectable young lady when he was through with him, young Rollins, heated with anger, sprang at Samson, and grasping him by the hair, pulled with all his might. But before he could deliver an intended blow, Samson had freed himself, and, throwing Henry to the ground, slapped his ears, sat upon him for a moment, and then swinging him across his knee, spanked him with his large open hand until he cried out with pain.

With a view to making the lesson a lasting one, Samson carried the struggling Rollins to the center of the street, rolled him in a puddle of dirty water, and freely applied a coating of mud to his face and neck.

"Now, Henry, I want you to run right home, and ask your ma to wash you real clean, put a pair of short pants on you, and keep you to hum. It hain't safe fer you to come to the village alone."

It so happened that Miss Gaylord was at her home for a week's vacation at this particular date, and, as is frequently the case on such occasions, she walked into the postoffice about half an hour after the fight.

William Feltus, too, was on hand, who, in accordance with his exaggerating, story-telling disposition, gave her a full account of the disturbance with such variations as he surmised would sink Samson into deeper perplexities.

Miss Gaylord apparently took little interest in the affair; but when she reached home, two hours later, her indignation knew no bounds.

Hardly had she entered the kitchen, where she found Samson depositing an armful of wood, when the storm broke, and she proceeded to express her views on the disgraceful scene with which he had been connected. It was a realistic rehearsal of their school days, and so interesting was her flow of the English language that for the moment he was spellbound.

She declared that he was disgracing everyone with whom he had to do; was a fighter, a rough, and wholly unfit to associate with the cattle of the farm. She had for years been endeavoring earnestly to make a respectable being of him, even so far humiliating herself as to accompany him to to the Sunday evening service; but her labor had been for naught. If he had been in conflict with one of his own size and strength, and the other had assaulted him, she would have been glad for him to win; but to attack a person so much smaller, who had never done him harm, was without excuse, and she washed her hands of him and his belongings. Hereafter he could go his way; she would not again be seen in his company.

Samson said nothing; there was nothing left to say. He found that she still possessed the old schoolday spirit, and no explanation on his part would be accepted. He also decided that had Balaam's donkey been carrying Dave Gaylord's daughter there would have been one incident less in the Bible; he could never have had an opportunity for back talk.

In the midst of her outburst, when her language was most fluent, and her voice at high key, she suddenly ceased, choked, and sank sobbing at his feet. The ending was as sensational as the beginning.

Like one in a daze he looked down upon the weeping girl, then, stooping, he raised her from the floor, hardly knowing what he did. Like a child she lay in his strong arms, her upturned face wet with tears. As he viewed the pretty features, the eyelids trembled, and with a quick motion her cheek touched his.

Unable to resist the contact, he bent his head and kissed the red lips.

Like a flash she freed herself from his embrace, the brown eyes flashing fire, and the next instant a strong little hand administered a blow upon his face that brought tears to his eyes.

"How dare you!" and leaving him standing in the center of the room, she bounded into the dining room and up to her own chamber.

Deeming it unadvisable to remain about the place after all that had happened, Samson harnessed one of the horses and drove into the village. He would take Delilah at her word; he would no longer trouble her with his attentions. If Henry Rollins wanted the Crow's Corners schoolmam he could have her, and welcome. Theresa Harding had always treated him with consideration, and she was nearly as pretty as Delilah.

Daniel Harding was in need of a strong yong man on his farm, and by disposing of his interests in the Gaylord property, Samson could form a partnership with Theresa's father, and thus secure a happy future.

His mind was revolving the proposed change, as he passed along the village road, when who should trip from the postoffice store but Theresa herself. Observing his approach, she waited and asked him to drive her home. Theresa had heard all about the fight, and was satisfied as to what would be Delilah's attitude toward Samson's connection with it. She was, therefore, glad of the opportunity to talk the matter over with him, fearing he might become disheartened.

But when he told her of Delilah's attack upon him, she laughed heartily, and declared that he should receive the rebuke directly opposite to the way it was delivered, asserting that Henry Rollins had no prospects whatever with Delilah Gaylord, even though Samson were out of the race, and the sooner he found it out, the sooner would he cease to throw his affections away. Then, in her own familiar way, she delivered Samson a lecture on observation, that set him to thinking, and when he returned home, in time for the milking, his intentions were hopelessly scattered.

He also found Delilah in a more approachable frame of mind. William Feltus had sent Lorinda Kendall over to retract certain of his statements concerning the fight, following with a complete and accurate account of the disturbance, wherein Samson was accredited with defending Delilah against what might become village gossip, and seeking to adjust all differences with Henry in an honorable manner, but without avail. Lorinda also casually remarked that she had seen Samson and Theresa drive together from the postoffice, which report provided Delilah with more interesting news than Feltus had inserted in his catalogue of confessions.

If Miss Gaylord had the least sorrow in her heart for her treatment of Samson, she failed to reveal it. But at the supper table she made an opening for the remark that "Henry Rollins was being cut out in more ways than one, and there was no depending on some men."

Imagine his surprise, the following morning, when she informed him that he was to drive her over to Ogden, and they would start immediately after breakfast, as she wanted to spend the day with Cousin Jemima. And while her manner on the way was unusually pleasant, her conversation of a cheery and even humorous trend, no reference was made to the incidents of the previous day; and when they returned home in the evening, Samson was his usual hopeful self.

Delilah Gaylord had a way of apologizing without humiliating herself.

A WARLIKE PRINCE

The Kaiser's Son Startled Berlin With His Book

Something like a sensation was caused in Berlin by the publication by the German Crown Prince of a book called "Germany in Arms." The book, which is "most reverently dedicated to the German Emperor and the Prussian King," contains the following motto: "The world does not rest more safely on the shoulders of Atlas than does Germany on her army and navy."

The Imperial editor asserts that Germany, more than any other land, has to trust to its armaments, and that as its geographical position is unfavorable, and as all nations do not regard Germany with affection, the country has the sacred duty imposed on it always to maintain its army and navy in a state of readiness. "Only in this way, relying on our good sword, can we maintain that place in the sun which is ours, but which will not be voluntarily conceded to us."

The Crown Prince goes on to say that diplomacy may delay the conflict for a season, but those in responsible positions must know that once a gigantic conflagration is lighted it is not so easy to extinguish.

Speaking of the delight of riding to an attack, the Prince says there is one delight still greater—namely, that of meeting the enemy at the end of the gallop, and the fight for life and death.

TANNING BY ELECTRICITY

Better Leather Is Produced in Much Shorter Time

A new electric tanning process, invented by the Swedish scientist, Dr. A. Groth, and applied on a practical scale in an English works, is attracting much attention, and one of the prominent electrical firms is to take it up for commercial use. With this method, the hides are put in special vats along with metal conductors, so as to carry out an electrolytic action, and this will tan the hides in much less time than usual, for instance, six weeks as compared to several months. Leather of better quality is produced in this way, and the method gives a perfect and solid tanning. Various electrical devices in the shape of regulators, also safety apparatus for overcurrent, make the process almost an automatic one.

Farmer's Drink of Milk

A prominent West Country farmer who was present at the opening of a new co-operative milk depot at Bath declared that he had not drunk a glass of milk for twenty years before attending this gathering, when he had a drink, "for the novelty of the thing," and was delighted with the taste.

WHOLSALE DISMISSAL NOT G. T. R. POLICY.

Montreal, Aug. 20.—Special—Mr. D. E. Galloway, assistant to the President of the G. T.R., this afternoon denied emphatically that any order had gone forth from here to cut 2,000 men off the pay lists. Mr. Galloway, in referring to the item in a Toronto evening paper of yesterday, said that while the company always aimto keep down expense, no policy of wholesale dismissal had been decided upon.

Drowned Trying To Rescue Boy

Michael Marony, of Toronto, Met Heroic Death at The Island.

TORONTO, Aug. 19.—Michael Maroney, an employee of the Water Works at the Island was drowned early this afternoon while giving assistance to a boy who had drifted onto the lake on a log, near the Filtration plant. Maroney and Lou Marsh swam out to the boys assistance, but Maroney attempted to swim instead of sticking to the log and sank. Marsh got the boy to the shore safely and the youngster went away before any one secured his name. Maroney was 35 year of age and lived at 41 Russell avenue.

Must Stand Up To Keep Awake

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Miss Alice Geiser, of Liberty place, Weehawken, is the victim of a strange malady, said to be without parallel in medical annals. She cannot wake unless she stands up. Sitting or lying down she becomes unconscious.

It is not the so-called sleeping sickness of Africa, which last less than two weeks. Miss Geiser has been afflicted for two years.

Although she has been under constant medical treatment for two years no headway has been made towards a cure: Miss Geiser, in all other respects, is a normal, healthy young woman.

BOOMING BELLEVILLE FAIR AT ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING

Citizens Gather at City Building and Start a Boom for the Coming Local Fair That Cannot But Attract--Committees Appointed

There is every prospect that Monday, September 1st, Labor Day, and the opening day of Belleville Fair, will be another red letter day for this city. A meeting for the purpose of boosting the fair was held in the city building last evening and was well attended. Several brief addresses were made and the tone of all was to the effect that everything possible will be done to make the fair a decided success. On Labor Day is is proposed to attract many visitors to the city and give attractions which will be profitable and pleasing. It is contemplated to have a trades procession, representing the various industries in the city, trades unions, etc. The Royal Canadian Dragoons will be here to participate, and it is expected that the 34th Battery and Fifteenth Regiment will assist. Energetic committees were appointed to further the object and these committees will get busy at once.

Mayor Wills occupied the chair and outlined the object of the meeting, namely, to organize for the fair to be held here on Sept. 1st and 2nd. As the fair would be opened on Labor Day, which is a general holiday, he suggested that a grand trades procession be held, together with the military and the Royal Canadian Dragoons. The citizens of the city should unite in this matter as the interests of the fair and the city were identical. There was no reason why the fair could not be made a great success. Have attractions and we will have a crowd. Give the patrons amusements for that day. If we have a good attendance this year we will have the nucleus for the headquarters of a central fair. Make this the central fair for the Bay of Quinte, and the best fair ever held in this section of the country. He suggested that energetic committees be appointed and let everybody boom the fair. The press of the city were doing all in their power in this line. Let the citizens unite. His Worship also suggested that in the procession, floats representing the trades be secured.

Col. Ponton said the Mayor's suggestions were good ones. The citizens of Belleville should co-operate in this matter. This should be the beginning of a great fair in Belleville. It is up to the citizens of Belleville to be enthusiastic in making this a great fair. He believed industries would participate. Floats would prove a great attraction. We are all feeling a wave of prosperity and by helping the fair we would be doing something to help the city and the fair directors. He suggested that brief addresses on the opening day be made by some of the veterans of the county.

Mr. W. B. Deacon said if enthusiasm could be instilled into this matter success was assured. The Royal Canadian Dragoons would prove a great attraction. Labor Day should be made one of the best days and most successful in the history of the city.

Mr. L. B. Cooper was of the opinion that Belleville fair could be made a success; what is wanted is to enthuse the citizens of the city. Personally, he would do all he could to make the fair a success. If proper attractions were secured the success of the fair was assured.

Mr. John Elliott, as a director of the fair, was doing what he could for the fair. The citizens of Belleville were alive to the interests of the fair. Help by displays and otherwise in making the fair a grand success. We should have the best fair between Toronto and Montreal. The speaker referred to the fact that old country capitalists would be in the city early in September, and he hoped some of them would be in the city while the fair was on and be present at the fair.

Mr. A. S. White said it was an opportune time to have a fair, especially as one day was a general holiday. He would do all in his power to make the fair a success.

Ald. White stated that he was interested in the fair and hoped it would be a grand success. He was willing to help along the fair to the best of his ability.

Ald. McFee said he would do all he could for the success of the fair and was in hearty accord with having a procession and make the city attractive for the occasion.

Mr. J. K. McCargar said he had had considerable experience as one of the officers of the fair. Belleville of late had had successful celebrations and there was no reason why the fair could not be made a success. What was needed was to advertise the fair, and all join hands in making it a grand success.

Mr. D. L. Scott said it was a pleasure for him to be in Belleville and there was no reason why the city should not go forward by leaps and bounds. The country was developing and why should not Belleville develop? He would ever be ready to help on the progress of the city in which he had been a resident but a few days.

Mayor Wills welcomed Mr. Scott to the city as successor to Mr. Maclachlan, who all were sorry to lose.

Mr. W. Maclachlan said the Trenton Electric and Water Company was ever ready to help to make the fair a success. The work of lighting up the grounds should be undertaken at once.

Mr. R. H. Ketcheson said that the fair was being well advertised in this and adjoining counties.

Mayor Wills said the two city papers had promised to publish articles daily until the fair days.

COMMITTEES APPOINTED

The following committee was appointed to look after the matter of advertising: Mayor Wills, Messrs. J. Elliott, A. R. Wallbridge, D. L. Scott, and Col. Ponton.

Those appointed on the procession committee, with power to add to their numbers were: S. R. Burrows, Ald. McFee, L. B. Cooper, E. T. Thompson,

YOUTHFUL BURGLARS ADMIT GUILT AND ARE REMANDED

On Monday night, the 4th inst., the general store of Mr. F. Herity, at Moira, Huntingdon township, was broken into, and a sum of money and articles were taken.

Since the burglary the authorities have been busy, and yesterday Sergt. Naphin of this city placed under arrest Charles Welsh, aged 18 years, and Clayton Vanderwater, aged 22 years, charging them with the offence.

The accused reside in the township of Huntingdon near where the burglary took place. This morning the accused were brought up before Magistrate Masson and both pleaded guilty to the charge. Welsh claimed that he received $11 and some silver, and Vanderwater the balance. It is alleged that $75 was taken, but Vanderwater denies that that amount was taken.

Magistrate Masson remanded the culprits to jail and advised them to secure references, if possible, as they were liable to be sent to the penitentiary for a term of fourteen years for the offence they had committed. Mr. Anderson, County Crown Attorney, represented the Crown.

It is stated that since the date of the burglary, Vanderwater has married a sister of Welsh.

HUNDRED KILLED WHEN CAR CRASHES INTO DYNAMITE

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 19.—An explosion on a gondola loaded with dynamite on the tracks of a street car company in a thickly settled portion of Tacubaya, a suburb of the capital, killing or injuring more than hundred persons, chiefly women and children, occurred early this morning..

Thirty bodies already have been taken from the ruins of the houses. Scores of wounded are lying in the streets. The disaster is said to have been caused by a car loaded with iron pipe crashing in the dynamite car. For a radius of 500 feet from the scene of the explosion not a house was left intact and not a vestige of many of the buildings remained. Most of the dwellings were of adobe construction and those nearest to where the car stood were converted into heaps of clay and dust, under which it is estimated scores of victims will be found.

Most of our relatives are about as useless to us as empty tomato cans.

A Slight Blaze

At a few minutes after 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon the fire brigade was called to Walker's foundry on Front street. Sparks from the chimney of the moulding shop ignited the roof of the building. No particular damage was done.

The Lake Katepwa Yachting Association held their first annual regatta and sports on Monday of last week at Katepwa Beach, a beautiful summer resort near Regina, Sask.

The programme consisted of a great many varied races, one canoe race, "mixed doubles," being won by Miss Helen Farrow, of Belleville and Mrs. Chenoworth, of Winnipeg. The prize awarded was a beautiful cut glass vase. Miss Farrow, who has been in Regina visiting relatives for some time, will not return to Belleville before the middle of September.

SUFFOCATED BY GASOLINE FUMES.

Curling, Nfld., Aug. 20.—Special—A newly married couple and an elderly lady were suffocated by gasoline fumes while sleeping in the cabin of an auxiliary packet employed by the Canadian Government on the Labrador coast, according to news brought back from Labrador to-day. No details and no names were known by those on the Newfoundland mail steamer, which brought to the outside world the first news of the tragedy.

Eloping Couple Caught at Kingston

Italian Charged with Abduction by Hamilton Police—Caught by Kingston Police on Their way to Montreal.

KINGSTON, Aug. 19.—"She lika me and I lika her, and we were going to get married."

This was the statement Pietro Maggio, an Italian, aged twenty-two, made to the local police, when he was arrested at an early hour on Monday morning, in company with a fifteen-year-old Italian girl.

He is charged by the Hamilton police with abduction, and was placed under arrest by Constable James Bateson and Samuel Arniel, at the request of the Hamilton police. The couple were found on the early morning train, from Toronto, and taken to the police staton.

The Kingston police received a telegram from Hamilton early on Sunday night, giving a full description of the couple who eloped from that city on Sunday morning, and all the trains were watched for the runaway couple.

When the early morning train arrived at the outer station, Constable Bateson and Arniel were on the job, and, going through the train, they soon came across the Italian and his sweetheart. When told that he was wanted on a charge of abduction, Maggio seemed very much surprised and told the constables that he loved the girl, and that he was going to marry her, just as soon as he arrived in Montreal.

The police nipped the wedding ceremony in the bud, however, and instead of continuing on their way to Montreal, where it was proposed to have the happy knot tied, the two got on the suburban train, escorted by the bluecoats, and came into the city and then to the police cells, where they spent the night.

When searched at the police station Maggio had a fine revolver in his possession, with every chamber loaded. The weapon was confiscated.. He also carried an accordeon, with which he played his love songs on the trip here from Hamilton.

FIREMEN HAD THREE RUNS

The local fire brigade, yesterday had three runs but fortunately the cause of alarms were not of a serious nature..

THAW IS CAPTURED WILL FIGHT DEPORTATION

Reward for Capture of Millionaire Murderer Who Escaped From Asylum, Will go to a U. S. Sheriff, Who Followed the Prisoner Across Line—Thaw is Being Held as a Prohibited Alien SHERBROOKE, Que., Aug. 20. — Harry Kendall Thaw now reposes in Sherbrooke County Jail, preparing to fight extradition or deportation to the United States.

The reward for Thaw's arrest belongs to Sheriff B. H. Kelsey of Colebrook, N.H., who recognized Thaw on a Maine Central railroad train last night, and after the fugitive had left the train at Herford pursued him to Hermenegilde-Barford, where at the request of the sheriff, a Canadian constable placed the fugitive under arrest.

Thaw faces deportation on the ground that he is an undesirable alien, and extradition on a warrant charging him with bribery. The warrant already issued in New York State for his arrest on a charge of conspiracy will not suffice to extradite him, in the opinion of local authorities. These authorities received word tonight that the district attorney of Dutchess County, in which Matteawan is located was on his way here prepared to swear to a warrant charging Thaw with bribery—an extraditable offence—if necessary.

In his own defence Thaw claims that he was merely passing thru Canada on his way to Detroit when his passage was interrupted by arrest. He exhibited what he claimed to be transportation to Detroit in support of this claim and cited the case of Jack Johnson to bear out his contention that he cannot be sent back to the United States by the Canadian authorities so long as he is simply passing thru the country and intends to go beyond its borders.

Two men were arrested with Thaw, but liberated later at Coaticook. They are believed to be of the party of five confederates who manned the two automobiles.

"Do you care to say anything about threats you are said to have made that you would go after certain people once you were out of Matteawan?"

"I shall make no answer to the nonsense of that sort that has been printed," he replied. And that ended the interview so far as the reporters were concerned. The photographers came next. They wanted a picture. Again Thaw balked. He couldn't consent to it—couldn't even consider it—till he put on a clean shirt and collar. He explained that he had no opportunity to change his clothes since leaving Matteawan. Thaw's two companions surpassed his reticence with their own. All the newspaper men could learn of them was a description of each. One of them is five feet eight or nine inches tall, smooth faced, with dark hair and eyes and heavy set. The other is about the same height, lighter in build and of fair complexion.

Will Deport Fugitive.

OTTAWA, Aug. 19.—(Can. Press)—Harry K. Thaw will be deported from Canada under the present plans of the Canadian Immigration Department, because within the meaning of the Canadian Immigration Act, he is regarded as a "prohibited person."

It was late this afternoon when the department was officially notified of Thaw's apprehension and immediately Inspectors Reynolds and F. E. Williams were despatched to Sherbrooke with instructions to watch the case and institute proceedings to the above-mentioned end. The department wired this afternoon to the chief of police at Sherbrooke to hold Thaw under the Immigration Act.

The act seems plain in regard to Thaw's case. There are certain classes who under Section 40 are not eligible to enter Canada, or who, if they succeed in doing so, are not permitted to remain here. The law states that idiots, imbeciles, insane people or erstwhile criminals shall not enter the country, and if they do succeed in eluding the officers of the immigration department they shall be deported forthwith.

DENIES THREATENING

Huerta Says He Gave No Ultimatim to the U. S.

John Lind, Special Envoy to Mexican Government, is Still Negotiating With the Huerta Officials—President Denies Demanding Recognition, But is Letting His People Think So.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—At a late hour this morning the Mexican situation was this: Diplomatic negotiations between the two governments have not been broken off, as it was inferred they would be in the despatches from Mexico City last night. John Lind, President Wilson's personal representative in Mexico City, continues to negotiate for a peaceful settlement of the Mexican war.

Provisional President Huerta, in his note refusing to accept mediation either by the United States or any other government, asked the United States to extend recognition before making further overtures for mediation. It was this request of the Mexican president which led to the reports that President Wilson had been given until midnight last night in which to recognize Huerta.

Alternative measures are being given consideration by President Wilson and his advisers. The chief alternative is the lifting of the embargo against the revolutionists of [illegible] arms and ammunition in the United States.

While the situation as a whole is bad and is giving the administration considerable worry, it was said by the White House today it had not yet reached the stage where it could be characterized as dangerous. The president and secretary of state are still holding hope for accord between the United States and Mexican Government and to bring about peace.

"The correspondents have cabled that the Mexican Government has stated that its note to Lind demands that the United States recognize the Huerta government before 12 o'clock midnight today, or a statement practically to that effect.

"I brought the matter to the urgent attention of the minister of foreign affairs at 10 p.m. He immediately saw the president and minister of Gobernacion, Senor Urrutia, who is supposed to have given out the statement, and he authorized me to deny this statement to my government as having no foundation in fact."

The state department received also a message which set forth the diplomacy being played by President Huerta and his followers. This message indicates that Senor Urrutia did give out the statement that Huerta had demanded recognition of his government at the hands of the United States. Such a statement was given out for consumption by the Mexican people. It was printed in all the Mexican newspapers, according to reliable reports here this morning.

The denial, which the minister of foreign affairs authorized Charge O'Shaughnessy to make to this government, was not published in the Mexican papers this morning. It was said that Huerta intended that the denial should not be published in Mexico; that it was meant for consumption in the United States only.

It is this class of diplomacy which is giving the administration here worry. Many of the officials see in it a move on the part of Huerta to spar for time, and at the same time make more adhesive his own followers, so that if there is a break in the relations between the Mexican government and the United States he can command support sufficient at least to present a front. What he expects to gain by it in the end no official here would hazard a conjecture.

Despite the belief that Huerta had full cognizance of the issuance of the statement last night declaring Huerta had issued an ultimatum regarding recognition, and the statement issued a few days before Mr. Lind arrived in Mexico that the Mexican government would deport him as an undesirable citizen, the administration cannot, or, at least, will not permit itself to believe that Huerta would take action which would lead to a break of the present relations between the United States and the provisional government. They cannot see anything in such a move, except suicide for Huerta and war for the Mexican people.

Until advised by Commissioner Lind or Charge O'Shaughnessy, President Wilson will make no further move. He expects the despatches received in the next twenty-four hours will contain the final reply of President Huerta, and that by it the United States can plan its next move.

There is, however, a tense feeling thruout the administration. While hope has not been abandoned, the general feeling is that a crisis is imminent and that the United States will be forced to take drastic action. Officials consider the lifting of the ban on the insurgents purchasing arms and ammunition as a drastic step. Many of them believe such a step by the United States will force Huerta to take equally drastic action. What such action would be is only surmise. This surmise is that he would openly insult the United States.

The developments yesterday and today induced the president to again take up with his military advisers the question of preparedness for any possible emergency.

Takes Poison at Depot.

KINGSTON, Aug. 19.—(Special.)—After drinking a dose of carbolic acid in the waiting room of the C.P.R. station this morning Mrs. Redden, aged 30, wife of Frank Redden, a cab driver, went up to the ticket agent, J. TO PROBE MASSACRES.

Hague Committee Will Inquire Into Balkan Horrors.

PARIS, Aug. 19.—(Can. Press.)—On the initiative of the division of intercourse and education of the Carnegie Endowment Fund for international peace, a committee representing the United States, Great Britain, France, Russia, Germany and Austria, has been appointed to make an impartial enquiry into the alleged massacres in the Balkans, during the recent war, and the economic questions arising out of the war.

The work of the committee will have as its basis, evidence published by the various governments and by official news agencies and the testimony of American and European travelers who have visited the scene of events. It will endeavor to verify this mass of testimony and compare it with evidence which the committee adduces, and, after a careful sifting, the result of the committee's findings will be published in a general report, which will be translated into many languages and widely disseminated.

SENSATIONAL ACTION BY CHIEF CARPENTER OF EDMONTON POLICE

Summarily Dismisses Deputy Chief and Sergeant on Charge of Supplying Information —Newspaper Attacks on Administration.

EDMONTON, Alta., Aug. 19.—Following the recent charges against the police administration of this city, a surprise has been caused by the summary dismissal, by Chief of Police Carpenter, of Deputy-Chief Wright and Sergeant Edwards, who are charged by Chief Carpentier, with having given information to newspapers in conection with the charges against the administration. The men both deny having given information.

The dismissed officers are two of the most experienced men in the force. Deputy-Chief Wright started his police work at Galt, Ont., in 1898, and for some years had charge of the Ontario Division of the C. P. O. Police, while Sergeant Edwards was formerly inspector in the Edinburgh (Scotland) police force, having worked his way up from the rank of constable.

Prior to coming east he made a tour of Alberta and Northern Saskatchewan, and while reporting the average crops better than he had ever seen them, he said:—

"The Western Provinces will be even more prosperous when the farmers go in for mixed farming. Our demonstration trains are fast bringing this view home to the minds of the farmers with conviction.

COUNTRY CORRESPONDENCE

SIDNEY CROSSING.

Aug. 19—Everything is simply drying up. The leaves on the trees in the woods are falling like in the autumn. The corn crop is a failure, and some of the farmers are cutting it up for cattle feed. Unless rain comes soon the late potatoe crop will also be done for. The farmers in this vicinity are certainly up against it this year, unless they get rain. The plum yield is fairly good, but the quality is very inferior, while apples are only a partial crop and very small.

The farmers along the G. T. R. and C. N. R. are kept busy fighting fires. A great deal of damage has been done and things looked pretty serious at times. While not yet conquered, it is somewhat under control. Gangs were out all day Sunday fighting fires, both at Bayside and Sidney Crossing.

Miss Addie Chisholm of Belleville and Mrs. Goodmurphy of Trenton are spending the week with Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Kelley.

Mrs. Julia Lott of Bayside, is quite ill in the Belleville hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Seldon Ketcheson attended the Grand Lodge of Oddfellows in Belleville, Mrs. Ketcheson being a member of Quintena Rebekah Lodge of Belleville.

Mrs. Bone of Cedarville, Iowa, gave a splendid address at White's church on Sunday evening last, on Missions. She is a splendid speaker and greatly delighted her hearers by brief sketches of the work in her native State. She also sang a very beautiful solo. She was the guest of her cousin, Mrs. Chas. Hall, Bayside.

Miss Elsie Nelson and friend, Miss Isabel Gill, of Toronto, are spending their holidays with the former's uncle, Mr. Dan Hyde.

Mr. Manley Farley, who was quite seriously injured by a fall from his barn, is now able to sit up and move around a little. His many friends congratulate him on his narrow escape.

Mr. P. Casey is the proud possessor of a handsome new Ford car.

Mrs. Rove Hunt of Bayside is quite ill.

Mr. Willett Ketcheson of Thurlow, brother of Messrs. S. and M. Ketcheson, of this place, had a narrow escape from being killed last week. He was badly kicked by a horse, his ribs being broken and chest crushed, and otherwise seriously injured. He has good chances for recovery.

CANADA CEMENT COMPANY

To many of our readers who are interested in the Canada Cement Company, the following statement of its position financially will be interesting:

The Royal Securites Corporation have purchased from the Canada Cement Company, $1,500,000 first mortgage 6 per cent. 20-year gold bonds, being approximately the unissued balance of the authorized issue of $8,000,000, declares The Financial Times.

It is not intended that this amount of $1,500,000 will be issued to the public at present, owing to the somewhat unsettled state of the markets. As the outlook is, however, showing improvement, it is more than likely that the offering will not be long delayed. The proceeds, it is generally understood, will go to reimburse the company for capital expenditures made on the new plant at Medicine Hat, and extensions to the Winnipeg plant.

The site for the Medicine Hat plant purchased last year, together with the expenditure on the Winnipeg plant consisting of an addition to the burning department, accounted for the increase of $1,125,000 in the property account item, which stood at close to $30,000,000. The plant has been erected since on the Medicine Hat site.

The fixed charges of the company will be materially increased from now on, owing to the sinking fund clause becoming operative on September 1st next, when 2 per cent. on the par value of the outstanding bonds must be provided out of earnings. This will amount to $160,000.

The capitalization is now as follows:

	Authorized	Issued.
Bonds	$ 8,000,000	$ 8,000,000
Pfd. Stock . .	11,000,000	10,500,000
Common	19,000,000	13,500,000

The company has now 14 plants located at:

1. Pointe aux Trembles, Quebec.
2. Montreal, Quebec.
3. Hull, Quebec.
4. Belleville, Ontario.
5. Belleville, Ontario.
6. Marlbank, Ontario.

NOTHING LIKE PATIENCE

"Ten or fifteen years may seem a long time to The Toronto Star, but it will have to endure a Conservative Government at Ottawa for at least that length of time."—Brockville Times.

It is pretty tough to get a sentence of fifteen years, just like that, from The Times, but we suppose we must endure it. An ossified man died a few days ago in Missouri after living for twenty-seven years in bed, and he had never been heard to complain. May we learn from his example, and from the many and stern admonitions of the Brockville Times, to endure our lot without murmuring.— Toronto Star.

SIR WILFRID ON THE STUMP

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, still lamenting his defeat, at the general election of 1911, has again entered the "stumping" field. His first appearance was in the town of St. Hyacinthe, one of the most pronounced Rouge-Grit constituencies in the Province of Quebec, where he was sure of a good hearing and plenty of applause, at which gathering the Toronto Globe reports an attendance of "10,000 to cheer the Liberal leader." It might as well have made it 25,000; it would have taken no greater number of figures, and would, no doubt, have been as near the truth.

The Globe's report says "the Liberal policies on Reciprocity and the Navy Bill were strongly defended." "Strongly," if a reiteration of the declaration that their passage would have been of interest and benefit to the Canadian people made them so. Not an additional reason or argument than those rejected by the electorate was advanced to prove the truth of the statement.

The whole speech, as reported in The Globe, is but a glorification of himself, and a lament of what the country lost by his defeat, and the dire calamity which the country is suffering therefrom. Time does not permit a count of the number of times he refers to himself and his defeat, and the efforts made to accomplish that end. His reference to himself is intensified by an oft-repeated declaration that he made Canada a "nation," and therefore she should have an "independent navy" to defend its three thousand miles of frontier from east to west, and its seaboard on the Pacific and Atlantic—a sentiment which, notwithstanding its transparent absurdity, was, the report says, "cheered to the echo." Those who waste time in reading the speech will find that though Sir Wilfrid declared that, Canada being a "nation," should prepare to defend herself, he carefully avoided any reference to his own naval policy. It was a dangerously expensive subject, and therefore he avoided it, knowing that his French supporters were opposed to any expenditure for naval purposes.

Sir Wilfrid is a true type of the Bourbon character; he seems to forget nothing, and learns nothing. If he did he would know that reciprocity is as dead as any political creed can be, both in Canada and the United States. Still, his continued advocacy of making Canada an "adjunct of the United States" is a sure forerunner of defeat at the next election.

Referring to those who accomplished his defeat in 1911, he indulged in the following choice language:

"Gentlemen, we cannot descend to the level of their small conception. Those who deny Canada's nationhood are extremists of the Conservative party. They are Conservative in the head and Nationalist at heart. (Laughter). You do well to laugh. How Nationalists and Conservatives are to live in harmony on the Conservative side of the House it is difficult to see. They are a combination of the ox and the ass, but which is the ox and which is the ass I leave it to yourselves to judge." (Laughter).

"Certainly," he continued, "that day of Sept. 21st, 1911, was a day of dupes. The Imperialists and Nationalists came together on that occasion in a great effort to deceive the people, and each intending in his heart to deceive the other as well. The Imperialists thought to themselves that if the Laurier Government was removed they would deceive the Nationalists. The Nationalists on their part thought they would deceive the Conservatives.

This is a fair specimen of the whole speech, which was a tirade of venom and disappointment. It suited and pleased his hearers, it reached their capacity; hence his opponents have no cause to complain.

CURRENT COMMENT

Toronto Globe: "A member of the King's household has sold six tickets to the Royal wedding for $750 and is in trouble. It serves him right. They were worth many times that amount."

* * *

Kingston Whig: "The Turkey Trot and the Tango have been banned by the Bishop of Nashville. Any Roman Catholics indulging in these "vile dances" will be refused absolution. That ought to settle the matter with some people."

* * *

Hamilton Spectator: "Mrs. Sulzer, consort of the Governor of New York state, is described as "the faithful wife." because she admitted speculating in Wall street with the campaign funds entrusted to his charge, thus exhonerating him. Well, there are various degrees of faithfulness."

* * *

Brantford Courier: "This paper has been calling attention to the unnecessary noises in Brantford, such as factory whistles and siren screeching, too much bell ringing and tooting railway yards at night and in the early morning hours, and so on." Apparently the Courier man has a case of "nerves."

* * *

Brantford Courier: "The Borden Government, taunted by many Liberal papers as too extravagant with regard to the militia department, has just cancelled the Laurier plan of barracks near Toronto to cost $1,500,000. They propose to achieve the necessary result at much less cost." And now a Toronto paper is kicking because a certain Liberal contractor, who, it claims, was the lowest bidder and had deposited $65,000, is out of a job.

* * *

Montreal Gazette: "Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in his St. Hyacintho speech, was violently denunciatory of the Nationalist representatives and voters of this province. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in the days of Mercier, was something of a Nationalist himself. It was his attitude in this regard that gained him the "solid Quebec" of which some of his friends used to loudly boast. When the present day Nationalists separated from him his majority in the House of Commons was lost, and he had to give up his prime ministership. There may be more personal pain than political foresight behind what he now says about former friends."

THE JOURNAL OF COMMERCE

Upwards of $20,000,000 are inevsted in Canada's Fishing Industry, where gives employment to 100,000 men and produces annually $35,000,000 worth of fish. These and many other facts relating to the Fishing Industry in Canada appears in this week's issue of the Journal of Commerce, Montreal. The article which is illustrated is from the pen of Mr. R. H. C. Coats, editor of the Labor Gazette. Mr. Coats shows that the industry has developed almost entirely in the past half century. Fifty years ago, the annual output of fish was valued a $125,000. Salmon is our most valuable fish, the value of the catch being over ten million dollars per year, while British Columbia ranks first as a fish producing Province with Noya Scotia second. The article is unusually interesting treating as it does of an important but little know industry.

In the same issue of the Journal of Commerce are articles dealing with the lack of progress of British Life Insurance Companies in Canada and the failure of the Lloyd George Insurance Act.

Professor Skelton of Queen's writes on the New Nationalism in Australia and Professor Short on the Balance of Trade in Canada.

MOTAR CAR SPEEDS ABROAD

Forty miles an hour is a speed which is seldom exceeded in England on the road, despite the fact thot many motorists talk glibly of fifty miles an hour an sixty miles an hour as easy everyday achievements.

As a matter of fact really large and powerful cars, which are easily capable of fifty miles an hour or more, very rarely indeed go at more than a mile or two above forty, because most of the roads do not permit it.

Not only so, a car which will attain and maintain forty miles an hour with ease will rarely, if ever, bore its occupants, because it is fast enough quickly to put behind it any uninteresting pieces of straight open road.

It is really only on the Continent that the big cars are often driven at higher speeds, as, of course, there are many parts of France over which fifty to sixty miles an hour is just as safe as forty miles an hour in England.

SHIPPED 100 TONS

The bleak, barren Scotland, says a telegram from St. Catharines of the 18th inst., last year shipped 100 tons of raspberries to the fertile Niagara district. This is the proud boast of Andrew Spaulding, Mayor of Blairgowrie, Scotland, who is making a tour of Canada.

He is delighted with what he has so far seen here, but he takes pride in stating that Blairgowrie, which has 1,500 acres in raspberry cultivation, sent that quantity to Senator E. D. Smith's establishment at Winona in a parboiled condition. They grow three tons to the acre in his country and sell at thirty-five pounds sterling per 2,240 lb. ton. Mayor Spaulding will visit the Canadian West and Pacific coast.

Control Your Coal Expenditure

In the Gurney-Oxford range you will find more exclusive features, more essential improvements that appeal to the thrifty housewife than have ever before been found in any one kitchen range.

But most important of all is the Economizer.

This clever device for regulating the drafts saves 1 ton of coal in every 6 that you would burn in the ordinary range. It takes the smell of cooking out of the kitchen and sends it up the chimney. You know what that means.

The Economizer enables you to absolutely control the amount of coal you wish to consume and still have a perfect heat for cooking. It will enable you to keep your fire going while you go out shopping or visit your neighbor, and all that is necessary for you to do on your return is to press the small lever and you are assured of a hot fire in a very few moments.

A removable nickle trimming makes it easy to keep this range always bright and new in appearance.

Of paramount interest also are the other remarkable and exclusive attachments—the Special Grate, the Divided Flue and the Broiler.

Every woman who knows owns a Gurney-Oxford.

BASEBALL.

AN $18,000 LEMON

Washington, Aug. 19.—They don't think much of Larry Chappell, the Chicago White Sox outfielder, here in Washingon. Chappell's playing during the recent series between the White Sox and Nationals, one hit in 14 times up, good for an average of .071, being the best he could do.

The Nationals say Bunny Leibold, who was a team-mate of Chappell at Milwaukee, is a better player than the $18,000 (?) player.

A MAGIC HEALER

During an exciting ball game a player had two fingers of his right hand badly bunged up, and on his way home from the grounds dropped into a doctor's office to have them attended to.

"Doctor," he asked anxiously, "when this paw of mine heals will I be able to play the piano?"

"Certainly you will," the doctor assured him.

"Gee! You're a wonder, doc., I never could before."

TY. COBB WILL NOT PLAY ON COAST

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 19.—Ty Cobb will not appear on the coast this winter. This anouncement is official. He may play here next spring. This latter statement is based on rumor that circulated yesterday.

For the past month and a half negoations having been going on to get the "Georgia Peach" to winter in Southern California. Ed. Maier attempted to secure the mighty Tiger to play with his "Select Kids" every Sunday during the winter season. Word was received yesterday that President Navin, of the Detriot Club, absolutely refuses to allow his star to appear in exhibition games here.

VETERAN PLAYER FOR SALE

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 19.—Before the Cincinnati Nationals left Pittsburg it was reported from their camp that waivers had been asked on Suggs, Sheckard, Egan and Bates, veterans of the team. It was said that all the clubs had waived on the two Reds, Bates and Egan, and that Cincinnati is trying to make deals for them with American League Clubs.

All the clubs also have waived on Suggs, for whom Joe Tinker, the Reds manager, had been trying to make a trade for some time. The pitcher has been very unsuccessful with the Reds this season, not having won a game that he had started in since last May. He feels that he could do better with some other club.

HIGH PRICES SHADOWED BY THE TY COBB $100,000 OFFER

The $100,000 price set on Ty Cobb, the Georgia peach, if offered, will equal the sum of the sale prices of Cobb's four or five nearest competitors in the baseball market. The Pittsburg Pirates paid $22,500 for Pitcher Marty O'Toole. The White Sox paid $18,000 for Larry Chappelle. Rube Marquard was brought from the Indianapoils American Associaion team for $11,000. Fritz Maisel joined the Yankes a few days ago and cast about $16,000. Boston Americans bought Jack Thoney from Toronto for $10,500. Lefty Russell, once with the Athletics, brought $10,000 to the Baltimore Club. Cobb's salary is said to be $15,500 a year. Since he joined the Detroit Club, Cobb's batting average has never fallen below .300. In 1911 he batted .420 the next year .410. Last year his average was nearly .400

GRIFFITH CAN THANK YEAGER

Washington, Aug. 18.—Had it not been for the advice which Joe Yeager, a veteran on the Montreal team, gave to Griffin regarding Chick Gandil, it is doubtful if the star first baseman would now be a member of the Washington Nationals or not.

When Griffith started out to get Gandil, he naturally wanted to satisfy himself as to his ability before he forked over a lot of money. He found that there was a variance of opinion among the players and managers of the International league as to how good a player Gandil was. He finally consulted Yeager, who at one time played for him at New York, and Yeager was a strong booster for Gandil, saying that he was the best first baseman he had ever seen. Yeager's praise decided Griffith and Gandil was purchased. The deal is proven one of the best the Washington club has ever figured in, and the clubs—and there were many after him—who allowed him to come here have had reason to regret that they did not boost the price that the Montreal club received for him.

THE RING

WELSH-RITCHIE BOUT OFF

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 18.—Owing to an injury to his right hand which Freddie Welsh received while training, it is announced that his bout scheduled for Labor Day with Willie Ritchie for the lightweight championship had been indefinately postponed. The promoters of the bout, however, announced that they were making an effort to subsitute Leach Cross or Harlem Tommy Murphy for Welsh.

JEFFRIES REALLY DRUGGED

New York, Aug. 18.—The direct statement that James J. Jeffries after his defeat by Jack Johnson at Reno sought and secured direct proof that he had been drugged before the battle with the negro is made in a signed article written by a New York sporting editor and published in an evening paper Saturday night.

The statement follows in part:

"Jeffries hired one of the greatest detectives agencies in the world to run down the facts. The details gathered make up a complete story of the most sordid plot that ever turned fair sport into a sure thing gamble. Possibly Johnson would have won in any case, but the clique that handled the betting made it a certainty by drugging Jeffries with the help of men who were in his confidence and had the run of his camp. They cleaned up a fortune through betting commissioners stationed in many cities. In Paris alone they wagered $24,000 and won $40,000. In Reno and San Francisco and Los Angeles and New York their gains went into the hundreds of thousands.

"The tip for the big killing was received by the waiting commissioners less than 24 hours before the fight when the gamblers knew that Jeffries was safe.

The first plot was broached in a back room; he last man, necessary to its success, accepted his part in a meeting in a Reno alley two nights before the fight, after having learened that he could make no more money with Jeffries and that he could win more by turning Judas. One man whose available cash was also secretly wagered on Johnson smilingly posed as a friendly advisor of Jeffries during the fight."

Many a man who growls all day goes home and kicks the dog for barking at night.

ROWING

DURNAN AND GREER MATCHED

Toronto, Aug. 18.—Eddie Durnan Saturday received the following telegram from Eugene Buckley, sporting editor of the Boston Globe:—

"Greer will row you for the championship for $1,000 a side, either on Toronto Bay, on Sept. 27, or on the Charles River. Give or take $100 for expenses.

"Boston will give a $500 purse if the race is rowed on the Charles River on October 13."

Durnan wired acceptance of the challenge, and named Toronto Bay as the place, where the race will be rowed.

CIRCUS AND HIPPODROME

Splendid Bill Prepared For The Canadian National Exhibition this Year.

The circus and hippodrome at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, this year will be the most varied and interesting than ever before. A specialty has been made of trained animals, and elephants, lions, horses, dogs, sheep and swine will act as if they had human intelligence. Then there are a swarm of acrobatic acts, each of which has a world-wide reputation, swarms of clowns to furnish the laughs, equestrienne acts, chariot races, auto polo, and a few thrillers. Add to all this to the musical ride, the musical surprise, a big cadet number. Nero and the Burning of Rome, the Wreck of the Airship, and a double bill of fireworks and you have to admit that the Canadian National Exhibition is keeping well ahead of the procession in the matter amusements.

DINES UPON COLD LEAD

Grub Eats Lead Off The Telephone Wires.

T. E. Grainger, manager St. Mary's Ont., and a district manager of the Bell Telephone Company, made a unique discovery in the Bell telephone system at Parkhill. The telephone of the local newspaper, the Gazette, refused to answer or transmit messages. The staff endeavored to locate the trouble but failed, and services of Grainger was called ni. He found everything all right in the connections in the Gazette building. He then went to the cable box with which the Gazette telephone connects. He found one of the lightning arresters dead. On investigation he found about half an inch of the lead wire connection gone and a reddish grub in the tube at the end. After considerable shaking the grub dropped out. It was found to be about half an inch long, very much of the appearance of a Buffalo moth and about twice the size. It had innumerable smalll legs and was covered with fine hairs. When placed on paper it ran across it with incredible speed. Mr. Grainger ound another arrester in the same box gone no doubt destroyed by the same insect. It is stated that several places have reported the destruction of lightning arresters similiar to this, but the real cause could not be located. Mr. Grainger bottled up the insect and sent it with the tube down to the head office for inspection.

THE DROUTH

From Lindsay to Bobcaygeon there is a stretch of country that has not had a shower of rain for six weeks. The meadows are literally burned bare of any sign of growth. In many fields hardly a green blade of grass appears.

Much of the grain is very short in the stalk. It is pathetic to see the cattle eating the dead grass. Only weeds, and they are not very numerous, seem to be thriving.

One was told of a farmer with nine cows who, for a week or so, had only half a pail of milk each day. There was a promise of rain on Saturday night, but the storm covered only from Whitby to Port Perry. Still in a land of lakes and rivers, wide stretches of farming land are dying of thirst.

A BUMPER WHEAT CROP

THOUSANDS OF MEN REQUIRED

This Year's Harvest promises to be bo the largest in

THE HISTORY OF CANADA

According to present indications the wheat crop of 1913 will be the greatest ever harvested in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta, thus requiring the farm laborers of the East to assist in harvesting the world's greatest bread basket.

The Governments of the respective Provinces state that many thousand men will be required for this year's harvest. These will have to be principally recruited from Ontario, and the prosperity of Canada depends on securing labor promptly. The Canadian Pacific, on which Company will fall practically the entire task of transporting the men to the West, is already making special arrangements for this year. Excursions from points in Ontario to Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta will be run and special trains operated, making the trip in about thirty-six hours and avoiding any change of cars or transfers. This will be a day shorter than any other route. Dates, rates and conditions will be announced in a few days.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

TO COERCE BULGARS.

Turkish Troops Advance After Defeating Garrison.

SOFIA, Aug. 19.—(Can. Press).—The Turks have occupied Kuchuk Kakvak, in the Gumuljina district, after an engagement with the small Bulgarian garrison. It is believed to be Turkey's intention to occupy and hold the territory westward to the Mesta River, not with a view to its permanent occupation, but in order to compel Bulgaria to treat direct with Turkey on the question of Adrianople and thus prevent interference in this situation by the powers.

There are some instances that Greece is acting in collusion with Turkey. Greece has announced her readiness to evacuate Xanthi, Gumuljina and Dedeaghatch next Thursday, with the suggestion that Bulgaria occupy them the following day. Occupation Friday is impossible, owing to the difficulties of communication, and Bulgaria has requested a postponement of the evacuation and occupation until Aug. 28. The opinion is expressed, however, that Greece will adhere to her plan to evacuate Thursday and thus enable the Turks to occupy these towns in advance of the Bulgarians.

Wants Only Adrianople.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 19.—The council of ministers decided today to send a note to the powers announcing Turkey's willingness to evacuate all territory west of the Maritza River on condition that the Ottoman Government be permitted to retain Adrianople.

TO LICENSE AGENTS.

Insurance Underwriters Favor Regulating Sale.

OTTAWA, Aug. 19.—(Can. Press.)—That the federal government should issue licenses and that no person should be allowed to sell life insurance unless he had a license was the contention of President John A. Cory of the Life Underwriters' Association of Canada at their annual convention today.

Two hundred members of the convention were welcomed by Mayor Ellis on behalf of the city and by Premier Borden for the Dominion Government.

The premier said that it was important to provide for the security of those who are left behind when a man dies. It is also important that the public should be secured by having companies strong and substantial, and he could bespeak the interest of the minister of finance in any efforts they would make in this regard.

Mr. Cory opposed taxing insurance premiums, and said that the association should support the companies in their fight against this.

He maintained that the practice of rebating should be made a crime by Dominion statute and that the authorities should bring offenders to justice.

He strongly condemned the practice of "switching," which some agents try to work. That is persuading a man to let his policy in another company lapse, the agent making him believe that he is giving him a much better policy in the company he represents.

There is $1,070,265,556 worth of life insurance in force in Canada.

MAY BAN JOHNSON.

Pugilist is Causing a Commotion in London.

LONDON, Aug. 19.—Jack Johnson is billed to give a boxing turn at the Metropolitan Music Hall, Edgeware road, on Monday evening. The announcement has created some indignation, and it is believed the licensing committee of the London County Council, which controls music hall licenses, will intervene. Before Johnson had been convicted of white slave practices, public opinion here compelled the cancellation of his fight with Wells, and it will be a strange thing if, with his present record, he is tolerated on the London stage. Music Hall Manager Tozer says:

"We do not attach much importance to any feeling that on moral grounds he ought not to be engaged. He is carged with something not a crime under our law. If a black man goes from one city to another here with a white woman there is no legal offence; in America there is. The use of the term 'white slavery' in connection with Johnson's case is misleading if we consider white slave laws of England."

FOUL PLAY SHOWN.

Evidence Shows Hugh Hassan Was Victim of an Assault.

TORONTO, Aug. 20.—According to evidence adduced at the inquest into the death of Hugh Hassan, the aged man who was clubbed unconscious on the banks of the Humber River on Aug. 5, his death was not the result of a kick by a horse or a fall. The inquest was adjourned and will be resumed Wednesday evening next at 8 o'clock.

A connected story of the old man's mumblings as heard at different times by five adults and a child establishes the identity of Hassan's assailant as a dark, short, stout man of about 60 years of age, with a dark mustache and wearing a light-colored suit of clothes. The only time he attributed his injuries to a kick from his horse was when first met on Tuesday afternoon by little Gladys Gough, and then only as an interjection between appeals for protection from his unnamed murderer and descriptions of the man's appearance.

BOSTON, Aug. 19.—(Special).—Miss Elsie Burr, one of the wealthiest young girls in Boston society, today began work as a nurse at the Children's Hospital in the Back Bay.

Miss Burr was one of the prettiest debutantes last winter. Her father, I. Tucker Burr, a banker, gave her a gorgeous coming-out party. A brilliant social career was predicted for her. Suddenly she announced her determination of following the lead of a number of other Vincent Club girls, by becoming a nurse. To complete her course in training it will be necessary for Miss Burr to spend three years in study of the theory and practice of nursing.

Model School Opens.

CHATHAM, Aug. 19.—(Special) The Chatham model school opened here today under Principal J. W. Plewes, with an attendance of 41. The regulation number to be admitted in the model school this year is 40, but it is quite likely that this number will be far exceeded in Chatham.

The cases in question are mostly typhoid fever, and the doctor threatens that prosecution will follow if the cases are not all reported when discovered.

He was wading across and slipped into a deep hole. The body was recovered after an hour's search and was conveyed this evening to Simcoe. Dr. Vardon, the coroner, says that if the town was provided with a pulmotor the drowned man might have been resuscitated.

SHELLS UNPOPULAR.

O. R. A. Competitors Criticize Mark VII. Ammunition.

LONG BRANCH, Aug. 19.—(Special).—A stiff wind from the east played havoc with the marksmanship at the second day's shooting of the O.R.A. meet here this afternoon, as is evidenced in the dearth of "possibles" returned by the sharpshooters.

So far the shooting has not been nearly as accurate as on former occasions, which is set down to the new Mark VII ammunition. On the first day the men were content to withhold any criticism on the new shells, believing it was a matter of getting used to them, but today various kicks were heard, that not only is the pointed bullet susceptible to the wind, but that some shells are of a higher velocity than others. The King's Prize winner, Pt. W. A. Hawkins, again failed to shoot up to expectations, and he lays his innaccuracy entirely to the new ammunition.

W. Simmonds, of Alberta, with a score of 69 out of a possible 70, won the silver medallion and $25, for first place in the Duke of Cornwall and York match, closely followed with seven competitors with 68. The seven tied for second place, shoot off Wednesday for the medallion for second honors, but will divide the prize money for the seven places.

In the final shoot off of the City of Toronto match at 800 yards, Q. M. S. Inst. W. R. Dymond, R. C. R., captured the gold medal and first prize money of $25, with a score of 117 out of a possible 120. Three tied for second with a score of 115, and divide second, third and fourth money.

First place in the team prize event of the City of Toronto match, went to the 43rd regiment of Ottawa, with a total score of 328, closely followed by the Royal Canadian regiment with 322.

The Pellatt challenge trophy was carried off by the Ottawa Collegiate Institute, with a total score of 217, second place was won by the Calgary Collegiate Institute, with 213. Cadet Sgt. D. McWilliams, of Calgary C. I. led the individual scoring with 47 out of a possible 50.

MINERS ARRESTED.

One Hundred Strikers Are Jailed on Vancouver Island.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Aug. 19.—(Can. Press).—One hundred arrests had been made up to 6 o'clock this evening in the coal mine strike zone on Vancouver Island. The presidents of the union at Ladysmith, Nanaimo and Cumberland are in jail, charged with rioting, and charges of attempted murder and arson are yet to be laid against some of the hundred taken to prison last night and today. Forty-seven were arrested in Nanaimo during last night and 13 more were added this forenoon.

In the early hours of this morning, under cover of darkness, the special police, who have been greatly augmented within the past two days, accompanied by soldiers, passed from house to house in Ladysmith and arrested 29 men, alleged to have been implicated in the rioting and disturbances of the past week.

Body Found at Niagara.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Aug. 19.—(Special.)—The body of a man about 45 years old was taken from the river below the falls in the lower river by the Maid of the Mist today. The name of the L. H. Baker Company, Buffalo, men's wear dealers, on the shirt worn by the victim leads to the belief on the part of the authorities that the body is that of a Buffalo man. Coroner Harry H. Eames, who has charge of the case, hopes to establish the floater's identity thru the laundry mark "E.I.G." on the neckband of the shirt and the inscription on the signet ring worn by the man. The initials on the ring are either "J.M." or "J.J.M."

BRITISH OFFICER IN GERMAN PRISON

Lieutenant Brandon Was Permitted to Keep Cat For Companion —Not Ill-treated

Lieut. Vivian Brandon of the British Navy told an interesting story to a London newspaperman of his two and a half years' imprisonment in a German fortress for espionage. He exhibited a beautiful tortoiseshell cat, named Josepha, which shared the latter months of his detention and the animal is now his constant companion.

"She was of good service to me," the young officer said, looking at his pet, "an unobtrusive companion, helping me to avoid brooding over my position; and she shared my meals with me— little pieces of fish and meat and portions of milk that I saved for her. When I looked at Josepha, placid and peaceful on my table, my discontent was softened, and I became resigned to my lot."

Lieut. Brandon, in company with Captain Trench, was convicted of espionage in Germany, and was sent to the fortress of Wesel.

"The citadel of Wesel," he said, "is enclosed by grass-grown ramparts which shut out for me all view of the country beyond with the exception of three church steeples which protruded into the sky above. There was a special building set apart for military offenders undergoing detention, in which I was allotted a room of fair proportions. The number of other men detained varied from five to eleven, and were Germans as a rule, mostly confined for duelling. With these men I was permitted intercourse within limits, taking my meals in their company and remaining with them a short while at the conclusion of the meal. But after the escape of Captain Lux, the French officer convicted as a spy, the regulations were increased. No intercourse was permitted, and after exercise my door was locked.

"I rose at seven o'clock each morning, had breakfast at eight-thirty and from ten till eleven-thirty had my exercise walk within the ramparts, accompanied by a non-commissioned officer. Then at noon I had dinner and took another walk of an hour and a half in the afternoon, had supper at seven and was in bed by eleven.

"In the intervals I read German authors, like Goethe and Schiller, my object being to improve my knowledge of the German language, with which I was only slightly acquainted at the commencement of my detention. But I made progress until I was able to attempt translations, and I always wrote my letters in German.

"After about eighteen months I was removed to Koenigstein in Saxony. My room there was built into a solid wall, and life was somewhat different from that at Wesel. The opportunities for exercise were more prescribed, being limited to a small well-like courtyard. As at Wesel a sentry supplied with ball cartridge kept surveillance at my window during the night. Animals can only be kept by permission of the fortress commandant, but as soon as I was installed I asked the officer of Koenigstein for permission to bring Josepha there. He acceded at once, and he further suggested that I should occupy myself by gardening. Tools were obtained for me and I raised a promising crop of flowers, and I was especially proud of my radish bed. My health generally was excellent, the second fortress suiting me better, because the air was more bracing."

Lieut. Brandon was quite unprepared for his release, which came about as an act of courtesy on the part of the Kaiser when King George visited Berlin. Before he quitted the fortress he was compelled to sign an order expelling him from Saxony, but it was not intimated that the expulsion applied to Germany, and the assumption is that he may return there if he desires.

LAUNDRY HELPS

When buying soap, get it in large quantities, as this usually means a considerable reduction in price, and also because soap improves in quality and durability by being kept.

An excellent hard soap can be made at home from these ingredients: Five pounds of clean grease, one can of potash, one heaping tablespoonful of borax, two tablespoonfuls of ammonia, and one quart and a cup over of cold water. Dissolve the potash in the water, then add the borax and ammonia, and slowly stir in the grease melted and lukewarm, and continue stirring until the mixture thickens; then pour it into a pan to harden, and when firm enough cut into cakes.

Towels that are very soiled and dingy will become sweet and white if treated in this way: Cover with cold water and set on the back of the stove. Add a little pure, white soap, shaved, and the juice of a lemon. Let the water come to a boil gradually. If very badly soiled repeat the process. Rinse in tepid water and then in cold water.

If a cupful of vinegar is put with the water in which colored clothes are washed, it will prevent the color from running.

To bleach handkerchiefs after washing let them stand overnight in water in which a bit of cream of tartar has been dissolved.

Wheat starch, which can be bought in packages, makes the fabric softer and more pliable than does cornstarch. Cornstarch requires about a quarter more water than wheat starch.

For starching lingerie use one teaspoon of starch, one quart of water and half a teaspoon each of borax and lard or wax.

A sheet of sandpaper on which to smooth the irons will be found useful in the laundry.

Keep a few dress-hangers in the laundry, and as soon as a frock is ironed put it on a hanger, so that it will not lose its shape.

Case Dismissed in Stirling Dog Suit

A very interesting case was tried before Morden Bird, J. P., at Stirling last week. W. M. Reed accused Miles Mason of shooting and killing his valuable hound. Both parties are from the neighborhood of Springbrook. During the course of the evidence it appeared this dog with others were a pest in the neighborhood, worrying sheep and causing damage to property. Judgment was reserved until yesterday and the case has been dismissed with costs.. W. Carnew appeared for prosecutor and R. D. Ponton for defendant.

Joint Meeting Re Garbage By-Law

A joint meeting of the Board of Health and the special committee appointed by the Council, pursuant to Ald. Robinson's motion referring to the garbage bylaw, took place last evening in the city building, when the question of modifying the scope of the bylaw was thoroughly discussed in all of its bearings. All of those present, excepting Ald. Robinson, were in favor of the present form of the bylaw. The Mayor and Dr. Yeomans spoke strongly against any modification of its scope. Ald. Robinson spoke in favor of having such a measure applied to the thickly settled sections of the city only. He said that in the outlying districts there was no need of such a bylaw, especially where householders had hens, horses or cows, which was the case in very many instances. He also said that in many cases the garbage collectors were calling at houses where no refuse material was to be had, but, nevertheless, these people were forced to pay for a service for which they had no need. This, the Alderman thought, was nothing more or less than a farce.

Dr. Yeomans said that a very unsanitary condition, as to garbage, existed in connection with some of the hotels and boarding houses, and that in the interest of the health of the city he would not allow this condition to exist a day longer; in fact, several summonses had already been issued and served.

Mayor Wills said he thought the bylaw would not be strictly enforced during the winter months.

Those present at the meeting were: Mayor Wills, Dr. Yeomans, A. McGie, Aldermen Robinson and McFee, and all took part in the discussion.

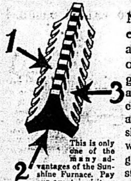
Furnace Grates on the Right Principle



Note the three surfaces, each of which will last as long as the ordinary one surface grate. A gentle rocking is usually all that's required but any clinkers happening to form are ground up by the massive teeth of the four grates with very little effort. The grate bars are so constructed that a volume of air passes freely to all parts of the fire.

This is only one of the many advantages of the Sunshine Furnace. Pay our agent a visit or write for the Sunshine booklet. It shows you why it pays to install this furnace.

Death Shattered Dream of Father For Reunited Family

MONTREAL, Aug. 19.—Leaving his wife and two-year-old child in a small hamlet on the Zuyder Zee, Julius Myrenser immigrated to Canada just eleven years ago. He went out west and worked hard, saving every cent he could. He was 53 years old a month ago, and decided to return to his native land.

Altogether in his elven years of hard work he had managed to save $2,500. He booked his passage on the C. P. R. liner Barcelona to Rotterdam, and was in the best of spirits and health when the liner sailed from here and for most of the way across.

He told the officers of how he was going to his 13-year-old daughter who he had not seen for eleven years, and how he was going to spend a holiday in his home town and then bring his wife and daughter back to his farm in Alberta.

When the ship was four days out from Rotterdam he fell ill, and although every aid was rendered, he died in the evening and was buried at sea. His wife and daughter were at the dock to meet the ship and were heartbroken when the news was broken to them.

Allow Man in Love To Lie to the Woman If he Lies to Win

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—When a man's in love he cannot be deemed responsible for anything he says to win the Only Woman in the world—the woman he adores..

So the learned Supreme Court Justice Guy rules. To quote the Justice "It is also a well known principle that in the state of mental exaltation accompanying courtship, statements made as to mental, moral, or financial qualifications of the accused may not be too closely scrutinized, nor shall they be held to a strict accountability therefor."

Phillip Cusick fell in love, courted the fair Hilda. In a state of mental exaltation he told her, she vows, that he was a chauffeur earning $30 a week; that he had $2,000 in the bank. The trustful Hilda married him, only to learn that Phillip was a property boy at the Hippodrome at $13.50 a week Discovered Phillip fell into mental depression so deep that it engulfed him. He vanished..

"With great regret," Justice Guy said, he denied Mrs. Cusick's request for counsel fee and alimony.

Port Hope Celestial Bites White Man's Finger

PORT HOPE, Aug. 19.—One of our local celestials and a town baker had a dispute yesterday morning which will have to be ventilated in the Police Court. The Chinaman informed the baker that he had an account against him of 40c for laundry, and the baker disputed the same, claiming it was only 30c. The baker, while endeavoring to reason with the Chinaman shook his finger in the latter's face and the Chinaman quickly grapped it with his teeth and bit it severly. Three stitches were necessary to close the wound and now the Chinaman will have to tell all about it in the Police Court on Thursday morning.

Finance Minister Back in Fortnight

OTTAWA, Aug. 19.—Hon. W. T. White, Minister of Finance, who has been in England for the past two months, sails next week for Canada and is expected in Ottawa about September first.. Hon. Martin Burrell sails for Canada Aug. 27..

Mr. White's visit was primarily for a holiday trip and for rest, but has kept in close touch with the financial situation and with his department.

This fall a four million dollar loan at 4 per cent, matures. It was the expectation that it would be paid out of revenue, but there are rumors that Mr. White may secure a temporary loan. However, nothing definate will likely be decided until after Mr. White's return. The Financial Minister expects to take a Western trip shortly after his return.

The Lady Highbrow.

It was a lady highbrow
Conversing on a car.
I heard her mutter: "My, how Common some folks are.
Our sense of cosmos jarring!
They make me weary quite."
I saw her partner sparring
For time or air or light.

And then I heard her gasping:
"With you I quite agree,"
And then in tones most rasping:
"What's cosmos? Pray tell me."
The lady highbrow, preening
Her feathers like a bird,
Said, "I don't know its meaning,
But it's a splendid word."

Death, Expert Mechanic.

"It is," writes Wilhelm Lamszus in "The Human Slaughter House," "as though Death had scrapped his scythe for old iron, as if nowadays he had graduated as expert mechanic. They have ceased to mow corn by hand nowadays. By this time of day even the sheaves are gathered up by machinery. And so they will have to shovel our millions of bodies underground with burying machines."

As to falling in battle: "Once it was a knightly death, an honorable soldier's death; now it is death by machinery. That is what is sticking in my gullet. We are being hustled from life to death by experts, by mechanicians. And, just as they turn out buttons and pins by wholesale methods of production, so they are now turning out the crippled and the dead by machinery."

CHAPTER X.

THE CORN HUSKING.

It was the last week in October when Stephen Westover invited the young people of Bentley to his annual corn husking and pumpkin pie supper. A visit to the Westover farm always meant an excellent time, and when the invitation was received, a general preparation for the event went into effect.

Samson's large hay waggon and four speedy roadsters was arranged for at twenty-five cents a head, with the understanding that Samson was to take his fiddle along and provide the music for the hour or two of dancing that usually followed the repast.

With the hay-rack half full of clean oat straw, and boards nailed on the sides for seats, Samson met the company at Kendall's Tavern, where it had previously been arranged that all should collect on the stipulated evening.

As the school at Crow's Corner had been closed for a week because of an epidemic of measles in the district, Delilah was having a vacation on full pay; and, as had become her custom upon such occasions, she sat beside the driver, where she could watch the action of the spirited four-in-hand, led by the prancing chestnuts.

Twenty couples had embarked, and the horses were about starting on their five-mile trip, when Samson's keen eyes discovered Henry Rollins standing in the shade of a tree on the opposite side of the road. Quietly handing the reins to Delilah, he dropped from the wagon, and going over to the isolated Rollins, grasped him by the arm, and marching him to the wagon, lifted him bodily to a seat beside Theresa Harding. Without a word he climbed to his seat, and gathering up the reins firmly in his hands, with a chirp, sent the four off at high speed.

The horses were unusually lively on the way, for the boys and girls were filled with laughter, chatter and song, and the road being in excellent condition, the distance was covered in about half an hour.

As the young ladies were being helped from the wagon by their escorts, Henry, forestalling Samson, who was busy with his team, lifted Delilah from the elevated seat, and together they walked into the barn as if by previous arrangement.

The husking took place on the barn floor, between the two great hay-mows. There was a large amount of the product, and Mr. Westover had so planned the time that there would be but few idle moments up to the hour of supper, which was to be partaken of between nine and ten o'clock.

The huskers were arranged in a circle, with a large box in the centre as a receptacle for the stripped ear, Delilah and Henry sitting side by side. To make the work the more interesting, it was voted that the one who uncovered the first red ear should kiss each of the opposite sex present. Delilah was the first victim; but being modest, she hedged on going the round. Upon being pressed to fulfill her duty, she kissed Henry, and told him to pass it round, which was done to the satisfaction of all present.

At ten o'clock the last ear was stripped, the floor cleared and swept, and when the call came to file into the large dining room, all were ready to attack Mother Westover's sumptuous repast, with whose excellent cooking each was familiar.

Then came the hour for dancing, for which the husking brigade had waited impatiently. Precisely at eleven o'clock Samson's ringing voice called: "Form on for Money Musk," which was followed with Fisher's Hornpipe, Portland Fancy, and the Irish Washerwoman. Then as the notes of a waltz sounded from the violin strings, Henry and Delilah floated out on the floor. They were both expert dancers, and glided among the others with a grace that attracted universal attention, Rollins adding a fancy step or two whenever they came near the musician.

The waltz ended, William Houston stepped to the floor center and asked for a hearing. "We all know that there is a bad feelin' 'tween Henry Rollins and Samson Haskell, that ought not to be," he announced. "As the winter is coming on, and we are arranging for our usual good times, it has been voted by me an' Bill Feltus, an' Fred Ingram an' Ab Kendall, that, bein' as it were one big an' affectionate family, nothing but the best of good feelin' should exist. Whilst it hain't for me to point out who was to blame for the disagreement, I propose that Henry and Samson shake hands before us all, and call it they are friends agin. As many as are in favor of Henry an' Samson becomin' friends agin' after the manner I have spoke of, raise their hands." All hands went up. "It's a vote," announced Houston.

Henry, taking the floor, stated that as Samson had slapped him in the face, and rolled him in a mud puddle, without just cause or provocation an apology was due him before the whole company, from Samson. He would then be willing to shake hands and forget the incident.

Albert Kendall, who was familiar with the facts that led up to the trouble, explained that Henry had disputed Samson's right to come between himself and Delilah Gaylord, allowing himself to make statements that were not true, and promising the whole village the pleasure of seeing him whip Samson the first time they met. Then he told how Henry had pitched into Samson, with the unique and justifiable results.

Henry, branding Kendall as a liar, declared he had witnesses to prove that he was assaulted by Samson, who was a coward, and didn't fight fair.

Theresa Harding interfered with the assertion that Samson Haskell was anything but a coward, and Henry Rollins should be ashamed of himself for acting as he did.

William Feltus, springing to his feet, threatened to throw Henry upon the hay mow if he again called Samson a coward. "I'm tolerable well acquainted with the fact that Samson can lick Hank Rollins with one hand and if he can't——" but Lorinda Kendall, drawing him down beside her by the coat, bade him not to stir up more strife.

By way of putting himself right with his comrades, Samson said there was no wish on his part to continue the hard feeling. While he did not understand that Henry had any legal claim on Miss Gaylord's steady company, and while she did not refuse to drive out with him sometimes, and while Henry had no right to interfere with Miss Gaylord's better judgment he was anxious for a peaceful settlement, and for the sake of the nice, social times they had always enjoyed and for the good of the young people in general, he would do anything with in reason to bring about a friendly feeling.

Frederick Ingram credited Samson with talking fair, and claimed Henry should meet him half way. But as Miss Gaylord was the innocent cause of the disagreement, she should be privileged to voice her feelings in the matter. He voted that Miss Gaylord be given a chance to speak, and whichever way she cast her net, the fish which she caught should submit, the other taking it as a sign that he was not her choice.

Delilah did not approve of being put to a test, but she stepped forward without hesitation, her blushing face and laughing eyes indicating that she enjoyed the unique situation, and particularly her own connection with it. She expressed herself as surprised at the rivalry that existed between Henry and Samson, but assumed no responsibility, as she had encouraged neither. Henry's company was acceptable because he had always been a friend of the family, drove a nice team, and took her to the neighborhood parties. Samson was a part of the farm, always accommodating and respectful to her. As one of the household it would not be polite to decline his invitations. But the subject of marriage had never occupied her mind, and she had no preference either way. She positively disapproved of any street fights, even for a girl, and the contestants could retain her friendship only by ceasing such exhibitions, and being good friends.

Theresa Harding, who was of a romantic turn of mind, proposed that the gladiator who could perform the most daring feat should take the prize. She believed that what was worth having was worth striving for, and they should be made to prove their mettle.

Theresa's idea gave Feltus an inspiration, and he suggested a horse race over the new cattle-show track, the winner to take the girl.

Delilah was instantly upon her feet. "Bill Feltus, you ought to be ashamed to make such a proposal. I want it understood that I shall not be a subject for gambling men. Such proceedings must stop, so far as I am concerned. No respectable girl would allow it for a moment."

But Feltus, always good at arguing, explained how it could be made a most interesting occasion without bringing reproach upon any of the participants. If Miss Gaylord did not wish to bind herself to marry the successful lover, he would arrange for an oyster supper to be given at Ogden New Year eve, which all the present company would attend, she to go in the company of the winner of the horse race; no agreement to be holden after that date, unless agreeable to both parties. So nicely did Feltus plan the affair that Delilah finally agreed, providing the contest be private, and none but those present admitted to the grounds.

Feltus promised, the event to occur one week from the following Saturday, weather and track permitting. Each of the company would be provided with a ticket, and under no conditions would outsiders be admitted.

Henry asked to be permitted to train his Blackhawk colt on the track, but Feltus refused, stating that to be fair, both trotters should be strangers to the course. The race should be kept secret, as it would not be right to expose Miss Gaylord to criticism. It was also specified that the defeated candidate for the young lady's favor must withdraw all attentions, and give his successful rival the right of way; that betting, or any manner of speculating would not be allowed, and each must do their training apart, and unknown to anyone.

"Who are to be the judges?" asked Theresa, suspiciously. "We want the race to be fair, with no cheating."

"Disinterested judges will be appointed," replied Feltus, in a business tone; "and any jockeying will forfeit the race."

All were pleased with the prospect of a permanent ending of the long existing rivalry between Samson and Henry, and when the two stepped forward and shook hands, each with a cordial grasp, a cheer went up from the company that made the old barn ring.

About one o'clock the party broke up with a vote of thanks to the host and hostess for their royal entertainment, the hay-rack again took on its load of merry-makers, and in due time the team drew up a Kendall's Tavern, where the party bade each other good-night.

Upon reaching the home yard, Delilah assisted in unharnessing the horses, even to fastening her pet chestnuts in their stalls. But while she chatted pleasantly in a general way, and prepared a lunch upon entering the house, no mention was made of the coming race, neither feeling free to speak of William Feltus' unique mode of settling the Haskell-Rollins differences.

THE INFIELD FLY RULE

Fine Point in Baseball Not Generally Understood

There is still a little confusion about the exact operation of the infield fly rule. This rule declares the batter to be out whenever he puts up a fly ball that can be handled by an infielder, with the first and second occupied, provided there are not two men out at the time. This does not apply to a line hit, but any high fly which an infielder can get under. The rule does not apply if only first base is occupied. There must be runners on both first and second and less than two out. This rule was adopted a number of years ago in order to avoid the chance of a cinch double play, which often came up before this rule was put in force. With men on first and second and only one or none out, if the batter lifted a fly ball to an infielder, said infielder, if a foxy player, could muff or trap the ball, failing to catch it on the fly. Of course, in that case the runner would be forced to advance, and the fielder, if a smart player, could force two of them out and thus get a double play, which could not be prevented in any way by the batting side. Of course, if only first base was occupied he would not get a double play on the fly ball for the batter could always beat it to first if he ran it out, but with first and second both occupied it was easy to make a double play, hence the rule. As soon as a fly of this nature is hit the chief umpire is required to declare the batter out while the ball is in the air. It does not make any difference then whether the ball is caught or not so far as the batter is concerned. He is out anyway, and the base runners are not forced to advance, but may hold their bases. This declaring of the batter out on such a fly prevents a double play of a cinch variety. Now, the infield fly does not have to be caught to retire the batter, who is out anyway as soon as he puts up the ball and is so declared by the umpire while the ball is in the air. But it makes a difference to the base runners whether the fly is caught or not. If it is caught by one of the infielders it is the same as any fly ball and they must hold their bases until the catch has been made. But if it is muffed or allowed to fall to the ground without being touched the base runners do not have to retouch their bases and may continue to the next bases, if they can make their way there without being touched with the ball. This is a point which has caused quite a good deal of argument. Some have claimed that the runners had to remain on their bases until the ball was either caught or muffed or allowed to hit the ground. President Lynch, of the National League, however, decided that this is not the case. If the ball is caught the players must hold their bases the same as on any other fly ball. But if it is not caught they do not have to go back and touch their bases and can go as far forward as they are able to. This is a good thing for young players to remember.

Girl Who Will Not Grow

The Smallburgh, Norfolk, Guardians received an intimation that a girl, aged thirteen, has not grown for some years. The county medical officer advised that she should have thyroid extract to make her grow, but the district medical officer refused to supply the extract at his own cost, as he did not contract to increase the stature of any Poor Law patient.

Kingston Woman Drank Carbolic Acid

KINGSTON, Aug. 20.—While in a despondent mood, sitting in the waiting room at the C. P. R. station, about ten o'clock on Tuesday morning, Mrs. Redden, about thirty years of age, wife of Frand Redden, employed as a cab driver, took a small bottle containing carbolic acid from her handbag, and drank a portion of the contents. She was attended by Dr. Donald Fee, and rushed to the General Hospital in Corbett's ambulance, and it is believed that she will recover. She did not take a very big dose of the poison. At the hospital, Tuesday afternoon, it was stated that Mrs. Redden had every chance of recovery.

After taking the poison, Mrs. Redden walked over to the ticket office in the station, and asked the ticket agent to telephone to the cab stand, where she thought her husband could be found, to tell him that she had taken the poison. Mr. Flett first telephoned for a doctor and an ambulance, and afterwards notified the cab stand, and the husband of the woman came over. After being attended, the woman was placed in the ambulance and taken to the general hospital.

The police were also notified, and Constables Mullinger and Armstrong were soon on the scene, and took charge of the bottle containing the poison and the woman's handbag.

Two postal cards were found in the woman's possession, and both had been written in lead pencil. One was for her husband, and read: "Frank, come over to the Kingston and Pembroke railway station. I have taken poison."

On the other card she claimed that trouble had led her to take the poison. She wrote this message on the postal card after she had taken the poison. Mrs. Redden's home is near Olden, where her parents reside. She was married to Redden about two years ago.

Pedestrian Falls From C. N. O. R. Bridge

At a few minutes after ten o'clock Wednesday night, calls for help were heard emanating from the river where the C. N. O. R. bridge crosses it.

It appears that a man named H. Howe, who lives outside of the city, was walking across the bridge when he slipped and fell into the water, which fortunately at this point is neither deep nor swift. His cries for assistance were heard by Walter Roblin and James Hayes, who rescued him. Other than sustaining a thorough soaking, Howe was none the worse for his fall. It is fortunate that he fell in where he did, or he might have met a watery grave.

Everybody Present But the Prisoner

MONTREAL, Aug. 20.—When the thirty witnesses or so gathered yesterday at the morgue to give evidence in regard to the murder of George Muir, found las week with his throat cut, the most important witness, William Campbell, the negro held on the theft charge was not present. Coroner McMahon neglected to issue an order to the authorities at Bordeau to produce the prisoner. Some of the detectives were angry owing to this lapse of memory.

ACTION TO BE TAKEN WILL BE SIMPLE.

Ottawa, Aug. 21.—Special—John E. Mac, acting Assistant Attorney of New York State, was in town yesterday for two hours in consultation with the immigration officials regarding the Thaw case. Mr. Mac secured from the department a statement of its intentions to deport the fugitive, as follows:

"Two of our most experienced men are watching the case, and the action which will be taken is simple. The matter has been left entirely in their hands."

Mr. Mac left the city on an afternoon train, presumably to return to New York.

ST. MICHAELS ANNUAL PICNIC PROVES A HUGE SUCCESS

A Record Crowd Throngs the Pleasant Grove—Provisions Ample, and Sports Closely Contested—The Baseball Game.

The annual picnic under the auspices of the congregation of St. Michael's church was held yesterday in their grove, which is familiarly known as Holton's grove, situated on the western boundary of the city.

As usual it was in every way a decided success. For days, preparations were being made for the event by the erection of booths, dining hall, and dancing platform, and when yesterday arrived everything was in "apple pie" order for the event, which is anxiously looked forward to, not only by the members of the congregation, but by many other citizens. From early morning all roads leading to the grove were traversed by many vehicles bearing happy picnickers. . By noon a large number had gathered, and in the afternoon there were probably four thousand persons upon the ground, many of whom had come from a considerable distance. From 12 to 2 o'clock dinner was served and hundreds were able to partake of a most tempting repast, which the ladies had provided. Hundreds also visited the enclosure for supper. The service was all that could have been desired. The grove is certainly an ideal place to hold such a gathering, as trees are numerous, thus providing ample shade for all who desire to sit beneath the overhanging branches. During the day the Fifteenth Regiment band was present and discoursed a number of appreciated selections. During the day and evening nothing occurred to mar the pleasant proceedings.. As the shades of night approached the grounds were illuminated by electric lights, and with the aid of the regimental orchestra, dancing was indulged in to the delight of many participants. During the day and evening the several booths which were scattered about the grove were liberally patronized.

SPORTS.

In the afternoon in addition to the baseball match, a programme of sports was carried out. In the various events there were many participants, and in more than one case it was compulsory to have a second trial to decide the winner of the prize. Liberal prizes were offered for all events.

The events and the successful competitors were as follows:

Boys' race, 15 years and under—B. Bunten, M. Hitchon, W. Ross.

Running hop, step, jump—J. Alexander, 34 ft. 4 in.; J. Phalen, 34 ft.; M. Callaghan, 33 ft. 4 in.

Running broad jump—Geo. Ketcheson, 15 ft. 4 in.; J. Phalen, 15 ft.; T. Barrett, 14 ft. 6 in.

Running bases—P. Mills, 15½ seconds; J. Kelleher, 17½ seconds.

For third place F. Goyer and R. Muir were tied, and in the second trial Goyer won, completing the circuit in 17 seconds.

Single ladies' race—Susie Carroll, Alice Carroll, Bessie Shannon.

Girls' race, 8 years and under.—Reta Hunter, Alice Doyle.

BASEBALL MATCH.

The baseball match between the Ontario and G. T. R. teams proved to be a great attraction, and the game was witnessed by the greater portion of those who were upon the grounds. It was anticipated that it would be a good game, and such it proved, victory finally perching upon the banner of the G. T. R. team. The latter had secured as pitcher, Stanley Cook, who is said to be one of the best twirlers in minor leagues of Toronto, and he can certainly pitch ball, but he had nothing on our own city boy, Fred Goyer, who pitched for the Ontarios. Up to the seventh innirgs the game was close, the score being 3 to 1 in favor of the Ontarios. In the seventh innings the G. T. R.'s secured 2 runs, and in the 8th, 3 runs. When the ninth innirgs was reached, the score was 6 to 3 in favor of the G. T. R. In their last innings the Ontarios, by good batting and base running, tied the score by securing 3 runs. The G. T. R.'s, however, secured the winning run when only one player had been retired. It was in every respect a good game and some excellent plays were made by members of both teams.

Mr. P. Logue was umpire, filling that position in a most creditable manner. During the game Mr. Scott, one of the Ontario team, had the misfortune to break a finger, and had to retire from the game, Frank Goyer taking his place. The line up of the teams was as follows:

Ontarios—O'Connor, s.s.; J. Kelleher, l.f.; Gerow, 1b.; Mills, c.f.; Smith, 2b.; Hogan, r.f.; Goyer, 3b.; Scott, 3b.; Bates, c.; F Goyer, p.

G. T. R.—Symons, 3b.; M. Simmons, l.f.; L. Gerow, r.f.; D. Simmons 1b.; Tallion, c.f.; Muir, s.s.; W. Simmons, 2b.; W. B. Simmons, c.; S. Cook, c.

Score by innings—
Ontario . . . . . 1 1 1 0 0 0 0 0 3—6

NOTES.

Amongst the visitors in attendance was His Grace Archbishop Spratt, of Kingston, who was formerly Parish Priest here.

Many Priests from the surrounding district were present to participate in the day's outing.

Much credit is due to the ladies of the congregation for the success of the picnic.

AIRSHIP WAS TOWED BY COMPANION.

London, Aug. 20.—The novel sight of an airship towing her disabled companion was witnessed at Aldershot this afternoon. The British army airship, Eta, and a naval airship were out manoeuvring when the machinery in the latter vessel became disabled. The Eta attached a hawser to the other dirigible and towed her to the factory for repairs.

Keep Belleville's Fair in Your Mind

The work of organizing for the Belleville Fair to take place September 1st and 2nd is now well under way, and nothing will be omitted tending to make it a mammoth success. As Mayor of the city, His Worship, J. F. Wills, is in the middle of the enterprise, and purposes to remain there until the day of days with a view to making Belleville come into her own as an Entertainer and up-to-date in things of an agricultural nature. Watch for the attractive program that is now being prepared.

Looking for $50,000 Of Stolen Jewelery

MONTREAL, Aug. 20.—Detective headquarters got word to-day of a burglary committed Monday in Hermann's jewellery store, Newport, R. I., by a gang of professional jeweller thieves. A negro named Jackson discoved the ransacked mahogany show cases, but the safe was untouched. The Hermann people claim to have lost $50,000 of goods and submitted a long list of jewels to the attention of detectives all over Canada and the United States.

Most of the time the professional jewellery thieves upset jewels and sell the stones to some small shops in foreign cities, at one-third the value, and these in turn sometimes succeed in deceiving the larger establishments as to the original ownerships of the gems.

WALT MASON ON THE PANACEA

If talk would banish trouble, we'd all be gay, by jing! And grief would be a bubble, an evanescent thing; there'd be no tears or wailing, or sorrow unavailing; this life would be plain sailing, all men would dance and sing. If talk would solve all puzzles beneath the starry flag, there'd be no use for muzzles, no man would wear a gag; there'd be no need of toiling to keep the pot a-boiling; we say farewell to moiling and loaf and chew the rag. If talk would bring us guerdon, or lighten up the load; if talk would ease the burden or mend the rocky road, the toiler and the tiller, the merchant and the miller, would cease to hump for siller—there'd be no spur or goad. But talk, though it were coming from Cicero or Burke, won't keep the wheels a-humming, won't take the place of work; the working man's a daisy; the talker's sphere is hazy; he soon grows fat and lazy and shiftless as a Turk. Talk brings no diminution of sorrow in the soul; no stunts in elocution will fill your bin with coal; no large, high sounding phrases will scare the wolf, whose gaze is a terror when like blazes the wintry tempests roll.

TWO STEEL DREDGES, FINEST IN DOMINION, BUILT AT OTTAWA

Government Works at Victoria Island Turns out Huge Apparatus – Two Hundred Men Employed.

OTTAWA, Aug. 20.— Two large steel dredges, equal in capacity to the best in the Dominion, have just been turned out, less than ten minutes' walk from the Parliament Buildings—at the Victoria Island Shipyard.

"The past year has been the most active and successful in the history of the yard," said an official of the Engineers' Branch of the Public Works Department, this morning. "We have just turned out two of the finest dredges in the Dominion, and considerable other work is under way. The new dredges will be used by the Department for dredging at St. John, N. B., and Canso, N. S. There are upwards of two hundred men employed in the yard—the largest number that we have a record of, and taken all in all the prospects for the future of the plant are exceedingly bright."

Asked regarding the report that a number of men were recently laid off and were unable to obtain their pay, the official stated that owing to the completion of the two large dredges mentioned, some few of the men had to be laid off for a while, but that in every case their wages had been paid them.

The secret of frying fish crisp and brown without either egg or bread crumbs it to dry it well, dredge both sides with plenty of flour and plunge into boiling fat. Be sure that the fat is boiling and have plenty of it as upon that depends the crispness and brownness of the fish.

To keep the nickle on your stove shining, wipe it with a wet cloth while hot and shine with a woollen cloth.

When cleaning a stove that has been splashed with fat from the frying pans, the best plan is to take a piece of rag and dip it into the soft soot at the back of the stove, rubbing the greasy parts before applying the blacking. This improves the appearance of the stove and you can polish it without difficulty.

The beauty of old china is often destroyed by brown spots which appear on the surface.

An effective way to remove these is to bury the dish in the earth, covering it completely.

The darker spots require more time to remove them than the lighter ones. This method will not harm the most delicate china.

DROWN IN BREAKERS IN A HEAVY SEA

Albert Harrington While in Swimming at Woodbine Avenue Beach Gets Caught in Undertow of Huge Waves and Despite Gallantry of Brother-in-law, Loses His Life.

TORONTO, Aug. 21.—With waves dashing five feet high on to the beach, the body of Albert Harrington lay on the sand for over three hours while a doctor and many willing helpers tried by every means in their power to bring back the spark of life. Three tanks of oxygen were pumped into the lungs from the pulmotor of the Toronto Electric Light Company, but without avail. In a house within a stone's throw was the young wife of the dead man, from whom the news of the accident was kept until it was certain that there was no hopes left that her husband could be revived.

Harrington, who lives at 208 Woodbine avenue, had gone down to the beach at 9 o'clock together with J. Lapp and A. Lapp, his two young brothers-in-law, to bathe. Harrington could not swim, but the two younger men, both under twenty, could swim a little. The trio waded out on the sand bar that runs out into the lake at this point, and after standing for a short time while the heavy waves broke over them started to return to the shore.

Without hesitation A. Lapp went after him, but the drowning man in his struggles seized his would-be rescuer round the neck, and it was with great difficulty that Lapp was able to break away. He had a hard struggle to get to the shore owing to the backwash of the heavy swell that was running.

His brother made an attempt to recover Harrington and became exhausted by the efforts he made, but fortunately A. Lepper of 47 Woodbine Beach and Herbert J. Flood of 22 Woodbine Beach, attracted by the boys' shouts, arrived on the scene and pulled them into safety, going into the water with their clothes on.

The boys had hardly been safely taken from the water when the body of Harrington was thrown on shore by the waves. Dr. F. R. Clemens was summoned and the pulmotor phoned for, but owing to the long distance it had to come, it was half an hour before it arrived.

Attracted by the news of the accident, the residents of the beach flocked to the scene, and there was no lack of ready helpers in the efforts made to resuscitate the man. For three hours the doctor would not abandon hope, but shortly after that time the body began to get cold and it was fruitless to keep up any longer the gallant efforts.

Harrington was a man of 30 and worked at the Oxy-Acetylene works on Queen street. He had been married four years. There are no children.

Queen's Graduate Drowned.

KINGSTON, Aug. 20.—(Special.)—A telegram to Mrs. Frederick Johnson of the village of Moscow brought the sad news that her daughter, Miss Marie Johnson, was on the steamer "State of California," wrecked off the Alaskan coast on Sunday morning, and that she had been drowned. Miss Johnson was well-known in Kingston, having graduated last spring at Queen's University as bachelor of arts. After convocation she went west to teach school.

Lost His House by Fire.

CHATHAM, Aug. 20.—(Special.)—A bad fire, the origin of which is unknown, took place early this morning, when the house occupied by Henry Smith, on Communication road, Harwich, was burned to the ground, only a very few articles of furniture being saved from the front of the house. Mr. Smith and family escaped unharmed. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

FIGHT BEGINS TODAY

Writ of Habeas Corpus Has Been Secured by Counsel.

Action of Judge Globensky of the Superior Court is Awaited With Keen Interest — Immigration Officials Will Thrust Him Across the Border if the Effort to Free Him Succeeds.

SHERBROOKE, Que., Aug. 20.—(Can. Press.)—Harry Kendall Thaw's legal fight against deportation to the United States after his dramatic escape from the Matteawan State Hospital for the Criminal Insane on Sunday morning last, will begin in the open in this Canadian frontier town tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. He is to be produced then before Judge Globensky of the superior court on a writ of habeas corpus obtained by his counsel this afternoon. If the writ is sustained he will be a free man. But for how long he will be free is problematical.

Facing such a situation Stanford White's erratic slayer, ordinarily loquacious, has shut his lips tight, and for once in his life has "refused to be interviewed." He has talked vaguely of matters not appertaining to his escape, but not one word has come from him regarding his flight from Matteawan, or of the inception of the plot that led to his delivery, or of the five men who spirited him away. Of these five, one is believed to be in jail in Sherbrooke. He gave the name of "Mitchell Thompson," and insisted that he was a resident of Toronto. But both Sheriff Hornbeck and District Attorney Conger of Dutchess County, N.Y., who looked him over today, said he was none other than "Gentleman Roger" Thompson, late of New York City, and reputed chauffeur of the black automobile that whirled Thaw from Matteawan at more than 60 miles an hour.

Thompson was idling in the superior court room waiting for the Thaw case to come up when the immigration officers arrested him. He was quickly identified as one of the two men with Thaw when he was arrested near Coaticook yesterday. He denied that he had aided Thaw in crossing the border, and maintained that he had met the fugitive by chance. Notwithstanding his protestations of innocence he was held in $500 bail for a hearing on Friday. Unable to furnish the bond he was remanded to jail. Technically he is charged with aiding and abetting a lunatic to cross the Canadian border, an offence punishable with a $500 fine. If the authorities fail to hold him on this charge, District Attorney Conger will seek his extradition on a warrant charging Roger Thompson with conspiring with others to defeat the ends of justice in liberating Thaw. The warrant is here and ready, but will not be pressed until the immigration law violation has been tested.

Thompson's defence, it is understood, will emphasize (provided he admits coming across the border with Thaw) the contention that Thaw has not been found insane in Canada, and that assisting him to enter therefore was not a violation of the law. In this way the question of Thaw's sanity will be involved in the procedure separate from his own case.

Thompson's arrest in the courtroom today was unnoticed by the casual spectator. The prisoner dodged the camera squad while being removed to jail. Shielding his face with a handkerchief he broke into a run to the alarm of the aged deputy who had him in charge and stopped only when bystanders began a hue and cry. Then, still holding his handkerchief over his face, he went quietly to jail and was lodged in a cell not far from Thaw.

The learned judge did not appear at all, granting the application for the writ of habeas corpus in private."

Thaw remained thruout the day in jail on the crest of a hill half a mile from town. Openly partisan to the fugitive in their gossip, the townspeople nevertheless showed their comparative lack of interest by their absence from the court house. Tho there are 20,000 persons in Sherbrooke, less than 300 came to the court. Of these, 22 were women. There was the usual craning of necks, the usual whispers, and the usual speculation; but shoving and crowding was conspicuously lacking. Officers of the court did not find it necessary to admonish anyone.

District Attorney Conger and Sheriff Hornbeck of Poughkeepsie, waited like the others for the disposition of the Thaw case and departed with the immigration authorities, when it was announced that the application for the writ of habeas corpus had been granted and would come up for argument in the morning.

"I am here to get Thaw," said Mr. Conger. "Get him I will."

"Thaw will surely be returned to New York State," continued the district attorney "probably by deportation, as the Canadian government does not want him on its hands. If not by deportation, then by extradition. We have a lot of possibilities to develop in both directions; in fact it is a matter of choosing the best one. We shall try to do that. Thaw should be back in Matteawan soon. Then we shall see whether he can escape again

Thresher Met Bad Accident.

CHATHAM, Aug. 20.—(Special.)—John McKenzie, a thresher, met with a very painful accident yesterday when he attempted to take out a cock in the bottom of his engine. There was 130 pounds of pressure on the pipe, and it broke, striking him on the head. His face was badly injured.

CUT THE RED TAPE.

Sarah Bernhardt's Lesson to Belgium's Customs Officials.

In the bad old days not so very long ago travelers, when they reached the Belgian frontier, were compelled to leave their compartments in the middle of the night in order to be present at the customs examination of their luggage.

A train in which Mme. Sarah Bernhardt was traveling reached the frontier at midnight, and the customs officials made their customary raid into her compartment. Roughly awakened from her beauty sleep and not in the best of humor, Mme. Bernhardt refused to descend.

The officials uncoupled the actress' carriage, dumped her luggage on the platform and went through it with conscientious vigor.

By this time the train was about ready to start.

"You are not going to leave without me?" cried the actress. "Be so kind as to couple my carriage at once."

"When we have completed our examination," replied the inspector and went on rummaging with redoubled zeal. But he did not know with whom he had to deal. The actress took up a portmanteau, placed it between the rails a few yards in front of the engine and calmly seated herself.

"And now," she said, "you can go on if you please."

The officials were helpless, and the Bernhardt car was attached to the train. This lesson in manners soon afterward produced a change in the Belgian customs.—London Telegraph

Incidental Music.

One afternoon a couple from an adjoining town presented themselves to a Boston divine and asked to be married just as he was about to enter the pulpit to conduct an afternoon service. The minister replied that he regretted that he could not at that moment comply with their wish, but that immediately upon the conclusion of the service he would take pleasure in performing the ceremony. The lovers after demurring seated themselves in the rear of the church. When the minister had finished the service he made the following announcement: "The parties who are to be joined in matrimony will present themselves at the chancel immediately after the singing of Hymn 413, 'Mistaken Souls That Dream of Heaven.'"—Exchange.

Spelling by Ear.

The young French stenographer, whose progress in English had not kept pace with her proficiency in shorthand, was puzzling over some notes she had taken of a recitation at a public entertainment.

As she transcribed them the recitation began like this:

"That's easy," said the expert to whom she submitted the notes. "It is part of a poem that begins:

"Laugh and the world laughs with you,
Weep and you weep alone."

Killed When Top of Tunnel Caves In

MONTREAL, Aug. 20.—While excavating under Guy street at the corner of St. Catharines yesterday afternoon a laborer named Nicolai Teaciuck, who was tunnelling from the southern side of Guy street several feet below the surface, was crushed to death by fall of earth. His fellow-laborers about fourteen of whom were working in the gang, at once went to his rescue and started to dig him out. The alarm was given on the surface and when the ambulance arrived the rescue gang had not appeared with the entombed man.

While the crowd gathered around the hole down which the men went the workers were under the street frantically digging for their companion.

In half an hour the man was taken to the surface—dead.. It was about four o'clock in the afternoon that the event occurred.. Only one hand and a wrist protruded from the heap which covered the unfortunate man. He was working on a narrow bore three and a half feet wide by six inches high, in which to place the conduits to carry the wires which are at present overhead.

The foreman in charge of the work, which is being carried out by G. M. Gest, states that the roofs of these tunnels are always bridged up and this was done in this instance.. His only theory of the cause of the fall of earth was the man himself might have shifted the supporting planks while working.

The Joint Meeting Rè. Garbage By-Law

To the Editor of The Intelligencer.

Dear Sir,—I notice that you have what is alleged to be a report of a joint meeting of the members of the Board of Health and a special meeting of the Council. It is to be regretted that you or your representative were not there to obtain all the facts or the material facts that were discussed. Your report would have been quite different. I do not wish to enter into a lengthy discussion in regard to this matter and as the discussion was fully held Tuesday and no amendment put forth of the by-law in any form that could be brought into use, there was nothing further to discuss. Different views are held in regard to just how to carry the work out efficiently, but as this is a new organization in Belleville we have to give it a trial, and Dr. Yeomans, the Medical Health Officer, is assisting in every way possible, and the Inspector, Mr. Arnott, is giving a great deal of attention to the thorough organization of the collection and disposal of the garbage. Complaints may be lodged with the City Clerk, who is Secretary of the Board of Health, and with Inspector Arnott, who is in charge of the work of the collection.

I trust that in any future reports of public meetings of this nature that you will be pleased to have a representative there so that the facts may be given as they happened and not by hearsay, or get a copy of the official minutes of such meetings.

I remain,

Yours faithfully
J. F. WILLS,
Mayor.

August 21, 1913.

Editor's Note:—The Intelligencer will be pleased to have a representative at all public meetings, if notification of the same is extended. In the above case the meeting was held on Tuesday night, information of which was not given this paper. The report in yesterday's paper was contributed by a member of the Council who was present, and we had every reason to believe that his version was correct.

CANADIAN MARINE

Mr. A. W. Ross, Chairman of the Montreal Harbor Commission, made an important announcement in his report of the business route from the head of the lakes to the seaboard, and the lack of Canadian vessels to do the work . He states that:

"Three broad lines of development are necessary on the Canadian route for grain, and that unless all three are looked after at once, Montreal and the St. Lawrence can never hope to cope with the American cities. The necessary lines of development are: (1) ocean tonnage from Montreal, (2) storage capacity at lake and sea ports; (3) Canadian lake vessels.

"Of the 44,510,182 bushels of wheat shipped from Fort William and Port Arthur via American ports in 1912, only 333,829 bushels were transported in Canadian-owned vessels. The Canadian marine lost this transportation to the American lower ports by its scarcity of vessels, a scarcity which a deep-water channel to the sea would soon not only make adequate, but would divert to Montreal and other Canadian ports the greater portion of the grain trade which now seeks American ports.

"Until Canada has a westbound trade capable of supporting and warranting the building of vessels on a par with American boats, she cannot control the carrying trade from the upper lake ports," says Mr. Ross. "Until Canada furnishes a deep-water channel to Montreal to tap her eastern coal fields, Americans will control the bulk of the grain shipments."

THE PROPOSED LIBERAL "GAG"

Facts are gradually coming to light, showing what the Laurierites intended doing to "gag" Conservative speech, had they remained in power. Yet we hear, them constantly declaiming against the Borden Government for introducing a modified form of "closure," after they had consumed about five weeks in obstructing the passage of the Navy Bill, threatening to continue it five weeks longer, if it required that length of time to defeat it.

The Hon. Robert Rogers, Minister of Public Works, is now in British Columbia, and addressed a meeting in Vancouver on the 18th inst. A telegram from that city informs us that "he produced a copy of a closure bill prepared by Sir Allen Aylesworth which the Liberals intended putting into effect. The closure which they proposed to institute was a guillotine of the worst description, being even more arbitrary than that now in force in the British Parliament.

"Under the Conservative Closure Bill action can only be taken by a member of the Government, and at least twenty-four hours' notice must be given, which permits a continuation of the debate for that period. The Laurier-Aylesworth bill would have permitted any member of Parliament to demand the closure, and if thirty-six members of a House of nearly two hundred and thirty constituted a majority in its favor the debate was at once strangled. No notice was necessary under the proposed Liberal closure bill, thus bearing out Hon. Mr. Fielding's contention that the minority had only such rights as the majority allowed them.

"In view of the guillotine proposed by the Liberals, their wild outbursts of anger at the Conservative measure, Mr. Rogers thought, must have been a carefully prepared effort, relying on the improbability of the discovery of their previous intentions."

Nothwithstanding this disclosure, the air will still be filled with Grit rumblings in condemnation of the Borden Closure Bill, the passage of which they rendered absolutely necessary, to permit the business of the country to be transacted. Could hypocrisy be more conclusively established?

$2,238,600 IN SUBSIDIES

A report from Ottawa of the 18th, inst., says: In subsidies to steamships the Canadian Government will pay this year $2,238,600. For this sum the mails are carried free and freight and passenger service maintained on the ocean and coastal routes for the development of foreign and domestic trade.

The principle service is that on the Atlantic between Canada and Great Britain. Under the new contract made this year the Government is paying one million dollars annually for a tri-weekly service performed by 12 steamships, instead of $600,000 a year for a weekly service by four steamships as formerly.. The new contract is with four companies: The Allan, The C.P.R.,. The Canadian Northern and The White Star-Dominion.

In former years the contract was with the Allan who divided up the subsidy and sailings with the Canadian Pacific.

On the Pacific there are several ocean service contracts, chief of which is that between Vancouver and Hong Kong, China, which calls both ways at Yokohoma, Japan. This service is performed by the Canadian Pacific Company, the yearly subsidy being $225,000, of which Canada pays $1_5,-000 and Great Britain $100,000.

A subsidy of $180,000 yearly is paid for a monthly service between Vancouver and Auckland, New Zealand, 6,366 miles.

The subsidized steamship service having the longest route is, that between Canada and New Zealand, via the Atlantic, the distance between terminal points being 15,650 miles, for which the subsidy is $120,000 yearly.

STRATHCONA AT NINETY-THREE

The recent passing by Lord Strathcona, High Commissioner for Canada, in London, of his 93rd birthday, has brought that noted public man much congratulation. Discussing his career the New York World aptly says:

"Could Strathcona recall the memories of the adventureres who were the companions of his youth and who took the sunshine and the storm with as strong a body and as brave a heart as his own, he would find that most of them are dead—some lost in the woods, some drowned in the rivers, some frozen in the snows, some perishing of starvation. Thus would he learn that safety is not always found in the midst of danger; nor is health most surely gained by giving not heed to it. The real moral of such a life as his lies in its usefulness. In itself it is not important that men should live to be ninety-three years old."

Strathcona, 93 years of age, is simply an old man, like many others in the world. But he claims peculiar interest and admiration because his life has been filled with work. From the summit of the peak to which he has climbed he may look down the years and find each one a period of progress. Even today he does not rest in the contemplation of what he has accomplished, but pushes on, working, achieving, proving that the labor of former years was not due to impulse and founded upon the anticipation of ultimate rest, but due to faith in work as a creed. So Strathcona scorns the prize of rest that is his for the asking; he was playing the game of life as a true lover of the sport and the thought of duty done is his most cherished reward.

The retirement of Lord Strathcona from his official position is rumored in the press. Nothing exists in the lesson his career teaches to support the rumor. So old a man, so long in service, may require release from official burdens to grant him the best guarantee of a maximum lease of life. If it be so, let Strathcona retire. But many will hope it is not so, that the greatest argument for Canada as a land of opportunity for young men may yet remain to win new honors and receive new evidences of the confidence and devotion of the people he has served so long and so well.—Ottawa Journal.

THE GRAND TRUNK'S "SAFETY FIRST" MOVEMENT

With its usual ambition for safety throughout its extensive and progressive system, the Grand Trunk Railway is now inaugurating "a Safety First Movement" which cannot but minimise casualties within its limits. The corporation is now pushing this work as rapidly as practicable, and ere long the entire system will be replete with improvements in this regard, as indicated elswhere by an article in to-day's issue of The Intelligencer.

Too much credit cannot be given the Grand Trunk Railway for its untiring efforts to provide safe travel for its patrons, and we are assured that this latest safety movement will prove all that is expected of it.

The Brantford taxpayers are joining the fashionable mode of striking to accomplish their ends, and have formed a taxpayers' strike project. Owing to the condition of the roadway they will refuse to pay the charges thereon when tax bills are due in October. Although the paving company has received several ultimatums to repair the street, nothing has been done, while the alleged nuisance has prevailed for several months. Other municipal taxpayers will watch the outcome of this strike with interest.

A cable from Berlin, Germany, of the 19th inst. says: "Bishop Koppe of Luxemburg, has started to crush the love of finery and teach the women of the little Grand Duchy over which the 19 year old Grand Duchess Adelaide reigns, modesty. When a school teacher knelt before him for a blessing the Bishop angrily placed her headgear over her face. This week in another town one of the most prominent women knelt beside him for his blessing. The prelate said in a loud voice: "Straw on the head, straw in the head." Bishop Koppe frequently preaches on the immodesty of women. The feminine Grand Duchy is very much upset over the remarks of the Bishop." The Bishop has undertaken a difficult task, and will fail.

A NEW 1914 MODEL TRUCK

Model 4—Light Delivery Truck.
Capacity, 1,500 lbs. Price, $1,550.
Wheel Base, 122 inches. Tires, 35 x 5.

Cut Down Delivery Costs

HORSE delivery isn't what it used to be.

It costs a great deal more to-day to operate a horse-and-wagon system than, say, ten years ago.

As a matter of fact, few owners know what their horses are costing them—probably less than one per cent. of horse owners know.

But there's one thing that every horse owner knows—that it's mighty hard to-day to buy a good horse for $250. And even at best the horse's span of usefulness is brief and is continually growing less. Those that reach five years in the city streets do unusually well.

The trouble is that city life as at present constituted is not suited to the horse. He's too remote from nature. Cobblestones, burning or icy pavements, noise, excitement and lengthening routes prove too much for him. In a few years he's ready for the discard, with the original purchase price, veterinaries' fees, and high feed costs chalked up against him.

Merchants who have taken stock of these facts, are reducing delivery costs, and side-stepping horse troubles by using

McLaughlin-Buick Trucks

"Built to Deliver the Goods"

A McLaughlin-Buick Truck is "built to deliver the goods" and does it. It does this with probably less attention than any other motor truck made. This means it costs you less to run it. The possible saving as a result runs all the way from 15 to 45 per cent.

ALWAYS ON THE JOB

A McLaughlin-Buick Truck is weather immune. Heat cannot affect it, nor cold. It does not have to "lay off" to rest one day in five like a hard-worked horse.

It enables the merchant to keep promises, to satisfy customers, to reach out and get new business, and it is always a live advertisement for the firm that employs it.

STRONG CONSTRUCTION

The frame is so constructed as to withstand the excessive strains of a dead load. The new McLaughlin-Buick frame is 4½ inches deep by 4 inches wide at its greatest width—pressed steel, hot riveted—three-point suspension. The sub frame is quickly demountable with the power plant, making it possible to take out the entire power plant together with the sub frame, without disturbing other frame connections.

The axles are heavy, I-beam front, semi-floating rear, with 1½-inch main shafts and heavy Hyatt bearings—the most liberal axles ever provided on any truck of similar capacity.

SIZE AND CAPACITY

Model 4, as illustrated, has a minimum capacity of 1,500 lbs. The wheel base is 122 inches, and the CARRYING SPACE IS 98 INCHES LONG "BACK" OF SEAT, BY 43 INCHES WIDE.

SPECIFICATIONS

Special L-head motor which guards against abuse from speeding; 4 cylinders, cast en bloc; thermo-syphon coaling system; transmission, 3 speeds forward and one reverse; left hand drive, centre control; tires, 35 x 5 oversize pneumatic; bodies, choice of regular express with wing boards, standard express with screen sides, standard express with stakes, or full panel top.

PRICE
(Truck Illustrated)

The price, completely equipped, including combination oil and electric side and tail lamps, two gas head lights, Prest-O-Lite tank, tire irons, bulb horn and complete set of tools. $1,550.00 f.o.b. Oshawa.

Goats' Milk.

In Russian and German hospitals for children much use is made of goats' milk as being more nourishing than cows' milk and also free from the risk of spreading tuberculosis.

A Little Bird Told Me.

The words "a little bird told me" have their origin in Ecclesiastes x. 20. "Curse not the king—no, not in thy thought—and curse not the rich in thy bedchamber, for a bird of the air shall carry the voice, and that which hath wings shall tell the matter."

Hides and Skins.

The United States is the world's greatest importer of hides and skins, notwithstanding the fact that it has a larger number of cattle than any other country except India, and it draws upon every part of the world for some of the numerous kinds of hides and skins which it requires. Cattle, horse, buffalo, sheep, goat, pig, kangaroo and even fish skins are included in the material of this character imported, and several other animals would be included in the list if the tanned skins imported were taken into consideration.

OTIS CRANDALL GOES BACK

New York, Aug. 20.—Otis Crandall, pitcher, whom Manager McGraw of the New York National league club traded to the St. Louis team for catcher McLean was taken back last night by McGraw. St. Louis in turn received a cash consideration amount not named, and a player, also not named, whose delivery will be made as soon as the pennant race is settled. Crandall was dissatisfied with his new berth.

OVERLOOKED ONE UMPIRE

Here's a new version of an old one told on Ping Bodie; Ping was riding on a street with a fellow White Sox. They were looking over the box score of the previous day's game in the morning paper. Finally Ping spoke up:

"It says here, Umpires, Messrs. Evans and Sheridan. I saw Evans and Sheridan, but never got a flash of that guy Messrs."

"He was the outfield umpire," answered Bodie's companion. "Didn't you see him out there on the scoreboard?"

"Oh, was that the mug?" replied Ping. "Well, he didn't make any decisions."

"There weren't any close plays in the outfield yesterday," replied the other, "that's why."

TORONTO GETS NEW CATCHER

Toronto, Aug. 20.—Pres. McCaffery of the Toronto ball team, returned from New York this morning He had purchased Catcher Brown from the Boston Nationals, and he reported yesterday. He is a young fellow, 23 years old, and from reports very promising. He was last year on the coast.

Outfielder Callahan, secured in the Northern deal from Brooklyn, is due to-day. George Stallings says he is a fine player.

Wilson, the outfielder received from Dallas, Texas, is 22 years of age, stands 5 ft. 11, and weighs 173.. He will be here Friday or Saturday..

Catcher Fisher, with Toronto a year ago, now with Brooklyn is rapidly entering the star class. Brooklyn has refused $7,000 for him.

Catcher Trout, with Peterboro, will report to Toronto after Sept 1, and Pitcher Herbert and Infielder Isaacs after Sept. 14.

Catcher McNeal, Pitcher Penfold, Infielders Thompson and Swartz, with Peterboro; Jones with Scranton, will not report here this all..

Dick Rudolph has Toronto before the National Commission for three days' pay. Toronto claim they owe him only one.

THE OLD CHICAGO TEAM

When Pitcher Ed. Reulback was traded by Chicago to Brooklyn this month, the deal marked another step towards the final breaking up of the great Cub Machine that won National league pennants for the Windy City in 1906, 1907, 1908 and 1910.

It was just ten years ago that Edward Marvin Reulback, a mere broth of a lad on the right side of twenty-one, and not over six feet two inches in height, made his professional debut. On the uniform that encased his manly form appeared the word "Sedalia," indicating that he was a member in good standing of the Sedalia, Mo., club of the Missouri Valley league—later, the Western association—later the Oklahomo-Arkansas-Kansas league—later defunct. Lawson, p., was the way his name appeared in the box scores, for which alias there was a reason not unconnected with the fact that, under his proper monaker, Mr. Reulbach was captain and pitcher of the baseball team of Notre Dame university. Before going to college and Sedalia he had played with the Manual Training school team of St. Louis and the Triple A league of the same city. Thanks largely to the twirling ability of our hero, Sedalia won the Missouri Valley league pennant in 1913 by a wide margin.

In 1904, at the conclusion of the college siesta, or semester, Reulbach again put on his baseball togs and his alias, and played with Montpelier, in the Mountain State league. There he attracted the attention of the Cubs and his release was brought from Sedalia, which still has a mortgage on his services. He speedily twirled himself into fame and into the hearts of the fans.

As a pitcher, Reulbach at his best had few superiors in the game, and his prowress with the pill was of no small assistance in copping four flags for the Cubs. In Sedalia he had a reputation as a batter, doing over .300, but in Chicago his stick work gradually grew worse until it almost reached the vanishing point in the batting averages.

THIS SCRIBE SAYS "TOO MUCH COBB"

(In the Philadelphia Telegram)

Judging by the work of the Detroit Tigers during their series in Philadelphia, when they lost two game out of three and were in a fair way to win another until rain called a halt, there is too much first-class ability in the combination for it to be down in the second division. A week pitching staff early in the season undobtedly preved quite a handicap to the Tigers, but the explanation or the team's showing in this season's race mey be summed up as "too much Cobb."

As an individual star, there is no question about the greatness of Tyrus As a drawing card he brings tens of thousands of fans to the ball parks in the Johnson circuit. But when it comes to the effect which his magnetic personality has on the teamwork of the Tigers, it is probable that the Detroit team would be better off without the wonderful Georgian.

Cobb is too much in the limelight in every game. He keeps the rays of the light focused on himself constantly by his magnetisms. Some of this may be forced by the attention of the fans, who go to the parks with the idea of picking out Ty as a special candidate or favors. They cheer him for making hits or capturing flies and they are equally as eager to jeer at him for striking out, for popping up flies or making errors.

With Cobb the whole show of the Detroit team it is no wonder that there is a let down in the effectiveness of the entire conbination. Towards other clubs the favors of the fans are fairly well distributed. With the Tigers it is Tyrus who from the spectators' standpoint is the whole show..

How much a handicap this condition is on the Tigers no one can tell, but that the club has other stars who are deserving of getting into the limelight is certain. Their efforts, though, are almost passed unnoticed..

HE NOW BELIEVES IN "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

Because He No Longer Suffers With Headaches

TAYLORVILLE, ONT.

"I was a sufferer from Fearful Headaches for over two years. Sometimes, they were so bad that I was unable to work for days at a time. I took all kinds of medicine, was treated by physicians, but yet the Headaches persisted.

A short time ago, I was advised to try "Fruit-a-tives" and I did so, with I must confess, very little faith. But after I had taken them for three days, my Headaches were easier and in a week they left me.

After I had taken a box of these tablets, my headaches were quite cured. My appetite was always poor and my stomach bad—and now my appetite is splendid and my digestion excellent.

I had become thin and weak from the constant Headaches but now not only have I been cured of all these awful Headaches, but my strength is growing up once more and I feel like a new man"

BIG BOUTS AT VANCOUVER

Vancouver, B. C., August 20.—Willie Ritchie world's lightweight champion, will remain in Vancouver for the next five weeks and will defend his title on two occasions.

Owing to the injury sustained by Freddie Welsh, and which forced him to abandon the holiday bout, Eddie Moy was substituted by the promoters last night. Moy who is Wesh's sparring partner has appeared in several bouts at Brighthouse arena, and has made a good impression.. He stopped Ollie Kirk in five rounds in New York City three months ago, but since that time has taken on weight rapidly, and will meet Ritchie at 135 pounds ringside. They will box 15 rounds.

Ritchie will defend his title against Welsh on September 20, physicians stating that Welsh will be able to resume training in two weeks.

LIFE SAVING RULES FOR WATER LOVERS

A Few Hints by a Noted Swimmer Modes of Rescue in Drowning Accidents

A person has to learn to swim by getting into the water and striking out. At the same time there are certain truths that the average man would not likely teach himself even if he spent much of his spare time in the water. An observance of these rules will not teach a man to swim, but they will teach a swimmer to save a non-swimmer who falls into the water, and they may teach him to save his own life when through an excess of intrepidity he finds himself in the clutch of somebody he is attempting to rescue.

Mere strength will not break the desperate grip that a terrified drowning man takes of anyone who ventures within his reach, and the fear that both the victim and the would-be rescuer will both be drowned has no doubt deterred many a competent swimmer from attempting a rescue.

It is scarce less important to know how to safely approach a drowning person than to know how to swim says L. De B. Handley, a noted swimmer and life saver. Mr. Handley says that the most important thing for a would-be rescuer to remember is that at the outset a few seconds lost is not important. Men have been restored after having been under water and apparently drowned for a long time. He advises that time be taken for the rescuer to remove the outer clothing.

Take Time to Think

While this is being done, the rescuer should do his thinking, so that by the time he strikes the water he knows exactly what he is going to do. If the accident occurs in running water, and the drowning person is under the surface, the search should not be started below the spot where he has disappeared on the assumption that the body has drifted down. Start above the spot, and go down under water with the current, saving every ounce of strength.

On locating the victim, seize him by the hair or by the clothing at the back of the neck, or by the upper arm, and propel yourself to the surface with downward strokes of the free arm and leg drives. Do not run the risk of pushing from the bottom unless absolutely sure of a footing, for many swimmers have been drowned by sinking in the mud or by becoming entangled in the weeds. Once on the surface it requires little extra effort to tow an unconscious person to shore. The victim should be turned face upward as soon as possible.

Co-operation Helps

If the person to be rescued retains his self-control it is a simple matter to take him ashore, and the proper method is for the exhausted one to place one or both hands on the shoulders of the swimmer, who will scarcely feel the weight. Another good method is to turn on the back, beneath the rescued one, and supporting him in the arms swim to shore with the feet.

The subduing of a frantic struggler can be done with safety only from behind. He should be grasped by the wrist, and then swung round. One arm of the rescuer should then be thrown over his neck, and the forearm under his chin. In this position he cannot seize the swimmer with both arms, and his head is kept above water. With one arm the competent swimmer can easily make his way ashore.

Choking May be Necessary

Mr. Handley advises seizing a struggling person by the throat and shutting off his air, if he has obtained a grip on his rescuer. This will usually make him loose his hold. It is important to notice that while roughness may be necessary in order to break a drowning man's grip, once he is ashore he should be handled with the utmost gentleness. On no account should he be raised by the feet in order to let the water run out of his mouth. This practice is almost certain to result in death or lasting injury.

Ingenious Spiders

The Royal Society of Great Britain was recently entertained by a distinguished traveller with an account of a spider living in Australia which makes its habitation along the seashore, in the crevices of the rocks, between high and low water marks. But when the tide is in their homes are covered with water. Instead of deserting them, however, the spiders solve the difficulty by means of closely woven sheets of silk, which they stretch over the entrances, behind which they manage to retain sufficient air to keep them alive during the time they remain submerged.

BOXING ON HORSEBACK

New Sport Introduced by Versatile Frenchman

M. de Coubertin, well known for his advocacy and practice of sports and particularly for his patronage of the Olympic games, has invented a new sport, which he demonstrated to a circle of friends in Paris.

It is boxing on horseback. Such an exercise does not appear feasible at first sight, since the "base" is unstable. A horseman can use his sabre a lance, and even a revolver; but is he not debarred from fisticuffs?

M. de Courbertin solves the difficulty by seating his rider on a wooden horse. The object of this curious experiment is to give the equestrian a good seat. If the steed is well-ridden the body and hands are left free for the "noble art."

The inventor of the system claims that it inculcates the proper grip of the thighs, gives security of seat, and, at the same time, exercises the muscles necessary for boxing. It is two lessons in different arts at the same time.

Saves Smokers' Teeth

A new cigar cutter consists of two disks of metal about the size of a dime, a sharp edge on one clipping the end from a cigar as it is thrust through a hole in the other.

No More Game Gallows

For many generations it has been the custom in the Midlands to hang vermin which they shoot on gallows, probably as a warning to others. This custom is to be discontinued on several estates in Buckinghamshire, the owners having intimated that in future they will be satisfied if they receive the feet of the enemies of game. The frequent sights of rows of weasels, stoats, ferrets, jays, and hawks hanging in a state of decomposition will thus be avoided.

Toothache Causes Suicide

Recurring attacks of toothache were stated at a Cosely (Staffordshire) inquest to have been the cause of the suicide of Ada Rose Toy, aged twenty-one, a domestic servant, who drowned herself in a canal.

As Strikingly Evinced.

"I tell you," the man with the goatee was saying as there came a slight lull in the game, "what brings the fans here is the certainty that they're going to see a good game of ball. They want their own team to win, of course, but it's the fine play that"—

"Bosh!" interrupted the man with the white hair and black eyebrows. "They don't care a darn about the fine play. All they want is to see the home team win. I've seen them applaud the other team's errors when they helped to"—

"Rot! They cheer a brilliant play, no matter which side makes it. There are 20,000 people here today not because they are stuck on seeing their own side win, but because"—

Just then everybody rose to his feet, uttered a wild yell and began a rush for the outside.

Only one man was out, and a sure batter was at the bat—

But the man on third had sneaked in with the winning run. The home team had won.—Chicago Tribune.

Pigeons of St. Mark's.

Nothing is more amusing than to watch on a winter's day the marvelous intelligence with which the pigeons of St. Mark's, in Venice, can discriminate between residents and visitors in the Grand square of that city, the Piazza of St. Mark. The moment a foreigner shows his face in the piazza the pigeons set upon him in crowds, hoping to be fed. They do not trouble the natives, who may be sunning themselves by the hundred in the square.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

RAILROAD ROASTED.

Riflemen Have Scathing Remarks at O. R. A. Council.

LONG BRANCH, Aug. 20.—(Special.)—Weather conditions for today's shooting were only fair, the strong wind from the east continued to disconcert the marksmen, while on the other hand all agreed that the light at the afternoon events was perfect for shooting purposes. The shooting was perhaps on the whole a little more accurate than yesterday's, particularly in the Interprovincial Match, won by Ontario's picked team.

The Grand Trunk System, in general, and the service they are handing out to the riflemen in particular, was the subject of some scathing remarks on the part of Majors Dillon and Elliott, at the O. R. A.'s annual council, or "kickers'" meeting, as it is generally, and perhaps more properly, termed.

"They treat us worse and worse every year," vigorously declared Major Dillon. "Last year they did allow us to make use of their regular trains, but this year they won't even accommodate us to the extent of stopping their regular scheduled trains at the rifle ranges."

According to the major, a number of visitors to the ranges were curtly informed by the G. T. R. conductor that the tickets they had purchased to the rifle ranges were of no use in so far as their alighting at this point was concerned. They were told they could get out either at the golf links or Port Credit, which ever suited them the better. They accordingly got off at the golf grounds and lugged their baggage a mile or so, with the thermometer hovering around 90 in the shade.

"If about a dozen gentlemen with a golf stick are on the train, it is stopped for their accommodation, but it's a different story when two or three score riflemen are aboard," vociferated Major Elliott.

FAT BEEF SCARCE.

Guelph Drovers Say Supply is Very Scarce.

GUELPH, Aug. 20—(Special)—Local drovers state that at present fat beef is becoming scarce and that they are experiencing difficulty in securing an adequate supply. They also state that prospects are not any too good for a further supply, owing to the shortness of the straw and the poor hay crop. Of lambs, too, there is a dearth.

Farmers who were wont to keep a flock of sheep, using the roadside for their pasture, have been forced by the advent of dogs and the speed fiend on motorcycles and in autos to abandon this industry. All of these things have had their share in the raising of the price of meat.

Harvesting operations are nearly finished. Peas, which earlier in the season were expected to be a great crop, have proved to be a comparative failure owing to the drought, and will only thresh about half the average crop. Late oats are reported to be slightly rusted. The root crop is holding its own, but is badly in need of rain.

The ground is so hard and baked that the farmers who are preparing the land for fall wheat seeding find it very difficult to plow, in some cases using three horses on a single plow.

MANIA FOR MARRYING.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Vernon Wedded Eleven Times.

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Aug. 20—To be married to each other eleven times since 1909 has been the novel experience of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Vernon, who are at Braddock Heights. The marriage ceremonies have been performed in as many different countries. Asked why he and his wife had been married so often when once usually is enough, Vernon said it was a sort of hobby with them, and they took the step as a precaution because in some foreign countries marriages performed in others are not recognized.

He and his wife were first married in Columbus, Ohio, in 1909, then in Montreal in 1910, in England, Scotland, Wales, France, Germany, Belgium and Russia in 1911, in Sydney, Australia, in 1912 and in Vera Cruz, Mexico, in 1912. They hold marriage certificates of all these weddings and the display is unique.

In some of the countries where they were married they did not understand a word the officiating clergyman was saying, but simply nodded their heads when they thought the time had come to make the responses. They speak French and German. The first time they were married former Governor Herrick of Ohio, then the state's executive, was a witness.

WORKMEN ENTOMBED.

Thirty-Five Men Have Miraculous Escape in Catskills.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—(Can. Press.)—Thirty-five workmen, caught 440 feet underground in a section of the Catskill aqueduct in course of construction under Washington Heights here when fire broke out in the shaft house overhead tonight, were found unharmed two hours later when the fire was controlled. Their chief suffering had been from lack of air, cut off by the pall of smoke overhead.

The fire was a spectacular one, and besides badly damaging the massive shaft building spread to apartment houses closely adjoining it on St. Nicholas place and St. Nicholas avenue. Two of the apartment buildings were burned out and others damaged.

To Study English Mines.

OTTAWA, Aug. 20.—(Can. Press.)—Hon. T. W. Crothers, minister of labor, sails on the Empress of Britain for England tomorrow, and will not be home again until about Oct. 1. He left this afternoon for Quebec, accompanied by Mrs. Crothers, who will go to England with him.

Mr. Crothers is making the trip primarily for the purpose of studying industrial conditions in the old country, and will give special attention to the conditions under which coal mines are operated there. He will seek information regarding miners' unions and the attitude followed by them when a dispute with the mine owners arises. The reason is the recent trouble in Nanaimo and Nova Scotia.

Burglars Rob Cigar Store.

CHATHAM, Aug. 20—(Special.)—Bates' cigar store on William street was entered some time last night by thieves and about $25 in cash removed from a cash drawer. An entrance to the building was gained by breaking a pane of glass in a side window and turning the catch.

Actress' Flat Raided.

LONDON, Aug. 20.—While Grace La Rue was performing last night at the Palace Music Hall, her flat in the Savoy Mansions was robbed of $4500 in American money, $1500 in English money, and jewelry valued at $8200.

Evidently the thieves had a duplicate key and carried out their plans with the greatest deliberation.

Miss La Rue resided in the flat with her husband, Byron Chandler, once called "the millionaire kid," and a woman friend, Miss Schilis. Grace La Rue's home in New York, at No. 907 Seventh avenue, was robbed last April of a sealskin coat valued at $800, and gowns worth $1500, but the thieves were soon arrested and most of their loot was restored to the owner.

Alberta Farmers to Co-Operate.

CALGARY Aug. 20.—The announcement is made that the farmers' organization will erect forty six elevators in Alberta in time to handle this year's crop. The undertaking will cost over $360,000, of which twenty per cent. will be furnished by the farmers, the balance by the government, on twenty years loan, at five per cent. Work is now commenced on twenty elevators.

Escaped Lunatic Caught.

KINGSTON, Aug. 20.—(Special.)—George Frederick, confined in Rockwood asylum for sixteen years, managed to make his escape, and walked to his old home in Belleville. The police took him in charge while he was endeavoring to get into the market house in the early morning for shelter, and brought him back to Kingston.

CLIMBS TALL MOUNTAIN.

Alpinist Ascends 22,000 Feet in the Himialayas.

MILAN, Aug. 20.—(Can. Press.)—Dr. Piacenza, an Italian Alpinist, has succeeded in reaching the summit of Mount Numzkum, a peak 22,000 feet high in the Himalayas, according to a telegram received here today from India. Many vain attempts have been made by English and American climbers to scale this peak.

The mountain referred to is obviously one of the Nun Kum group in Suru ,in Central Southern Kashmir. This group was exhaustively explored by Mr. and Mrs. William Hunter Workman, the famous mountain climbers of Worcester, Mass., in 1906. They made a complete circle of the group, traversing mountains and glaciers previously unexplored and camping at an altitude of 21,300 feet. They climbed one peak of this group to a height of 22,720 feet.

The other notable explorer of the Himalaya mountains was the Duke of Abruzzi, whose work was in another locality.

The expedition included Dr. Lorenzo Borelli as a topographer, and Cesare Calciati, who had accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Workman in their explorations in 1908 and 1911. They also took experienced Alpine guides.

The bride's peak, the greatest height of the Himalaya mountains ever ascended, was climbed by the Duke of Abruzzi. It is 24,600 feet high.

Representative Francis Burton Harrison, of New York, has been selected for Governor-General of the Philippines. President Wilson sent his nomination to the Senate yesterday.

With a subscribed capital of $25,000,000, the St. George's Land Investment Co. of London, England, has purchased the first fifty farms which they intend to acquire near St. Catharines.

More incendiarism is suspected in connection with a fire which destroyed several sheds and stables at the rear of 41, 43, 45 and 47 Henry street and 230 McCaul street, Toronto, yesterday morning.

PEACE DELEGATES MEET.

Universal Congress Holds First Session at Hague.

THE HAGUE Aug. 20. — (Can. Press.)—The chief work of the twentieth universal peace congress at its opening session here today was the adoption of three resolutions dealing with disarmament. The first contained a request that the question of the restriction of armaments be included in the program of the next international Hague conference. The second protests against the sinister influence of persons interested in armament industries. The third recommended the consideration by peace societies of the draft of a general treaty for gradual disarmament. Prof. Quidde of the University of Munich proposed this resolution in order that the next conference shall be in a position to discuss the subject with full information at hand.

All the civilized nations were represented, the delegates in attendance numbering 950, many of whom were women pacificists.

The speakers claimed that in spite of recent events in the Balkans the idea of universal peace clearly was progressing.

DYNAMITE THREATENED.

Militia at Nanaimo Guard Boarding House Closely.

NANAIMO, B.C., Aug. 20.—(C.A.P.)—Rumors of a plot to blow up Vipond's boarding-house in Robson street, where a large number of special police are quartered, have reached the offices of the militia. A strong guard has been thrown around the place. It was asserted that a number of men held a secret meeting and agreed to dynamite the house last night. Another story which is given considerable credit is that a quantity of arms and ammunition has been discovered in the city.

The flooding of No. 1 shaft of the Western Fuel Company commenced this morning, several large centrifugal pumps being employed in drawing water from the harbor and pouring it down the shaft mouth. This will be continued until the workings have been flooded to put out a fire raging there.

As most of the mine is beneath the harbor, the leakage is considerable. There are 100 miles of workings, and once they are filled with water it will take from six months to one year to pump out the mine.

Ex-King Well Guarded.

SIRMARINGEN, Germany, Aug. 20.—(Can. Press).—Extensive police precautions have been taken by the Sirmaringen authorities on account of the presence here of ex-King Manuel of Portugal, who is to marry Princess Augusta Victoria, daughter of Prince Wilhelm of Hohenzollern, in September.

All strangers are placed under strict surveillance, possibly on account of the fears held by the police that an attack may be made on the ex-Portuguese ruler.

Goes to Face Murder Charge.

MONTREAL, Aug. 20.—(Can. Press.) Antonio Ferrata, wanted in Fresno, Cal., for the murder of Josef Petrillo in February, 1904, was taken across the border this morning by Sheriff Swain of Fresno County, Cal., who came here after the prisoner. Ferrata is said to have deserted his first wife and married again, and it was on information given by his former wife that the alleged murderer was located.

AFTERNOON PERILS

Mistakes More Apt to Occur When Body and Brain Are Weary

Late in the afternoon is the perilous hour for all day workers. Not only do statistics prove it, but there is an easily understandable physiological explanation for it. For it is toward the end of a day's work that fatigue comes on, and tired bodies and brains inevitably lead to mistakes and accidents.

"Bank clerks," says the Medical Record, "make most of the errors in the late afternoon; wherefore there is now early closing of these institutions, since bankers have found their employes' mistakes too expensive for the maintenance of longer hours. Every one now knows what dreadful calamity must be feared when railway men work too many hours through many days. As to druggists, to err (with perhaps fatal consequences) in the filling of a prescription is indeed human and hardly blameworthy in a clerk who must be attentively at his post almost two-thirds of thee twenty-four hours. Among industrial workers the desire for drink has often sprung from sheer physical exhaustion.

Why should a novel writer be an extraordinary looking animal?—Because of his tale coming out of his head.

Why is candy like a racehorse?—The harder you lick it the faster it goes.

Why is an umbrella like a hot-cross bun?—Because it is very seldom seen after lent.

What is that which comes once in every minute, twice in a moment, and only once in a lifetime?—The letter M.

Fish Die From Seasickness

Fish become ill and die from sea sickness when carried long distances upon the ocean. For that reason many rare and interesting specimens captured in tropical countries cannot be carried alive to any great distance. In a recent shipment of 400 fish more than 100 died. It may be presumed that the agony endured by humans when the ship begins to pitch and roll is as nothing compared with the same sufferings of tank-enclosed fish. As a precaution the fish are starved for at least one day before being taken on board. The galvanised iron tanks in which the fish are carried contain from 10 to 50 gallons of sea water kept at a constant temperature of about 68 deg. by steam from the ship's boilers during the trip.

BETTING ON BALL GAMES AND AT HORSE RACES

The determination of the baseball managers to put down betting on all baseball grounds in the United States, says the Montreal Witness, is a sign of the times, which shows how strong and how general among the common people of the country has become the belief that betting is an evil that is objectionable in itself and abhorrent on account of the class of people who become its devotees. When Governor Hughes, some years ago, tried to drive it from the race track in the State of New York, the legislature would not pass a bill at his recommendation. By taking the stump, he proved to them that among the citizens of the state he had an overwhelming following in his anti-betting crusade. One would hardly have thought, however, that the feeling against it would have been so strong among the "fans," who go to watch baseball games. That these are against betting there is no room for doubt, for Mr. Ban Johnson, president of the American League, knows his clientele with a thoroughness that was perhaps not surpassed by the late P. T. Barnum. At Philadelphia, detectives, placed in the grand stand, arrested thirty-eight spectators, whom, by a good deal of previous study, they had succeeded in identifying as gamblers. At New York, a hundred and fifty men who presented tickets at the gates, were refused admission to the baseball grounds because of their betting habits, and fifty others who got past the gates were subsequently ejected from the stands. There is nothing heroic or highly moral in Mr. Johnson's position. He is merely doing it as a protection to the financial interest of his league. It is noteworthy, however, as an evidence of the popular attitude towards the bettor. In Canada, we are doing little or nothing to check the evil which is being spread by an almost continuous series of horseracing meets, and by an influx of professional gamblers from New York where horserace betting has been put an end to. If let alone the evil will increase until it becomes such a menace to morality that it will create a general revulsion of feeling against itself.

To celebrate the twenty-fifth year of the existence of the company, the shareholders of a Manchester brewing company voted $11,250 for the purchase of ten milligrams (about one 2,900th part of an ounce) of radium for the Manchester Royal Infirmary. It was said that even allowing for 99 per cent. of error the radium would be working in the year 2163.

Brother's Dramatic Plea

After a long list of convictions for larceny, uttering counterfeit coin, and manslaughter was proved against a Durham miner, Edward Palmer, charged at the Guildhall with attempting to commit suicide, a man in court shouted: "I am his brother. Palmer was bound over for six months.

GRAND TRUNK NEWS ITEMS

The Grand Trunk Railway, adhering to the progressive policy which characterizes that System, announces the inauguration of "A Safety First" Movement. Mr. Howard G. Kelley, Vice-President, has issued an official circular calling the attention of officers and employes to the "great importance of an organization for the prevention of injuries and damage to property."

Mr. George Bradshaw has been engaged as Safety Engineer charged with the duty of putting the movement into effect. He will inspect the lines, terminals and shops, and confer with the various officers on matters pertaining to the safety of the travelling public and employes.

The throughness with which the Grand Trunk is going about this important work is shown by the fact that the Safety Engineer, assisted by the local officers, will hold "Safety Meetings" at all important centers on the System, at which practical instruction bearnig on safety will be given to employes in all departments. Stereopticon views of unsafe and safe conditions and practices will be shown and explained, the purpose being to reach and make a lasting impression upon the minds of every employe for the benefit of safety. Committees composed of officers and employes will be organized on all divisions, terminals and in all important shops whose duties will be to discover and correct unsafe conditions and practices.

The management of the Grand Trunk has kept in close touch with results obtained on other important systems in the United States and having concluded, after careful consideration, that the movement has great merit, will push along its application with the greatest vigor. "It is our purpose," remarked Vice-President Kelly to-day, "to extend this highly important work to to every branch of the service. Safety is the first and most important consideration in railroad operation and no effort will be spared to give every patron and employe of this System the greatest possible protection.

CIRCULAR NO. 145

MONTREAL, Aug. 18, 1913

MR. GEO. BRADSHAW, Safety Engineer, has engaged to put into effect on this system an organization for the prevention of injuries and damage to property, familiarly known as a "Safety First" organization..

He will inspect the lines, terminals and shops and confer with officers of the various departments on matters pertaining to safety in their jurisdictions and as to the particular plan of organization best adapted to this System. From the information so obtained he will submit a report embodying recommendations which will be followed by a circular for general distribution explaining in detail the plan decided upon and methods of procedure..

Mr. Bradshaw will also deliver at all important centers illustrated lectures on safety showing and explaining in a vivid and impressive manner unsafe conditions and practices responsible for injuries and how to correct or avoid them.. Due notice of the time and place of these lectures will be given and it is desired that every employee on the System, whose duties permit, shall attend. No employe who considers the importance of his own personal safety can afford to miss the opportunity which these lectures will afford to learn something of real practical value for the protection of his life and limb.

We hope to reduce the personal injury record to the lowest possible point and to make our System the safest in the country to work for and to patronize. To accomplish this end every officer, agent and employee is requested to give his earnest and active support and cooperation in the inauguration and prosecution of this campaign for greater safety.

HOWARD G. KELLY,

Vice-President..

English Militants To Learn Jitu-Jitsu

LONDON, Aug. 20.—Addressing a suffragette meeting in Bromley, Sylvia Pankhkurst said she had been criticised for causing a scene after the meeting in Trafalgar square last Sunday week, but she knew her duty was never to speak in Trafalgar square without a fight. She added: "We have not yet made ourselves a match for the police and we have got to do it.

The police know jiu jitsu. I advise you to learn jiu jitsu. Women should practice it as well as men.. We have got to have drilling in the east, and if there is any man who has been in the army or knows anything about drilling will please communicate with me and we will start drilling. You should you all go out with your sticks. What is the use of us going out for a demonstration of freedom and going unarmed? Don't come to meetings without sticks in future. Men and women alike. It is worth while really striking. It is no use pretending. We have got to fight."

MEDIATION REJECTED

U. S. Policy in Mexico Will Be Non-Interference.

President Huerta Finally Declines Presdent Wilson's Proposition and the Outlook is Now for a Strict Maintenance of Neutrality at Washington—Negotiatons Are Off.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—The negotiation between the United States and the Provisional Government of Mexico, conducted by John Lind and Provisional President Huerta, virtually have ended.

President Huerta has rejected in toto and finally the suggestion of President Wilson for ending the war in Mexico. The next step to be taken will be by the American Government. The indications tonight are that it will be this:

A return to the policy pursued by President Taft in the last months of his administration and followed by President Wilson up to the time he sent Ex-Gov. John Lind to Mexico City to try to effect an end to the hostilities and a restoration of peace thru mediation, of non-interference and the maintenance of a strict neutrality, a tightening up of the frontier guard to prevent the shipment of arms and ammunition to either faction in Mexico.

When President Wilson sent Commisioner Lind to Mexico with three suggestions for settling the disturbances, he had in reserve three alternatives which he could adopt in the event of failure. They were:

1. Intervention.
2. Raising the embargo against the revolutionists obtaining arms and ammunition in the United States.
3. A return to the former policy of non-interference, always entertaining the hope that one side would quickly win out in the struggle of arms.

Like his predecessor, President Wilson never did seriously consider the first alternative. He held that it was too drastic a remedy for the ailment.

He next gave consideration to the proposal of raising the embargo against the revolutionists from obtaining arms and ammunition in the United States. What he found was this:

All the foreign governments with subjects and property in Mexico, have provisionally recognized Huerta. These countries had been asked by the United States to lend their moral support in the effort to induce Huerta to accept one of the three proposals for mediation.

All had been assured that the United States would take no action in Mexico without fully acquainting them with it, and that no step would be taken which was contrary to international law and diplomatic procedure. To lift the embargo and permit the insurgents to obtain arms and ammunition in the United States without restriction would mean, the president found, that there would be a just cause for complaint on the part of those countries.

It would mean that the insurgents could fortify themselves and could carry on indefinitely a warfare such as they have maintained for the last six months, with no chance to capture the capital and all hope of ending the disturbances would be remote. This, too, was put aside.

In taking up the other proposition the president had in mind much of the argument he had before him for abandoning the proposal to lift the embargo against the revolutionists.

His conclusion was that both sides would have as much consideration for American lives and property as they have had heretofore. They would have the same respect as heretofore for the lives and property of other foreigners, so that question was decided in favor of returning to the non-interference policy.

He then gave thought to the question of the finances of both factions and their ability to carry on a warfare for an indefinite period. The reports before the president indicated that both factions are hard pressed for funds and that the reason they are not obtaining more arms is not because they cannot transport them into Mexico, but because they have no money with which to purchase them. Another phase to this feature was that without any source of supply one side, or perhaps both, would exhaust themselves from fighting. Again, that with resources down low, one side might force the fighting and make sufficient headway to force the other to agree to quit. It was believed that by following a policy of non-interference beyond making the customary demands that foreigners be protected, would retain the moral support of foreign governments.

The president virtually made his decision after going over the third proposition. It is expected that he will announce in a few days that this third alternative is to be the policy of the administration.

The president was influenced more or less by the Huerta note in reply to the Lind proposals. There was no ultimatum in that note that President Wilson must recognize Huerta, but there was a suggestion that the president of the United States do so before making further overtures. That part of the note convinced the president it was almost useless to push the mediation proposal further. He will not recognize Huerta, and Huerta's suggestion was accepted at its face value.

What further influenced the president was the attitude of Huerta, shown clearly thruout the note.

Huerta almost sneeringly refers to the administration as a temporary one; suggests that it will be defeated in the next election, and, therefore, the people of the United States are not supporting the president in his mediation plan. Huerta made it very plain, too, that he considered he had been recognized. He made reference to the speech Henry Lane Wilson, removed as ambassador to Mexico, had made in April last.

Union Must Extend Activities.

KINGSTON, Aug. 20.—(Special.)—That there was great need for more financial assistance and more uniform business methods, was the keynote of the address of President Daniel Duffy at today's session of the Irish Catholic Benevolent Union of Canada and the United States. He said that the association should branch out in new lines in order to successfully compete with other organizations. Without additional revenue the association is hopeless for its present resources were consumed in the payment of current expenses.

Weather Vanes.

The best weather vanes are made with the greatest nicety and precision, so that they balance perfectly and turn with the least possible wear. The vane is, of course, longer on one side of the socket than on the other or it would not turn with the wind, but its weight is the same on both sides. If it is a narrow vane, for instance, the weight of the solid head is easily made equal to that of the longer, projecting but thinner feather end, and all vanes, whatever they may be, are balanced as to weight and so adjusted that they turn easily and with the least possible friction.

Canada May Withdraw From Fisheries

VANCOUVER, Aug. 20.—That Canada would withdraw from the fisheries treaty with the United States unless Congress passed the international commission next session was the intimation made at the Canadian Club luncheon yesterday by Hon. J. D. Hazen, minister of marine and fisheries. Mr. Hazen pointed out that the fisheries of Canada on both coasts was suffering from the reckless fishing of the Americans and cited the case which led to the international commission being formed.

This commission made certain recommendations which the Canadian Government passed in 1910, but the United States has not yet made the recommendations laws.

Macbeth.

Macbeth's action as outlined by Shakespeare was in the main true to the facts. After murdering his kinsman, Duncan I., in 1040 he succeeded in holding his usurped throne for seventeen years. In 1057 he was killed at Lumphanum, and Malcolm III., son of Duncan, ascended the throne that had been wrested from his father.

A Durable Wood.

The wood of the Argentine quebracho tree, the bark of which is used for tanning leather, has a life of forty years when used as fenceposts or railroad ties.

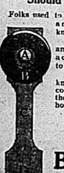
DEAL ON FOR C. N. R. TO BUY LONDON'S STREET RAILWAY

Col. Davidson of the Railway Company has Been in London Twice Within Ten Days—Officials Deny That the Road has Been Sold

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 20.—While all street railway officials here deny that the road has been sold or that negotations are under way, it is generally understood here that some kind of a deal is on. Col. Davidson, of the Canadian Northern, has been in London twice within the past ten days. He was accompanied once by Engineer McRae, of Toronto, and on both occasions made trips to the vicinity of Dutton. The London Street Railway only operates in the city. Officials of the London and Lake Erie Transportation Company, which operates between London and Port Stanley, state that no negotations have been started for the purchase of their road. The C. N. R. recently purchased a large gravel pit just south of the city.

1913 Corns

Should Not be Treated in an 1813 Way



Folks used to pare corns before any treatment was known for them.

Then came liquids and pads—all before a chemist learned how to remove them.

Now a way is known to take out corns—to remove them entirely, in 48 hours.

We own that method, and call it Blue-jay plasters.

Simply apply it, and the pain stops at once. Forget it for 48 hours. Then take off the plaster and lift the corn out. That's the last of that corn.

No pain, no soreness, no inconvenience.

Last year over 12,000,000 corns were taken out with Blue-jay. For your own sake, let it take out yours.

B stops the pain and keeps the wax from spreading.
C wraps around the toe. It is narrowed to be comfortable.

CHAPTER XI.

The Race of the Blackhawks.

The day appointed for the race was all that could be desired. Not a cloud marred the brightness of the sky, and the invigorating fall air sent the blood welling through man and beast in a most refreshing manner. A light rain the previous night served to lay the dust and put the ground in excellent condition.

At an early hour Delilah was about apparently making especial preparations for an event of much importance to her. A new hat, new gloves, bright ribbons and other finery were lying in order, indicating that the pretty young owner intended to appear to the very best advantage at the coming contest, honored as she was to be with a seat upon the judges' stand as the lady of the day.

Samson was about his work as usual, looking carefully to the slightest need of the stock, as was his wont; but a slight haste was noticed in the rapidity with which he did the milking, following which he groomed his pet Blackhawk roadster until he shone like a mirror. Then he made a careful inspection of his best light harness, washed and oiled the trotting sulky, letting nothing escape his practiced eyes that would tend to avoid a mishap while in action.

Not a word of conversation passed between himself and Delilah; each were so occupied with their individual preparations that the interests of the other were of no moment. And until the hour of starting for the cattle show grounds, they studiously avoided meeting each other face to face, which restraint was quite natural, under the circumstances.

At half past one Father Gaylord attached a steady farm horse to a two seated wagon, and with Mother Gaylord and Delilah occupying the rear seat, started for the scene of rivalry, which was a mile distant from the farm, at the opposite side of the village. Samson had secured tickets for the older couple, who were not averse to witnessing the fun, knowing that Henry Rollins would need to add much to his experience as a driver before he could successfully cope with an expert like Samson, who was noted for his ability to bring into service every second of speed a horse possessed.

Half an hour later Samson left the home yard and drove slowly toward the grounds, his handsome young gelding fairly dancing in an eagerness to exercise his limbs. The intelligent animal appeared to realize that a test of speed was before him, and he wished to demonstrate to his indulgent master his ability to make good all expectations. So familiar was the Blackhawk with Samson's tactics when in action that the slightest motion of the reins or lowly spoken word would instantly meet with the desired response, which on more than one occasion had brought victory out of apparently sure defeat.

As they jogged along toward the track, Samson observed many teams and pedestrians going in the same direction, and wondered why the usually industrious residents of the town and county had seemingly laid aside the cares of home life and taken a half-day off. He little realized the high-handed game William Feltus had played on him until quite near the high board fence which hid the large field and track from the highway. Then the reason for the presence of the rapidly increasing throng was made clear to him.

Pasted upon the fence, a poster printed in large black letters, stared him in the face. It invited the public to the greatest event that Bentley had ever known:

"A HORSE RACE FOR A WIFE."

It dwelt upon the beauty of the lady, the prominence of the young men, and the great speed of the racers.

Tickets - - - - Adults, 25c.
Children, 15c. - - Teams, 50c.

To say that Samson was keenly indignant, but mildly expresses his feelings. He saw through the scheme of Feltus at once. Rasmus Hale held a mortgage for one thousand dollars against the property, advanced for the purpose of improving the grounds and laying out the track, and Feltus took this method of cancelling the debt, with the intention of presenting a clear title to the cattle-show association at its next meeting.

Samson, however, was thankful for the consideration Feltus had shown in omitting the names of the lady and the contestants, for, had even his own name appeared upon the bill, the whole district would have known who were the other parties interested, as the rivalry for the hand of Miss Gaylord had been a by-word for years.

The money was pouring into the ticket office, and the crowds continued to pass through the entrance gates. Selling booths were on every hand, the fruits and viands being liberally purchased, a percentage of which was to help swell the results of the enterprising William's benevolent undertaking. The scene was not unlike the annual fair, with the live stock and agricultural products left out, but on a much larger scale.

As Samson passed through the gate a cheer arose on the air that sent the racer from his feet, and nearly caused a fatality. The grand stand was crowded with humanity, and hundreds sauntered about the grounds within the circle of the course, all in holiday attire. The event was a rare one, and might never again occur; hence the eagerness of the district's entire population to witness the contest.

As Samson moved past the judges' stand he observed the dignified figure of Miss Gaylord occupying the seat of honor, and conversing familiarly with a stranger, who proved to be the representative of a city newspaper. She did not turn her eyes in his direction, nor did she seem to hear the cheers for the Blackhawk, who was dancing like a rubber ball.

Beyond the home stretch Henry Rollins was exercising a rangy black gelding, the counterpart of the animal driven by Samson. In fact, the pair were twin foals, and Samson had been desirous of matching them for the past year but without success, as Henry's father had declined to sell, although offered the liberal sum of five hundred dollars. When together a stranger could not tell them apart, and in action their movements were identical.

As young Haskell approached his contestant from the rear, he watched closely the behavior of the opposing gelding, and decided that the race would be anything but a walkover for his own swift roadster. Henry had certainly been training to good effect, and his rival was not slow to observe the readiness with which he handled the reins.

"Good colt that of yourn?" suggested Samson, as they reined to a walk after a short spin at the farther side of the track. "Strikes a middlin' good pace."

"He's in good shape; and it's a-goin' to be snug work for the first heat," replied Henry, in a friendly voice. "But I kalkilate to distance you the second heat. There hain't no thin' kin touch him fer speed—not in this section."

"Mebbe your reckoning is right, Henry, but I'm a-goin' to try awful hard to keep Blackhawk's nose close to your wheel," answered Samson, with a cordial laugh.

"He'll have to add considerable many seconds to his record," was Henry's sally, and they drew to a standstill.

"Henry, les' be friends, whichever way the race goes," said Samson earnestly, looking his rival in the face. "It hain't right fer us to be holdin' hard feelin's. If Delilah wants you more'n she wants me, all right; we'll let her decide. If she wants me more'n she wants you, all right agin. And if she don't want neither one of us, we'll both be satisfied. Les' shake an' be friends, no matter which way the cat may jump."

As their hands clasped over the wheels of the sulkies, the crowd, which had been watching, gave a mighty cheer, and a moment later, the sight of the light-footed blacks flying side by side down the home stretch, set the spectators wild with excitement.

The clanging of the gong brought the drivers to the judges' stand, where Feltus delivered instructions and sent them to the scoring mark.

Henry won the toss, and took the inside.

The pair got off at the first scoring, and as they shot under the wire, nose and nose, Feltus gave the "GO," sending Henry Rollins and Samson Haskell on the first heat of their race for the privilege of escorting pretty Delilah Gaylord to an oyster supper at Ogden, with whatever favors she might see fit to bestow in the future.

The track was a half-mile circuit and repeat. At the finish of the first half the horses held the same positions as at the start, and at the third quarter there was no change. The test was to come at the finish.

Around the home stretch they swung, both apparently at their speed limit, yet neither able to outfoot the other.

Samson decided that something must be done or it would be a dead heat, which he wished to avoid for the sake of his horse. Up to this point he had talked but gently to Blackhawk, and the animal had responded to each request; but when within fifty feet of the wire, he yelped—just once. It did the work. Blackhawk passed under the wire a winner by a head and neck, making the mile in two minutes and twenty seconds.

Considerable money was now being wagered on the outcome, and as the horses were about to start on their second heat, Henry's father placed two hundred dollars on the results of the next two laps, and Henry himself bet fifty that the heat was his.

Samson, however, had thus far taken no chances on the outcome, either in heats or the contest as a whole. As a matter of principle, as well as out of respect for Delilah, who was opposed to gambling in any form, he refused all offers.

Henry won the second heat in the creditable time of 2.21, with Samson a good length to the bad.

In this heat Samson was charged with jockeying; but as there was no positive evidence that the favorite was held, his driver was given the benefit of the doubt, and after a rest and rubdown, the pair went to the scoring point for the final test, Samson in the meantime having received a side word from Feltus that he must make good or he (Feltus) would be a loser to the tune of one thousand dollars.

Father Rollins was elated over his winnings, and as the contestants were about starting on the third and last heat, he shook five hundred dollars in Samson's face and dared him to cover the amount. So insinuating was his challenge, and so boisterous his praise of Henry's superior driving that Samson, quietly taking a like amount from his pocket, handed it to Albert Kendall, with the request that Rollins do likewise, which he did.

Samson now prepared for the greatest test of speed in his career as a track driver. He believed his horse was capable of lowering his record, and determined he should do it if it was the last mile he ever trotted. Much as he loved the beauty, he must win his master the privilege for which both were striving, or drop in his tracks.

Thirty Ninth I. C. B. U. Convention At Kingston

Formally Open Yesterday Morning—Delegates in Parade.

KINGSTON, Aug. 20.—The 39th. convention of the Irish Catholic Benevolent Union was formally opened this morning with ceremonies of a most interesting nature. The delegates, numbering about 125, arrived last evening and were met at the station by the members of the reception committee and conducted to the various hotels.

This morning at eight o'clock the delegates and the members of the Catholic societies assembled at the City Hall, from which they marched to St. Mary's Cathedral. The procession was one of the largest and finest seen in this city in many years. The beautiful banners, the marshals on prancing horses, and the members of various societies wearing the insignia of their order, made a most inspiring spectacle. The R.C.H.A. and 14th Regt. bands played the most popular Irish airs.

At the Cathedral pontifical high mass was sung by His Grace Archbishop Spratt, during which Rev. Father R. Halligan preached an eloquent sermon, in which he welcomed the delegates in a most cordial manner. The preacher spoke in glowing terms of the noble work being done by the Catholic societies. He exhorted his hearers to live up to the ideals of the societies, to which they belonged, to live pure, sober, and just lives, lives that would make them a credit to the organizations to which they belonged.

The rendition of Flynn's mass by the Cathedral choir of eighty voices was magnificent. The solo numbers were taken by Rev. R. Halligan and Messrs. N. E. O'Connor and C. V. Cross.

After the impressive ceremonies in the Cathedral the procession reformed and proceeded to the City Hall. Here Mr. J. J. Behan, president of I.C.B.A., introduced His Worship Mayor T. J. Rigney, to the delegates in a brief, though eulogistic manner.

His worship was cheered to the echo by the large audience, and it was some time before he could make himself heard. In a short but eloquent address he extended a hearty welcome and the freedom of the city to the visiting delegates.

He spoke in a most feeling manner of the great benevolent work being carried on by this union and expressed great pleasure at being afforded the opportunity of welcoming the delegates to this old historic city.

Mr. J. J. Behan then read an address of welcome on behalf of the members of the Y.I.C.B.A. of this city.

Mr. Samuel Duffy, of Pottsville, Pa., National President of the I.C.B.U., thanked the Mayor and members of the local societies for the cordial reception tendered the delegates. He had, he stated, attended some of the most notable Catholic conventions in America but had never been impressed more than he was on this occasion. In closing, he invited the Mayor to visit the convention during its sessions.

The convention was then formally opened and the various committees were appointed, after which the delegates adjourned. This afternoon they were guests at a complimentary excursion among the Thousand Islands on the steamer America.

To-morrow morning at 8 o'clock there will be a solemn requiem mass sung in St. Mary's Cathedral for the deceased members. The delegates will attend in a body, after which they will commence the regular routine of business in the city hall.

Birmingham rates are to be relieved to the extent of $400,000 from the municipal gas profits.

Peterborough, Aug. 22—Special—Word has been received in this city from Hastings that the village was in so great danger from approaching forest and field fires in the vicinity that three hundred male citisens turned out to fight the fires. They stopped the progress of the flames and the fires are now under control, but a large amount of damage has been done. About fifty farmers are fighting the fire in Harper's bush, about a quarter of a mile from the limits of the city.

Steps off Car And Meets Death

MONTREAL, Aug. 21.—Having stepped from a street car while it was in motion, a lady, identified since her death as Miss Forcein, 54 years of age of Bennett avenue, Maisonneuve, was last night taken to the Notre Dame Hospital with a fractured skull, and died at 4.15 this moring.

It was between Davidson street and Bennett avenue that the accident occurred, the deceased getting off the car before the conductor could stop her. She was taken, unconscious, to the hospital, where she died, unknown without regaining consciousness. Deceased was identified late this morning and her body was taken to the morgue, where an inquest will be held.

STOP GUESSING! KNOW!

A business man much annoyed by the uncertain answers he received from his subordinates when he asked for information, posted a sign over his desk, reading—

STOP GUESSING, KNOW!

They guess they are getting the best shoes, the best shirts, the best hats—they guess they guess they know how to spend their own money.

But why guess?

They eliminate guesswork.

They tell you what there is, where to get it, and what it costs.

The man or woman who reads advertising, shops intelligently. Information takes the place of mere guessing.

QUINTE CENTRAL FAIR COMMITTEE IN SESSION

Met Last Evening with Alderman McFee in the Chair—Monster Parade of Industrial Belleville to be Provided For

The committee of the citizens looking after the Trades Procession on Labor Day met at the City Hall last evening. Alderman McFee was in the chair. There was a good attendance and lists were made for the various citizens to be canvassed to participate in the monster parade of industrial Belleville to be held on Monday, Labor Day, September 1st. Various factories signified their intention of turning out in full force. Numerous prizes will be offered for the largest attendance, best appearance, most appropriate float, etc. It is now up to the citizens individually to take that interest in the parade that means success. There should be, from indications, over two thousand in the procession, and it will truly represent and show to our citizens who are the men that are doing the work and building up our fair city, strengthening its finances by manufacturing, going a long way to make it the successful municipality it is now becoming and shewing every indication of progress.

Keep on Boosting the fair and Labor Day Parade.

To Swim With Hands and Feet Tied

A Mile and a Quarter in Toronto Bay Next Sunday Morning.

TORONTO, Aug. 21.—To swim from Hanlan's point to Bay street dock, a mile and a quarter, with her hands and feet tied, iis the hazardous task which Margaret Quincy, of Boston, will attempt at ten o'clock Sunday morning.

The young woman, who now lives on Dufferin street, has been an expert swimmer since childhood. She weighs about 135 pounds and is only twenty-two years of age. She swam fifteen miles with the current in the St. Lawrence river at Montreal last summer and won a seven and a half mile race for women from the Revere Beach, Boston, to Nahants light and back the year previous.

Cheese Lower at Peterboro Meeting

PETERBOROUGH, Aug. 21.—12 13-16 cents was the best price offered on the cheese board this morning and while the salesmen did not relish this reduction of 3-16 cents since the last meeting, they decided to let their stock go. The July price was 13 3-16 cents, thus during the month the price has dropped off about half a cent.

The number of cheese offered was considerably lower than at the last meeting, but this was only to be expected as the result of the prolonged dry spell.

The prospect of the lower price was quite unwelcome, but the salesmen were somewhat prepared for it in view of the lower quotations from other boards throughout the country.

New Irish Fusiliers In Religious Tangle

VANCOUVER, Aug. 22.—Special—There is quite a serious disagreement between Irish Catholics and Protestants of Vancouver in connection with the organization of the regiment of Irish Fusiliers. Alderman George McSpadden, a prominent Orangeman, is to be the Colonel. The office of Quarter Master was apparently the only one offered to a Catholic. Patrick Donnelly, to whom the quartermastership was offered, has sent a letter to Alderman McSpadden, declining the office, and suggesting that the least position out of six available would not be satisfactory to the Catholics.

Patrick and Dominick Burns, the cattlemen, who are Catholics, are said to have provisionally headed the list to start the regiment with a handsome contribution. The arrangements seem now to be very much up in the air.

Foreigner Loses Arm Result of Accident

A Hungarian whose name we were unable to ascertain was this morning the victim of a distressing accident. The foreigner was employed at the cement works at Point Ann and in some manner his left arm became caught in a gear, with the result that it was frightfully lacerated. The victim was brought to the city hospital as speedily as possible and it was found necessary to amputate the arm between the elbow and the shoulder. The unfortunate man bore the operation well and no serious results are anticipated.

DEPRECATE TALK OF HOSTILITIES.

Washington, D.C., Aug. 22. —Special—In the United States Senate Mr. Penrose introduced a resolution requesting the President to send American troops to Mexico for the protection of American lives and property. A number of Republican Senators spoke in favor of President Wilson's policy and deprecated war talk at this time.

"Intervention means war," said Mr. Nelson, who opposed the proposal, and shbuld not be thought of."

Bar Hotel Men From Membership

Independent Order of Oddfellows Zealous Temperance Body

MONTREAL Aug 21.—The Independent Order of Odd Fellows gave further proof of their zeal in the temperance cause yesterday, when at the annual session of the Grand Lodge of Quebec, a new clause was introduced in the constitution providing that no hotel keeper selling spirituous liquor could be received as an Odd Fellow. The meeting was unanimous in favor of the new clause.

Over two hundred delegates were present yesterday at the 34th annual session of the Grand Lodge of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows in the Masonic Temple on Dorchester street, west. The chair was occupied by Grand Master J. Irving McCabe and reports from the various committees were read and discussed.

The records for the year showed that the membership had increased by 298, making a total of 5,760 members in the various lodges from Gaspe to Campbell's Bay.

Serious Charges Being Investigated

Walter Keller was today before Magistrate Masson on two charges, namely, that he did in the Township of Thurlow, on the 16th inst., assault Mrs. Thomas Cleveland, and also that he did theron do grievous bodily harm to Thomas Cleveland.

The affair took place in the second concession of Thurlow, in what is commonly called "Stoney Lonesome." Keller also charges Cleveland with shooting at him with intent. The case was in progress when we went to press. Mr. Anderson represented the Crown, and Mr. Eddie O'Flynn appeared on behalf of Keller.

ANNUITY FOR LIFE INSURANCE AGENTS.

Ottawa, Aug. 22.—Special—At the closing session of the Life Underwriters' convention to-day a resolution was carried to the effect that the association "learned with satisfaction that head offices of some of the life insurance companies of Canada were considering the question of providing the agents with some system of annuity," and expressed the hope that a scheme would be consummated which would be satisfactory to all.

Young Aull is Free May Visit Toronto

Husband of Toronto Girl Discharged From Cobourg Jail a Free Man.

TORONTO, Aug. 21.—Robert Aull, jun., of New Orleans and St. Louis who attained widespread notoriety by marrying the daughter of a Toronto banker and capitalist, and then being arrested and sent to Cobourg jail for fraud, was released early this afternoon.

A wire was received at Cobourg today from Lexington, Ky., saying that authorities there would not press an alleged claim against the young man.

In view of that, when he was discharged a free man from Cobourg to-day he had not strings attached to him in any legal sense, it was said.

He had been sentenced to two weeks in jail by Judge Benson.

Young Aull was reticent to-day as to his plans for the immediate future, but was understood to have decided to come to Toronto to commence defense preparations in the suit begun by the parents of his wife, the former Miss Doris Reid, to have the marriiage annulled.

Governors Donned Overalls to Work On State Highways

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 21.—Governor Major of Missouri and his guest, Governor Hodges of Kansas, put on their overalls this morning and setting out from Jefferson City, headed Governor Major's army of 350,000, which, in response to his proclamation, began a two-day campaign in road-building in western Missouri.

This state-wide movement to "pull Missouri out of the mud" was expected to mark an epoch in the development of Missouri and form an example for other states.

Mrs. Major prepared fried chicken for the workers and Mrs. Hodges helped serve it and women generally took an important part in the campaign.

Pulled by Hair From Under Bed

MONTREAL, Aug. 21.— Detectives Mercier and Tierney captured a man wanted for highway robbery from among twenty-five men whom they found when they entered the house 227 Sanquinet street, at ten o'clock last night. Hugenet Dinutruck who was knocked down in Bronsdon lane, and had $45 stolen from him, gave a description of his assailant to the detectives. They did not see the man whom they later arrested until they were about to leave. Detective Tierney saw a turf of hair, and what looked like a man crawling under a bed, grabbing on to that lock he yanked and a man got up who looked Dinutruck's assailant. When he was placed on his feet, the long wavy lock nearly covered his forehead just as the complpainant had said it would. Dinjutruck saw him a little while later, and declared he was the man. He gave his name as Nazari Theophill, a Polish fellow, and before Judge Lanctot pleaded not guility to highway robbery. He was remanded for enquete on the 26th.

The bride looked on the mountains,
The river's golden strand;
Italian garden fountains
Were tinkling near at hand.
She spake with cooing kindness:
"How fair these vistas are!"
The bridegroom, in his blindness,
Bowed down beneath the car.
From thence did he deliver
Some words about a chain—
Such words as made her shiver
With an astonished pain.
Then to the balmy breezes
She hummed these lines and smiled,
"Where every prospect pleases
And only man is riled."

PEACE CONGRES OPENS

All Civilized Nations Represented at Meeting at The Hague

THE HAGUE, Neverlands, Aug. 21.—The twentieth universal peace congress, which is under the patronage of Prince Henry of the Neverlands, was opened in Knights' hall here yesterday amid scenes of great enthusiasm and with a dertermination on the part of the delegates to accomplish something practical to stem the tide of militarism.

All the civilized nations were represented, the delegates numbering 950, many being women.

Premier Heemskerk of the Neverlands welcomed the delegates and professor DeLouter of Utrecht was elected president of the congress. In his inaugural address the president said peace would be brought about only by the development of international law with absolute independence of individual states.

Other speakers asserted that in spite of recent events in th Balkans the idea of universal peace clearly was progressing.

During the session compliments were showered on Andrew Carnegie.

Hitched Family to Machine.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Accused of hitching his wife and 13-year-old son with himself to a potato digger when his team had proven unable to drag the machine, and then beating his wife and throwing her into a gully when the human reinforcements had proven unavailing, George W. K. Boyce was before Justice P. F. Dodd in Neptune Township, N.J., and was held in $200 for the grand jury.

Sulzer's Opponent Beaten.

CANANDAIGUA, N. Y., Aug. 21.—(Can. Press.)—Assemblyman Herman F. Schnirel, one of four Republicans who voted for the adoption of the Sulzer impeachment resolution, was defeated for renomination today, receiving only 13 of 46 votes cast. Ex-County Treasurer H. E. Wheeler was designated as the candidate.

"BACK FROM THE WILD"

The Canadian Press Women, who journeyed to the end of the track with the Grand Trunk Pacific in June last have demonstrated the fact that women can see and feel and live to tell about it afterward. The clippings from the newswpapers represented by these Pilgrims reveal flashes of real genius; for instance, Nan Moulton writes:—

"The eyes that came back to Edmonton one morninig last June were full eyes, eyes full of dreams came true, eyes big with the bigness of the mountains, eyes alight with the sun on the waters, aware of the evening spirits in the mist and a soul of opalescence that in the sweet long twilight softened and glorified the jade-green day loveliness of lake-jewels set in naked grey rings of rock.

The hundred pair of eyes were warm with memories of gracious, enveloping hospitality, were sweeter because of hands touched and hearts touched and lives touched an interwoven silences as the train drew around curves of breathless beauty, as the lace of lovely foamy cataracts etherealized some flat blue-green wash of fir, or the moon rose above black peaks and glinted strangely on lonely living snow." dlt

DESCENDANT OF A LORD

Edward Roberts, who claims to be a grandson of Lord Roberts, was in the police court on Saturday evening on a charge of concealed weapons. The case was adjourned until 8 o'clock Monday morning, but in the meantime Roberts vamoosed. He was arrested at Trenton and a Constable went down yesterday to bring him back—Bancroft Times.

PLOT IS DISCOVERED

Attempt to Blow Up Mayor is Frustrated in New York.

Charge Amounting to Four Sticks of Dynamite Found in City Hall Near Mr. Gaynor's Windows—Partly Burned Fuse Was Found Beside Explosives—Enough in Charge to Destroy City Hall.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—(Can. Press.) A deadly charge of dynamite—three whole ten-inch sticks and two halves, with a fuse detonator—were discovered this afternoon near Mayor Gaynor's office windows in the city hall. The bureau of combustibles found that the explosive was 40 per cent. dynamite, the regulation blasting proportion, and the amount found would, if exploded, have wrecked the city hall.

The mayor was in his office when the dynamite was discovered by a citizen passing thru City Hall Park. Mr. Gaynor evinced little interest when told of the explosive's proximity, and remained apparently undisturbed at his desk while police officers hurriedly drew a cordon about the dynamite to keep back an excited crowd.

Mayor Gaynor frequently receives threatening letters, but tonight he would make no statement regarding the possible connection between any precious menace by mail and the dynamite of today. It is just three years this month that he was shot in the neck by a so-called crank, and so badly wounded that for several days it was feared he would die. The dynamite found today lay near a basement door in a concrete moat, or areaway, within 60 feet of the mayor's window. The explosive was arranged in lattice formation, with the two small pieces on top. A partly burned four-inch fuse, made of gunpowder tightly rolled in a paper cylinder, led to a detonating cap on one of the half sticks of dynamite.

Close to the explosive was a piece of Chinese punk and several partly burned matches. The dynamite and fuse were wrapped in a piece of heavy cambric secured by red and blue twine. The cloth was blue, with red and white figures, and resembled the fillets worn by Italian women of the working class.

The bureau of combustibles experts state that the only thing which prevented a disastrous explosion was the presence of a strip of cotton wool wound so tightly about the base of the fuse that a spark could not reach the detonator. An edge of one dynamite stick was slightly scorched.

Hugo Grotius Honored.

THE HAGUE, Aug. 21.—(Can. Press.)—The delegates at the Peace Conference visited the Peace Palace and witnessed the unveiling of a bust of Hugo Grotius, the founder of the science of international law, presented by the Dutch league of peace.

Henri La Fontaine, president of the International Peace Bureau at Berne, delivered an address in which he declared that the palace was the outgrowth of the efforts of the pacificists gathered at the congress whose visits represented the semi-official opening of the building.

A congratulatory message was sent to Andrew Carnegie.

Some women will believe anything that is unbelievable.

How Manufacturing Cooperation Benefits the Public

HERE is an interesting example of how honest, intelligent co-operation benefits the buying public. Here is a company whose methods and success are a valuable lesson to the business men of the world—showing them how a large number of retail merchants in a particular class by joining forces, have secured advantages for themselves and their customers impossible to get in any other way.

Eleven years ago forty retail druggists organized what is to-day known as The United Drug Company. It now comprises more than 7,000 leading retail druggists in each important city and town in the United States, Canada and Great Britain, each a part owner of this great enterprise.

Our big laboratories in Boston and Toronto, where Rexall Toilet articles are made; our immense candy factories in Boston and Baltimore; our perfume manufacturing plant in Boston, by many said to be the finest in the world; our fruit juice and fountain supply factory in Boston; our soap factory in Paris, France; and our various other manufacturing and distributing plants in Boston, Chicago, St. Louis, Liverpool, Eng., and other cities—occupy a total of more than a million square feet, or 23 acres of floor space. In addition to the above, we control the entire output of great stationery mills and brush and rubber goods factories.

More than four-fifths of the output of The United Drug Company is of such lines of merchandise—toilet goods, candy, stationery, brushes, rubber goods, etc.,—as formerly were carried, if at all, by druggists only as "side lines."

Thus, through co-operation in manufacturing and distribution, The Rexall Stores are now able to specialize in other merchandise than drugs and medicines. They have become department stores, in which all departments have equal advantages in variety, high quality and low prices.

Because they are both manufacturers and retailers, the Rexall Stores occupy a most favorable position, for they can, and do, sell all these big lines at lowest prices consistent with high quality, and in every instance with a personal guarantee of satisfaction or money back.

THE ABOVE FACTS SHOULD CONVINCE YOU OF THE ADVANTAGES OF TRADING AT THE REXALL STORES. SOME OF THESE ADVANTAGES HAVE TO DO WITH THE FOLLOWING LINES OF MEHCHANDISE, ALL OF WHICH YOU CAN GET ONLY AT THE REXALL STORE IN YOUR TOWN:

Rexall Toilet Goods. Including shaving requisites, tooth preparations, toilet creams, soaps and many other toilet necessities, each fresh, pure and beneficial.

Violet Dulce Perfumes and Toilet Preparations. An exquisitely scented beautifully-packaged line, comprising extract, toilet water, talcum, complexion powders, complexion creams and other dainty toilet accessories.

Symphony Lawn and Illuminated Crest Stationery. Two fashionable lines that in every way indicate the good taste of the user.

Bouquet Jeanice Perfumes and Toilet Articles. For those who desire one individual and aristocratic fragrance in all their toilet articles.

Liggett's Chocolates. Pure, fresh and wholesome. The triumph of the confectioners' highest art.

"White Cross," Klenzo and Marguerite Tooth Brushes. Especially imported goods that outwear many other kinds that cost more.

The Rexall Druggists of the World

In annual convention assembled. Boston, Massachusetts, August 18 to 21, 1913.

In the Saturday Evening Post on September 13th will be printed "REXALL Advantage No. 1" on Rexall Toilet Articles. Watch for it and profit by it.

That Joint Meeting

To the Editor of The Intelligencer.

Dear Sir,—I have read Mayor Wills' communication in your issue of yesterday, and am bound to say in reply that your report of the joint meeting re Garbage By-law was truthful in every particular. It gave "the facts, or the material facts," as far as the report went, but it being necessarily only a synopsis of the discussion that took place, all that each one had to say could not be presented to your readers.

ONE WHO WAS THERE.

WHISKEY KEGS IN TAR AND CEMENT BARRELS

Police Unearth Novel Method of Importing Liquor and Have to Use Picks to get at the Kegs—Three Men Arrested.

SOUTH PORCUPINE, Aug. 22.—(Special.)—By the fortunate disclosure that barrels of cement and pitch contained within them ten-gallon kegs of whiskey, the Provincial Police of this district claim they have put a stop to a great deal of the liquor traffic. The find came about in a peculiar manner on Monday of this week, and the constable's suspicions were aroused only when too much cement and tar were shipped into the town.

As a result of this raid made, three cases will be heard before Magistrate Thomas Torrance tomorrow afternoon. A barber by the name of Gagnon is out on $500 bail, Joseph Losse of the South Porcupine Hotel is out on $150 bail, while E. Juneau is awaiting a bondsman to be allowed his freedom until the trial takes place.

Mrs. Pankhurst Coming to Canada

TROUVILLE, France, Aug. 21.—The suffragette movement is an international one Mrs. Pankhurst, the leader of the English militants, said yesterday in the course of a chat with a correspondent at the same time announcing her intention of visiting the United States and Canada at the end of the year to lecture in various cities.

Mrs. Pankhurst said that the justification of the fierce militancy prevalent in England lies in the fact that the British Government has broken faith with the suffragettes, for, after having promised to introduce a women suffrage bill in the House of Commons, the Cabinet took care to make its passage impossible.

DEATHS.

Collapsible Tubes For Butter

They want butter in collapsible tubes in India. The heat is so intense there that it is almost impossible to pack butter in tubs or tins, as it is fluid almost from the moment it is made. Then again, it spoils rapidly when exposed to the hot, moist air. This seriously retarded the efforts of the Government to stimulate the dairy industry. So the Director General of Commercial Intelligence opened negotiations with the makers of machinery for the manufacture and filling of such tubes as are used for oil-paints, vaseline and tooth pastes. One of those manufacturers says the tubes would have to be made of pure tin, as the volatile fatty acids of the butter would act upon lead and copper and form poisons. And such parts of the filling machines as are now made of copper would have to be of porcelain.

Skins Improve Flavor

New Zealand cattle raisers have found that the meat of dressed calves retains its flavor better when exported long distances if the skins be left on until ready for market.

Sugar For Wounds

Sugar has been added to the list of antiseptic and aseptic dressings, and we are told it not merely preserves the cells, but furnishes a nutrient element for them.

Rush of New Metals

Modern research has brought to our industries, at a marvellous rate, not only new compounds but even new elements. Prof. H. T. Kalmus, of Toronto, notes that of the fifty metallic elements now known, only seven were in commercial use 2,000 years ago, and until 100 years ago the rate of addition was less than one metal for each two centuries. Within the last twenty-five years about fourteen metals have been added to commercial use—an addition at more than one hundredfold the previous rate.

SIR WILFRID FACES BOTH WAYS

That which is orthodox in Ontario is heterodox in Quebec; hence Sir Wilfrid played his part dexterously when addressing his admirers a few days ago in St. Hyacinthe. The Mail and Empire diagnoses his position truthfully when it says:

"In his Toronto speech Sir Wilfrid Laurier made a great show of having a naval policy, but at St. Hyacinthe he did not confess that he had one. In Toronto he pretended that his naval policy would be the more helpful to Britain. In St. Hyacinthe he kept harping on the words that "Canada is a nation," with her own affairs to attend to. In St. Hyacinthe he boasted of the stand he made against the British Secretary of War and the First Lord of the Admiralty in 1902, but of course he had nothing to say about that in Toronto."

He may succeed in duping his own countrymen, who admire him because he is one of themselves in race and creed, but such doubel policy and two-facedness will not succeed in other sections of the Dominion.

LEAVING THE OLD SOD

Nearly 200,000 Scottish persons emigrated from Scotland during the four years 1909-10-11-12. This number is equal to two-thirds of the population of Edinburgh, or nearly to the combined population of Grimsby Ipswich, and Reading.

Statistics are printed in a parliamentary reply by the Secretary of Scotland to a question by Mr. Jesse Collings. They show how emigration has increased, the following figures being the number of Scottish emigrants only: 1909, 34,252; 1910, 55,211; 1911, 57,417; 1912, 61,052.

The figures for the first three years are those of Scottish emigrants from Scottish ports only, while the 1912 figures include Scottish emigrants from other ports in the United Kingdom.

The figures above make a total of 210,932, but during the four years 26,733 persons of Scottish nationality landed from ports out of Europe.

HANDLING THE STRIKES

The strike problem is assuming serious proportions. How is it to be met? In Montreal some fifty men belonging to the Street Pavers' Union are idle, having struck on the 18th because they were refused 48 cents per hour, that is, $4.80 per day of ten hours. If $4.80 per day of 10 hours is to be paid to men whose work is the paving of streets, what should the skilled mechanic receive for his day's work? Are not these unions carrying their demands too far?

CANADA'S INDUSTRIAL PROGRESS

The "Daily Telegraph and Witness," the new organ of the Liberal party in Quebec, pays a well merited tribute to the results, industrially, which followed the introduction, in 1879, by the Conservative party, under the leadership of Sir John A. Macdonald, of what is known as the "National Policy." True, the organ affirms that "the progress of industries in the Dominion," to which it calls attention, was "during the last ten years of the Laurier regime," omitting, as might be expected, to add the fact that, thought the progress was during the last ten years of the Laurier regime, such progress was the result of the continuance and enforcement of the principle of protection inaugurated in 1879 by the Conservative party, the tariff during that ten years being substantially the same, with few changes not of a material character, made during the fifteen years the Laurier party were in power. The policy of making no vital changes in the protective tariff of 1879, led capitalists to invest in manufactures, and induced manufacturers in the United States to establish branches of their industries in Canada. These are the causes which led to the marvelous progress of industrial wealth in Canada during the past decade. This fact was realized and intensified when the Taft-Fielding reciprocity pact was defeated in 1911, and the Laurier party, the fathers of that "pact," hurled by the electors of the Dominion, from power, saving thereby the further industrial progress of the country.

The Liberal organ's well merited, though not intended, praise of what followed the introduction of the protective policy is well worthy of careful reading, and remembering. It says editorially:

The fifth census of the manufactures of Canada, affords interesting reading as to the progress of industries in the Dominion during the last ten years of the Laurier regime. Compared with the census of 1901, it shows an increase in the ten years of 4,568 in the number of working establishments, of $800,667,122 in the value of capital, of 176,030 in the number of persons employed, of $127,759,066 in the earnings of salaries and wages, and of $684,922,264 in the value of products. That this increase was progressive is shown by the fact that in the last five years the increase in capital was 47.36, and of products 62.31.

Among the industries of the country, the production of food products takes the first place. The second is taken by timber and lumber and their re-manufactures, the third by textiles, the fourth by iron and steel products, the fifth by miscellaneous industries, the sixth by metals and metal products other than steel, the seventh by vehicles for land transportation, and the eighth by leather and its finished products. The total values of the industrial products of Canada for 1910 was $1,165,975,639. Ontario retained her position as the premier industrial proviuce of the Dominion with an output of $579,810,225. Quebec province was a good second with an output of $350,810,656, the next largest being British Columbia, with an output of $65,204,235.

But if Ontario leads the provinces, Montreal leads the cities of the Dominion. The value of the output of Montreal's industrial establishments in 1910 was $166,296,972, as compared with Toronto's $154,306,948. It is to be noted, however, that while Montreal in the past twenty years has increased her industrial output by 145.81 per cent., Toronto has increased hers by 243.18 per cent. It is true the disparity in relative development is not quite as great as these figures would make it appear. It must be remembered that the Toronto figures take in the whole of greater Toronto, while those for Montreal do not include Maisonneuve, Verdun or Lachine, all of which may really reckoned as within the boundaries of greater Montreal, though classed as separate municipalities. The total value of Maisonneuve's products in 1910 was $20,813,774, an increase of 469.68 per cent.; of Lachine, $6,295,716, an increase of 363.49 per cent.; and of Verdun, $229,299, all of which is increase. These figures added to Montreal, make a grand total of $193,635,761, as compared with Toronto's $154,306,948. The percentage of Montreal's increase, however, is only about 172, even with these other figures added, as compared with Toronto's 243 per cent. It may well be asked, in view of the relatively quicker advance of Toronto, whether Montreal as a city is doing all that it might do to attract industries within its borders. Its unrivalled position as the meeting place of inland and ocean traffic ought to enable her to more than hold her own with Toronto in comparative increase.

Such has been the result of not changing the Conservative policy of Protection!

CURRENT COMMENT

St. Thomas Journal: "The loss of $100,000 worth of diamonds would not advertise Evelyn so thoroughly as the escape of her former husband has done. And that had to come, too, just as the public was beginning to forget all about her." Better leave Evelyn out of it. She has had sufficient notoriety for one woman already.

Sir Ian Hamilton's report on Canadian defence and defensive forces is being criticised in some London papers because it does not recommend compulsory training. Maybe General Hamilton saw deeper than his critics, and thought it would be time enough to talk conscription in Canada after it has been adopted in Great Britain.

Toronto News: "The House of Lords contains scores of the ablest men in the world—men who have been raised to the peerage as a reward for their achievements in the fields of commerce, science, art, invention, literature, journalism and medicine. But it is not a representative chamber, and therefore cannot rule. The Canadian Senate, made up as it is largely of defeated candidates for the Commons, can scarcely hope for any respect from the country—especially as it has become in its decisions a mere echo of a group of politicians in the Lower Chamber." There are men in the Senate who were as staunch for the Borden Naval Bill as the Premier himself, but they were overshadowed by the "echo of the Lower Chamber group."

A BUMPER WHEAT CROP

THOUSANDS OF MEN REQUIRED

This Year's Harvest promises to be the largest in

THE HISTORY OF CANADA

According to present indications the wheat crop of 1913 will be the greatest ever harvested in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta, thus requiring the farm laborers of the East to assist in harvesting the world's greatest bread basket.

The Governments of the respective Provinces state that many thousand men will be required for this year's harvest These will have to be principally recruited from Ontario, and the prosperity of Canada depends on securing labor promptly. The Canadian Pacific, on which Company will fall practically the entire task of transporting the men to the West, is already making special arrangements for this year. Excursions from points in Ontario to Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta will be run and special trains operated, making the trip in about thirty-six hours and avoiding any change of cars or transfers. This will be a day shorter than any other route. Dates, rates and conditions will be announced in a few days.

CHINAMAN KILLED.

In Haste to Elude Police He Falls Under Train.

ENGLEHART, Aug. 21—(Special.)—In a desperate attempt to escape the police, Lee Hue, a Chinaman, who broke quarantine at Swastika yesterday morning, was killed at 12.30 p.m. on the day of his escape at mileage 136 1-2, between Englehart and Heaslip, by jumping from a fast traveling train. No indication of the tragedy was given until 7.05 this morning, when the body was discovered by the crew of the local train running between Englehart and Cobalt.

Coroner Dr. H. R. Codd of Haileybury was notified and immediately left on No. 47, reaching the scene of the tragedy at 11.30 a.m. A fracture at the base of the skull and the right shoulder were the only injuries and Dr. Codd, after viewing the body, was satisfied that Hue had met his death by having fallen or jumped from a train, and he decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

The body was brought into Englehart on a hand car, where it was identified by Charlie Sing, in whose restaurant at Swastika Hue had been employed, and who is under arrest on a charge of breaking quarantine.

Provincial Constable E. C. Carmichael, who had been traveling south from Swastika on the same train as Hue yesterday, had noticed him on the train and had determined to keep an eye on him, as he suspected that the Chinaman had broken quarantine. At Englehart his suspicions were confirmed, and after the train had left there he hunted high and low for Hue all over the train, but his quarry had disappeared. A search of Hue's pockets revealed that he had purchased a ticket from Swastika to Haileybury, and it is surmised that when he saw the police were after him he took the desperate chance of leaping from the train to effect his escape and met death in the attempt.

MARKET IN JAPAN.

Canada's Trade With "Cherry Kingdom" Grows, Says Foster.

VANCOUVER, Aug. 21.—(Can. Press.)—Hon. George E. Foster, minister of trade and commerce, who has been on a special trade mission to New Zealand, Australia, and the Orient, left here this morning in company with Hon. R. Rogers, and will proceed direct to Ottawa.

He announced that during his stay in the Orient, he had met and instructed Richard Greig, Canadian trade commissioner, to make exhaustive reports on the question of freights between Canada and China and Japan. At the minister's request Greig is returning home via Trans-Siberian route in order to study economic conditions having a bearing on competition with Canada.

Mr. Foster added: "I look for steady improvement in trade between Japan and the Dominion. We have become a party to the Anglo-Japanese commercial treaty and thus enjoy favored nation treatment. It may not be generally known that Japan grows the best rice in the world, and that millions of her population are too poor to use it as an article of diet, securing a good price for this staple abroad. Aromalous as it may seem, I see a great probability of the Japanese becoming consumers of our wheat. Canadian wheat and flour in an economic sense are cheaper articles of diet than their own homegrown rice. Canadians should find an ever widening market in Japan for our lumber and chemical pulp."

Anglican Clergymen and Laymen to Work in West.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—(C. A. P.)—Three clergymen and four laymen, three of whom are university graduates, are shortly going out under the auspices of the Archbishops' Western Canada Fund to work in the Dominion. At present the staff consists of sixty-five, thirty-seven clergymen, twenty-three laymen, and five women. As the work gets better known it is gaining wider support, but the appeal issued by the archbishops can hardly yet be said to have received the response which might justifiably be looked for.

The value of the work which is being done in Canada is however being readily recognized in the Dominion. Quite recently the Archbishop of Rupertsland, when he was in England, spoke in appreciative terms of the assistance which the fund was giving in supplementing the ordinary diocesan work. This praise coming from the archbishop is particularly satisfactory, since it was he who wrote to the archbishops of Canterbury and York asking for their assistance in the first instance, and the initiation of the fund was the result.

At present the secretary of the fund, Canon Beale, is in Canada on a touring visit to the centres at Edmonton and in Southern Alberta, and if time allows he will go as far as the new Peace River district.

He was married to Miss Jean Munro, daughter of a millionaire lumberman of Seattle, upon his return from England, and for some time the couple have been living at Iroquois, Ont., altho his home is at Winchester, Ont. He will commence his duties at the college on Sept. 1. Mrs. Mulloy is a celebrated singer, having studied under Tetrazzini.

Small Town Devastated.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 21.—(Can. Press.)—Damage amounting to thousands of dollars in the Twin Cities, portions of Minnesota and in the Red River Valley, was done today by wind and an electrical storm. A number of places were struck by lightning and one death was reported.

In the small Town of Leo, Rosseau County, more than half the buildings in the town were destroyed or carried from their foundations by the wind, according to reports. One child is reported as missing.

Caught With the Goods.

KINGSTON, Aug. 21.—(Special.)—James Clark, attached to Tete Pont Barracks, was caught by Constables Armstrong and Mullinger, in the act of trying to sell boots, shirt and jacket belonging to the militia, and handed over to the military authorities.

LOAD OF HAY CAUGHT FIRE

Again the danger of being careless with fire has been clearly demonstrated. On Monday, after a load of hay had been loaded and on its way to the barn, it was discovered to be on fire, an so quickly did it spread that the driver had only time to jump. The horses became unmangeable and would not cramp the waggon to upset the load. They ran across the field and brought up by a tree, where, after being severely burned, they were finally cut loose from the waggon. The waggon, harness and some grain was burned, but with hard work the fire was gotten under control. M. J. F. Tait, owner of the team, was severely burned and kicked by the horses, but not badly hurt—Bancroft Times.

"Father," said the fairest girl in Westmount, "I have arranged a very important interview for you this evening. Harold is going to call on you."

SPORTING NEWS

BASEBALL.

WHEN THE OLD BOY'S STAR IS WANING FAST

The old man sticks to the job.
And the old boy plays the game.
He clouts one a mile when the pinch arrives.
As he whirls to the mad acclaim;
But the old boy's wise to the kink,
He knows where the answer's set
When he misses one by a foot or two
That a kid on the bench could get.

Young with the years of life,
But old with the driving play,
He's out there fighting the answer back
Through the grey dusk of his day;
We say he is still a star.
But he knows when the yarn's complete
When they nail him a foot on a play at first
That a kid on the bench could beat.

SPRING TRAINING

Toronto, Aug. 21.—When the Leafs were training at Macon, Cal., last spring, Manager George Stallings of the Boston Nationals tried to slip one over on the Toronto management and secure the Macon park for next spring's training. Now he claims to have the Macon City Council and the lessees of the ball park property lined up in favor of Boston as against Toronto.

President McCaffery has a sub-lease of the Macon park signed and sealed, and Stallings is helpless. Manager McGraw of the New York Nationals, has invited Toronto to share the Marlin Springs, Tex., training camp with the Giants. President McCaffery has promised to notify McGraw early in the winter as to the probability of Toronto sharing the Texas camp with the National League champions.

NOT ALL ROSES FOR MACK

Detroit, Aug 21.—The troubles of Connie Mack are not over. In addition to his team's slump of recent days, he has a somewhat crippled band of athletics on his hands to-day, as a result of injuries yesterday. His catching staff is the main source of worry. Ira Thomas is out with a bad hand. A foul tip split Jack Lapp's hand and he'll be out for a couple of weeks.

Later in the game, Schang who replaced Lapp, was spiked, but continued in the game. This injury is not expected to prove serious.

Barry and Orr, shortstops, are numbered among the cripples. Pitcher Brown is on the sick list and the form of most of the other twirlers is not above suspicion.

Johnnie Lavan, shortstop for the St. Louis Browns, will report to Connie Mack, at Detroit, where he will probably be used at once.

The addition of Lavan will enable Mack to send Oldring back to the outfield while Barry and Orr are recovering from their injuries. Oldring's appearance at short was his first in several years, although he broke into the game as an infielder.

WILL NOT WASTE JOHNSON

Washington, Aug 21.—Walter Johnson is a great pitcher—the greatest I have ever seen—and I am not going to work him to death when there is nothing in sight. If ever it comes down to a chance to use him every other day and land the pennant then, and not till then, will I work him out of turn. I believe that I'll have a championship team in Washington, and when I do I want to have Johnson in shape to do his best work in a world's series. But I shall not work him to death now."

Thus says Clark Griffith, the Old Fox, in explanation of his unwillingness to use Johnson out of turn to win games for the Climbers. Griff is looking ahead. He is not thinking of this season or next. He is convinced that, with a little tinkering here and there, his present line-up will land a pennant in the capital within a year or so, and that Johnson will then come into his own.

"While it would have been my greatest delight to have a pennant winner," goes on the Old Fox. "I think I'd get much pleasure out of seeing Johnson and McBride playing in a world's series. These are two great players on the field and two of the withest men off the field, I have ever seen. They deserve the chance to figure in the big series, and I'd like nothing better than a chance to give them.

"Look at some of the great players who have never been in a world's series. Bobby Wallace has played major league ball for some eighteen years and has never been in the big series. Neither has Larry Lajoice, Walter Johnson or George McBride. Wallace and Lajoice will probably quit the game without satisfying their ambition, but Johnson and McBride have a chance. It isn't for me to waste Walter now. There may be a time when this great pitcher will be able to land the pennant for us all by himself. Then I'll work him as long as he can stand it. He's willing. But until that crisis arrives I'm not wasting him to win an ordinary ball game."

FIGHT TALK FOR SEPTEMBER 1st

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug 21.—Leach Cross and Johny Dundee were matched yesterday to box 20 rounds on the afternoon of September 1st at the Vernon arena. This has ended the anxiety of fight fans over the cancelling of the Cross-Joe Rivers match, owing to the indisposition of the little Mexican, who is suffering from neuralgia.

The winner of the Labor Day bout will be given another chance on Sept. 9.

The question of who will meet Willie Ritchie, lightweight champion, in the Labor Day match at Vancouver, will be decided Saturday at Vancouver, when Ray Campbell, a Seattle lightweight, and Eddie Moy, will box 15 rounds, according to a telegram received here from Campbell last night. The winner of the Campbell-Moy bout will be Ritchie's opponent. Campbell is in Vancouver and will begin training at once.

Bridal Tourists.

The bride looked on the mountains,
The river's golden strand.
Italian garden fountains
Were tinkling near at hand.
She spake with cooing kindness,
"How fair these vistas are!"
The bridegroom in his blindness
Bowed down beneath the car.

From thence did he deliver
Some words about a chain,
Such words as made her shiver
With an astonished pain.
Then to the balmy breezes
She hummed these lines and smiled,
"Where every prospect pleases
And only man is riled."

FISH HATCHERIES ON GREAT LAKES

Nearly everyone in Canada is aware of the enormous amount of fish of all kinds that is taken from the Great Lakes during the fishing season, which extends from early spring until late in November. Thousands of men are at work every day cleaning out the nets and preparing the catches for shipment to the big markets throughout Canada and the United States. A trip over the waters of the lakes will reveal the homes of these fishermen, scattered along the shores from Kingston to the head of Lake Superior.

To offset the heavy drain on the resources of the lakes, the Dominion Government established at various points fish hatcheries, where the little minnows are hatched from the eggs and later put into the lakes. A number of these stations are in Ontario, the chief plants being at Sarnia, Sandwich, Collingwood, Ottawa, Wiarton, Southampton, Newcastle and Port Arthur. The United States Government also has a number of these stations along the American shores, where a very large number of fish are also turned out.—Rod and Gun.

A WAGNER STORY

Veteran Player Thought More of Admirers Than Himself

Of Hans Wagner, the baseball star, a story is told—a tale that shows how the German had a heart that was purest gold: A few years ago Hans Wagner, rich in this world's goods, and even then weary of the game, announced his retirement. No hold-out, no demand for money or privilege—just determined to quit and take things easy, that was all. Panic prevailed in Pittsburg—and Harry Pulliam, now dead, came up to see the German. He found Wagner obdurate, immutable, immovable. "I'm through, that's all," growled Hans. "I've got money—and sore muscles. I need no more money—I can't stand much more ball player. I'm done."

"Hans," said Pulliam, "this old smoky town is full of hard-working, honest toilers, men of the mills. Little pleasure is theirs in life—mighty little. A Saturday afternoon—a few hours under the blue sky—and the chance to see Hans Wagner play ball. They go out there to that field by thousands, just to see you. That's a joy and a real delight to those poor fellows—and you don't want to take that pleasure away from them?"

"Give me that pen," growled Wagner; "I'll sign it, Harry, and I'll play as long as they want me to!" No hold-up, no hold-out—only a sacrifice of the strained body that yearned for rest and ease—only a sacrifice to please a gentleman and to please the smoke-grimed thousands that made Wagner the idol of their leisure hours! That was all—but it showed the golden weave of Wagner's heart and soul.

JOHNSTON IS MODEST

He Is Merely a Hired Man and Works on That Theory

Walter Johnson, Washington phenomenal pitcher is one of the most popular players in the game. The Johnson of to-day is not the Johnson who broke into the American league from Idaho. Then he was an awkward, over-grown boy, with terrific speed and little else. To-day he is the finished article. Tall, well-built, graceful, he is tremendously powerful and pitches with a frictionless ease which impels the query, "Where does his speed come from?"

WALTER JOHNSON

He pitches to win and wastes no time. He gets his signals from the catcher while returning to his place and is ready to deliver the ball when he steps upon the slab. His games are notably short.

Walter Johnson prefers to submerge himself rather than seek the limelight so pleasant to many players. He regards himself as a workman, employed to win ball games and he sees nothing strange in the fact that he wins them. That is what he is paid for.

Critics unite in declaring him the greatest pitcher of all time, and surely no one could wear high honors with less self-consciousness than this big chap.

A lock which, when the key is turned, shuts off the gasoline and disconnects the battery and magneto is a new invention to foil automobile thieves.

AVERTS BIG DISASTER

Switchman Deliberately Derails an Express Train.

Clarence Wise, Tower Operator, Near Hammond, Indiana, Sees Wells-Fargo Train Approaching as "Nickel Plate" is Crossing Bridge, and to Save Lives of 350 Passengers, He Lets Express Run Into River.

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—The quick decision of Clarence Wise, a railway tower man, stationed at the Calumet River bridge, near Hammond, Ind., probably saved the lives of 350 men and women, en route from Chicago to New York, and other eastern points, this afternoon. Wise averted a head-on collision between a passenger train and an express train by throwing the switch which swept the express down an embankment into the river. Only a few of the passengers knew of the danger they escaped.

At the Calumet River the Erie and the Nickel Plate Railways use the same bridge. The Nickel Plate train, known as the New York, Chicago and St. Louis No. 1, due at Hammond at 4.35, was whirling along at a rate of 35 miles an hour. Coming in the opposite direction, but somewhat behind time, was the Wells-Fargo express train on the Erie, No. 14. The Nickel Plate train carried 12 vestibuled coaches, while the express carried 14 express coaches and a diner.

While the Nickel Plate train was in the midst of its crossing, Clarence Wise, stationed in the tower, saw the Erie express shoot suddenly from behind a curve and bear down upon the passenger train.

"I just figured it had to be one or the other, so I let the express train have it, since it carried few passengers," said the unassuming hero.

Wise threw the switch, causing the express to take a header down the steep embankment of the approach to the bridge, and totally wrecking the engine and derailing the cars. Even then he was not quick enough to prevent the cow-catcher from ripping into one of the vestibuled coaches and tearing a hole in it.

The engineer of the wrecked express, Henry Palmer, jumped as the train struck the derail. He landed immediately in front of the Nickel Plate train, but managed to roll off the track in time to save his life. J. B. Hoffman, the Erie fireman, jumped from the other side of the cabin at the same moment and was also uninjured.

The Nickel Plate No. 1 did not hesitate, but continued on its way at the rate of 35 miles an hour. None of the passengers except those in the coach which was struck by the cow-catcher of the wrecked train knew how narrow their escape had been.

Clarence Wise is 24 years old and lives in Hammond. "I'm not a hero," he says, "the Nickel Plate had the right of way, and I gave it to her."

CASTRO IS CRUSHED.

CARACAS, Venezuela, Aug. 21.—(Can. Press.)—Gen. Leon Jurado, governor of the State of Falcon, in cooperation with the gunboat Marescal Sucre, attacked and completely defeated the rebel followers of Gen. Cipriano Castro, the former Venezuelan dictator, yesterday, at Coro, according to an official announcement issued by the government here today. All the officers commanding the rebel forces were captured and are now on board the Venezuelan warship.

The prisoners include Gen. Castro's brother-in-law, Gen. Simon Bello; the ex-president's two nephews, Julio Velasco Castro and Victime Parra Castro, the former dictator's confidential assistant, Juan Liendo, and also a number of Colombian and French officers.

The whereabouts of Gen. Castro still remains unknown here.

Unimportant invasions of Venezuelan territory continue to be made by rebels from across the Colombian border. A few insurgent bands are operating near Coro, but Gen. Jurado has asked permission to muster out a part of his troops. The entire army of President Juan Vicente Gomez still remains at Maracay, 60 miles west of Caracas.

The news of the victory of the government troops in the State of Falcon has served to re-establish business confidence at the capital.

WANTS CONCESSION.

Germany to Extend Favored Nation Clause to Britain.

BERLIN, Germany, Aug. 21.—(C.A.P.)—Immediately the reichstag reassembles a measure will be laid before the house affecting the commercial relations between Germany and England and her overseas dominions. The bill will authorize the federal council to extend her most favored nation treatment to Great Britain, her colonies and other possessions. A step in this arrangement has already been in force with all dominions excepting Canada, who in 1910 obtained concessions on twenty-five articles in the German tariff in return for the suspension of article thirty-three and the third surcharge levied by the Canadian Government on all German products entering the Dominion.

Several previous attempts have been made to bring Canada in line, but without success.

Since the last convention the sum of $40,256 has been paid out in sick benefits, and funeral benefits of deceased members amounted to $13,686, making a total of $53,942 since 1874. The union has paid out in sick and benefit funds $2,650,344.

Request of Union Men.

They claim that Fallon Bros. are violating their contract.

Roller Went Over Him.

CHATHAM, Aug. 21.—(Special.)—William Gamble, a farmer residing near Paincour, had a narrow escape while driving a roller in one of his fields. The team of horses took fright and ran away. Gamble was knocked from his seat at the top of the roller and thrown under the horses' feet, the roller passing over his body, inflicting severe injuries. He is now in a precarious condition.

ANOTHER GAME KILLED.

Whiskey in Tar and Cement Barrels Seized in North.

SOUTH PORCUPINE, Aug. 21.—By the fortunate disclosure that barrels of cement and pitch contained within them ten gallons of whiskey the provincial police of this district claim they have put a stop to a great deal of the liquor traffic.

The find came about in a peculiar manner on Monday of this week, and the constable's suspicion was only aroused when too much cement and tar were shipped into the town. As a result of the raid made three cases will be heard before Magistrate Thomas Torrance on Saturday afternoon of this week. A barber by the name of Gagnon is out on $500 bail. Joseph Hudan Losses of the South Porcupine Hotel is out on $150 bail, while E. Juneau is awaiting a bondsman to be allowed his freedom until the trial takes place.

On Monday Provincial Constables R. T. Smith and Ed. Jordan became suspicious of a barrel of tar, weighing nearly three hundred pounds, lying unclaimed at the station. They managed to shift the heavy barrel and heard a suspicious noise inside. They immediately opened the barrel, and by digging out the hard tar located the ten gallon keg of whiskey inside. A 500 pound barrel of cement which had been allowed to set solid was next investigated and another ten gallons of booze fell into the hands of the police. This was the start of an investigation which led to the arrest of the three men on whose premises, it is alleged, other evidence was found which led the officers to suspect that they were the ones carrying on this novel method of importation.

The barrels being addressed to nonresidents of the town also aided the police in effecting the detecting of the booze. The method is indeed a novel one. Before the barrel of cement was opened it was necessary to use a pick to break away the hardened concrete from around the inner keg.

"DON'T MARRY A BOXER."

They Only Work When Weather Suits Says Judge.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 21.—Of the 205 couples that applied today for divorce, fifty were brides and bridegrooms. To the husband of Elizabeth Klein, who complained that his wife had discarded her wedding ring and consequently was not entitled to financial support in wifely style, Judge Barrett said:

"This is a progressive age. Women have a right to do as they please, and if a woman does not want to wear her wedding ring that is her own affair and should not be regarded as an indication that she has no regard for the marriage ceremony."

After disposing of the cases of three prize fighters, "Young" Nitchie, "Kid" Beebe and "Jerry Willetts," all of whom argued that they were back in their alimony because the summer was their slack season, the court said:

MRS. HELEN HATHAWAY BRITTON owner of the St. Louis Cardinals.

This society woman probably knows more about baseball than any other fanette in the world. Her uncle, Stanley Robinson, former traction magnate of Cleveland and baseball capitalist, owned the team for years and when he died left the property to her.

Just how much she loves the game is told in this remark she made: "I'd rather own a winning team than be a princess of an empire!"

She is ambitious to make baseball more popular with women, to force recognition of her ability as a business woman, and to bring society leaders to the games.

Mrs. Britton goes to every game. She's always there at the start, sitting in the front sea of the grandstand, right behind the catcher.

Good Soldiers Here

"You have splendid material here in Canada, much better, I should say, than we have in Britain, but you are in more need of training, and I think you should have a sixteen days' period of military camp instead of but eight."

In these words Lord Brooke, the British territorial officer who was one of those who exchanged with Canadian officers through the plan for interdiffusion of the military experiences of both countries, expressed himself at Ottawa.

Highlanders at Old Battlefield

A company of the Cameron Highlanders visited the site of the skirmish at Preston, marching in the direction taken by the Highlanders, and going over all the principal lines of the fight to Bankton (Gardiner's house), and returning to Edinburgh by the route followed by Prince Charlie.

Badger-baiting Not Sport

At Ystrad, Wales, ten men were charged with cruelty by baiting a badger. A policeman saw the defendants with others on the mountain near Clydach Vale. There were a number of dogs and they badly mauled a badger which was carried about in a box. The magistrate said this was not sport but cruelty, and fined the defendants.

Gift For Street Garden

Mr. C. H. Master, formerly High Sheriff of Surrey, gave $10,000 to the town of Guildford for the laying out as a garden a site until recently occupied by a number of business premises and known as Ram Corner in High street. The spot had for many years been the narrowest point on the main road between London and Portsmouth.

GEORGE HOGRIEVER

George Horgriever, manager and outfielder of the Appleton, Wis., club, was playing ball a full quarter of a century ago, but is still playing as fast a game as any of the youngsters he is developing as future major leaguers. He has been doing the same thing for the past 25 years in major and big minor leagues. As he intends to keep on playing until forced to retire, the chances are he will be playing when his grandchildren break into base ball

WOMEN GET FULL PAY

No Discrimination In Case of Norway's Postal Employes

For fifty years Norwegian women in the postal service have been paid the same salaries as men for the same work. Five years ago a Conservative Administration proposed lower wages for the women postal employes as a good way to reduce Government expenses. The measure was lost, and the question was allowed to rest in peace until last year, when another Conservative Administration again proposed to discriminate against women by making their rises in salary after certain periods of service, lower than those of the men holding the same positions and with the same claim to advancement. The majority report of the committee that had the bill under consideration was in favor of its acceptance. But an election resulted in the return of a majority of Liberals to the Storthing, and the formation of a Liberal Cabinet. The new Postmaster-General sided with the minority report on the proposition, and a great many of the Storthing members also espoused the women's case. The final vote stood 80 against the bill to 30 for, and the women employes will continue to receive equal pay for equal work as heretofore.

Swiss Women Open "Petticoat Cafe" and Lure is Effective

The women of Piona, a small village in the Canton of St. Gall, Switzerland, have opened a cafe in order to prevent the men visiting neighboring towns.

The men petitioned the local authorities to open a cheap public cafe in Piona, where they could spend their evenings. Their wives and daughters objected, and the petition was refused.

In revenge the men sought entertainment in other villages, and the women thereupon organized a syndicate for the purpose of establishing a cafe of their own. Refreshments are sold at a little over cost, and the women take turns in acting as waitresses.

The "Petticoat Cafe" has proved such a success that the rival resorts were obliged to close.

Fancy Flat Braids

Most unusual in their combination of colors are many of the flat braids shown for trimming gowns. They come from the tiniest of edgings not a quarter of an inch in width to one three or four inches wide. While the Bulgarian note is sounded in many of them, the softer colorings, especially when combined with tinsel, are decidedly fetching. The blues and greens combined with the metal, whether separatedly or in combination, are charming.

Fall of a Meteorite

A meteorite weighing 37 pounds is the subject of discussion in chemical circles in Johannesburg. The stone fell in Zululand a few months ago, and was not only noticed by an eyewitness some 15 miles away, but fell within a few feet of a native woman, who gave information which led to its discovery. The meteorite cannot be broken. It is known, however, to contain platinum.

DESERONTO NOTES

(From The Post.)

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Sager left yesterday for a few days' visit, taking in Belleville, Rednerville and Consecon.

Messrs. James Cole and Arthur Malley have returned from the west, where they were engaged in government survey work.

Mrs. Jas. Blanchard of St. Ignace, Mich., is in Deseronto, on her first visit to Canada, having come here to see relatives. She is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. St. Louis, Green Street.

Invitations are out for the marriage of Miss Ida Mae, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Carnahan, to Mr. Richard Williams, of Point Anne. The happy event takes place on Wednesday evening, Sept. 3rd.

St. Mark's Church held their annual outing to Massassaga Park on Tuesday. The day was ideal, the attendance was good, and everybody enjoyed themselves thoroughly, nothing taking place to mar the enjoyment of the day.

Mr. and Mrs. Del. Cook have left town to take up their residence in Point Anne. Mr. Cook has already been there for some time, removing his family last week. Mrs. Cook will be very much missed in the Methodist Church, where she was actively identified with the different organizations of the church, especially the Sunday School and Junior League.

Bass fishing is said to be especially good in the bay hereabouts at the present time. We have heard of some splendid catches. On Thursday of last week Mr. W. H. Brown and his sister Kathleen, and Miss Laughlin were fishing a little above Foresters' Island when Miss Kathleen landed two nice fish, one weighing about three pounds, and the other about one and three-quarter pounds.

Mrs. Alex Sayers, Thomas street, was called away last week to the bedside of her mother, Mrs. Jane Macfarlane, who was seriously ill. On Sunday morning Mr. Sayers received a telegram stating that the old lady, who was 89 years of age, had passed away. The funeral took place on Monday, the remains being interred in a cemetery a little east of Napanee. Mr. Sayers drove down.

The factory shed, at the corner of Mill and Main streets, has been razed to the ground, to make way for the final placing of the C.N.R. tracks through the town, which work will be commenced within a few days. The town authorities have also been advised that a hydrant somewhere in the rear of Major Malley's property is in the way, and will have to be moved.

Two or three real estate transfers took place last week. Mr. Frank Van Vlack has purchased the residence and grounds adjoining that of Mrs. George Mouland; Mr. George Richardson has purchased the house belonging to Wm. Wright, on Centre street, and now occupied by Mr. Wm. Howard, while Mr. Howard has purchased the house on Dundas street belonging to Mr. I. Allum, and recently occupied by Mr. A. D. Macintyre.

While engaged at his work on Monday morning, about three o'clock, in the railway yard, a Macedonian, named Alozo Daileff, was seen to fall backward to the ground, and when his fellow-workmen went to him, he was found to be dead. The doctors were summoned, but of course were unable to do anything. While there was no doubt that the man's death came about in the natural way, Coroner Passmore empanelled a jury to sit on the case at 9 a.m. on Tuesday. County Crown Attorney Anderson of Belleville was present, and examined the witnesses. Several witnesses were examined, chief of whom were Drs. Newton and Vandervoort. Both these gentlemen agreed that death was caused by a heat stroke. A priest and interpreter of the same nationality as the deceased came from Toronto on Tuesday and took charge of the body.

Dan Cupid Wins In Elopement Case

KINGSTON, Aug. 21.—Dan Cupid won out in the case of Pietro Maggio, the Italian, who was arrested in Kingston on Monday morning, charged with abduction. A despatch from Hamilton referring to the case in the police court.

"Sometimes the law is unjust, and as I don't care to be a party to a wrong decision, it would just as well to let this charge stand for a few days. In the meantime the marriage, which was suddenly postponed by the arrest of the prisoner, must be promulgated," said Magistrate Jelfs, when the charge of abducting a fifteen-year-old girl, as preferred against Piietro Maggio by her father was called.

When the magistrate saw the girl, who had the appearance of being eighteen years of age, he told acting Crown Attorney Crerar that the crown might as well drop further proceedings.

The evidence showed that Maggio was guilty of the offence, but when the girl was brought in the magistrate took her to be a girl much older than fifteen, and he did not think the prisoner was aware she was so young. The father of the girl does not want her to marry Maggio, because, it is said, he has picked out a husband for his daughter in the old land.

Swamp Fires Raging Near Lindsay

LINDSAY, Aug. 21.—Not only does the north country suffer from fire and smoke, but also around Lindsay the dreaded element prevails. North-east of the town, in that section known as Blackwell's swamp, the fire has started, according to a report brought in by a traveller from that district.

The farmers are all out fighting the flames, which is rapidly devouring everything in its wake. Shrubbery, line fences and dry grassy plains are subject to the fast travelling element.

How it started is unknown, but it is supposed that berry-pickers are responsible. A stump caught fire on the side from which the wind was blowing, and situated over 150 rods away, which looks like incendiarism might be charged to some person or persons unknown.

Mr. Plowden, the well-known London Magistrate, was once questioning the wife of a notorious burglar. "You are the wife of this man?" he asked. "Yes." "You knew he was a burglar when you married him?" "Yes." "How came you to contract a marriage with such a man?" "Well," the woman explained, "I was getting old, and I had to choose between him and a lawyer."

HARRY THAW HAS TO WAIT ONE WEEK

Flurry is Caused in Sherbrooke by Judge Globensky's Error in Not Saying When the Writ Was Returnable — Rumors Spread That Thaw Would Be Taken From Jail and Kidnapped.

SHERBROOKE, Que., Aug. 21.—(Can Press.)—Until Wednesday of next week, barring unforeseen developments, Harry K. Thaw will remain in Sherbrooke Jail. On that day he is to be arraigned in the superior court on a writ of habeas corpus. Between now and that time his battery of lawyers hope to perfect plans not to thwart deportation, but to submit to it gracefully—to a point selected by Thaw.

This, in brief, was the status tonight of Matteawan's fugitive, arrested on Tuesday near Coaticaak, and committed to jail here on a defective warrant. Ignorant of the moves made by his lawyers, Thaw has spent his time pacing the length of the narrow corridor in the Sherbrooke Jail, and was not even aware that the writ of habeas corpus in his case was served on the jailer this afternoon, and that but for a timely telephone message, he would have been produced in court today with the bench vacant.

This incident, variously described as a blunder, a case of absent-mindedness, and an error due to hurry, arose after Superior Judge Globensky failed to specify in writing that the writ was returnable before him on Wednesday next. He had set this date in chambers, but the writ reading "instanter" when served on the jailer, set that official into instant action, and he called a carriage and ordered Thaw to dress for an outing, when a telephone message from the judge informed him that the latter was leaving for Montreal, not to return here until next week.

Meanwhile District Attorney Conger of Dutchess County, N.Y., Deputy Attorney General Franklin Kennedy of Albany, and others primarily interested in getting Thaw across the border, seized on the possibility of his immediate production, and sought to find another judge before whom to arraign him. But Mr. Laforce, governor of the jail, declined to surrender the prisoner until he had consulted with Sheriff Aylmer, and the latter, after reading the writ carefully, said that while no time for its return was stated, he had understood from the court that Wednesday was the day and he allowed Thaw had better stay in jail.

Rumors sprouted meanwhile that the New York authorities were trying to kidnap Thaw, that an automobile was ready to whirl him to the New York line, that an open clash, perhaps in street battle, was imminent. As a matter of fact, the officers from New York were as much surprised as anyone. They had protested at postponing the proceedings until Wednesday, but their protests failing had decided to bide their time, hoping that when arraigned Thaw would be released as a fugitive and promptly snapped up by the immigration authorities as an undesirable.

The governor of the jail, explaining his difficulties tonight, said: "Someone representing himself to be Judge Globensky called me on the telephone this afternoon and said Thaw would not need to appear in court before Wednesday. I was not entirely settled as to the time, because I thought he said something about tomorrow. As a matter of fact I rather doubted that it was Judge Globensky. I was confused, particularly when I received another call. This time it was from a man who told me "to get under cover because something is going to happen."

"Half an hour later the bailiff appeared and served the habeas corpus papers on me, saying that I was to deliver Thaw immediately. I was as near bewildered then as I ever have been in my life. Within half an hour I had been told to produce him Wednesday, tomorrow and immediately.

"I found a crowd outside and there were wild rumors that the prisoner was goin gto be taken away. But of course these were untrue, and I finally straightened matters out by consultation with the sheriff."

Thaw's lawyers said tonight that they were well satisfied with the events of today. They feel now that Thaw's fate, so far as the Canadian authorities may influence it, is practically settled. The departure for Ottawa early this morning of W. L. Shurtleff was the first step in a plan to procure Thaw's removal from Canada without long legal proceedings.

All of them profess to believe that the minister of the interior will accede to the request that Thaw be permitted to "nominate his destination" in return for submitting without further protest to deportation.

Those who are advising that, among them some of the ablest criminal lawyers in Canada, said tonight that they were confident that the government will welcome such a solution of the problem with which Thaw's unexpected arrival so suddenly confronted them. No one contends that Thaw has violated a single law of the Dominion, unless it be that one which provides that no alien may enter Canada without special permit within five years after he has been an inmate of an asylum for the insane.

Found Lying in Yard.

GALT, Aug. 21.—(Special.)—Norman Schweitzer, living near Hespeler, was this morning found by his mother lying on the ground in the yard, unconscious and bleeding profusely from one ear. Nearby was a horse with a halter on, running about the yard. The doctor who was called, found the young man lying unconscious. He is suffering from internal injuries and is in a very serious condition. The injuries are presumably due to a kick from a horse.

Mr. Ives has a mind that delights in facts. One evening he laid down the paper, was silent for a moment, and then said:

"That's odd."

"What is it?" inquired his wife.

"Why here is a man who said it would take twelve million years to pump the sea dry at the rate of a thousand gallons a second."

Mrs. Ives sat thinking the matter over. Finally she said:

"Why, Henry, where would they put all the water?"

But the favors you do for your wife's relatives, are they appreciated?

Father's New Straw Hat.

Father has a new straw hat.
Paid two dollars for it too.
Mother sadly tells him that
Was a foolish thing to do.
Mother murmurs with disgust
At the way dad has behaved;
Says that his new hat is just
Like the old one that she saved.

Father listens with a smile
Or attempts sometimes to show
Mother how they've changed the style.
She will not believe it, though.
Mother thinks it is a shame.
Dad can never make it clear
Why he shouldn't wear the same
Straw hat that he wore last year.

Father says: "I never scold
When you get a hat that's new.
I don't tell you that your old
Hat is good enough to do."
Mother sadly asks him then
Why he cares what people say
Or should still be stylish when
He is married anyway.

RUSHED TO THE RESCUE.

Then They Made a Tactful, if Ignoble, Retreat to Safety.

An amusing story of the adventure that four men had with an irritable bull is told by a correspondent of the London Field. It contains a hint that may be useful to some reader who shall hereafter find himself in a similar disagreeable situation.

A farmer had a bull that he thought perfectly docile. One day he was quietly walking behind the herd when without any warning the bull turned and came straight at him. He had a heavy club in his hands, and he struck the animal with all his might over the head and eyes several times, when the club broke. For the moment he did not know what to do and thought it was all over with him, when he remembered that some one had told him that a bull would not attack you if you lay down, so he threw himself flat on his face and shouted for help, and three of his men who were not far off came running to the rescue.

When they got within about twenty yards he told them to come on their hands and knees, and in this way they came up alongside of him. The question then was what to do. They came to the conclusion that the only thing left was for all of them to retreat backward on their hands and knees. This they did, and the bull, never more than a yard off, followed them up with his head slightly on one side. Meanwhile he snorted and bellowed, and his eyes, showing all the whites, looked, the farmer said, as if they would come out of his head. At last the men reached the river bank, slipped over the edge and so escaped.

SAMSON HASKELL OF BENTLEY

—BY—

CHARLES A. MACFARLANE

(Copyright Applied For)

CHAPTER XII.

Samson Makes Good.

The blacks were away for the third heat at the first trial, passed under the wire on even terms, and made the first quarter together. Then Henry's gelding gained a neck; but on passing the judges' stand at the completion of the first circuit, Blackhawk poked his nose to the fore, much to the delight of his many admirers.

Up to the third quarter they flew without either gaining an inch. The pace was terrific, each horse straining every muscle. Then Henry began to draw away: a head, a neck, a half-length. It was clear that the pride of Haskell's stable was being outfooted in as pretty and honest a race as ever was trotted. Strive as Blackhawk might, he could not overcome his opponents's lead, but instead was losing ground at every step. Samson had urged his pet, and he had responded nobly, but Henry was handling the reins like a professional, and continued to gain until his sulky wheel was at Blackhawk's nose.

Something must be done and at once. They were now on the home stretch, the Rollins horse two lengths ahead and still gaining.

Samson was almost in despair; he saw Henry escorting Delilah Gaylord to the oyster supper at Ogden; as the accepted lover of the girl he wanted more than anything else on earth. He saw his chum of years, William Feltus, one thousand dollars to the bad; he heard the plaints of many who had staked on the success of his horse; he saw his own five hundred pass into the pocket of Father Rollins, who would never cease to boast of his wonderful winnings.

In sheer desperation he leaned forward, took a new grip on the reins, and yelled. If ever Samson Haskell roared, he did it for the next thirty rods.

Like a rocket Blackhawk shot forward, gaining a length at the first bound; and while Samson roared he travelled. The animal did not leave his feet, as might have been expected, but settled down to a square trot, covering more ground in the following ten seconds than he had ever been known to make in fifteen. His feet seemed scarcely to mingle with the dust of the ground.

Samson's cap sailed over the fence, his coat tails waved in the breeze behind him, and as a unique spectacle would have made an excellent subject for a moving picture enthusiast.

As the pair neared the home wire, the immense crowd in the grandstand rose as one being, and appeared to have stopped breathing.

Henry's faithful beast endeavored with all his powers to hold his own, but to no purpose; Blackhawk had obtained his second wind, and continued to widen the gap, sweeping past the judges' stand a winner by three lengths, in the marvellous time of 2.18.

It was then that bedlam broke loose. Shouts, yells and cheers rose on the air in deafening volume. There was no mistaking the horse who held the largest place in the hearts of those present. The crowd became a mob. They attempted to surround Samson and carry him bodily from the track, but he avoided them, reaching the barn as Henry followed through the surging crowd, Rollins the senior bringing up the rear, a look of dejection upon his face.

"How much will you take for him now, Father Rollins?" asked Samson, looking the dripping animal over.

"You kin have him for five hundred, seeing you own his mate. I don't propose to lose any more on him. Today's work has nigh broke me."

"How much have you lost?"

"The five hundred you won."

"Lookey here, Neighbor Rollins," said Samson, laying a friendly hand upon his shoulder, "I don't want your money. I let Henry win the second heat because you had three hundred staked between you. I covered your five hundred on the third heat to save you from being fleeced. I kalkilated to win that last heat if I killed my hoss, and I didn't want you to be a loser. That's the only reason I bet. Now, I'll give you four hundred cash and call the bet off."

Rollins' face lighted like a cloud passing from before the sun. Within five minutes he had eight fifty dollar bills in his hand, and Samson's handsome Blackhawk was mated at last. He knew that Feltus would be around presently with an offer of five hundred for the defeated trotter, and was well pleased to close the bargain on the spot.

When Kendall entered and handed Haskell the stakes he was surprised to see five hundred immediately handed over to Rollins, while the winner dropped the other five hundred carelessly in his pocket.

"I reckon some folks are getting mighty liberal," suggested Kendall.

"I kin afford to be liberal, under the circumstances," answered Samson; "and I hain't fleecing old friends any more. Samson Haskell has won something today that money can't buy."

A half hour later he drove into the Gaylord yard, the Rollins horse trotting contentedly at the side of Blackhawk.

Father and Mother Gaylord hastened from the house to extend their congratulations on the result of the race, and observing the Rollins horse asked what Samson intended doing with him.

"I bought him. The two ar twins, and ought to be together. They'll bring me a fancy price as drivers."

"You shan't sell Blackhawk," exclaimed a familiar voice from the kitchen window, and Delilah appeared through the door.

"Do you want him for your own?" asked Samson, with a doubtful smile.

"Yes, I do. If I don't take him they'll both be sold within a week."

"Well, as he will be in my care jest the same, we'll call it he's yourn."

"Ma and Pa, you are witnesses that the colt is mine now," she said, turning to her parents; "and Samson has no right to sell him, if he should have a chance to."

"We be witnesses," responded Father Gaylord solemnly, as the horses were led into the stable.

While Samson was busy arranging quarters for the latest acquisition, Delilah entered, a bright flush upon her face.

"Samson, I am glad you won today. But at one time I was afraid I should have had to put up with Henry. I could have shouted right out when I saw how heroically you finished; and all the people were glad, too."

"And you will go to Ogden on New Year with me?"

"To be sure I will, Samson. You know I will," and she came quite close to him. "We shall have the nicest team in the company; and I don't think we shall be a bit ashamed of each other, do you?"

"I reckon me an' you will look pretty nigh as handsome as any on 'em, Delilah. But do you remember what Feltus suggested when he first spoke of the race, and what the prize should be?"

"What was that, Samson?"

"How that the girl should marry the winner."

"Samson Haskell, I should think you would be satisfied with the honor I have granted you," and while her face wore a serious expression, there was a humorous twinkle in the brown eyes.

"But I gave you Blackhawk, Delilah."

"Delilah Gaylord is not to be bought with a horse, if his speed did win you a certain privilege."

"I don't want to buy you, Delilah. I would never live with a woman who could be bought. But I think a powerful site of ye, Delilah, as you seen by the way I drove Blackhawk today. And I done it all for you, Delilah."

"But I'm not ready to marry any man—not yet, while I am able to take care of myself. And I won't allow any man to order me about. I have always been the head of the Gaylord household, and no second place will suit me. When I am old, and crippled with rheumatism, and need a man to help me, I may consider your proposal."

"Will you give me the first chance—when the time comes to change your mind?"

"That depends; I might fall in love with a handsomer man. We women are fickle, you know."

"And you will let me know when you decide for or agin marrying me?"

"Yes; if you will promise not to mention the subject to me again."

"I promise," answered Samson, in a submissive voice, as he turned to his work. "Jest say the word when you are ready, Delilah, and I'll be on hand to hetch onto my end of the whiffletree. But Samson Haskell don't want no one that don't want him, even if she is the prettiest girl in the county."

She came close to him, and looked searchingly, half longingly, into his face. "Do you truly think I am pretty, Samson?" She spoke low, and there was a perceptible meaning in her voice. Had Samson understood her then, as he did later—for David Gaylord's daughter was in many ways unfathomable—he might have ended all opposition on the spot. But he let the opportunity pass.

"That's what I said," and his voice was unusually gruff, as he moved away from her.

"You are not mad, Samson?" and she appeared surprised at his change of demeanor.

"Not real mad, Delilah. But I'm just a little tired of bein' played with. As I said, you can send me notice when you're ready to put on the double harness, and I'll consider the proposition."

"Henry Rollins wouldn't speak to me that way," and the tears came to her eyes.

"Nor would Theresa Harding treat me as you have done," he retailiated. "Theresa has allus been considerate of my feelin's, whilst you've made it your business to pounce on me at every chance. I reckon I've been a door mat fer your feet long enough, Delilah. Me and Theresa has allus agreed real nice, and there hain't no reason why we can't agree for the rest of our lives, if I say the word."

"Theresa Harding wouldn't have you any more than I would, Samson Haskell; so you needn't build any air castles on her love. And it is not always the softest tongue that proves your best friend—not in the end," and with a stifled sob she whisked out of the stable like a queen.

At last Samson's eyes were opened to Delilah Gaylord's inner heartworkings. He now saw where the difficulty lay, and determined to act up to the full extent of his knowledge.

BEAUTIFY THE HANDS

Much Care is Needed to Keep Them Plump and Pretty

Nothing is uglier than an uncared for hand, with broken blackened nails and yellow, dried skin, to say nothing of knuckle and wrist bones that are poorly clothed with flesh. Many maids and matrons will spend many minutes daily fussing with their complexions and hair, with never a thought to their hands, except a casual and hurried cleansing once or twice daily. This is not the way to obtain beautiful hands.

To begin with, it is of the utmost importance that the hands should be kept immaculately clean. You can not scrub and scour them too much. Remember that once every day she who desires smooth hands must fill up a basin with hot soft water, and seizing upon a cake of soap and a stiff bristled nail brush, proceed to give her hands a tip-top cleansing. Rub and scrub until you feel that every bit of grime has been dislodged.

The next thing for you to do is to dry the hands. This is something most women fail to do. They think they dry them, but in nine cases out of ten a great deal of moisture remains on the skin. The result of this imperfect drying comes later, when the hands prematurely begin to age; to grow brown and rough and wrinkled. The moral of this is that you must friction your hands, after they have had a bath, with a dry towel for three or four minutes. Do not stop until every bit of water has been absorbed.

No woman likes to possess knuckle and wrist bones with hardly a shred of flesh on them. The southern way of procuring plump hands is to soak the hands for 15 minutes in a bowlful of water as hot as can be endured. When the time is over the hands must be taken out of the steaming water and put in a cream bath. What is this? A bowl filled half full with some good hand food, and thinned with warm sweet almond oil. Into this beautifying mixture plunge the hands, and keep them immersed for full 10 minutes. If this treatment is taken often and the cream is allowed time to sink into the pores of the skin, the hands will soon grow plump as plump can be. Here is a dainty hand cream:

LET THERE BE HARMONY IN THINGS ESSENTIAL—LIBERALTY IN THINGS NOT ESSENTIAL—CHARITY IN ALL.

Vol. 47 BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, SATURDAY, AUGUST 23, 1913. No. 95

GALICIAN GOVERNOR TO STOP EMIGRATION TO CANADA AND U. S.

Vienna, Austria, Aug. 22.—The governor of Galicia, a crown land of Austria-Hungary, has declared his determination to stop the emigration of adults from his country to Canada and the United States.

Today he ordered the police to arrest all male persons between the ages of 18 and 36 and liable for military service who attempted to leave the country and to send them to their homes.

This Couple Had Mania for Marrying

HAGERTOWN, Mr., Aug. 22.—To be married to each other eleven times since 1909 has been the novel experience of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Vernon, who are at Braddock Heights. The marriage ceremonies have been performed in as many different countries. Asked why he and his wife had been married so often when once usually si enought, Vernon said it was a hobby with them, and they took the precaution because in some foreign countries marriages performed in others are not recognized.

He and his wife were first married in Columbus, Ohio, in 1909, then in Montreal in 1910, in England, Scotland, Wales, France, Germany, Belgium and Russia in 1911, in Sydney, Australia, in 1912 and in Vera Cruz, Mexico, in 1913. They hold marriage certificates of all these weddings and the display is unique.

In some of the countries where they were married they did not understand a word the officiating clergyman was saying, but simply nodded their heads when they thought the time had come to make the responses. They speak French and German. The first time they were married former Governor Herrick of Ohio, then the state's executive was a witness.

N. Y. Millionaire Wants Thaw Free

MONTREAL, Aug. 22.—T. E. Whitney Paget, New York millionaire, was a visitor to Montreal to-day.. Mr. Paget is a scion of the well known Paget and Whitney families in New York. He is one of the leaders of the younger branch of New York's "400." Mr. Paget was seated with friends in the lobby of the Queens Hotel. He visits Canada occasionally in the fall of the year.

"What do you think about the Thaw case?" Mr. Paget was asked, "and what seems to be the opinion in the smart set in New York about it?"

"I suppose opinion is divided, the same as everywhere else," said the millionaire, "but most of us want to see him get away with it. The poor chap has suffered ten times more than if they had electrocuted him in the first pace."

"You are convinced that you need a vacation?"

"Yes, replied the Senator. "I've got to get away to some place where I can forget political cares and do some real work."

"KNOW-HOW-ITIVENESS STICK-TO-ITIVENESS."

These two words embrace the motto of the most successful manufacturing drug man in the country.

He is one of the largest advertisers in the daily newspapers in the United States.

He began using them after a careful study of the best means reaching the consumer and interesting the retailer. He knew how.

And he stuck to it.

He has got rich in a few years and he has the most loyal following of retailers of any manufacturer in the world.

The retailers swear by him, because he has made money for them—and taught them how to sell goods.

The manufacturer and his retailers all over the continent are planning one of the greatest co-operative advertising campaigns ever undertaken.

And newspapers like The Intelligencer will be the medium used in that campaign.

Foster has arrived in Vancouver on his return from the Orient and will come direct through to Ottawa. Hon. W. T. White sails from Liverpool tomorrow, and Hon. Martin Burrell will sail on August 27.

Saught Adventure Died at His Post

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 22.—Another hero story in the annals of wireless telegraphy was told here early today, when forty surviving members of the steamship State of California arrived here on the steamer Jefferson.

Donald C. Perkins, of Oakland, Cal., who went as chief wireless operator of the State of California in hope of encountering adventure, was off duty and asleep when the steamer struck an uncharted reef in Gambier Bay, Alaska, last Sunday morning. Awakened by the shock, he rushed to the wireless station room and ordered Walter Chamberlain, the operator on duty to seek safety. Then he sat down at the key, but before he could send his first message for help a falling mast went through the wireless house and crushed Perkins to death at his post.

Of the three lifeboats launched, the survivors said, one was useless, having been smashed by falling wreckage and one was carried down by the suction of the boat.

Ice House and Stable Damaged

Shortly after five o'clock Friday afternoon a fire broke out in a frame building in the rear of Wallace & Co.'s premises on Front street, and the structure was badly damaged before the blaze was extinguished. The building was used principally for the storing of ice, and Mr. O'Sullivan used a portion of it as a stable. The upper part and roof was burned. How the fire originated is not known, but by some it is thought to have caught from an electric wire. The loss is covered by insurance. The building is the property of the Wallace company.

Cheese Factory Burned and Family Jumped for Lives

KINGSTON, Ont., Aug. 22.—The model cheese factory at Inverary was destroyed by fire on Thursday night and cheesemaker Hiram Day of Kingston and his wife and two children barely managed to escape with their lives. The fire broke out at 10.30 o'clock in the boiler room. Mr. Day was aroused by smoke and made his way outside. His wife and two children had to get out of the upper window, Mr. Day catching them as they jumped. All were uninjured. They came out in their night clothes, as they had no time o save any of their belongings. The factory was valued at $3,000 and was insured for $2,000. There were sixty boxes of cheese in it. These were insured. The factory was owned by Thomas Thompson and Lieut-Col. Frederick Ferguson.

Adrianople will Stay Turkish

LONDON, Aug. 22.—The report comes from Constantinople that the Sublime Porte has been informed through diplomatic channels that the Powers have decided that Adrianople shall remain Turkish and that direct negotiations will be begun forthwith between Turkey and Bulgaria.

This report is not confirmed and according to Vienna advices the Powers are still seeking to arrive at an agreement and plan to threaten Turkey with financial starvation in the event of her refusal to respect the Treaty of London by retiring behind the Enos-Midia line.

CHANGE IN WIND SAVES BIDDEFORD, ME.

BIDDEFORD, Maine, Aug. 22.—A shift of the wind saved Biddeford from a serious disaster yesterday, when it turned back a forest fire that had swept up to the very outskirts of the city, despite the efforts of 800 militiamen, firemen and volunteers summoned by a riot call.

At West street, where the danger was greatest, the flames were within a few yards of an ice plant, and a number of dwellings. Many fire-fighters hemmed in by the rapidly spreading fire, had narrow escapes.

Thousands of acres of land were burned over, but as there was no valuable standing timber in the way the loss was comparatively small.

Falls a Mile From Aeroplane

Lieut. Schmidt Dashed to Death When Wing of Machine Broke

HALBERSTADT, Prussia, Aug. 22.—Lieut. Schmidt, of the 148th Infantry, and attached to the army aviation corp, met death here to-day by a fall from an altitude of almost a mile.

The lieutenant was completing an aeroplane flight to and from Goslar, a town in Hanover province, thirty miles west of Helberstadt, and had begun a descent in the shape of a spiral. When the aeroplane was at height of about 5,000 feet, one of the wings collapsed, and the machine plunged to the ground.

Resigns After 25 Years in Office

ORANGVEILLE, Aug. 22.—Police Magistrate Joseph Pattullo, who has been clerk of the first division court of the county of Dufferin for the past twenty-five years has tendered his resignation of the clerkship to the Ontario government.

Mr. Pattullo was appointed clerk in 1888 by the Mowat administration. Being a lawyer by profession he has been a most efficient official. In earlier days he took a lively interest in federal, provincial and municipal politics, and was for four terms mayor of the town.

Mr. Pattullo will continue to act as police magistrate in the discharge of the duties of which he has displayed marked fairness and acumen. In fact, his decisions have never been successfully appealed from, and rarely questioned.

Batteryman Arrested For Taking Clothes

KINGSTON, Aug. 22.—A batteryman named James Clark, was taken in charge by Constables Mullinger and Armstrong on Thursday morning on a charge of endeavoring to dispose of goods belonging to the militia department. It is claimed that Clark had a pair of boots, a shirt and a jacket, all the property of the battery, and that he was endeavoring to sell the goods at a second hand store on Princess Street.

Constables Mullinger and Armstrong spotted the accused in the store while they were coming down the street, and made an investigation. Clark was afterwards handed over to the military authorities.

Little Boy Jumped And Bit off Tongue

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—While playing in front of No. 289 East 149th street yesterday afternoon, Lewis Pizone, seven years old, of No. 254 East 154th street, dared other boys to jump from the roof of an extension six feet above the pavement. All the other boys climbed up and made the leap safely. When Lewis's turn came he nervously climbed and prepared to jump.

Just as he was about to leap his foot slipped, and instead of landing on his feet he landed on his chin. His tongue was sticking out and he almost bit it off.

The boy was taken to Lebanon Hospital, where it was found that his tongue was hanging by a shred. The surgeons sewed the severed part on again, and hope for the best.

Thurlow Barn Struck by Lightning

A fine large barn, the property of Mr. Frederick Grey on the 8th concession of Thurlow Township was last night struck by lightning and destroyed. The structure, which was erected but five years ago was in every respect up to date. Some horses were in the barn at the time, but fortunately they were taken out. The season's crop from 200 acres of land was in the barn and was burned, in addition to some farming implements. The loss, amounting to upward of $3,000, is only partially covered by insurance. Owing to the rain during the day and a heavy downpour at the time of the fire, the surrounding buildings were saved from destruction.

Argentina has imported a number of camels from the Canary Islands for experiment for agricultural purposes in regions not suited to horses or oxen.

FRECKLE-FACE

Sun and Wind Bring Out Ugly Spots. How to Remove Easily

Here's a chance, Miss Freckle-face, to try a remedy for freckles with the guarantee of a reliable dealer that it will not cost you a penny unless it removes the freckles; while if it does give you a clear complexion the expense is trifling.

Simply get an ounces of othine—double strength from J. S. McKeown and a few applications should show you how easy it is to rid yourself of the homely freckles and get a beautiful complexion. Rarely is more than one ounce needed for the worst case.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength othine as this is the prescription sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

HUERTA IS STRONGER

Mexican President Victorious Over the Rebels.

Peace is Being Secured in Mexico by Force of Arms and Conditions Are Reported to Have Improved—Nine Fights Against Constitutionalists in One Day Result in Victories.

MEXICO, CITY, Aug. 22.—(Can. Press.)—Nine fights between the federals and constitutionalists are reported to have taken place during the past 24 hours. All are recorded as federal victories.

According to the official reports, the military situation thruout the republic is greatly improved. The rebels are said to be generally disheartened and on the defensive in all quarters.

These official reports are practically the only source of information on which news for local consumption is based. The other side of the story rarely reaches the capital, because of interrupted communications and censorship of despatches at points outside the capital. In three of the fights reported, 175 rebels are said to have been killed while the federal loss is given at eight.

The situation about Torreon is now admitted to be slightly worse. It is understood the rebels control much of the country about that section, and that a thousand more are marching southward from Cuatro Cienegas, Coahuila, to reinforce those already there. Eastward from Cuatro Cienegas, Gen. Pena's headquarters at Monclova has reported a portion of his men to be cut off by rebels and in need of help. Gen. Joaquin Maas, who is marching northward from Monclova to Ciudad Porfirio Diaz, has been instructed to delay his movements in order to co-operate with Gen. Pena. The government expresses confidence that Pena and Maas will be able to check the southward movement of the rebels.

Great improvement in the situation in the State of Chihuahua is now reported by the government. No news from Guaymas, Sonora, has been received for several days past, except that the rebels in that vicinity are in a demoralized condition because of dissensions between the rebel leaders, Maytorena and Pesquiera. It is understood that the federal general, Ojeda, will attempt no advance in Sonora until he is reinforced.

Admissions are made that the rebels are gaining headway in the State of Sinaloa, south of Sonora. The governor, however, insists that this headway is not important. One of the recent exploits of the rebels in Sinaloa was the destruction with dynamite of a Southern Pacific Railway bridge 225 feet long.

Increased activity has been displayed lately in the State of Morelos, where the federal general, Juvencio Robles, has been given free hand to destroy the followers of Zapata. The newspapers today quote official reports from Morelos, saying the state is free from rebels at last. These reports say the last of them, including Zapata, have gone south into the State of Guerrero. Previously large numbers moved north and now are almost encircling the capital. The official explanation is that they chose this direction, other exits from Morelos being closed.

Other reports published today, equally official, are to the effect that Genevevo de Lao, at the head of a well-organized band of rebels, is entrenched at Lepeite, Morelos, and that still other bands have been accounted for in the same state.

The government is displaying keen satisfaction over its energetic campaign of extermination. Scores of small towns have been destroyed, hundreds of families dispossessed, and a large number of young men shot. Since the followers of Zapata invaded the federal district, General Robles has destroyed seven towns within a few miles of the capital, including Ajusco, which was almost within sight of the city. In these destroyed towns only the churches were left standing, and they have been abandoned by the priests whose congregations have disappeared. Three more towns near the capital were ordered destroyed today.

In the capital's suburbs there are arriving daily hundreds of dispossessed refugees from destroyed towns who carry on their backs their personal effects.

The followers of Zapata are more active than ever in their campaign of destruction and personal outrages. They are raiding numerous villages and ranches and subjecting their victims to torture in the States of Mexico and Hidalgo, west and north of the capital. The government papers describe these outrages as "the last struggles of a wounded beast." For some days the badly informed public believed that Pachuca, capital of Hidalgo, was in danger of attack but they have been reassured by the government, which announces today that it was sending 500 reinforcements thither. Around Pachuca are a number of important mines Americans and Englishmen are prepared to defend them.

El Pais reported today that there was a greatly increased rebel movement in the State of Jalisco. All the newspapers today print the news of the defeat of the rebel chief, Candido Navarre, near Silao, State of Guanajuto. The public previously had believed this state free from rebels.

The State of Zacatecas admittedly is infested by rebels, but the government expressed confidence that it is able to maintain control there. Officially conditions in San Luis Potosi are reported to be improved. There has been some improvement lately in railway communication. The area in which actual traffic is still restricted is limited to the centre of the republic.

Horse's Victim Still Unconscious.

GALT, Aug. 22.—(Special.)—Norman Sweltzer, the young man residing on the Hespeler road who was badly injured yesterday by a horse, is still unconscious at his home, and his condition is puzzling the physicians. It is thought that the horse reared and struck the man with its front hoofs. Sweltzer intended evidently taking the horse, a frisky animal, into the barnyard. He intended coming into town, and was to have left this morning for the west.

LIGHTS WENT OUT

During a severe electric storm which swept over the city last night, not only the street, but some residences, and other places were for some minutes in darkness. This was owing to the fact that between the city and Trenton, something went wrong with the electric lighting system. The company, however soon had the light restored.

Mr. Schwab is now with Mr. John Sutcliffe, Chartered Accountant, Toronto, and takes charge of difficult and important audits. His ability to conduct such work successfully is due to his thorough training at Ontario Business College. He expressed his gratitude to the principals and staff for their assistance to him while a student. Mr. Schwab mentioned the success, as an accountant in Toronto, of Mr. H. A. Munro from British Guiana, South America, another graduate of O. B. C.

Chartered accountants frequently ask Principal J. W. Johnson, F. C. A., to recommend to them capable assistants. On July 8, 1913, Mr. Henry Day, Public Accountant, Montreal, asked for a competent man to to do auditing. Mr. Johnson's choice was Mr. J. G. Bryant, from Sherbrooke, Que., who had just graduated.

As typical examples of what ambitious young men can accomplish aided by O. B. C. training, three may be mentioned—C. W. Baker (formerly of Napanee, Ont.), W. S. Jones (of Antigua, West Indies, and G. A. McClatchie (of Belleville). These young men are now Chartered Accountants; their successful business careers began as students at O. B. C. Messrs Baker and Jones are in Montreal, and Mr. McClatchie in New York City. The latter was several years on the teaching staff of O. B. C., and afterward, recommended by Principal Johnson, was taken into the employ of Edwards, Morgan & Co., Chartered Accountants, Toronto.

Qualifications essential to business success are, a thorough knowledge of commercial subjects, skill and accuracy in accounting and proficiency in stenography. Young men and women acquire these at Ontario Business College, where the highest standards are maintained in all departments. Full information regarding the various courses of study may be obtained at the college, corner of Front and Bridge Sts., or by telephone or postal card addressed to J. W. Johnson, Principal, or I. L. Moore, Assistant Principal.

FOREST FIRES IN B. C.

Big Timber Tract Burnt Over—Nova Scotia Also Suffers.

BRUNSWICK, Vt., Aug. 22.—(Can. Press).—A forest fire on the property of the Connecticut Valley Lumber Co. broke away from 300 men tonight, and was driven before a strong southwest wind thru a valuable grove of timber. By nightfall a million feet of cut timber, much valuable standing timber, a thousand cords of hemlock bark and 1000 acres of scrub land had been swept by the flames.

Shortly after the flames broke out, several acres of the old cuttings were burning. Every fire warden with all the deputies available hurried to the scene, while the lumber company turned all its available men into fire fighters.

Unless rain falls during the night, the wardens declare that many million feet of standing timber will be destroyed.

Forest Fires in Nova Scotia.

HALIFAX, Aug. 22.—(Can. Press.)—A despatch from Yarmouth, N.S., says: Forest fires are raging all over this country. So dangerous is one between Forest street and Argyle street, near Arcadia, that men have been ordered out by the wardens today with teams hauling water. Heavy fires are reported in the woods near Belleville, lower Argyle, Westport and Lake Annis.

Sparks from Engine Start Fires.

KINGSTON, Aug. 22.—(Special.)—Forest fires are raging along the line of the C.P.R. near Tichborne. A spark from the engine of a construction train is supposed to have started the fire. It did great damage to crops on the farm of Alexander Rogers, Jos. McKee and Alf. Steele, the farmers turned out and save their homes. A heavy fall of rain today helped to stop the spreading fire.

LEAPED FROM ROOF.

Score of Montreal Workers Forced to Jump Into Nets.

MONTREAL, Aug. 22.—(Can. Press)—Driven by fire to the roof of the Rideau Shoe Manufacturing Company's building in Maisonneuve this afternoon, a score of employes, including half a dozen girls, were forced to jump sixty feet into life nets. Many of those who took the leap were badly bruised, but only one, Patrick Keenan was seriously injured. He was taken to a hospital.

All of the 200 employes either left the building safely by the stairways or were rescued by firemen from the fire escapes. The flames started from an unknown cause in the basement and quickly shot up the elevator shaft, filling the building with a blinding smoke. The building was completely gutted, entailing a loss of $125,000, fully covered by insurance.

Bryan Endorses Bill.

WASHINGTON, Aug 22.—(Can. Press)—Supporters of the administration currency bill scored an important victory in the house Democratic caucus today, when they brought to their aid an unqualified endorsement of the measure from Secretary Bryan, and defeated the proposed "insurgent" amendments that would have prohibited interlocking directorates in national or state banks incorporated under the proposed new law.

Secretary Bryan, in a letter addressed to Chairman Carter Glass, of the currency committee, approved the bill as it stands, declaring President Wilson had recognized fundamental rights of popular control in its provisions. He asserted that the plank of the Democratic platform against interlocking directorates was aimed chiefly at trusts, and he urged Democrats to "stand by the president," and not to load down the currency bill with any amendments that might endanger its early passage.

SHOT IN THE RAIN

O. R. A. Matches Conclude in Disconcerting Showers.

Cadet C. V. Fessenden of R. M. C. With a Score of 103, Carries Off the Big Tait-Brassey Match at Long Branch—Pte. Hawkins, the Bisley Winner, Experienced Reversal of Form.

LONG BRANCH, Aug. 22.-(Special.) With today's shooting, the O.R.A. closed the most successful meeting in the history of the Association. Altho the shooting all thru the meet was not as accurate as on former occasions, interest on the part of the militia and civilians was never aroused to so high a pitch as on the present occasion.

The sudden uprising of interest in rifle shooting in the present series, may, perhaps, be due, in a large measure, to the winning of the King's Prize at Bisley by Private W. A. Hawkins, who, altho not scoring anything out of the ordinary during the week, displayed remarkable skill and marksmanship in England. As to Hawkins' failure to display anything remarkable at the O.R.A. there may be something in his remark made at luncheon yesterday, "that being a good fellow had milititated against his scoring on the ranges." Military men all agree that a man, after pulling down highest honors, invariably experiences a reversal of form for a short time.

Again, the new ammunition, while generally acknowledged to be better than the old, made good scoring difficult; officers of the O.R.A. claim that the scoring this year would have been just as high as last year had the old style ammunition been used, and declare that next year, when the men have got the range of the new mark VII., high scores will again be the order of the day.

The rain today put a crimp on any high scoring ambitions the men may have entertained, many of them shooting their cards while the rain was so dense as to almost obscure the targets.

G. Cadet C. V. Fessenden, R.M.C., with a score of 103, won the big Tait-Brassey event, the last stages of which were shot off today, while in the same event the first battalion Q.O.R. carried off the Brassey cup, valued at $125 and $20, for first place with a score of 353. This event, however, has been protested and the Q.O.R. may have to relinquish the trophy. The Royal Canadian Regiment, with a score of 579, won the Tait Challenge Cup, valued at $250.

The only extra series data yet adduced by the statistical department awards Pte. W. S. Hendry, 77th Batt., first place in the 200 yard shoot, his prize money amounting to $14.25. The extra series aggregate was won by Lieut. G. Mortimer, C.A.S.C., who wins P. W. Ellis & Company's special cup.

The all-comers' aggregate scoring composed of aggregate of City of Toronto, Osler, Duke of Cornwall and York, Bankers and the lieutenant-governor's matches, was won by Sergeant W. A. Smith, who carried off the Ross rifle, presented by Col. W. C. Macdonald, and $12 prize money.

F. W. Sleeman, 48th Highlanders, with a score of 35, won first place in the Mackenzie match.

Sergeant W. A. Smith, G.G.F.G., with the splendid total of 380, and Lieut. F. L. C. Forster, 3rd C.E., 379, carried off first and second place in the militia aggregate, for which Smith receives the N.R.A. silver medal and badge and Forster the governor-general's silver medal and badge. CONSCRIPTION IN NEW ZEALAND

The London Economist dealing editorially with the military troubles in New Zealand as a result of the adoption of conscription, says in part:

"The enforcement of the system of compulsory military training for youths, which the New Zealand Parliament adopted under the influence of the panic of 1909, is proving a difficult, costly and troublesome task. On July 3rd it was reported that many youths in military detention had declined to clean armaments, and had begun a hunger strike. Two days later, a Labour congress, said to be the largest ever held in the Dominion, organized a procession through the streets of Wellington to Parliament House, and demanded of the Prime Minister and Minister for Defence that the boys on Ripa Island should be released immediately. It was stated that these lads, while in detention, had refused to clean guns, and had thereupon been ordered to solitary confinement and put on short rations. The Premier, Mr. Massey, promised that the complaints should be considered by the Cabinet, and that the law would be administered firmly but not harshly."

The short history of compulsory militarism in New Zealand has thus led to embarrassments and discords which should be studied by those who have been inclined to wish that a similar system may be adopted in this country. Two years have elapsed since the civil and military authorities in New Zealand began to enforce the Defence Acts of 1909 and 1910, and they have not yet succeeded in devising penal methods which will make the compulsory sections a reality without arousing a dangerous and almost revolutionary hostility among the public."

Continuing, the Economist says:

"Conscription has, in fact, already nearly trebled the military expenditure of the Dominion, and yet New Zealand revenues are quite inadequate to cover expenditure without loans in London."

THE RISE OF THE FISHING INDUSTRY

The Canadian Fishing Industry as it exists today, is the growth of the past half century. In 1844, the estimated value of the fishery catch was no more than $125,000. It doubled the following decade, and by 1860 had well passed the million mark. Ten years later, it was approaching $5,000,000; and by 1875 it had again more than doubled. In the 80's it passed $20,000,000, but it was not until 1905 that it approached $30,000,000. The value of the total catch recorded in 1912 was but little short of $35,000,000, the highest known, and it is thought that the catches which unavoidably escape record would add from six to ten millions more. The return represents the labor of well nigh 100,000 men, and the investment of perhaps $20,000,000 accounted for in part by 1,648 vessels and tugs and 36,761 boats. In the past thirty years, the amount of this capital investment has increased fivefold.

SUMMER HAIR TONIC

PARISIAN SAGE, THE HAIR RENEWER, IS NOW SOLD ALL OVER CANADA.

Since its introduction into Canada, the sales of Parisian Sage have been phenomenal. This success has led to many imitations similar in name. Look out for them; they are not the genuine. See that "The Girl with the Auburn Hair" is on every package.

It is made to conform to Dr. Sangerbond's (of Paris) proven theory that dandruff, falling hair, baldness and scalp itch are caused by germs.

Parisian Sage kills these dandruff germs and removes all trace of dandruff in two weeks or money back; it stops falling hair and itching scalp and prevents baldness.

Remember that baldness is caused by dandruff germs, those little hard-working, persistent devils that day and night do nothing but dig into the roots of the hair and destroy its vitality.

Parisian Sage is a daintily perfumed hair dressing, not sticky or greasy, and any woman who desires luxuriant and bewitching hair can get it in two weeks by using it. Comes in large 50-cent bottles at W. H. Lattimer's and all drug or toilet goods counters. The R. T. Booth Co. Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont., Canadian makers.

THE MONEY MARKETS

The past two weeks have witnessed an improvement in the tone of the money markets throughout the world, says the Journal of Commerce. There is, however, a noticeable disposition on the part of the world's chief bankers to go slowly. They realize that any attempt to force matters or to develop artificial conditions would prove most disastrous. They are therefore allowing matters to develop along careful lines.

The declaration of peace in the Balkans, while a big factor in the improved monetary conditions does not mean that there will be an immediate return to the former prosperity. Hundreds of millions of dollars and thousands of lives were sacrificed in that war, while industry and trade have been set back a generation. The whole of Continental Europe will feel the effects of the war for many years to come.

In Great Britain the position of the Bank of England shows considerable improvement. The Bank has been steadily accumulating reserves and husbanding her resources as much as possible. The same is true of France and Germany. British bankers now look upon Brazil as one of the danger points from a monetary standpoint. The heavy drop in the prices of rubber and coffee coupled with Brazil's previous heavy borrowings, makes the position in that country somewhat precarious.

In the United States, preparation for the handling of the crop are well in hand. The Government's offer to loan $50,000,000 if necessary for crop moving purposes has been largely taken advantage of by the western and southern banks.

In Canada our banks have the situation well in hand, but in addition a number of London banks are going to assist in the crop movement. Some uneasiness was caused in Canada a few days ago when more gold was shipped to New York. Up to the present time, Canada has shipped almost $2,000,000 of specie, which is about 5 per cent. of our total holdings of gold. As we need every available cent for crop movement purposes, this movement of gold across the border has not been viewed with any great favor.

A meeting of the Canadian Bankers' Association is called for August 25th, at which a selection will be made of the auditors eligible for appointment as bank examiners under the recently amended Bank Act. At the same meeting final arrangements will be made for carrying into effect the Central Gold Reserve Clause. The central bureau will be located in Montreal.

DECLINES TO RECORD ITSELF

The Royal Clan, of the Order of Scottish Clans, in annual session at Philadelphia, has declined to go on record either in favor of or against Home Rule in Scotland on the ground that the organization is non-political in character and that action one way or the other would be violating the principles of the body. A statement prepared by the press committee, to which the matter was referred, pointed out that a clause in the constitution provides that the "Clans shall at all times be free from political and theological sectarianism," and declared that the Order had been misrepresented in regard to its alleged relationship to the political propaganda advocated by a paid organizer of a British political party.

Clans in all parts of the United States and Canada are represented in the Royal Clan.

The suggestion is made by the Commander-in-Chief of the troops in the British Columbia mining district, Col. Newspaper men have not yet submitted to the request as they are uncertain whether to wear kilts, khaki or red coats, and military compulsion has not yet been suggested.

REFRESHING MESSAGE FROM THE SCENE OF EVANGELINE

Prof. Dan A. Cameron Writes Interestingly of his River and Coast Trip—A Sojourn at Historic Grand Pre.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

Dear Sir,—I feel impelled, possibly by a superabundance of the joy of living, induced by the conjugation of the stars of holiday time, glorious Canadian summer, and the romantic interest of the Annapolis Valley, to outline, in a general way, to my various kind friends in Belleville, the beauties of the water trip to Nova Scotia, and in some degree express the fascination of the various points of interest en route, and should you deem my remarks worthy of reproduction in your valuable columns, I shall be deeply grateful for the privilege afforded me.

I have felt many times, since embarking on the good ship "Alexandria" that more of our citizens would avail themselves of the pleasures of this remarkable journey were they more intimately conversant with its conveniences, with the charms and scenic glories to be enjoyed almost every hour of the waking day. Anyone imbued with the love of clear Canadian air and brilliant sunshine, and possessed of the least particle of the social instinct can enjoy a trip to Quebec on the "Alex." to the fullest degree, a point which seems to have instilled itself much more deeply into the consciousness of our American friends, than into that of Canadians at large, the week of particular interest to me being no exception as an evidence of the predominant "Yankee" preference, the majority of the passengers being a jolly crowd from Buffalo and Rochester, bent on enjoying every moment of the time, adding to the interest of this superb water trip the glories of camera, rag time, and the remarkable atmosphere of "bonhomie" peculiar to ship life."

The beauties of the Thousand Islands, and the various thrilling experiences of the rapids are possibly well known to most of our citizens and if they are not, could very readily be, considering our proximity geographically, and the convenient boat service. Our stay in Montreal, though short, was of sufficient duration to enable the passengers to enjoy the magnificent drive around the mountain, and also to admire much of the city's architectural beauties. I experienced great joy in piloting some of our American friends to the Bank of Montreal, and explaining in a quietly satisfied and, I hope, not too aggressively triumphant tone, and in language particularly intelligible to them in view of its typically "Uncle Sam" flavor, that before them lay etxended to view "the very finest banking chamber in the world." I recognize, of course, in a cold-blooded analysis of my motives in adopting such an unkindly course of procedure, that the original impulse to do so was entirely base, but on the other hand, "there are times in the affairs of men" etc., and the opportunity which was presented, and which I, in such a heartless manner seized, was to my temporarily perverted judgment, just such an occasion for decided action. May the gods of national pride pardon me for my unkindly triumph.

Quebec, in view of its national and historic interest, is an ideal spot to choose as an objective point for the enjoyable run down the St. Lawrence highway, and the habitant flavor (aesthetically speaking), the superb Chateau Frontenac, the unrivalled view from the Dufferin Terrace, and the stern and impressive charm of the citadel, afford an endless and potent fascination, even to the most blase tourist, slightly disconcerting to the sensitive American heart at the time when the gun captured at Bunker's Hills is exhibited as the "piece de resistance' 'of the fortress, generally calling forth in national self-defence, redundant and indignant assurance in regard to that fateful mound being still in the same position occupied by it previously to 1812.

I reached Quebec in fear and trembling as to a reservation on the steamer for the Maritime Provinces, but, armed with a credential, emanating from the kindly courtesy of our Union Bank "Chesterfield," I bravely marched to the head office of the steamship company, and on properly manipulating my "Alladin's lamp" and murmuring "open sesame," was immediately ushered into an otherwise unattainable "Arabian Night" of staterooms, out of which I chose me (and Allah be thanked, a lower berth included) and embarked in the SS. Cascapedia for what I am firmly convinced is the most magnificent water trip possible, short of a fully developed ocean voyage. We left Quebec on Friday at noon and did not reach Pictou, N.S., until Tuesday morning, following the St. Lawrence river and the Gulf, and rounding the Gaspe peninsula, where we encountered more than a taste of the open sea, at least sufficient to destroy, in several unfortunate cases, any other manifestation of that particular sense for some little time. We hugged the eastern coast during the entire trip, being in this way kept constantly in touch with some of the most beautiful scenery in the world, another of the many heritages of which we as Canadians should be so justly proud. I felt my patriotic spirit swell a hundred times as from time to time I overheard the hushed and almost reverent voicing of their unbounded admiration by the many Americans on board, when on rounding point after point, all standing hundreds of feet above the sea level, we were greeted by a panorama of mighty hills, clothed with green forests to the summit, with great banks of white clouds wreathing their crests, and below, nestling by the water's edge, quaint French villages, having, in contrast to the immensity of their setting, the appearance of toytowns, the whole culminating in the most superb view of all. Perce, and at this point my poor pen becomes mute, as I call to mind the glories of the sunset, bathing in its ruddy glow the great pierced rock and the lofty mountains which rise behind the towns. Being fortunate in having a versatile musical fraternity on board, the inauguration, during the evenings, of impromptu concerts, of more or less artistic merit, tended to wile away the time very pleasantly. Here by force of the association of ideas, I am drawn to mention the predominance of American tourists in evidence everywhere, many of them in personally conducted groups in charge of ministers, who apparently find in this a very lucrative and pleasant method of extending their pastoral duties. Although the great body of this class of tourists do not seem to be feverishly in love with British and Canadian institutions, they evidently consider Canada an ideal touring country, while they in many cases take as a topic for interesting and edifying conversation, the poor quality of the meals, accommodation, roads, public buildings, etc. One charming lady, permanently without escort, and assuming the proper vinegary or "militant suffragette" expression of countenance suitable to the sentiment from which her remark emanated, informed me promptly, and in elegant and exclusive "American," on learning that I was a mere Canadian, that "Kings are N.G." After convalescence I endeavored to explain to her the pre-eminent and superlative virtues of the limited monarchy system, but, I fear, with but indifferent success. I must say, in justice to her countrymen at large, that the seizure in her case was more than ordinarily acute, in fact several others with whom I became very well acquainted on board as representative type, unquestionably place cultured American citizenship on a very high world plane.

If for nothing else I am grateful to a kind fate for directing on this trip in that it has been possible for me to meet psychological anomaly, a "rara-avis," in the person of a large and very jolly "unappropriated blessing" from New York State, who actually rejoiced in her untrammelled status in life, and claimed to hate those whom

WANT HERBERT AT ONCE

Toronto Aug. 22.—The Toronto ball team will make an effort to bring Pitcher Herbert back from Scranton before the New York State season closes September 14. He is going very strong and is one of the star hurlers of the league.

SLANG OR ENGLISH

Chicago, Aug 22.—Slang as a means of the proper description of a baseball games in the newspapers, came out a little behind straight-forward English, according to the verdict of several thousand readers in a test vote taken in a Chicago newspaper.

Of a total of 3,930 ballots received today, 2,004 declared for the English prescribed by the dictionaries and 1,926 were in favor of the use of slang.

The figures in favor of the pure English were qualified by several thousand voters who expressed themselves in favor of the use of a moderate amount of snappy, descriptive phrases. Many voted in favor of slang, but advocated the elimination of nicknames.

Numerous college professors and educators declared in favor of slang, while a majority of baseball players, club owners and managers expressed preference for pure English.

CONNIE MACK IS LUCKY

Connie Mack of the Athletics not only is a wise manager, but he is one of the luckiest in the business. It seems that all Cornelius has to do when he needs a good ball player is to send out a scout into the bushes. Mack must be a sort of human magnet, for most of the good men come his way. Take Wallie Schang's case, for instance. This youngster, who is now noted as one of the most promising catchers in the big leagues, cost the Athletics a small sum. "Lucky" Mack got him by the draft route. He wouldn't part with him now for four times that amount. He is a wonder-thrower, fast on bases, a timely hitter, and that's the reason why he has supplanted Ira Thomas. Schang is barely out of his 'teens,, but he acts like a player who has been in the big compapny for a number of years. It was pure Mack luck that enabled the Athletics to grab him.

COMPARING TEAMS FOR THE WORLD'S SERIES

New York, Aug. 22.—Already the experts are beginings to figure on the world's series in October. It is generally conceded that the Athletics and the Giants will be the contenders. It is true that Joe Birmingham, Clarke Griffith, Charlie Dooin and Johnny Evers do not concede it, but they are about all. Comparisons of the two teams are therfore in order.

In the percentage table the two clubs are pretty nearly even but when other items are considered there is a wide variance. Each team leads its league in batting, the Athletics with .286, the Giants with .280. In fielding also the Athletics lead, with .967, while the Giants stand sixth, with .981.

The Giants have more representation in their line of endeavor. In Herzog, Burns, Doyle and Merkle they have four of the ten leading basestealers. The Athletics have three in Collins, Oldring and Baker.

In batting here is now the regular lineup of the two teams figure.

Giants—	Pct	Athletics—	Pct
Burns. . . .	.265	Oldring. . . .	.299
Shafer.	.300	Walsh. . . .	.252
Fletcher. . .	.319	Collins	.349
Doyle. . . .	.279	Baker.	.320
Merkle. . .	.288	McInnes. . .	.336
Murray. . .	.290	D. Murphy. .	.320
Myers. . . .	.302	Barry.	.248
Snodgrass. .	.311	Thomas. . . .	.255

This does not take into consideration the pitchers. It gives the Athletics a shade the best in the batting, as they have in fielding. McGraw has in Mathewson, Demaree, Marquard and Tesreau as well-balanced and effective corps of flingers as ever sent a club to the front and kept it there. In Plank, Bender, Houck and Brown, Mack has a very able quartet.

If the Giants and Athletics meet in the series this year, they will have about an even break with regard to the mainstays of the respective boxing staffs. Against Mathewson and Marquard the Philadelphia team will have Plank and Bender. It is the reserve force that McGraw will have a big pull in the weights, as an horseman would say. Tesreau, who must improve over the form he has shown thus far this season to be included in a world's series string, has it on anything Mack can offer, while Demaree also outclasses those of the Athletics. Brown and Houck are about the most formidable pair that Mack can throw into the game to compete against the McGraw offerings.

Another advantage the Giants will have is in the catching staff. Meyers has all the better of Schang in appearance, while his batting ability is a natural factor in any game. But against these advantages Mack has an infield to offer that is enough to cause confusion in the ranks of any well organized club.

THE RING

It now develops that Fred Welsh, inured his ankle in a fight with a husky logger. For a boxer who is preparing to engage in a contest for the world's lightweight championship our idea of a perilous training feat is to take on a 200-pound woodman as a sparring partner, especially when said woodman is not imbued with the idea of sparing that tree.

However abused the white hopes may be, they are not lacking in enticing offers to get together and exhibit their particular line of marketable wares. The recent Smith-Flynn encounter at the Garden drew a sum large enough to pay an ordinary person's restaurant and coat room tips for a season, and on top of this comes a proposition, which may be regarded as a bit of philanthropy aimed at the general direction of the hopes. A New York promoter offers $800 for a bout between Gunboat Smith and the winner of the Moran-Palzer set-to ought to come fairly close to determining who is the premier white heavyweight boxer

Within the past decade the dietary in the Royal Navy has altered greatly for the better. Gone are the days of biscuits so full of weevils that they had to be rapped on the table before being eaten; of salted meat so tough and hard that it could be manufactured into snuff-boxes; and of beer and water which, through long keeping in wooden casks, was as often as not quite unfit to drink.

Beer—of which the Elizabethan seaman received a gallon a day—has been supplanted by rum; while the water on board is now kept in iron tanks, which are refilled from the shore, or by the distilling apparatus on board, at frequent intervals.

All modern ships are fitted with bakeries, so Jack receives his fresh, newly-baked loaf every day of his life. There is also a refrigerator on board, in which is stowed enough fresh meat and vegetables to last every man in the ship for a month, so the sailor is no longer subsisting on salt beef and pork within a few days of leaving harbor.

Like a Big Hotel

A modern battleship, in fact, only carries about two days' salt meat—that is, if she is fitted with a refrigerator; and it is then carried merely as a "stand by," to be served out in very exceptional circumstances.

The ordinary daily menu of every man in the Navy is 1 pound of fresh bread, ½ pound fresh meat; 1 pound fresh vegetables; 4 ounces sugar; ½ ounce of tea, or 1 ounce of coffee for every ½ ounce of tea, if preferred; ½ ounce of drinking chocolate, or 1 ounce of coffee if preferred; ¾ ounce of unsweetened condensed milk; 1 ounce of jam or marmalade; and 4 ounces of preserved meat on one day of the week in harbor, or on two days while at sea.

Mustard, pepper, vinegar, and salt are served out as required, while ½ pound of biscuit or 1 pound of flour is issued instead of the bread if the latter is not available. A man over the age of twenty receives one-eighth of a pint of rum daily, but those who desire it can receive money instead.

Origin of Grog

The rum itself, to all men except warrant and chief petty officers, is served out in the form of "grog"—three parts of water to one of rum. It is called by this name as the mixture was first issued by Admiral Vernon in 1740, for he, from the fact that he wore breeches made of a stuff called grogram, was known to his men by the nickname of "Old Grog."

The sailor, in addition to his stated ration, is granted a messing allowance of 3 cents a day by the Government; and with this sum he can purchase extras from the stores on board. All the ordinary articles, such as bread, meat, vegetables, tea, coffee, cocoa, condensed milk—everything, in fact except rum—can be bought in this way, but additional delicacies like tinned salmon and rabbit, raisins for puddings, dried beans and peas, pickles, suet, etc., can be procured if required.

All these articles are of the very first quality, and as they are bought by the contract department of the Admiralty in enormous quantities, there is no doubt that Jack gets the finest value for his money.

Economy is Possible

A man, moreover, is not forced to take up his full allowance of provisions. He must draw one-third of his amount of meat and vegetables, but for the remainder, if he likes, he can be paid their equivalent value in hard cash.

Once a month each sailor can buy one pound of tobacco free of duty. It is issued in leaf for 24 cents a pound, and as many officers smoke nothing but this brand, it speaks well for its quality. All this tobacco comes from special tobacco plantations in South Africa, and could not be bought ashore under $1.50 a pound.

"Undesirables" in Japan

In an article in a Japanese periodical, Nogyo Lassh, M. Sawara Gentoku enumerated ten classes of young men who are useless for Japan. They are intensely interesting, as affording some indication of the ethical spirit of modern Japan. First in the list of "undesirables" come those youths who have received a complete education, and find themselves immediately able to cope with the difficulties of life. Second are those whose bodies are insufficiently developed and a prey to nervous disorders, owing to excessive intellectual labor. Third are the young men who have no education, and are stupid and narrow-minded. The fourth and fifth classes together comprise those who have not lived in the protection of family life and are thrown too early into the difficulties of the world.

TWELVE YEARS HORRIBLE TORTURE

Ontario Lady Suffered Tortures for 12 Years with Burning Eczema. "Fruit-a-tives" and "Sootha-Salva" Completely Cured Her.

MISS LAURA E. MATTICE

NEWINGTON ONT., Jan. 21st. 1913

"I was a dreadful sufferer from that awful complaint Eczema, or Salt Rheum, and this trouble bothered me for about 12 years. My hands and arms were chiefly attacked, and the pain and irritation were terrible. I consulted several doctors and tried every remedy I heard of, but nothing did me any good. Last June, when in Ottawa, a friend asked me to try "Sootha-Salva" Ointment and to take "Fruit-a-tives" at the same time. I had little hopes that this would be any better than the other remedies, but after I had taken two boxes of "Fruit-a-tives" and used one box of "Sootha-Salva", I was entirely cured and all the irritation and annoyance left me. My hands have been, ever since, perfectly free from the Salt Rheum, and I have had no return of the disease. I look upon the cure as wonderful, inasmuch as no physician was able to cure me, and I had tried every remedy that I had been told about, yet without the slightest benefit, until I used "Sootha-Salva" Ointment and took "Fruit-a-tives". "Fruit-a-tives" cooled the blood, and practically relieved the disease and the Ointment completed the cure.

I cannot sufficiently thank the proprietors of these medicines for my relief and I make this statement with the hope that some sufferers from Chronic Eczema or Salt Rheum, will read my testimony and try this wonderful ointment and "Fruit-a-tives", and get well. No one can estimate the torture of this terrible disease who has not suffered from it, and I want the good news, that a remedy has been found, to be known everywhere".

(Miss) LAURA E. MATTICE

"Fruit-a-tives" and "Sootha-Salva" will cure any case of Eczema, no matter how severe or how long you have suffered. Eczema is caused by impure blood, chronic indigestion, constipation and nervousness, but there is usually a tiny parasite or germ which attacks the skin and causes the burning and itching. "Fruit-a-tives" removes all impurities from the blood, tones up the stomach, improves digestion, and regulates the bowels. "Sootha-Salva" kills the germs of Eczema, allays the burning and inflammation, and stops the intense itching. If you are suffering with Eczema, no matter what you have tried for it, take the advice of Miss Mattice and use the wonderful combination of "Fruit-a-tives" and "Sootha-Salva".

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. "Sootha-Salva" is 50c box. Sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited. Ottawa.

CHAUFFEUR REVOLTS

Harry Thaw Has a New Trouble to Overcome.

Thompson Says He is the Victim of a "Frame Up" and That Unless Thaw Family Put Up Money for His Defence, He Will Disclose the Details of the Escape From Matteawan.

SHERBROOKE, Aug. 22. — (Can. Press)—Gentleman Roger Thompson, the New York chauffeur held under the Dominion immigration laws as having aided Harry K. Thaw, legally a lunatic, to cross the Canadian frontier, announced from his cell tonight that he was "up against it," and that if the Thaw family did not come to his rescue he would perhaps in justice to himself be forced to tell all he knows about Thaw's escape from Matteawan, and thus complicate the proceedings under which Thaw's lawyers hope to obtain his release on a writ of habeas corpus on Wednesday next.

Tonight Thompson removed the smoked eye-glasses he has worn since his arrest here, and openly admitted that the name Mitchell Thompson he had given the authorities was fictitious, and that in reality he is Roger Thompson, car salesman and dare-devil chauffeur, who drove the black machine which whisked Stanford White's slayer away from Matteawan on Sunday morning last.

"Sure I'm Roger Thompson," he said. "I need money and help now, and it's up to the Thaws. I was framed up in getting in this case, and they ought to stand by me now. I haven't a cent, and if they admitted me to bail I could not raise the money. Even if I could, I would be arrested if I crossed the New York State line. It's rough stuff. The other four fellows mixed up in the game made their getaway. But I stuck to Thaw to the finish, and I'm the goat. That's pretty hard."

"What about the details of the escape?" he was asked.

"Don't ask me," said Thompson, "I can't talk about that now."

Thaw in a cell in a corridor above "Gentleman Roger" refused even to admit he had ever seen him. "Oh, that man," he exclaimed. "You know I can't talk about him."

Thompson slouched in his cell coatless and collarless. Counsel has been employed for him by the Thaw family, and it was thru their efforts that Thompson's arraignment today as a violator of the immigration laws was postponed until Friday next. His lawyer is Louis St. Laurent of Quebec. Presumably acting for Thompson alone. It was admitted by the chauffeur that "the Thaws" had retained St. Laurent and they expected him (Thompson) to "keep his trap shut." He added grimly that he thought they ought to do more than give him a lawyer. "All they want," he said, "is to keep my case separte from Thaw's. I wish I hadn't mixed up in it."

State Enlists Jerome.

ALBANY, N.Y., Aug. 22. — (Can. Press)—Wm. Travis Jerome, formerly district attorney of New York County, was appointed by Attorney-General Carmody today a special deputy attorney-general. Mr. Jerome was specially designated to represent the state in procuring the return of Harry K. Thaw to New York's jurisdiction. He was selected because of his entire familiarity with the Thaw case, gained in the two murder trials and as special counsel in several attempts of Thaw to establish his sanity by legal procedure.

It is not the present intention to send Mr. Jerome to Canada, where Deputy Attorney-General Kennedy is directing the state's case, but to employ his services in procuring the extradition of Thaw from any state to which he may be deported from Canada.

Attorney-General Carmody said tonight he had reason to believe that Vermont would be the state to which the fugitive would be returned, and that the date would be next Wednesday. Earlier in the day a similar announcement was made by Acting Governor Glynn, and was embodied in a telegram to Governor Fletcher of Vermont, requesting his good offices in effecting an expeditious return of Thaw to New York.

Neither Mr. Glynn nor Mr. Carmody would discuss the source of their information, but it is known that the attorney general was in telephonic communication with his deputy in Canada. Some surprise was expressed at the apparent certainty of these officials that Thaw would be deported next Wednesday, as that is the date set for the hearing of his habeas corpus application at Sherbrooke.

Both gubernatorial claimants received communications during the day from federal authorities respecting the Thaw extradition. Secretary of State Bryan telegraphed to Mr. Sulzer and wrote to Mr. Glynn, apprising them that he would do what he could in the matter, altho hampered by lack of authority. A telegram to Mr. Glynn and Mr. Carmody from Secretary of Labor Wilson was of the same import.

WILSON A TOOL.

U. S. President Criticized for His Mexican Policy.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—(Can. Press).—The Saturday Review, in a leading article today, savagely attacks President Wilson's Mexican policy. It says President Wilson "unconsciously is playing the game of those in the United States who want control of Mexican politics in order to fill their own pockets."

Concluding, the article says: "If he wishes to plunge his own country into a war that would last for years, drive Mexico back into anarchy and play the game of his own political enemies, he will continue his present policy and try to break down the Huerta regime. On the other side, is the alternative of accepting a trifling reverse of policy. Recognizing facts, he will have to adopt one policy or the other. Neither may be pleasant, but there can be no doubt which one is recommended by humanity and common sense."

HE STAYED AWAY.

Civil War Enoch - Arden Didn't Disturb Wife's New Home.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22—Captain Lewis B. Hunt, who fought thru the civil war, sent word to his family in Buffalo on April 6, 1863, that he had been honorably discharged from his regiment and that on the next day he was about to start for his home. He had a wife and a little daughter.

A few days later Captain Hunt's uniform reached his family, but he did not appear, and some months later there came word from the south that he had been killed. After a lapse of time Mrs. Hunt remarried and a few years ago died. The captain's daughter grew up and became Mrs. Miller French. She made her home at Matskanie, Oregon.

A short time ago a woman friend out there told Mrs. French that she had just successfully applied for a pension and suggested that Mrs. French do the same thing. She did so, and to her amazement learned from Washington that her father was alive and was himself in receipt of bounty from the government. His home was in Tarrytown.

Mrs French hastened there a few days ago and found him still hale at the age of eighty-four years. He said that he had returned to Buffalo ten years after sending the letter from the south, but upon finding that his wife had remarried decided to drop out of her life to spare her embarrassment. He agreed to make his home in the future with his daughter in Oregon, and they will start for there in a few days.

WOMEN PROTEST.

Two Million Oppose Fortification of Canal, Says Delegate.

THE HAGUE, Aug. 22. — (Can. Press.)—"Two millions of women in America protest against the fortification of the Panama Canal" was the assertion made today at the fourth plenary sitting of the twentieth universal peace congress by Mrs. May Wright Sewell of Indianapolis. To this remark, which drew a round of applause from the pacificists assembled in the Knights' Hall, the speaker added: "The canal ought to be free for the whole world and should be adorned with a statue of peace at its entrances."

Encouraged with the good-will with which Mrs. Sewell's sentiments were greeted, Dr. William F. Slocum of Colorado Springs, a member of the Carnegie Foundation for the advancement of teaching, asked the congress to pass a resolution inviting the United States Government never to fortify the waterway. The congress, however, considered the proposal a novelty which had better be left over for action by a future peace congress.

LONG LIVED LEGEND OF DEMON BARBER

Sweeny Todd's Fictitious Deeds in Fleet Street—Historic House Pulled Down

It is more than likely that the gruesome story of Sweeny Todd, the horrible barber of Fleet street, will cling to the famous London thoroughfare long after every one of the supposed scenes of his atrocities has been completely cleared away.

The actual building in which Sweeney Todd was supposed to have carried on his murderous trade was recently demolished, and once again the legend—for legend it is from beginning to end—was revived.

The house referred to was 185 Fleet street, next door to the famous old church of St. Dunstan-in-the-West. Here Sweeney Todd, as the legend has it, was wont to pose to the unsuspecting world as a harmless and even useful, necessary barber.

His barber's chair was supposed to have been fixed over a trapdoor, and no sooner had the customer taken his seat and lain back confidently for the "clean shave" guaranteed by Sweeney Todd, than the trapdoor would fall, the customer would disappear beneath the floor, and down below the work of darkness would be completed with a blow on the head.

Sweeney Todd was not a man—so the legend would have us believe—who wasted anything. He would not only take great care of any money or jewels on the persons of his victims, but even their bodies were made to serve the ends of his demon machinations. What was more likely, to such a creature, than that the flesh should be served up next door as pies!

Such was the legend. The truth as searched out not many years ago showed that Sweeney Todd should really be classed with Mrs. Harris—there was no such a person. No barber was ever known, in Fleet street, who treated his customers with other than courtesy, and with all despatch, though of a different kind from that meted out by the "demon barber."

So completely had this story got hold of the public that even Charles Dickens makes use of it in "Martin Chuzzlewit." And when, in some excavations on the spot, a pile of human bones was dug up, it seemed that the seal of complete proof was set upon the story of the barber's butcheries. Nobody seemed to see that the bones were, of course, those of persons long buried and forgotten in the churchyard of St. Dunstan.

By some curious means this legend arose out of a true story from Paris. In this there was a barber, and there was a pie-maker, but it is not supposed that they joined forces in the manner suggested by the Sweeney Todd story. An ingenious writer was responsible for bringing the story over the Channel, and fixing it—apparently for ever—on Fleet street. A play was even written round the story.

PUNCH'S HUNCH

Tumor in the Brain is Cause of Eccentric Growth Says Professor

According to Professor W. Stirling, who lectured at the Royal Institution London, that eccentric individual "Punchinello" is an acromegalac.

This description he applied to persons with certain parts of the body developed in gigantic proportions. Their state was brought about by a tumor in the brain, and as this enlarged so the person grew.

Describing the disease, the professor stated that an acromegalac in most cases could be identified by his large hands and feet and jaw. In some cases a person's tongue grew so much that it became too large for the mouth. Acramegaly did not affect all its victims in the same way, however, for giants abnormal in every proportion had lived at different times.

It was a curious fact, added the professor, that the bones of all such giants remained in their infantile state till their usually early death. It very often happened that, after reaching a certain state of abnormal growth, they became hunch-backed and had a protruding chest. Hence the description of "Punch" as an acromegalac.

The "A" in Cocoanut

How an error led to the accepted spelling of cocoanut was explained by Sir Everard im Thurn, in the course of an address to the members of the Royal Horticultural Society at London.

He said that in the course of its growth the nut which was now known as the cocoanut was similar to the face of a monkey, and so the Spanish and Portuguese word "coco," meaning a grin or grimace, was attached to it.

When Dr. Johnson was compiling his famous dictionary he had an article on the "coco nut," but a careless proof reader passed a mistake in the spelling of the word, the compositor having inserted an "a," and the word appeared as "cocoanut," a spelling which has been used ever since.

A WARLIKE PRINCE

Something like a sensation was caused in Berlin by the publication by the German Crown Prince of a book called "Germany in Arms." The book, which is "most reverently dedicated to the German Emperor and the Prussian King," contains the following motto: "The world does not rest more safely on the shoulders of Atlas than does Germany on her army and navy."

The Imperial editor asserts that Germany, more than any other land, has to trust to its armaments, and that as its geographical position is unfavorable, and as all nations do not regard Germany with affection, the country has the sacred duty imposed on it always to maintain its army and navy in a state of readiness. "Only in this way, relying on our good sword, can we maintain that place in the sun which is ours, but which will not be voluntarily conceded to us."

The Crown Prince goes on to say that diplomacy may delay the conflict for a season, but those in responsible positions must know that once a gigantic conflagration is lighted it is not so easy to extinguish.

Speaking of the delight of riding to an attack, the Prince says there is one delight still greater—namely, that of meeting the enemy at the end of the gallop, and the fight for life and death.

TANNING BY ELECTRICITY

Better Leather is Produced in Much Shorter Time

A new electric tanning process, invented by the Swedish scientist, Dr. A. Groth, and applied on a practical scale in an English works, is attracting much attention, and one of the prominent electrical firms is to take it up for commercial use. With this method, the hides are put in special vats along with metal conductors, so as to carry out an electrolytic action, and this will tan the hides in much less time than usual, for instance, six weeks as compared to several months. Leather of better quality is produced in this way, and the method gives a perfect and solid tanning. Various electrical devices in the shape of regulators, also safety apparatus for overcurrent, make the process almost an automatic one.

THE WESTERN FAIR

September 5th to 13th

The management of the Western Fair London, Ontario, will present a programme of attractions this year that will commend itself to all right thinking people. While keeping away from the sensational the programme will provide all kinds of amusement and educational features. There will be something for everybody with music by several bands at every performance. There will be two speed events daily which will provide the best programme for this department ever seen at the Western Fair. More money has been appropriated for Fireworks this year than ever before, and there is no doubt results will justify the expenditure. The price for the Grand Stand will be the same as usual, on Monday afternoon 15c., and the remainder of the week covered stand 25c., with reserved section 50c., open stand 15c. The programme will be given twice daily.

Programmes, price lists, entry forms and information of all kinds regarding the Exhibition will be given on application to the Secretary, A. M. Hunt, Room 302 Dominion Savings Building, London, Ontario.

AGREED WITH BABY

This Mother Found The Right Food For Her Baby Girl.

Mrs. Arthur Prince of Meaford, Ont., writes, on Sept. 12th, 1911: "Some time ago, you were good enough to send me a sample of Neave's Food. Baby liked it so well and it agreed with her, so I am using it right along and think it is excellent.

"I have a friend with a very delicate baby. She cannot nurse it and has tried six different foods, but it does not thrive at all—is always sick and troubled with indigestion. I strongly recommended your food. Will you please send her a sample?"

Mrs. Prince wrote again on Sept. 27th, 1911: My friend's baby has grown wonderfully. I can scarcely credit it. Her next baby, which she expects in five months, will be fed on Neave's Food right from the start—she thinks it is so good."

Mothers and prospective mothers may obtain a free tin of Neave's Food and a valuable book "Hints About Baby" by writing Edwin Utley, 14 Front Street East, Toronto, who is the Agent for Canada. (Mention this paper.)

she, I must say in rather an unkindly manner, styled as "old maids." Of course it is always a difficult matter to determine just exactly what degree of reality of conviction lies behind so bald and unusual a statement as contrasted with the possibility of its being adopted as a consolatory pose, at times pitiable in its transparency, but in this particular instance, I am almost convinced.

Since reaching the Maritime Provinces I have been forcibly impressed with the predominance of English customs and modes of life as contrasted with our more typically Canadian spirited western provinces, and by the somewhat apparent separation of purely Canadian interests, due probably to geographical location and the intervening French-Canadian atmosphere. There is, however, evidence of a quickening interest in opposition to the more conservative ideas which have until recently been in strong evidence, and the absorption of the D. A.R. by the C.P.R. is heralded as a potential and considerable stimulus to advancement.

We were informed at Charlottetown, P.E.I., that there was actually one automobile on the island, owned by a millionaire, who had threatened to leave, were he denied by legislation, the privilege of possessing such a means of locomotion, and who is still held amenable to the laws of the land in that he is allowed to drive his car but two days in seven, and that within the city limits. I have no doubt but that the speed limit is calculated upon equally reckless lines. Information such as the above should cause the many Belleville motorists to rise up and bless the land in which they drive.

The mention of motor cars very naturally calls to mind the subject of good roads and I am impelled to mention particularly one of the beauties of Wolfville, the most progressive town of the Annapolis Valley, where I have been staying for a few days, and where great attention is being given to municipal questions. If I may be allowed to broach so delicate and painful a topic as the "pavement most suitable for a main thoroughfare," I shall proceed to say that in the beautiful town which I have mentioned "Tarvia" is being used most successfully, and the sensation which one experiences in skimming over such a road in an automobile resembles more nearly floating in a canoe on some quiet stream than actuality under ordinary conditions. I understand that this material has been almost exclusively used in the construction of the great touring roads throughout New York and other states.

Large numbers of tourists are attracted to this exquisite spot, partly by its natural beauties, but chiefly on account of its proximity to Grand Pre, the home of the Arcadians, and one has but to visit in this locality for a short time only, to become aware of how potent is the charm of historic romance, woven by Longfellow and given to the world in "Evangeline." All arrivals are promptly armed with a copy of the poem, if they do not reach their destination already fully prepared, and are allowed to wander around, renewing, in such a propitious environment, their youthful school days, and giving to their imagination, warped by the constant thought of the high cost of living, full sweep in its contemplation of this beautiful idyll where true love truly did not run smoothly, and calling up superlative sympathy for this much abused and suffering people, who it is to be feared, have been deluged with such abundance of kindly feeling, more through the instrumentality of Longfellow's idealization of their woes, than from the historic existence of any real cause for pity or consideration.

Unfortunately, the fire kindled by General Winslow's forces left practically nothing of the original village; in fact, as the poet affirms, "nought but tradition remains of the beautiful village of Grand Pre." However, there are pointed out to the tourist Evanegline's well, the foundations of the church, and of Father Felician's dwelling, the old road and burying-ground, and a superb row of stately willows called "Evangeline's Willows." Happily as yet this romantic spot has not been commercialized, but remains the property of a private citizen, who is kind enough to allow free access to the various points of interest. I have secured a small stone from the site of the church, to be used as a charm in conjuring up to a higher degree of reality, the scenes so graphically and pathetically chronicled in this supremely beautiful example of the poet's art.

I expect to follow practically the same route on the return journey, in order to enjoy the plentiful fresh air, associated with a prolonged water trip, and it is a pleasure for me to say that I never return to Belleville, without feeling that one might search and search in vain for a more beautiful city, noticeably so in many ways, in its position on the bay, in its superb growth of shade trees, and best of all, in its warm-hearted and kindly spirited citizens, who without the necessity of any conscious effort on their part, succeed in winning for themselves and their home town the appreciative and lasting regard of those who, coming as strangers, very soon find themselves assimilated by a friendly sympathy into the noble order of "Belleville citizenship."

With my kindest regards,

Very sincerely yours,

DAN A. CAMERON.

ONTARIO CROPS IN FINE SHAPE

A statement issued to-day by the Department of Agricultural of Ontario regarding crop conditions in the province says that this season is one of the most favorable for harvesting of hay and cereals. The former was never handled in more perfect weather, and grain crops, so far, have stood up well for cutting and have been housed under perfect conditions.

The average yield per acre of fall wheat is large, and the grain is classed as a good sample. Barley, which did not get a good start owing to the early cold weather, turned out a fine crop, which was harvested the last two weeks in July and the first week in August.

Oats will have a good average yield per acre.

Rye, this season, is better in the straw than the head. The crop is a fair one.

Peas, except where grown for canners, appearing to be decreasing in favor as a field crop.

Beans have suffered from too much rain. Some crops are promising well.

Hay and clover is of excellent quality. The corn crop now promises well. Tobacco is described as backward and uneven.

The potato crop reports are fair. In size the tubers are rather small but of good quality.

For root crops the dry season has beeing a trying one.

Apples have suffered from the early frost, and it is expected that the yield will be but half of normal. Plums are rated as being from fair to heavy in yield and generally of good quality. Peaches will be a very good crop. Grapes will be only medium.

Cattle are remarkably free from disease.

"ORANGE LILY SAVED MY LIFE"

These words or expressions having the same meaning are contained in hundreds of the letters I have received during the past year. Many were from women who had suffered agonies from falling of womb; others from women who had escaped dangerous surgical operations, as the tumors and ulcers had been removed by the action of Orange Lily; and others who had suffered from suppressed menstruation, leucorrhoea, painful periods, etc. For all these and the other troubles known in general as Women's Disorders, Orange Lily furnishes a positive scientific, never-failing cure. It is applied direct to the suffering organs, and its operation is certain and beneficial. As a trial actually proves its merit, I hereby offer to send, absolutely free, a box worth 35c., sufficient for ten days' treatment, to every suffering woman who will write for it. Enclose 3 stamps, MRS. FRANCES E. CURRAH, Windsor, Ont.

WITCH'S LOVE CHARM

Four women were condemned to six months' imprisonment each at Lucera Assizes, Italy, for body-stealing and witchcraft.

It appears that Signora Antonia Nardella, living at Lesina, was determined that a railway signalman should marry her only daughter, and decided that the best way to bring this about would be to bewitch him. For this purpose she paid a couple of women to steal a corpse from a neighboring cemetery.

This they then consigned to Primiana Boffa, who enjoys a great reputation in the locality as a witch. Having selected a number of bones she set to work to prepare a love philtre, grinding the bones to powder in a mortar. She added a quantity of bronze filings which she had commissioned a gravedigger to scrape at midnight from the big bell of the parish church.

Some peasants who chanced to be watching while the incantations were in progress divulged the story to the police.

For the Guest Room

A special calendar for the guest room will prove a godsend to many a hostess. This calendar consists of an eleven by fourteen inch panel of red morocco, mounted in easel manner and fitted with a small daily calendar which may be replaced at will, and below this is printed in good sized and perfectly legible gilt lettering "Breakfast," "Luncheon," "Tea," "Dinner," "Last Mail Leaves," and "Special." Directly opposite to each one of these legends is a space fitted with a sheet of white celluloid, on which may be inscribed the times of the meals and the departure of the last mail and any special item of information which should be brought to the guest's attention.

Won't Hurt Bill.

A certain Indianapolis Sunday school, which is conducting a recruiting campaign by modern advertising methods, through a publicity committee, has received a suggestion for an appeal, to be posted abroad. It reads:

"Hello, Bill. Come, let us save your soul. It can't hurt you, and it will help us. Be a good fellow!"

The committee has the suggestion under advisement.

SAMSON HASKELL OF BENTLEY

CHARLES A. MACFARLANE

CHAPTER XIII.

Samson's Tactics.

A call from the Crow's Corner school committee compelled Delilah to return to her work on the following Monday morning. It had been Samson's duty for the past year to drive her over to the school the first of each week. But on this morning, as it was not convenient for him to be absent from his farm work, it was necessary for her father to make the trip.

During the week Miss Gaylord sent a request for Samson to meet her at the school house on Friday afternoon; but again he was too busy to leave the farm, and on the second Monday his services were not available.

While she was at home his demeanor was most cordial, but ended there, and although puzzled at the change in his attitude toward her, she said nothing, and on the third Monday morning, when leaving the yard with her father, she tossed her head in a manner that indicated no preference for Samson's company; yet beneath the independent attitude there was an insincere bearing.

From that time on many of his evenings were passed at the Harding home, and quite frequently he and Theresa were seen driving or walking through the village, their presence also being noted by Lorinda Kendall at one or more of the weekly church meetings, to be referred to later when in Miss Gaylord's company. And on one occasion, when Theresa was charged with having accepted Samson as a lover, she tossed her head, blushed, and made no answer, indicative of the truthfulness of the assertion.

To be sure, all these doings were rehearsed in Delilah's ears, and, when she threw some insinuations in Samson's face, that personage neither denied or acknowledged.

On the first of December she suddenly resigned as teacher of the Crow's Corner school, and returned home to stay. Her excuse was that the Gaylord half of the farm interests demanded her attention, and all her time must be given in that capacity.

For two days, after establishing herself as head of the household, she had but little use for Samson. Then a tornado was started on the war path by Cynthia, the hired girl, receiving her dismissal, and Delilah taking her place at four dollars per week.

The girl approached Samson, with an innocent expression, and asked for her money, saying that Miss Delilah was competent to do the work, and her services were no longer necessary.

Samson informed her that she was to remain with the family; that she was hired by him, and Miss Gaylord had no authority in the matter. More than that, he would add another dollar to her wages for the same amount of work, and while her services were to be rendered for the benefit of the family as a whole, it must be understood that she was employed by him only, the power to dismiss her resting alone with him.

He then entered the house to settle the question with Delilah, expecting a stormy session, for he was not blind to the object of the high-handed act, feeling assured that it was prompted by bad feeling.

Delilah, who was sitting in the dining room, pretending to read a book, did not look up when he entered.

"Delilah, Cynthia tells me that you have discharged her." He tried to speak calmly, but his voice, perhaps, was a little stern, for he felt that his rights had been ignored. "As I hire and pay her myself, I have told her to stay. No one else has the power to send her away. I want that understood from this out."

Miss Gaylord deliberately laid her book upon the table, rose to her feet, and looked him steadily in the eyes.

"Samson Haskell, I wish you to remember that, while you are the owner of one half of this property, Delilah Gaylord is interested in the other half. You may succeed in forcing obedience from Father, Mother and Cynthia, but as the daughter of this house, I positively decline to come under your assumed authority. In the future, Delilah Gaylord will look after the affairs of this home, and hereafter you are to attend to your own affairs, which are outside of the house. When you purchased a half interest in this property, the terms did not include our exclusive privileges, but only such as pertained to your own particular work. I here and now call a halt."

Samson saw that he was in for it, and sat down on the end of the table to hear it out. The way she summed up his personal history had always been extremely interesting to him, and a rehearsal was ever refreshing.

"What is your life, Samson Haskell?" she exclaimed, the brown eyes fairly sparkling with anger. "Born in an old emigrant wagon, sheltered only by the hemlocks overlooking Lake Bentley, you dwelt in a hut now preserved by the town as a relic of your beginning in life. Your principal occupation has ever been to look after your personal interests, with little or no consideration for the feelings of others; you have nursed your own pet desires to such an extent that your selfishness predominates at every turn, and now, because you are a partner in the finest farm in the county, you demand submission on the part of every person about you. But you still have an obstacle to overcome, Samson Haskell, and that obstacle is Delilah Gaylord, the heiress to one half of this homestead—the half you shall never possess. From this moment I am mistress of this house, and no order shall be given but through me. Defy me if you dare."

When she saw that he was enjoying her outburst without himself being in the least disturbed, she sank to the floor and sobbed like a child. The ending was as he had expected. No cyclone could gather such speed without being followed by rain.

"Delilah," he said, kneeling beside her, "I didn't mean to make you feel so bad. I don't want to take the reins in my own hands. But Cynthia should be here to save you and your mother from the hard work. You hain't a-goin' to be a drudge, Delilah, and that settles it. If you had rather hire and pay Cynthia yourself, I'll give you the money every week. It's no more than my part, as I have my board and my washing and mending, and you or your mother can't do it all. As for your being mistress of the house, Delilah, there is nothing would please me better. Your place is at home, but there's no call for you to break yourself down with hard work, when you can take things comfortable and easy."

"But you have been making love to Theresa Harding, while I have been working myself half to death teaching those Crow's Corner children."

"That hain't so, Delilah. No one else cared to be civil to me, and, as Theresa was agreeable, I went over there sometimes."

"Your 'sometimes' was pretty often—nearly every night in the week. And you paid her a good deal of unnecessary attention when you were out riding together."

"I never treated her any better than occasion called for, considerin'."

"What do you mean by 'considering'? Is there anything binding between you?"

"Nothing more than a friendly feeling."

"Well, Theresa has been particular to speak of you in complimentary terms in my hearing, and when Lorinda Kendall asked her about being engaged to you, she neither denied it or said it was true. Anyway, you had no business driving about with Theresa Harding, when everyone in the district knows you are to take me to the oyster supper at Ogden on New Years. And you haven't once taken me over to the school, nor come for me since the day of the race. You have acted as if you had no longer any need of my company."

"Is that why you resigned and came home?"

"Yes, it is; that and your making love to Theresa Harding."

"I won't do it any more, if it makes you feel so bad, Delilah," and he wiped the tear marks from her face, as though she was a child of five years, instead of a young lady of three and twenty.

"You hadn't better," she answered, laughing up into his face, as they both rose to their feet. "Delilah Gaylord has something to say about who your sweetheart shall be."

"Delilah," said Samson, in a soft voice.

"Well?" and there was a merry look in her eyes.

"Doesn't the Good Book mention about a bad promise being better broken than kept?"

"Perhaps it does, but I don't ever remember reading it. Anyway, it isn't best to make a promise you can't keep."

"Delilah, will you marry me?"

She studied his face for a moment, the tears again filling her eyes. Then, seemingly unwilling to surrender too quickly, she turned and walked to the window.

"Delilah, it is now or never; will you be my wife?" and stepping to her side, he awaited the answer, his features rigid with doubt as he looked down into her face.

She hesitated a moment. Then, leaning slightly toward him, she said in her old-time tantilizing voice: "Would you like a kiss, Samson?"

Supposing she was in earnest, he reached out his long arms to draw her to him, but she sprang backward with a mocking laugh, and when he attempted to follow her, she ran from the room into the kitchen, closing the door after her.

A moment later, however, she returned through another door, and stood before him, her eyes dancing with merriment. "I'll tell you on New Years night, when we come home from the oyster supper."

"Not before?"

"Not one moment before, Samson Haskell." But, stepping close to him, her hands locked behind her, she laughed up into his face, saying in look, if not in so many words, "You dare not."

Samson accepted the challenge, and, before she could avoid his reach, the strong arms were about her, and though she slapped his face, pulled his hair, and threatened to scream, he planted a healthy kiss upon the red lips.

"You are a bad man to take advantage of a weak woman, Samson Haskell;" but there was no anger in the voice, and when he pressed her closer to him, and appropriated a second kiss, she wound her arms about his neck, drew his face down to hers, and kissed him affectionately.

Despit Delilah's refusal to commit herself verbally, Samson Haskell knew that he had conquered at last.

That night, with the light-stepping Blackhawks harnessed to a two-seated sleigh, they drove over to the Harding home, where they found Henry Rollins occupying an easy chair in the parlor and Theresa in a most contented frame of mind.

An hour later the horses were barned at the Trenton hotel, a warm supper ordered for the four, and at ten o'clock they faced toward home, the full moon lighting the heavens, while love and joy filled their hearts.

"It seems so different, Delilah," laughed Theresa from the rear seat beside Henry. "You and Samson have spent all your lives quarreling, and it was often necessary for me to take his part. And now, to think that you have become his protector. But Henry and I are satisfied to have it so," as he put his arm about her waist—to hold the robe in place.

"We have had our last disagreement," said Delilah, in a tender voice. "Samson and I have quarreled all our lives, and it is time to stop. But I think we like each other all the better now, because of our past differences, don't we, Samson?" and she looked up into his face with a happy smile.

"It took a good many years for us to find our mates; but I am glad we are properly paired at last," added Henry.

"Oh, Samson and I knew who our mates were years and years ago," said Theresa, in her jolly way. "The difficulty lay with you and Delilah."

"It is jest as it should be now," said Samson, drawing his companion to him, when the span was ascending a steep hill, and he could drive with one hand. "I have allus felt that it would end right some time, and the hope gave me patience."

"And you have had the patience of Job, when he had so many boils, and a scolding wife," laughed Theresa.

Samson had never known Delilah to appear so happy and frolicsome as she was that night, and as they drew rein at the Harding gate, Theresa, standing in the sleigh, leaned over Samson's broad shoulder and said in a low voice:

"I am so glad, Samson."

"For me, or for you, Theresa?"

"For both of us, I guess," she laughed, and kissed Delilah good night.

WHERE CANADA LEADS

Montreal has the largest grain conveying system in the world.

The largest pulp wood resources in the world are in the Dominion. These are being renewed by fresh growths, so that the supply will be inexhaustible.

Canada has the largest consecutive wheat field in the world—an area which is constantly extending and which justifies the prediction of Lord Strathcona that Canada will soon be the granary of the world.

The greatest sea fisheries in the world are those of the Dominion. These are worth, east and west, almost $50,000,000 per annum, and are capable of indefinite expansion. The salmon industry in British Columbia, great as it is, is in its infancy.

Canada has the largest nickel mines in the world; upon these the naval authorities are in great measure dependant, as nickel is employed in the armoring of warships.

The Dominion possesses a greater railway mileage than Australia and New Zealand or Italy and Spain combined, and more than all the South American countries.

The largest grain mills in the world are in the Dominion.

Crowded Homes

Russian figures place the average number of occupants of a house at eight in London, 48 in Vienna, 50 in Berlin and 52 in Moscow, and St. Petersburg.

Canadians pay over thirty-five million dollars per year in life insurance premiums.

Factory Girls Jumped Into Fire Nets

Employees in Burning Shoe Factory at Maisonneuve Leaped Sixty Feet.

MONTREAL, Aug. 23.—When fire broke out yesterday afternoon in the factory of the Rideau Shoe Manufacturing Co., Desjardins avenue, Maisonneuve, a score of the employees, including half a dozen girls, who were trapped in the building, were forced to the roof, from where the majority of them had to jump into the nets held by firemen sixty feet below. Many of those who jumped from the roof sustained bruises and contusions by being tumbled too quickly out of the life-net. But only one, Patrick Keenan, a young fellow residing in Grand Trunk street, Point St. Charles, was injured seriously enough to warrant being removed to a hospital. He was taken in an ambulance to Notre Dame Hospital, where, it was said last night, he was suffering from a cut head and badly bruised legs. One of the young women who jumped from the roof to the net sustained a dislocated ankle, but she was taken home.

Pietro Maggio Rescues His Fair Elsie

HAMILTON, Aug. 23.—The trials and escapades of Pietro Magbio and Elsie Tranglio, in their love affairs, were by no means ended when they were brought back to Hamilton from Kingston after being arrested on a Grand Trunk train at the Outer Station, by members of the Kingston police.

They were arraigned in court here and the case was enlarged for a week, both parties being allowed their liberty. Elsie's father determined to end the romance by shipping the girl back to Sunny Italy, and was on the way to the train with her when he was met by Maggio. The girl informed her lover of the state of affairs and in a moment a revolver was flashed in the face of the father and the girl was rescued. The couple quickly disappeared and the irate parent and the entire police force of the city are searching for the couple. It is thought that they have again succeeded in leaving the city.

Sleep Walker is Hurt in a Fall

MONTREAL, Aug. 23.—In the dead of night, oblivious to all around her, Mrs. Houghcliffe, of N. 75 Rosnel St. Point St. Charles, who suffers from somnabulism, walked from her bedroom into the dining-room which is situated on the second floor.

As she neared the stairs she slipped and fell, and rolled down the stairway. The noise awoke the rest of the family, who found the woman in an unconscious condition.

At the Western Hospital it was found that her left wrist was broken, and it is thought that she sustained internal injuries.

ARE YOU PROPERLY INTRODUCED?

When you wish to gain the ear of an important personage you know how it helps to have a properly worded letter of introduction.

Now, let's apply the same rule to broad business.

The manufacturer wishes to get very close to a most important couple—Mr. and Mrs. Consumer.

The nearest friend to Mr. and Mrs. Consumer is Mr. Retailer.

Mr. Retailer has many solicitations for introductions, but he wants feel sure that Mr. and Mrs. Consumer will approve of Mr. Manufacturer.

Mr. Retailer communicates with Mr. and Mrs. Consumer through advertising in daily newspapers like The Intelligencer.

He knows no better way for the national manufacturers to pique the curiosity and arouse the enthusiasm of buyers than through the same medium.

He is willing to do the rest.

A co-operative campaign in the daily newspaper between merchant and manufacturer brings results in short order.

TWENTY-FIVE BRIDGES WERE WASHED AWAY

Extensive Damage Done by Friday Night's Deluge in Hamilton and Haldimand Townships—Mill Carried Down Stream—Heavy Loses Caused.

COBOURG, Aug. 24.—For weeks farmers have been crying for rain, but Friday night's deluge was rather more than they were prepared for. It is said that fully twenty-five bridges were carried away in last night's flood in Hamilton township alone, and that at a small estimation it will cost that municipality $8,000 to repair them.

The gates of the dam at the fine private fish pond owned by Mr. W. J. Crossen, of Cobourg, at Baltimore, five miles from here, were carried away, and the water washed lakeward in a perfect torrent. This has put the mills owned by Mr. John Ball, at Baltimore, out of business. A huge elm tree which was a landmark at Baltimore, was carried away, and the remains of trees, bridges, barn doors, and a heap of debris were carried down the creek.

A small mill at Baltimore, with machinery and all, was actually moved a short distance down the stream. Among the bridges carried away was a cement bridge near Canborne, recently erected by Hamilton township at a cost of $800.

In Haldimand township also, many bridges were carried away, but information at hand regarding this is meagre. A man and a child who were in a drive shed were startled to see the water pouring in at the door. The child was carried out, and a flash of lightning revealed an adjacent bridge being swept down the stream.

The loss to both townships is a serious one, and the disasters of last night will be costly.

Thurlow Barn Struck by Lightning

During a thunder storm which passed over a portion of Thurlow township on Sunday morning, a barn belonging to Mr. William O'Sullivan, situated in the 5th concession, was struck by lightning and destroyed. It was only by the combined efforts of neighbors who turned out in large numbers, that the residence was saved. The barn contained the season's crop, which was also destroyed. The horses were taken from the burning building and some farming implements. A binder, however, was destroyed. Adjoining the barn was a large pig pen, which also fell a prey to the devouring element, but the porkers were saved.

The loss to Mr. O'Sullivan is a serious one, and is only partially covered by insurance.

Sir Gilbert's Opinion of Present Montreal

MONTREAL, Aug. 23.—"Montreal is tremendous," said Sir Gilbert Parker, the famous Canadian author, who represents Gravesend in the British House of Commons. "Since I was here last, which was about five years ago, the city has improved wonderfully.

Automobile Causes Fatal Runaway

A distressing accident occurred this morning near Rednerville, Prince Edward county, as the result of which a young life was sacrificed.

Mr. Clarence Russell, who lives at Rednerville, was driving near his place, being accompanied by his young son, Frank Wellington, aged six years. The horses became unmanageable when frightened by a passing automobile, and ran away. The father and son were thrown violently to the ground; the father escaped serious injuries, but not so the boy. He sustained a fractured skull and was otherwise injured.

As soon as possible the little sufferer was brought to the hospital here and everything possible was done to save his life, but he passed away this afternoon, The remains were subsequently taken to Thompson's undertaking establishment and prepared for burial, after which they were taken to the parents' home.

THIRD LINE NOTES.

It is better to miss some things as they go than to take them as they come.

VALIDITY OF THE GARBAGE BY-LAW TO BE TESTED

The validity of the city garbage bylaw will now be tested in the courts, as the result of a case which was tried in the police court today.

Mr. James Knox was charged with neglecting to take out a garbage ticket under the bylaw. The accused pleaded not guilty through his counsel, Mr. E. G. Porter, K.C., M.P. Mr. W. C. Mikel, K.C., represented the city in the case.

Before any evidence was taken, Mr. Porter, on behalf of his client, objected to Police Magistrate Masson trying the case, on the grounds that he (the magistrate) was City Solicitor, and also by virtue of his office, an ex-officio member of the Board of Health.

Magistrate Masson noted the objection, and proceeded to try the case, stating that he would do so subject to the objection.

Mr. Wm. Thomson, City Clerk, in his evidence, stated that he was city clerk and also secretary of the Board of Health. He knew Mr. Knox, who had not taken out a ticket under the garbage bylaw. The bylaw was prepared by the Board of Health and submitted to Mr. Masson, City Solicitor, for approval. It was then passed by the City Council. The bylaw, he knew, had not been prepared by the City Solicitor. To his knowledge the Council had not acquired any land, building, plant, or machinery for the disposal of ashes, refuse or garbage, had not submitted any bylaw to the citizens for their approval, had not levied any special rate against the assessed property for the collection of garbage or expense of same, and had not issued debentures to pay for the same. The exact expense of the collection of garbage he did not know. The city provided the carts and harness, and three men, with their horses, were paid $3 per day, and Mr. R. Arnott was paid $15 a month as inspector. He could not tell how many places the collectors of garbage called each day. He understood that the city had arranged for dumps for the disposal of garbage, but did not know where they were.

Mr. Arnott testified that he called on Mr. Knox twice and requested him to take out a garbage ticket under the bylaw, but he refused to do so, stating that he disposed of his garbage. Witness said he looked over Mr. Knox's place, and it was certainly very clean. There were about 2,000 persons in the city who had garbage tickets. The matter of expense for collecting the garbage was brought up before the Board of Health, and it was thought that by all paying 20 cents a month, the expense could be met. The expense would be something over $3,000 per year. Dumps had been arranged for the disposal of the garbage.

At the conclusion of the case, Mr. Porter asked the magistrate if he was trying the validity of the bylaw.

His Worship said he was not considering the bylaw's validity.

Mr. Porter then asked that a nominal fine be imposed, so that his client could appeal the case to a higher court.

Magistrate Masson imposed a fine of $1 and costs and gave ten days for the same to be paid.

In answer to an enquiry that the case would be appealed, Mr. Porter replied that it certainly would be.

Shutter Opened Child Fell 30 Feet

Little Girl was Washing Second-Storey Window When Accident Occurred.

MONTREAL, Aug. 23.—A shutter giving way while little eight year old Irene Berube was washing the bathroom window at her home, 1614 Christophe Colomb street, precipitated the little girl from the second story to a back gallery fifteen feet below, and from there she tumbled down the steps to the yard. Picked up unconscious, she was taken at once inside the house, and Dr. Hurtubise was summoned. Her body was a mass of bruises on one side, while her face had also been badly bruised, but the examination revealed no broken bones, and no internal injuries were discovered.

New Tortures for Thaw if Returned

MATTEAWAN, Aug. 23.—Harry Thaw faces a different sort of incarceration from that which marked his five years' of detention as a lunatic, if fate again thrusts him into the keeping of the authorities at the Matteawan State Hospital. The whole system of vigilance over the State's wards will be changed until it forms an interlocking device, which will prevent Thaw from breaking again into the outside world.

Ever since he entered the State institution here, he has had privileges which were denied to other patients, including special furniture for the room he occupied. If he ever returns, every one of these privileges will be withdrawn.

Thaw will eat at the hospital table for patients, and he will eat the food furnished at the expense of the State. He will exercise in the regular exercise court, and at the same time, and under the same conditions as every one of the other patients, conforming all of the time to the rules laid down for them. But probably the most dreaded of all conditions which the man now under arrest in Canada will experience if he goes back, will be confinement in a ward with interrupted association with other lunatics.

Bobby Aull to Fight Annulment

COBOURG, Aug. 23.—After his release yesterday morning, Robert Aull, jr., proceeded up street in civilian clothes and was the recipient of numorous invitations from various society people for dinner and automobile rides. He had a conference immediately with his counsel, Mr. T. F. Hall, and at once got into communication by wire with his family in St. Louis.

It is said that his father, Col. Robert Aull, sr., was expected to arrive to-day. He has decided to fight the annulment proceedings without delay, and the arrival of his father will be the signal for renewed activity on the part of the defendant.

Aull is registered at the Dunham, and has decided to remain in Cobourg for a few days in order to arrange the details of his case. Nothing further has been heard of the alleged charges at Lexington, Ky.

TWO SAILORS DROWNED ON FIRST TRIPS.

St. Catharines, Aug. 25.—Special—James Hawkins, 142 Charlton avenue, Hamilton, a deckhand, fell overboard from the steamer Ames just outside Port Dalhousie harbor yesterday morning. Hawkins was releasing the fenders when he lost his balance. He shipped at Hamilton, Saturday, and had not been employed on the boat for twenty-four hours. He is survived by his wife and seven children, the eldest of whom is fourteen and the youngest are twins, about four months old.

Fred White of Hamilton, a deck hand on the steamer Collinge, fell from a lock gate at Lock 22 in the Welland Canal, Friday night, and was drowned. He also came from Hamilton, and was on his first trip.

White's remains were sent to Hamilton yesterday, but Hawkins' body has not been recovered.

WESTERN CANADA
A BUMPER WHEAT CROP
THOUSANDS OF MEN REQUIRED

This Year's Harvest promises to be be the largest in

THE HISTORY OF CANADA

According to present indications the wheat crop of 1913 will be the greatest ever harvested in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta, thus requiring the farm laborers of the East to assist in harvesting the world's greatest bread basket.

The Governments of the respective Provinces state that many thousand men will be required for this year's harvest. These will have to be principally recruited from Ontario, and the prosperity of Canada depends on securing labor promptly. The Canadian Pacific, on which Company will fall practically the entire task of transporting the men to the West, is already making special arrangements for this year. Excursions from points in Ontario to Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta will be run and special trains operated, making the trip in about thirty-six hours and avoiding any change of cars or transfers. This will be a day shorter than any other route. Dates, rates and conditions will be announced in a few days.

Some women will believe anything that is unbelievable.

Electric production of ferro-silicon as well as potash will be carried out by a new method in Sweden, employing current from hydro-electric plants.

G. S. HENRY CHOSEN

Prominent York Conservative to Contest Riding.

Former Warden of the County Will Uphold the Conservative Interests in the Approaching Fight for Alexander McCowan's Seat in the Legislature—Albert Chamberlain Liberal Nominee.

TORONTO, Aug. 25.—The fight for the legislative seat made vacant by the resignation of Alexander McCowan of East York began in earnest on Saturday when the rival Conservative and Liberal camps met and selected their candidates for the fight.

At the East York Conservative convention on Saturday at the Y.M.C.A. Hall in East Toronto, George S. Henry was nominated as candidate for the contest. Never in the Conservative annals of the riding has there been a larger convention or a keener contest for the nomination, and Mr. Henry received a majority of eighty-nine votes over H. H. Ball, the next in line.

Mr. Henry has had many years of active service in municipal and political life. He was in the York township council for eight years and was reeve of the township for four, besides being warden of the county council. When the good roads movement started and the York highway board was formed Mr. Henry was appointed a member of it, and he has since been made secretary-treasurer of the Ontario Good Roads Association. His farm in East York is about three miles east of Lansing and four miles south of Agincourt.

GEORGE S. HENRY.

Albert Chamberlain of 304 Indian road, was unanimously nominated to carry the Liberal banner in the coming East York by-election at a meeting of delegates held in the Markham town hall Saturday afternoon. Jonathan Nigh, president of the East York Reform Association, presided at the meeting, which was attended by about 175 representatives of the electoral division of the riding.

W. D. Annis of Scarboro' Township; R. J. Kirby of Eglinton; Albert Eckhardt of Toronto; A. D. Bruce of Gormley P.O.; Mr. Ross of Toronto, and Mr. Stewart of Unionville were among those at first nominated, but all withdrew in order that Mr. Chamberlain might have the honor of a unanimous nomination.

Albert Chamberlain was born in England 56 years ago. He came to Toronto in 1882, and for many years held the position of chief inspector of works. For some time he followed the business of contracting, and about five years ago started a manufacturers' agency in his own name, with which he is still connected.

Nominations will be made next Monday, Sept. 1, and the election will take place a week from that day, on Sept. 8. No meetings have as yet been announced by the Reform committee, but arrangements are under way for an energetic campaign during the next two weeks.

Killed on Track.

KINGSTON, Aug. 24.—(Special).—Ambrose Rayner, aged thirty-nine, living at Tuttles Hill, a short distance from the city, was struck by a fast train near Kingston Junction late Saturday night, and killed. Early Sunday morning his body was found alongside the track.

Rayner was in Kingston on Saturday afternoon to do shopping. Following his usual custom, he rode out to the Junction on a suburban train and then set out to walk the rest of the distance. It is believed that he got off one track to make way for a freight, and did not notice the fast train coming from the other direction. He was married and leaves a wife and five children.

Cut Off Wife's Hair.

PARKERSBURG, W.V., Aug. 23.—In a fit of jealousy Henry Phillips, a wealthy and prominent oil operator of this city, cut off his wife's beautiful tresses, to prevent her from being attractive in the eyes of other men. Mrs. Phillips swore out a warrant charing him with assault and battery. The Phillips are among the most prominent people in the city, and the affair has turned society topsy-turvy.

FEELING AFTER THE GOD OF LOVE

Divine Character Misrepresented by the Creeds.

DARKNESS COVERS THE EARTH

Pastor Russell Thrills Believers and Skeptics by His Picture of the True God—The Pastor's Early Teaching of Hell—He Became a Skeptic—His Recovery of More Than He Lost—God's Wisdom, Justice, Love and Power — Soul Satisfaction In None Other.

Glasgow, Scotland, August 24.—Pastor Russell preached to-day from the text, "God so loved the world that He gave His Only Begotten Son, that whosoever believed on Him might not perish, but have everlasting life."—John 3:16.

The Pastor declared that the doctrine of total depravity is totally wrong. The likeness of God, which was perfect in Father Adam, still persists in some degree in all of Adam's children, sadly fallen though they be. Indeed, no one is so fallen as not to have a reasonable conception of his own debasement, a feeling that he is justly out of touch with his Creator and worthy of some kind of punishment. In every human breast there is also a sentiment of pity, and a feeling of the need of Divine pity. But just there serious errors, received from our forefathers in the Dark Ages, bar the way and discourage those who desire to return to fellowship with their Creator.

Many 'Christians' are benevolent, sympathetic, ready to lend a helping hand and to give a word of encouragement. Many are ready to help the unfortunates, to sing them songs of God's love and sympathy and pity. But these helps are discounted by the great central thought supported by all the various creeds called orthodox; namely, that God is indeed very angry in sending nearly every member of our race to an eternity of torture—ninety thousand every twenty-four hours being the present schedule.

Creeds Drive Away From God.

While the Christian forgets the atrocious misrepresentations of the Divine character given by the creeds, and remembers chiefly the loving words of encouragement given in the Bible, it is not so with the sinner, who has not yet tasted that the Lord is gracious. His thoughts revert to the fact that he is a sinner, and to the teaching that eternal torment is his doom. If he can live for awhile a decent life, he begins to hope that he may escape the threatened torture; but when he falls again into trespasses and sins, he strives to forget everything, and especially God and the future torture of which he has been told. He escapes best from all religious thought in the bar-room, at the gaming table, and in general surrender to sin. He has a fear of God, which he seldom confesses, and which he belies with his profanity. He is miserable in the presence of the pure, the holy, and fears the Bible.

Well did Satan know how to turn the hearts and minds of humanity away from God and from the Bible! With what cunning did he introduce these wicked misrepresentations of God's character into the creeds of Christian people during the Dark Ages! St. Paul gauges the matter properly in the words, "The god of this world hath blinded the minds of those who believe not, lest the light of the glorious Gospel of Christ, who is the Image of God, should shine unto them."—2 Corinthians 4:4.

Even in the blessed twilight of the Apostolic times, when the Church was guarded from Satan's delusions, St. Paul realized that comparatively few of the brethren had a clear insight into the love of God. Hence his prayer: "I pray God for you, that the eyes of your understanding being opened, ye may know what is the hope of your calling, that ye may be able to comprehend with all saints the breadth and length and depth and height, and to know the Love of God, which passeth all understanding." If this knowledge of the Love of God is the great need of Christians, if their eyes of understanding can only partially appreciate, oh, what is the need of the poor world, thoroughly blinded by Satan and unable to see anything!

How Can We Be Otherwise Than Indignant?

And let us not forget that Satan has used Christian tongues and Christian pens to do this blinding of the world. The Message of God's Love in the Bible is clear, plain, beautiful. The misrepresentations and contradictions of that Love by our forefathers, as represented in the creeds, evidently was the inspiration of Satan, as the Apostle declares. Not only so, but our Adversary was assisted by his corps of fallen angels, as St. Paul again declares that some give heed to seducing spirits and doctrines of demons.—1 Timothy 4:1.

We owe it to ourselves, to our families and to the world in general to utterly destroy these blasphemous misrepresentations of God's Character and Plan. Since our eyes are gradually opening to see the real situation, how can we be otherwise than indignant and jealous for the honor of our God and for the influence of His Truth amongst our fellowmen.

The Pastor's Personal Experience.

I speak from experience. Not that I have had the experience of being an alien, a stranger from God, but I have had the experience of losing my God. The child of believing parents, and indoctrinated along Calvinistic lines to believe that only the Elect, a handful, would ever reach glory, and that all the remaining non-elect would reach a perdition of torment, I was accustomed to thinking of myself as one of the Elect, and appreciating the Love of God, which had provided for the salvation of the Elect.

As a boy of seventeen, a member of the Y.M.C.A., I engaged, as did other members at that time, in what we called Gospel preaching—not realizing the meaning of the word Gospel—that it signifies "good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people." Like the others, I exhorted and threatened, pictured Hell, and shook my hearers over it. Then came sober thought. Reason began to assert itself over superstition. I inquired of myself, Where is this Hell which you preach? And what do you really know about it?

Confessing my own ignorance on the subject, I went to my teachers and elders, and was amazed to find that they knew no more about it than myself. I stopped preaching, and began to think and to examine the creeds. I found that the differences between them were trivial; they all had the one foundation of Heavenly salvation for the saintly few, and eternal torture for the thousands of millions in heathen and in Christian lands. The more I investigated, the more I felt sure a great mistake had been made; that a real God could not have such a plan; such an arrangement as our creeds declared. I threw them all away; and thinking the Bible the basis for them all, I threw it after the creeds.

Soul-Hunger For God.

Having once known God as my Heavenly Father, I could find no soul rest without Him. My soul hungered for His love and care. I still held to the great fact that our Universe has an intelligent, personal Creator. His Wisdom and Power were before me on every starry night. My studies in anatomy convinced me that I myself, all humanity, yea, every creature, is fearfully and wonderfully made. The more I studied, the more I became convinced that the eye could never have come by chance, could not have been evolved by a nature god; and so with every other function of my body—the muscles, the nerves, and the power to move in response to the mere thinking, willing. I worshipped the God of Wisdom and Power, confident that I would find Him good.

Left to the resources of my own brain, I asked, Could others and myself possess, as gifts of our Creator, the qualities of Justice and Love, which we esteem the very highest, and yet that Creator Himself be destitute of these? The answer of my mind was, Surely, as He that formed the eye can see, He that gave humanity the qualities of Justice and Love, must possess these qualities in infinite measure.

Thus I beheld with the eyes of my understanding the great God of the Universe, infinite in His Wisdom, in His Power, in His Justice, in His Love. I worshipped again, rejoiced that I could have confidence in my God, and realize that He had made neither the world nor our race in vain—that He had some wise, just, loving purpose in connection with our creation.

Intelligent Peoples Most Thoroughly Seduced.

My next thought was, Would not a just and loving God be pleased to make known His purposes to His creatures who desired to know and do His will? The answer of my mind was, that I might confidently seek God's Message. Thinking that I had already sufficiently examined the Bible, I turned my attention to heathen religions, only to find them less rational in some respects than my own. Evidently the most intelligent peoples of the world have been the most thoroughly seduced by Satan and his "doctrines of demons," into believing the most horrible things respecting the Creator and His purpose toward His human creatures.

Finally, I resolved on a fresh study of the Bible, assuring myself first that my colored spectacles and those of my friends were thoroughly broken, and my mind entirely untrammeled. Not without stumblings and difficulties did the Lord gradually lead me to clearer and yet clearer light upon His word, until I found that the basis of all difficulty lay in our following Satan's lie, "Ye shall not surely die."

From that time the entire Bible gradually became illuminated, beautiful, grand, harmonious! Now, beloved hearers, it stands pre-eminent before my mind as the Word of God. Realizing this, I use my reason freely within the limits of its declarations, but never outside of its authority.

Mankind Need to Be Encouraged—Not Browbeaten.

No pen can tell the peace and joy and blessing that a clear knowledge of the true God has brought into my own heart and life. "It satisfies my longings as nothing else can do." I am seeking no further. There is nothing more to be desired—except to get this wonderful Story more clearly before my mind and to appreciate more and more the Divine Character, as illustrated by the Divine Plan, which God is gradually working out for the blessing, first of the Church, and afterwards for the world. Can you wonder that I have sympathy for honest skeptics, who like myself have lost their way, and sympathy, too, for the great mass of mankind, who have never known God!

Perhaps I can appreciate better than some others of the Lord's people what it means to be "without God and without hope in the world"—how lonesome, how solitary the way, how aimless the wandering, how bitter the disappointments that find no solace in hope of a better day! I am persuaded that mankind need more to be instructed and encouraged than to be brow-beaten, threatened, alarmed. At any rate, the decreasing church attendance, in spite of operatic music and sensational topics, proves that the masses of the people refuse longer to be scared into the Heavenward road by threats of eternal torment.

And do not all Christian ministers to some extent discern this? Is not this the reason some of them give for discontinuing to preach the creeds of a darker time? Is not this the reason that, in defiance of the creeds, and in contradiction thereof, every funeral service is a white-washing affair to make out that the deceased is a saint and gone to Heaven, even if his life has been discreditable, and he has never made even a profession of Christianity? Such hypocrisies—holding one standard and preaching another — are bringing Christianity into reproach. Fraud is the word which in the conception of many fits their own formalism and that of others. They recognize the Apostolic picture of our times, "Having a form of godliness, but denying its power."—2 Timothy 3:5.

The Love of Our Text.

The entire Bible tells us of God's Love and Sympathy. Only a few texts twisted, mistranslated, or interpolated during the Dark Ages, even seemingly contradict the great statement that God is Love—the very essence and embodiment of this grandest of all elements of character. Our text is one of these loving tributes to the Heavenly Father's mercy and grace. It is one, therefore, which especially appeals to the worldly, the unmindful Christian and the repentant sinner—"God so loved the world that He gave His Only Begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

Yet see how we have twisted this good Word of God to make out of it something evil. We seized upon the word perish, knowing well that it signifies to destroy, to annihilate, to render lifeless. Satan persuaded us that such a penalty would not sufficiently terrify, and not rapidly enough fill the rolls of church membership. He induced our forefathers, through the "doctrines of demons," to say that perish here means the reverse of what it means in ordinary conversation—that it means to go to endless woe, to be met by fire-proof devils, and be confined to all eternity in horrible sufferings. Well did Satan succeed in deceiving us until we did not even think of questioning his lies and absurdities.

If any one suggested that perish means to destroy, the Adversary would stir up persecution, and brand such a one a heretic. If the heretic asked how any one could be tortured forever in fire and not be consumed, he was denounced as both a fool and a knave for not appreciating the fact that God could inject life into the poor sufferer for the millions upon millions of years of eternity.

How foolish we were! How stupid not to see the origin of such nonsense—not to perceive the simplicity of God's Word that the penalty upon sinners was to perish — not to see that God sent His Son to redeem man from his perishing condition, and to open up for Adam and all his race a way to life—everlasting life!

Quite true, this life can come only through the Life-giver, the Redeemer. Quite true, none can receive it in ignorance, and comparatively few see with the eyes of their understanding or hear with the ears of their understanding the Message of grace in the present time. But God's provision through Christ is a resurrection for the dead—not only the just, who now by faith are justified, but also the unjust, who are still aliens, foreigners, strangers from God.

"The Gospel of the Kingdom."

Thus it is that by Divine arrangement none can now understand the Divine Plan for human salvation from perishing, except as they come to understand respecting the Kingdom—that God has promised that the Redeemer, who purchased the world by His sacrifice, shall become the world's Great High Priest, Prophet and King, and for a thousand years grant to Adam and his family the blessed opportunity of knowing and accepting the Divine terms whereby they may be saved from perishing, from death — whereby they may be fully resurrected, raised up, out of present sin and death conditions to the fulness of life attainable at the end of Messiah's Reign.

It is only incidental to this great Plan of the world's salvation that the Church is now called in advance to walk by faith in the footsteps of the Redeemer and to become His Bride and Joint-heir in the Heavenly Kingdom. The great work of Christ is for the world, the blessing of all the families of the earth, by the resurrection work of the thousand years of His Messianic Kingdom.

This is the great hope the world needs, which thrills the hearts of all who hear it. And although their eyes and ears of understanding be still hindered by Satan, the Divine promise is, that in the coming Messianic Day, when the shadows of the dark night of sin are past, all the blind eyes shall be opened, all the deaf ears shall be unstopped, and the knowledge of the glory of God shall fill the whole world, and be a Message of Hope to every creature.

It will be the privilege of those who are among the "wise" who have come to Belleville, to view as fine a body of horsemen as there is in the world. The Royal Canadian Dragoons will be here, and after all, when one has seen the great Toronto Exhibition, which is the biggest annual exhibition in the world, what is it that makes the most lasting impression and is remembered when all else is forgotten? It is the marvellous musical rides and magnificent exhibition of horsemanship displayed by those wonders of the saddle, the R. C. D.

White, another of the corps of lawyers, has just returned to Sherbrooke, Que., from Newport, Vermont, where he has been in consultation with a lawyer regarding certain legal practices in the State, the exact nature of which he would not divulge.

It is stated that Thaw will be deported under the law which provides for shipment back at the port of entry. It is learned here that a tacit agreement has been reached between Thaw's counsl and the proper authorities regarding the deporation and it is further stated that the Vermont laws are such that it will be difficult for the officials from the neighboring State to claim Thaw.

LOVE'S DREAM OVER, GOATS EAT LETTERS

A poetic soul, a soul filled to overflowing with the tender sentiment of an unrequited love, wandered among the goats in Central Park, New York on Friday.

Long hair and settled melancholy shrouded the classic features of the young man. He gazed pensively into the pen of the Angoras and leaned gracefully upon the railing of their small pasture. A keeper and several casual spectators took notice.

A sigh echoed among the goats and the youth extracted from an inner pocket a sheaf of letters tied daintly with blue ribbon. Opening the packet he brought forth a lavender scented missive and read in soulful tones a message of love. Then he fed the letter to the nearest goat.

Other goats began to take interest, and a crowd of Angoras listened attentively to the reading of the second letter. This in turn was fed with a sight to the second goat. A third went the way of others. The goats became expectant, even excited, in their desire for dainty fare. The tone of the letters became less honeyed. Occassionally a harsh word could be heard But each goat received a letter and a sigh.

"Bob" Hurton, a keeper, was attracted and made inquiry. The poetic youth handed the last of the sheaf of letters to him and strolled away without further explanation. The letter when examined was found to be written in a delicate feminine hand upon delicate lavender stationery. Its contents marked the end of a romance.

OCEAN STEAMSHIP WAR HAS STARTED

HAMBURG, Aug 23.—The passenger war between the Hamburg-American and the North German Lloyd Steamship companies, which it was expected would be started about the beginning of 1914 has already opened. The early beginning of hostilities is directly due to the anouncement of the North German line on August 19 that it would begin regular passenger and freight service between Bremen and Boston, the Boston service having heretofore been in the hands of the Hamburg-American.

Officials of the latter company declared to-day that they considered the North German's Lloyd's action as a trespass on the Hamburg American's territory and they will retaliate by establishing a steerage service to Baltimore which has heretofore been left to the North German Lloyd.

In a statement just issued the North Lloyd company stated that the Boston traffic has assumed to such proportions that a service to that port has long been under consideration, and has been definitely decided upon last January.

The Hamburg-American company hints at further war measures.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 23.—The Rev. William F. Davis, of No. 160 Garland street, Everett, a member of the class of 1867 of Harvard University and an evengelistic clergyman, has written to his one-time classmates, Julian Hawthorne and William James Morton, now in the federal prison at Atlanta, Ga., an unusual letter, in which he suggests that he be allowed to serve the remainder of their sentences.

"If the majesty of the law will permit our federal government to accept my imprisonment during the full time of the unexpired terms of both your sentences, kindly assure your captors that will give me the utmost pleasure to be seized and held as your substitute until justice is satisfied," he writes.

PRESIDENT WILSON AND THE MEXICAN TROUBLE

It is idle to discuss the attitude of the President toward Mexico when he is about to state in the form of a message what he has done and what he has tried to do. This much is clear. He may put his ideas to President Huerta in a way that if addressed to the head of a first-class power would be resented to the extent of mobilizing troops, with the expectation that war would follow refusal to accept the suggestion tendered.

But it is needless to anticipate further what the President has done. Some make the guess that he has submitted several points to the head of the Mexican Government of such a nature that the foreign executive has a right to be deeply incensed and his country to regard the notes of President Wilson as equivalent to such an ultimatum as means war if disregarded.

It is like President Wilson to be plain and frank in his communications, even with foreign powers, but surely he is too well advised by his special counsel, and by the Secretary of State, and others in his immediate official circle, to take any step that is recognized as improper in the code of international relations.

COATICOOK JUMPS INTO FAME

Make way there for Coaticook, P.Q., on the map. Twice in ten days that little town has attracted the eyes of the whole continent.

When Thaw escaped from Matteawan and was looked for in a thousand cities he bobbed up at Coaticook, although it must have been a difficult place for him to get to. And just before that, a week or so earlier, a despatch from the same place made city editors all over the country gasp by telling how a citizen of Coaticook, sitting on his "stoop" during a storm saw a shaft of lightning make a splash in the water, and perceived a large fish floating on the surface. Going to it, he found that it was an eleven-pound bass, dead, struck by lightning, with a hole through its head.

A fortnight ago Coaticook was almost unknown. To-day it is famous, thanks to Thaw and that eleven-pound bass. The moral of it is that no man and no place is so obscure as to be sure to escape fame. Anybody or any place may wake up any morning and be the talk of the world.—Toronto Star.

NORTH-WEST MANCHESTER FREE TRADE

There is a trite saying that, "an election is as uncertain as a horse race." Evidence of the truth of that saying is found in the result of elections in England. On examining the results of contests in Manchester, it is found that the East Division of Manchester, after electing Mr. Balfour in every contest from 1885 until 1900, defeated him by nearly 2,000 votes in 1906. The North-West Division was Conservative until 1906, when it elected Mr. Churchill. In 1908, when Mr. Churchill accepted office, he was defeated by 500 votes in the bye- election. In January, 1910, North-West Manchester again returned a Liberal, although Mr. Bonar Law left the security of Dulwich to fight for the seat. A Liberal was returned in December of 1910, and when he retired last year, the seat was captured by Sir J. S. Randles, a Conservative.

These figures are produced to show the uncertainty of a contest at the next election, into which Sir John Simon has avowed he intends to enter.

He leaves a constituency which has elected him in the past by majorities running into the thousands, to contest North-West Manchester, which is now, and has been represented by a Unionist and Free-Trader, with Free Trade as his battle cry. Upon this declaration of Sir John Simon a contemporary remarks:

"The choice of free trade as the battle cry is encouraging to tariff reformers. In both the elections of 1910 the economic issue was befogged by more startling cries. In January the budget and land taxes were the vital issues, and in December the abolition of the House of Lords was the dominant, almost the only topic discussed. For more than a year Liberal journals have intimated that the next election will be fought on the land question. Since 1906, when the Liberal Government went to the country on the "big loaf" cry, there has been no straight fight on the fiscal problem. In 1906 the 4-lb. loaf of bread cost 4½d. The price now fluctuates between 5½d. and 6d. It will be interesting to see of the Liberal party really will test the opinion of the country on this ancient shiboleth."

This election will be watched with some interest.

TORONTO'S INCREASING WEALTH

The following figures give some idea of the growth in wealth of Toronto:

The Ward Five assessment for 1914 has increased by $9,172,950, and now stands at $44,818,343. Next year it is expected to pass the fifty million mark. Nearly two-thirds of the gain is in the assessment on land, which increased from $13,392,291 to $19,371,398, or nearly 45 per cent.

An increase of practically $46,000,000 is shown in the assessment figures for Wards 1, 2, 5, 6 and 7. Ward 4 is expected to add at least $20,000,000 or more, bringing the total up to 81 million. This year's assessment for the entire city is $436,120,049, and the increase means that the $500,000,000 mark will be passed with a good margin.

It is to be hoped this "increase" in the value of land is legitimate and not the result of "booming."

An exchange says the barbers of Bayonne, N.J., went on strike the other day, and among other things demanded two hours daily for luncheon. What is the matter with the artists in question, anyway? Does their demand mean that their jaws are so tired after talking to customers that they require two hours to wag over a meal that ordinary men gobble up in ten minutes? Why should they not have two hours? That's the time nobility takes to dine.

A hundred and twenty-eight men have been arrested for participation in the Vancouver Island coal strike riots. The victims will have occasion to do some thinking, which is likely to be on the futility of beating up a lot of policemen as an argument in a wages dispute. When the thrashing of a peace officer sets the big machinery of the law in operation, those who are in the road are liable to suffer. How many of them will suffer? Politics will rule.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier is noted for being believed to be an ideal polite Frenchman. To establish that reputation, he politely denounced his opponents as "traitors," "dishonest dupes," falling down before the patronage trough, illustrating the proverb that "the famished belly has no tongue." These expressions are not what would ordinarily be called conciliatory, a champion of which he claims to be. They make it appear that when their agitating author thinks of where he has been hurt he forgets what is required in the role he advertises himself to play.

OPTION ON ALDWYCH SITE

Secured for Three Years at £3,000 Per Annum.

It is said that a three year's option on the Aldwych site in London has been obtained by a syndicate, headed by Earl Grey. This is to enable the British dominions to join in a scheme to erect upon this land a large building to be known as the Dominion House. Earl Grey has been advocating this project for the greater part of the present year.

The proposal is that the business of the self-governing dominions be concentrated under one roof in the centre of London, thus aiding in the promotion of inter-imperial trade. The option is costing £3,000 yearly. The site faces the new Kingsway and extends to the Strand back of the Church of St. Mary Le-Strand. It is owned by the London County Council and would be leased for 99 years at a rental graduated for five years and then standing at $50,000.

This site includes 124,000 square feet, or nearly 2¾ acres. The Government at Ottawa has not acted as yet upon the proposal.

HAS HUERTA RESIGNED?

Mexicans Worried at Possibility of His Doing So.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 24.—(Can. Press).—The keenest anxiety was manifested in the capital today as to what would be the development of the undertaking of the United States government in Mexico's internal affairs. Mexico's attitude is one of waiting, while the people resident here, both native and foreign, are displaying deep apprehension.

That President Huerta will make public tomorrow the correspondence between the two countries is now a matter of doubt.

Rumors continue that Huerta is still considering resigning, possibly in favor of Gen. Trevino, but there is no sound basis for this assertion. Those close to the executive insist that he will not alter the stand he has taken and will await Washington's next move. The public opinion is expressed here that there will be a swift culmination of all peaceable returns if congress is given an opportunity for free debate on President Wilson's statement of the facts in the case.

Senor Gamboa, minister of foreign affairs, denies the reports that Mexico will make any proposal to the United States, but expresses the hope that Washington might reply to Mexico's note rejecting the American demands. Mr. Lind, President Wilson's personal representative, maintains cordial relations with the foreign office, but little has been done during the past few days by him and Senor Gamboa which would be calculated to alter the situation. At present official negotiations between the two countries have ceased, Mr. Lind being now a spectator rather than an actor. It is not expected that he will leave here before President Wilson's message is read.

YOUNGER CONVERTED.

Celebrated Jesse James Lieutenant Startles Revival.

LEES SUMMIT, Mo., Aug. 23.—The religious fervor of a thousand persons packed into the improvised tabernacle housing the revival meetings of the Christian Church at Lees Summit last night had lulled, the song of invitation was being sung, then a huge man arose, picked up a little woman, kissed her and went forward. It was Cole Younger.

There was no halt in the singing, but a wave of applause drowned the voices for a minute. Old friends down in front tucked their song books under their arms, clapped their hands in fervor and the spirit spread thruout the tabernacle, receded and died out.

The last line of the song was followed by shouts of "Amen." It marked the slow swinging pendulum of Coleman Younger's life from one extreme to the other. The big man carried with him to the altar rail twenty-eight bullet wounds. He was the right hand man of Jesse James and was in many train hold-ups and other desperate crimes.

The evangelist uttered a fervent prayer over those who went homeward and closed the service, inviting friends of Younger to remain and shake his hand. There were a thousand in the meeting. A thousand remained.

THRACE IS A DESERT.

Pierre Loti Tells of Abominations of the Bulgars.

LONDON, Aug. 25.—(Can. Press.)—The Sublime Porte has opened direct negotiations with the Bulgarian delegate, M. Nochevitch, who has remained in Constantinople since he went there at the outbreak of the second war to negotiate an understanding with Turkey. It is understood that the Porte remains firm with regard to Adrianople and Kirk Kilisseh, but is prepared to make concessions in other quarters.

Pierre Loti, the French writer, under Constantinople date, sends to The Daily Telegraph a vivid story of his impressions on visiting Adrianople, and the surrounding districts. M. Loti says:

"The Bulgarians have made of Thrace a desert surpassing in abomination everything I had been told and all that I imagined. With what fury have these Christian liberators worked in order to accomplish so much destruction in a few months."

He describes orgies and massacres and violation and desecration in all the Turkish villages, and asserts that Adrianople itself only escaped by a miracle, because the Turks arrived a day earlier than was expected, and so defeated the Bulgarian plans for a similar massacre there.

WIRELESS ON TRAINS.

Telephone System Will Be Tried on Pennsylvania R. R.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 24.—The Pennsylvania Railroad is soon to install a wireless telephone system on the trains of that road for the use of the engineers and conductors, and it is said that the new scheme will go far toward the prevention of accidents. Preliminary tests have already been completed over the Huntington and Broad Top line and the freight and coal cars of this system are being equipped with the new wireless system.

An ordinary headpiece instrument is installed in the cab of the engine for the use of the engineer, while the mouthpiece can be attached to some part of the trainman's uniform so as to leave his hands free to perform his regular duties.

So perfect is the circuit formed by the steel rails, that it is said, despite the noise of the train, that an engineer can hear better than if the person he was conversing with was but a few feet away.

Will Not Receive De La Barra.

PARIS, Aug. 23.—(Can. Press.)—The Agence Nationale says it is practically certain that both President Poincare and M. Pichon, the foreign minister, will decline to receive Francisco de La Barra, the former provisional president of Mexico, who recently was appointed minister to France. His position, it is added, is considered similar to that of General Felix Diaz, the special ambassador now on his way to Japan, whom the Japanese Government has refused to receive officially.

Harvesters Resent Head Tax.

SARNIA, Aug. 23.—(Special.)—Some 1500 harvest hands cut things loose at the Port Huron end of the tunnel last evening, when they were detained while $4 was taken from them for the head tax. This will be paid back when they leave the United States near Winnipeg. The police were called when a large number got tight and caused a riot. During the trouble windows and furniture was smashed at the detention room. All were allowed to proceed to the west.

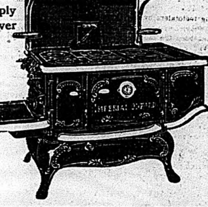
Government horticulturists at Wasington are trying to develop a rose that will grow in the United States rom which attar of rose can be distilled.



GURNEY-OXFORD

The Gurney-Oxford
Attracts Madam To The Kitchen

THE GURNEY-OXFORD has a large following of fashionable cooks who dip into the culinary art simply for the pleasure they derive from trying dainty recipes previously not attempted. They are all most enthusiastic supporters of the Gurney-Oxford because it contains many exclusive devices that make a perfect cooking equipment.

Its oven is evenly heated in every corner to insure deliciously dainty cakes, golden brown biscuits, and light flaky pastry. A special Divided Flue carries the heat to every hole on the range. The nickle trimming is removable thus proving a great convenience for keeping the range bright and clean.

But most important is the Economizer. It is a small lever that moves around a series of six notches giving the exact degree of heat required for any particular dish. The heat of the range can be shut off and the kitchen kept cool between meals by turning the lever to a certain number.

The fire is held at a low ebb on a special Reversible Grate until a baking oven is required. Then the necessary heat can be obtained quickly by simply turning the Economizer lever to another notch.

Such control as this enables many smart women to invent some very tempting dishes which they set triumphantly before their friends. It will pay you to investigate the Gurney-Oxford.

NATURALIZATION LAWS

As the result of successful negotiations with the Imperial authorities, the Canadian Government has concluded an agreement with them in respect to the passing of a law establishing a uniform system of naturalization throughout the whole Empire The subject was discussed when the Cabinet Ministers were in London last year, and was debated in the House of Commons last session. Since prorogation several communications have passed, and various drafts of proposed legislation have been sent back and forward.

MANY SOVEREIGNS SHUN ALCOHOL

Some Are Teetotallers and Others Drink Very Little—King Edward's Influence Did Much in England

Although it is not generally known, several European rulers are eligible for membership in a temperance society. Alfonso XIII, of Spain, and his mother, Queen Christina, are both total abstainers. So, too, is Victor Emmanuel III. of Italy, as well as Queen Wilhelmina of Holland, and her mother, Queen Emma; the two queens of Sweden and King Gustavus Adolphus, and Ferdinand of Bulgaria. Yet all these sovereigns possess cellars of historic fame and world-wide celebrity, the contents of which are offered to their guests on the occasion of every official and private entertainment.

No monarch has derived a greater amount of advantage from total abstinence than Czar Ferdinand of Bulgaria. In his case, it is not a matter of principle, or of health, but of policy, pure and simple, and in forswearing beer, wine, liquors, and stimulants of every kind he acted on the advice of his wonderfully clever mother and most sagacious political adviser, the late Princess Clementine of Saxe-Coburg, of whom it used to be said by Bismarck that she was far and away the shrewdest diplomat in Europe.

Thanks to his abstinence, his nerves are always under the most perfect control, and the fact that he never loses patience or temper, never displays signs of irritation under the most trying circumstances gives him a tremendous advantage in his dealings with the passionate, hot-headed, intemperate races of the south-east of Europe, among whom his lot is cast.

With King Alfonso, total abstinence is not a matter of policy, or even of principle, but merely one of taste. He finds all wines and spirits unpalatable. He, however, drinks enormous quantities of water, and at official banquets in other lands than his own he has suffered much from his difficulty in getting plain water to drink.

The Emperors of Austria, Russia, and Germany are none of them total abstainers, but have always been extremely abstemious in the matter of stimulants, and have, both by example and by precept, done much to encourage temperance among their people.

In Sweden the present king and his consort undoubtedly were influenced in becoming teetotalers by the Dowager Queen Sophia, who for more than 40 years has been the most powerful supporter and advocate of the temperance movement in Scandinavia.

King Edward's Work

No one contributed more to the cause of intemperance than King Edward. He was not a total abstainer, but he was very sparing in the matter of stimulants, and entertained an intense horror of drunketness. It is mainly attributable to the social influence which he exercised upon English life, from the time of his marriage, in March, 1863, until his death in 1910, that inebriety has gone out of fashion, and that hard drinking is no longer countenanced. The old saying of "drunk as a lord," has no longer any meaning, thanks to King Edward.

Conditions were very different formerly. Temperance was not only discountenanced by the throne and by society during the whole of the eighteenth century and the first half of that which followed, but was actually penalized by the state. Thus Frederick the Great, one of the most enlightened and sensible sovereigns of his time, issued in 1779 a proclamation deploring "the increased consumption of coffee by my subjects, and the amount of money that goes out of the country in consequence thereof. Everybody is using coffee. This must no longer be. My subjects must and shall drink beer." The king actually forbade the importation of the coffee berry and anyone found selling coffee was imprisoned.

Early Temperance Societies

Yet it was in Germany that temperance organizations may be said to have had their birth. The first of these was the Order of St. Christopher, formed by Sigismund von Dietrichstein on January 18, 1517, the members of which were pledged to abstain from drinking toasts. This was followed by the so-called Order of Temperance, founded by the sovereign landgrave of Hesse in 1600. The members of this Order of Temperance solemnly vowed on the holy scriptures not to drink more than seven glasses of liquor at a time, and that not oftener than twice a day. The order in question, while it may have been one of temperance, was certainly not one of total abstinence.

WHAT'S IN A NAME

When the late M. Henri Poincaré, the mathematician and a cousin of the President of France, was admitted into the French Academy, an amusing controversy arose over the derivation of the name.

M. Frédéric Masson, the historical writer, suggested that the name ought to be "Pontcarré," not Poincaré, since the mere notion of a "square point" (point carré) was intolerable to the geometrical intellect.

The philologists took the matter seriously, and after much research found duly recorded in the year 1403 the name of a student of the university called "Petrus Pugniquadrati" (Peter of the clenched fist), and in the registers of 1418 the name of "Jehan Poinquarré"—who lived to be secretary to the notorious Queen Isabeau, the wife of Charles VI., and the mother-in-law of Henry V. of England.

Thus was the origin of the President's name elucidated.

EUROPE'S TINIEST STATE

Moresnet Only as Big as a Good Sized Farm

When the Ambassadors of Europe agreed that the peninsula of Athos, in Macedonia, should be regarded as an independent State, many people thought that they had at last discovered the smallest state in the whole world.

Athos, however, has an area of 180 square miles, roughly. It is a huge country compared with Moresnet, a tiny neutral state on the borders of Belgium and Prussia. Its area is reckoned in acres, not square miles! Its size, in fact, is 1,400 acres—just a good sized farm!

Moresnet was made a separate state in 1815, after Napoleon had been finally crushed at Waterloo. The reason that the little country has remained independent is rather ecurious.

As has been said, the tiny state is on the borders of Germany and Belgium. It possesses what was once the most important and valuable zinc mine in the whole world. Belgium wanted that zinc, and so did Germany. As they couldn't agree on the amount of compensation to the other, Moresnet remained independent.

The tiniest country in the world lies four miles away from Aix-la-Chapelle, and possesses one village. There's not room for two! The total number of inhabitants is under 3,000. Recently Germany began negotiations with Belgium to acquire her tiny neighbor, though the Moresnetians say they prefer to be under Belgian rule, if they can't be independent.

Amused French Officers

Some seventy-five French naval officers who visited London were invited to unravel the mysteries of the "Entente Cordiale" puzzle, which was presented to each visitor by Major Tudor Craig. This puzzle is of the jig-saw kind, and when put together represents either the Tricolor of France or the Union Jack.

It is the invention of one of the men employed by the Incorporated Soldiers and Sailors' Help Society, which turns out a multitude of things, made by men who have been injured in action. At the Society's Toy Stall several of the French captains purchased sets of English soldiers for their children.

A lock which, when the key is turned, shuts off the gasoline and disconnects the battery and magneto is a new invention to foil automobile thieves.

STRANGE CRAZE FOR TATTOOING

Religious Subjects Chosen by Many—King George and Greek Prince Sport Dragons

The fashion of decorating the skin with religious subjects seems to be steadily growing. According to a London tattoo artist, he is often called upon to tattoo hymns, texts, and copies of famous religious pictures on the bodies of religious enthusiasts, as well as original symbolical designs.

A well-known bishop has upon his upper arm a representation of the Sun of Righteousness and a cross crushing the head of a hideous dragon, typifying sin, while a young clergyman has a picture of a skull with a serpent thrusting its head through one of the eye-sockets and a radiant butterfly flitting away, symbolical of death and eternity.

The head of Christ crowned with a halo is carried about the wilds of Africa by a stalwart missionary on his chest, and a lady who devotes her time to church work bears an anchor, a cross, and a heart—faith, hope and charity.

One of the most remarkable examples of tattooing of religious subjects is that provided by the case of an engineer storekeeper on one of the White Star liners. He has, perhaps, the most wonderful tattooed body in the world. From his neck to his waist-line he is covered with pictures and inscriptions. Displayed on his body is a wonderful piece of the tattoo artist's work. It is nothing less than a faithful reproduction of Leonardo da Vinci's picture "The Last Supper."

The greater part of his body is taken up with tattooing of a religious nature. On his back are the Lord's Prayer and the hymn, "Nearer My God to Thee."

There is also a lady who has had Leonardo da Vinci's great picture of "The Last Supper" tattooed on her back, the picture being produced with marvelous fidelity; which calls to mind that some time ago a woman entered a London hospital and the nurses discovered that the upper part of the right arm was entirely occupied with a pictorial representation of "The Rock of Ages," while on the lower part of the arm was the scene of the Crucifixion.

Perhaps the most extraordinary tattooing idea ever carried out was that of a coachman, who, at the time of the Dreyfus trial, had his body and legs covered with no fewer than one hundred and twenty illustrations of the case, including portraits of the leading personages. Altogether the work occupied nearly two years, three months being devoted to a picture of the terrible ceremony of degradation, when Dreyfus was stripped of his decorations and uniform.

It is interesting to note, by the way, that quite a number of members of European Royal Families bear tattooed designs. The Grand Duke Alexis of Russia, for instance, is most elaborately tattooed; likewise his cousin, the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha. The Queen of Greece and the King of Sweden are also tattooed. On his arm Prince George of Greece has a wonderful representation of a flying dragon in many colors. One of King George's arms bears a similar design, and Prince Francis of Teck has a curious picture of a frog leaping for a small beetle tattooed on his right forearm.

WOMAN FROM THE PAST

Lived in the Stone Age; Bones Found in Peterborough Clay Pit

Workman excavating for clay in the yards of a brick company at Peterborough found the skull and other remains of a woman which palæontologists believe may equal in age the skull of the primitive woman which was discovered in a pit at Piltdown Common, Sussex, and which evoked so much interest in the scientific world.

The skull is small, the occipital angle (back part of head) is acute, and the thigh bones are large. The top of the skull is fractured. The bones were found in the superficial gravel, and are in a good state of preservation. They were huddled together in the posture peculiar to burials of the Stone Age.

Near the place of the discovery is the site of the prehistoric river which once flowed over England from the Greenland glaciers, and the remains may have been brought down by the ice. There is no trace of the smaller bones, though most of the teeth are still in the skull.

Signs of Another "Revival"

Incidents similar to those which ushered in the Welsh Revival of 1906 are again being witnessed in Wales. There was a series of revival scenes in the quarry village of Llanddulas, and an exhibition of fervor at Colwyn Bay.

It doesn't take a bride long to discover that no woman can live in absolute content and a vine-clad cottage with a tightwad husband.

France Will Exhibit.

PARIS, Aug. 23.—The present understanding of the French Government's attitude toward the Sacramento exhibition is that, altho the government has already agreed in principle to participate on a large scale, participation depends on the extension of copyright, suppression of false origin marks and the granting of special customs privileges.

If Senator Perkins' bill for the extension of copyright to foreign designs, making manufactured articles valid for five years passes, the French contribution to the exhibition will probably be large, but the government insists on protection for its exhibits from foreign free imitations.

Meanwhile Turkey Hangs On.

LONDON, Aug. 25.—(Can. Press.)—Vienna correspondent of The Daily Mail declares that the powers have been unable to agree on any plan to coerce Turkey. France opposes any financial pressure, while Germany objects to moral pressure. Neither Austria nor Russia appears inclined to assist Bulgaria, and there is little doubt, according to this correspondent, that Turkey will retain Adrianople.

TWO DROWN IN RIVER

Young Men Disappear From Camp on Etobicoke.

Friends of F. H. Taylor and L. L. Findlay of Toronto Are at a Loss to Explain the Disappearance of the Men—No Traces of Bodies Have Been Found During Dragging Operations.

TORONTO, Aug. 25.—Two Toronto men, F. H. Taylor and L. L. Findlay, are missing from their camp on the Etobicoke River, near this city, and while it is almost certain that they have been drownd, their friends are mystified by the fact that no trace has been found of their bodies.

S. W. Ross visited the cottage at 4.30 Thursday afternoon. He decided to go in swimming. On entering one of the rooms he found Findlay's clothes on the hangers and surmised that he was in swimming. Not being able to find his own suit, he appropriated one belonging to Ernest Bruce.

Shortly after Bruce arrived at camp, having just finished playing with the 48th Highlanders at Long Branch He called to Ross to come out of the water and get ready for the city. There were also friends at the cottage. Both men noticed that Taylor's clothes were in one room and Findlay's in the other. But they were not alarmed, thinking that the two friends had just gone out for a short while.

There was no one at the cottage on Friday, but Bruce at the last moment decided to go out. He arrived there at 11 o'clock Friday night. He noticed two papers lying in the room, and upon picking them up saw that they were dated Tuesday morning. He also discovered that both watches had stopped running.

The young man became alarmed. Early Saturday morning Bruce dived into the stream in search of the bodies, but failed to locate them. He then notified Mr. Wells of the Imperial Oil Co., by whom Findlay was employed as a traveling inspector, that the young men were missing.

Taylor was only supposed to be away Monday and Tuesday, and the Fashion Shop, 257 Yonge street, for whom he worked, had been enquiring for him. Mr. Wells also tried to get news of both men, and at last reported the case to County Constable George Simpson. The constable dragged the stream on Saturday and Malt Aykroyd took up the work yesterday morning.

Both young men were fair swimmers. It is supposed that they came in out of the boat and decided to have a wash before dressing. They tied the boat up and one of them jumped off the board. He was seized with a cramp and called to his companion. The chum heroically responded, but was grasped around the neck by the drowning man and pulled beneath the surface.

When the bodies are found, if ever they are, it is thought that the men will be found locked in each other's arms.

Taylor and Findlay were very popular about the city. Their sad disappearance has resulted in a veil of gloom being cast over pretty Idlenook and the other young men are breaking camp to get away from the scene of the tragedy.

Taylor's parents live at Port Colborne, while Findlay is the son of Mrs. Martha Findlay, whose husband died 14 years ago.

From the evidence found by the police there is little doubt but that the boys were drowned in front of their cottage. The position of the boat with the oars in it lends credence to this theory.

AUSTRALIA TO ATTEND.

Commonwealth Will Be Represented at Defence Conclave.

SYDNEY, Australia, Aug. 24.—(C. A. P.)—It is officially stated that Australia will be represented at the imperial defence conference, which is to be held in Canada at the end of the year. The delegation will be chosen later and will include either Premier Crook or Minister of Defence Millen, probably the latter. The date and place of the conference are now subjects of negotiations.

Mr. Millen, referring to the suggestion that the dependencies should supply the nucleus of an eastern force for the defence of the empire, suggests that the matter should be referred to the forthcoming conference, adding that "anything that will tend to establish in the Pacific that naval power which he thought was secured by the 1909 agreement, must be agreeable to Australians."

Found Injured by Train.

KINGSTON, Aug. 24.—(Special).—John Hunter, a sailor employed on the steamer "Simla", was struck by a train early this morning and received serious, possibly fatal injuries. About 1.30 o'clock this morning, John Davis, the watchman at Anglin's lumber yard while making the rounds, discovered the man lying beside the tracks in unconscious condition.

It is not known exactly how the accident happened, whether Hunter was walking along the tracks or attempting to cross in front of the engine.

Another Deputy Executed.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 23.—(Can. Press.)—Serapio Rendon, a member of the chamber of deputies, was executed last night. He was a strong adherent of Madero and was accused of having plotted to assassinate President Huerta.

Rendon was arrested upon leaving a friend's house, where he had dined, and was taken to a point near Atzcapotzalco, where he faced a firing squad. It was at this place, practically a suburb of the capital, that Deputy Bordes Mangel was shot to death two days previously by federal soldiers.

Baby Drowned in Pond.

WOODSTOCK, Aug. 24.—(Can. Press.)—Harold Carter, aged 3 years, was drowned Friday night in the pond of a brickyard near his parents' place, on the second concession of East Oxford.

NORTHCLIFFE COMING.

British Publisher on Way to Canada in Interest of Golf.

LONDON, August 23.—Lord Northcliffe, owner of The London Daily Mail, and a majority stockholder of The London Times, to say nothing of fifty other papers and periodicals, sailed for Montreal yesterday on the Empress of Britain.

He will then go to Newfoundland to look over some property there, but one of the objects of his trip is to be present at the golf championship in which English professional cracks are taking part.

Lord Northcliffe is putting up the money for Ray Vardon's expenses in America, and has guaranteed to make good any amount that may be needed. It was he who persuaded the English professionals to take part in the American competition, for he is tremendously interested in the "ancient game," and has set his heart on England winning the trophy.

"I don't mind what it costs," he is reported to have said to Ray Vardon when the players left for America, "but bring back the championship."

So keen is Lord Northcliffe on the game that he has laid out on his estates, close to his magnificent home, Sutton Castle, Surrey, private links for himself and his friends.

He is interested in all forms of British sports and is one of the large financial supporters of the Olympic games.

It is said he offered to put his name down for the whole of the $500,000, which now is being subscribed for training the English competitors, on conditions that he should be allowed to choose the English team, and practically to run the show, apparently for the benefit of his newspapers. The Olympic games committee thought it better that contributions should be national.

WHAT WILL THEY DO?

South Africans Seem in a Quandry Regarding Defence.

CAPETOWN, Aug. 24.—(C.A.P.)—The banquet to the officers of H.M.S. Australia and Sydney was a notable one, says The Times correspondent. The speeches may have left the visitors somewhat puzzled on account of the apparent discrepancy between word and deed, but the speakers made no attempt to conceal their consciousness of unfulfilled obligations. Sir Frederick De Wall in addressing the crews, emphasized the value of a local navy in deepening national sentiment, and also insisted on the duties attached to common imperial citizenship. "It is necessary," he said, "that not only the people of the mother country, but all the sons of the empire should realize and feel that there is a unity of empire and in that unity there is a necessity for them to all stand shoulder to shoulder" He repudiated the view of General Hertzog that there is anything pernicious in union governments consulting with the imperial authorities regarding the best form of South African naval co-operation.

Dry Weather Delays Crop.

KINGSTON, Aug. 24.—(Special). Thruout the county of Frontenac the dry weather of the last few weeks had a bad effect on the late corps, particularly potatoes and roots of all kinds. Earlier promises of record crops in these lines have been dispelled. Potato vines have been burned up by heat and the roots have suffered severely. The result will be that the crop will be much poorer than was expected.

The weather has been on the whole, favorable to corn, which is coming along well and will be well in advance of the output other years. There is a large acreage, and on account of the shortage of straw, it will be a great benefit to farmers.

Married at the Falls.

NIAGARA FALLS, Aug. 24.—(Special.)—Morris J. Thayer, a Toronto costumier, and Miss Dana Oberlander, a music teacher, were lovers in England, but Miss Oberlander would not hear of being married in Toronto, nor would she become Mrs. Thayer until her lover would promise to take her back to England on their honeymoon, so they started from Toronto this morning, spending thirty minutes here, during which time they were married by Alderman Riley. Then they left for New York to sail for England in the morning.

Tug Held for Damages.

SARNIA, Aug. 23.—(Special.)—For running down the gas buoy on the middle ground in the St. Clair River, between here and Port Huron, the steam tug Annie Moiles of Sarnia was seized yesterday at Detroit on the bill of damage, which amounts to $1500. The owners of the tug have signed a bond for $3000, and the tug was released late last night The boat tows the sand barge Ontario between here and Windsor.

WILL GUARD THAW

Armed Force is Possible to Prevent Accidents.

While Paying Little Attention to Rumors of Kidnapping and Jail Delivery, the Quebec Authorities Have Invited Sheriff to Report on Need of More Guards —Americans Are Nervous.

SHERBROOKE, Que., Aug. 23.—While deprecating all the talk about "jail releases," "kidnapping" etc., which has been heard here and pointed out in the American press, it is known that the authorities here are seriously contemplating providing Thaw with an armed guard when he is brought down from the prison to the courthouse next Wednesday.

Sir Lomer Gouin, premier of the province of Quebec has invited Sheriff Aylmer to give an opinion as to whether adequate protection against a raid on Thaw was being provided by the ordinary staff at the prison. Sheriff Aylmer wired the premier at Quebec that he thinks there is little danger of a "jail delivery," tho he suggests that an armed guard could be used to escort him to the courtroom.

The sheriff seems to think that if any attempt is made to free Thaw it will be made while he is on the street, but in his communication to Sir Lomer Gouin, he adds that the use of such force might arouse thoughts that would otherwise not occur were the ordinary methods of taking the prisoner to the court house in care of a warden.

The sheriff is emphatically of the opinion that no more men are needed at the jail, in face of the reported rumors that desperate measures may be taken to liberate Thaw when it is found that he must be deported as, it is confidently expected, will ultimately be the case.

The American authorities are not satisfied with the sheriff's attitude and are likely to press for the employment of more men around the jail and an adequate escort. They argue that a dozen men heavily armed could easily take Thaw way from a warden in the street and in a fast automobile, get clear away in the sparsely populated country around Sherbrooke.

They also point out that Thaw, with his knowledge of French, could hide among the French-Canadians and completely defy recapture.

Mitchell Thompson, the chauffeur, who drove Thaw from Matteawan, and who is now in jail here awaiting a hearing on the charge of bringing a lunatic into Canada, and who has issued a thinly veiled threat to the Thaw family that unless he is provided with adequate momentary support, he will "squeal," and give out details of the plot to free Thaw, says that his father was a policeman employed on the Toronto police force twenty-eight years ago. The immigration authorities are now trying to secure confirmation of Thompson's story that he is a British subject.

Much wire pulling is now being done by all lawyers all over the province who are anxious to get in on the case, either for the Thaw interests or the Dutchess county officials, and offers of money have been made to influential parties to use their best offices to get them retained.

Repeated conferences have been held by the Thaw lawyers with a view to offsetting deportation to Vermont. The immigration act has been searched for pegs upon which appeals could be hung. So far it has been found that Thaw stands a poor chance of remaining in Canada once the immigration authorities get their hands on him.

It is believed now that the only appeal that can be taken is from the deportation decision of the immigration officials to the minister of the interior, but the defence is not without hope that something to prolong Thaw's stay in Canada may turn up. That the situation will not change before the arguments on the habeas corpus writ are heard next Wednesday is apparently the belief of the immigration officials because Inspector Blake Robertson and Willans, of Ottawa, have returned home, leaving Inspector Reynolds here to keep tab on the case.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Not having left her home in twenty-five years, fearing some one would steal $700 which it had taken her half a century to save by making and selling elderberry wine in small quantities, Mrs. Louise Menzel, 78 years of age, died Thursday night at her home in Northfield, N.J. She took with her the secret of the hiding place of her treasure.

As a result her home was ransacked from top to bottom. Bed ticks were ripped open, plaster on walls was torn off and old clothes and shoes and table and kitchen utensils were searched.

In the ash box of the sitting room stove was found a gold watch chain. In the bottom of a salt crock were several rings. No part of the money was found.

Bankers to Discuss Bill.

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—(Can. Press)—Bankers from all parts of the country at the close of a two-days' conference agreed on a number of important amendments to the Owen-Glass currency bill now pending in congress, and appointed a committee to go to Washington and endeavor to have the changes incorporated in the measure. Members of the conference expressed the belief that the administration forces in Washington will be convinced by the arguments they will present and modify the bill so that it will be reasonably satisfactory to the banking and business interests of the country.

Canada Is Only Beginning.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—(C.A.P.)—The Hon. W. T. White before sailing on Saturday said that he had found the financial situation greatly improved since the conclusion of peace in the Balkans and he was quite satisfied that the financial world in London understood perfectly that Canada in all the great fields of production was only on the threshold of her development. He had been most courteously received both by government officials and city financial magnates.

Winnipeg's Water Supply.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 23.—(Can. Press.)—Consulting engineers F. P. Stearns, Rudolph Hering and James A. Fuertes of New York, have submitted their report upon the proposal to use Shoal Lake as the source of water supply for the greater Winnipeg district. The report was considered by the mayor and controllers immediately upon it receipt yesterday. They are favorable to the project and recommend that the work be undertaken with as little delay as possible.

TO CURL FEATHERS

The fashionable ostrich feather, although it is not so tightly curled as the old-fashioned plume, looks even more bedraggled and forlorn when it is out of curl than the old one did. Yet fogs and mists or rains are as frequent as ever, and ostrich feathers are worn at all times of the day and night, regardless of the weather.

There is only one thing to do if you wear ostrich feathers, and that is to learn how to curl them. When the moist hat with feather trimming is removed, put it, if possible, near a fire. Heat often restores a good deal of the lost curl. When this is not possible, let the feather dry thoroughly and then recurl it with the edge of a teaspoon. This is not so sharp as the much-used knife, and is less likely to injure the fibre.

Work with one or two of the fronds of the feather at a time. Catch them between the thumb and the spoon near the stem of the feather and slowly and firmly draw the thumb and the blade along the fronds to the edge. If necessary, go over some of the feathers twice.

It is surprising how rapidly this curling can be done; and if it is carefully done after a little practice the feather will look quite as well as if it had been curled by a professional.

Dainty Gingham Dress

There's nothing much more serviceable for a little girl's dress than gingham. It always looks so fresh and new when crisp and clean.

The striped gingham dress worn by the little miss in the illustration is made in the Norfolk sailor style with black patent leather belt. The fashion is a particularly suitable one for children because it gives them plenty of room in which to exercise and grow.

Plain goods are used for the collar and cuffs, and a chemisette with standing collar completes the garment. The bands down the front of the coat are cut on the bias.

Daringly Parisian

This is a bit daring. Well—perhaps, but absolutely proper.

The suit you see is a straight line affair which makes the figure look adorably sylph-like without being in any way unpleasantly tight. The jacket is the handy hip length which can be slipped on in a hurry over a silk waist or a shirt waist. It is constructed very much on the lines of a Norfolk, excepting there isn't any belt; it is more dressy and is a little closer fitting.

The skirt is cut tapering from the hips to the hem. The slash is absolutely necessary if milady wishes to walk. The divided hem, for that's all it is, has a clever trimming of piped satin in white, and is finished off with two sprightly self-covered buttons in the same color.

Softening Water

The easiest way to soften hard water is to boil it. During this process the free carbonic-acid gas in the water is driven off, and the carbonate of lime is then insoluble and shows as a white deposit. It is possible to add a little baking soda or borax to hard water, which will make the water feel soft, but, as they are alkalies, they dry and thin the skin, taking away its fat.

A Cool Rolling pin

A long bottle filled with ice water or very cool water from the crock make a good rolling pin for pie crust.

Chronic underfeeding or improper feeding is shown in the child by its constant failure to come up to the average weight or height, or lung capacity. Do not forget the importance of right food in the upbringing of the child whom you would have healthful.

When preparing vegetables or doing anything that means crumbs on the kitchen table, it often saves trouble to do the work on a newspaper, folding up the paper when one is through.

The tops of bureaus will keep in good condition longer if a piece of blotting paper is placed under a cover.

Blind Men Swim Straight

The man who is unfortunate enough to lose his sight, or to be born blind, is, says a medical authority, severely handicapped on dry ground but he can, if he is a swimmer, find his way easily enough in the water. Blind people generally have a keen sense of hearing, and they can steer themselves in the water by sound as well as an ordinary man by sight. If they are swimming towards a certain point, a whistle from time to time will enable them to reach it with unerring accuracy. This fact has recently been proved by some interesting experiments. A race which took place between blind men and ordinary swimmers on a lake resulted in a victory for the former. Normal swimmers lose a good deal of time in raising their heads for the purpose of keeping an eye on the winning post. This also prevents them from concentrating all their attention on speed.

CHINESE CLAIM DAMAGES

The Chinese consul at Vancouver has gone to Nanimo to prepare a claim against the Dominion Government for damages sustained by his countrymen at Extension, one of the coal mining towns in the strike zone.

Specially large Chinese stores were looted and partly burned, and several thousand dollars worth of goods stolen, by the mob last Wenesday night. Many of the Chinese who fled terror-stricken to the woods have not yet returned. On the occasion of the anti-Oriental riots in Vancouver eight years ago, the Dominion Government was compelled to pay more than fifty thousand dollars' damages. A bill was later rendered to Vancouver city, but the Government was never reimbursed.

GRAND TRUNK NEWS ITEMS

The old-time Telegrapher's Historical Association of the United States are planning a visit to Mount Clemens, Mich., on the line of the Grand Trunk Railway System. Among the prominent members of the Assocation who will be at the convention are Andrew Carnegie and the 'Wizard of Electricity, Thomas Edison. It is planed to have Mr. Edison who learned telegraphy in the Grand Trunk Station at Mount Clemens years ago, send a message to President Wilson, from the same instrument he used at that time.

An official of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway is in receipt of a letter from Rev. Robert Johnson, D. D. Pastor of the American Presyterian Church, Montreal dated at Portland, Oregon, and in which he enthuses over a trip recently made over the Grand Trunk Railway through the Yellowhead pass to Tete Jauno. He says in part:—

"There are splendid possibilities there. The Valley of the Athabasca is so wide that the mountains do not crowd in upon you as upon some other routes, but you get such a splendid and coninuous view, and the panorama is so constantly changing that the effect is indescribely grand. The boat trip, too, up to Prince Rupert and Stewart, was particularly pleasant." 1td

SEPTEMBER AN IDEAL MONTH

In the Algonquin National Park of Ontario, the month of September is one of the most beautiful of the year. The "Highland Inn", situated on Cache Lake 2,000 miles above sea level offers all the comforts one may desire at reasonable rates. The region is a natural playground of over 2,500,000 acres, and those who love nature and the wild things that live in her confines can enjoy themselves to their heart's content. Algonquin Park Station, where the "Highland Inn" is situated is only 168 miles west of Ottawa and 200 miles north of Toronto. For any one whose nerves are troublesome, or through over-work need a rest, or whose health is run down, there is not a more delightful place in America. The log cabin which was operated this year on Smoke Lake, has become popular and has been patronized by a large number of people. The camp is called "Nominigan" the Indian word for Balsum and is situated in a delightful spot in the centre of one of the best fishing districts and surrounded by beautiful scenery.

ADMIRAL BADLY MANGLED

Died From Injuries Received When Gun Busts...

POLA, Austria, Aug. 23.—Admiral Count von Wallenurg, of the Austrian navy, died to-day as the result of injuries received yesterday by the bursting of the breech block of a 305-centimetre gun, which was being tested. Both the admiral's legs were so badly mangled that the amputation was necessary. Admiral von Wellenburg was president of the Naval Technical Commission.

ENGLISH SOCCER

It's a Rough Game and Requires Great Skill and Courage

Association or "soccer" football, as it is better known, is the national sport of England—not cricket.

Cricket is society's sport, but soccer takes the place of baseball with the English masses. The English season extends from September to April, and no day is cold enough or wet enough to keep the crowds away.

The players do wonderful things with their heads, their stomachs, their chests, their backs and their heels. Here is a fellow running down the field towards his opponent's goal, with a half dozen men trying to get the ball which he is juggling between his legs as he runs. Suddenly, with a backward kick, he sends the ball behind him to a team mate; or he may kick it backward over his head.

One fellow kicks the ball sky-high; by rights, when it strikes, it will rebound as high as a house. But it doesn't. Another player deftly catches it under his foot as it alights, and it stops without a bounce. It's a common trick to kick the ball in such a way that it rolls along the ground with a curve, like a huge billiard ball.

The things the players do with their heads are almost unbelievable. They are trained to use their bodies as a ball player uses his arm. One will jump into the air, giving his body a snap from the waist up as a pitcher [illegible] his arm, and, catching the oncoming ball on his forehead, drive it half a block in whatever direction he pleases.

Soccer is no "pink tea" game; an English player never leaves the field unless he is carried off and when a man is injured his place is not filled. They have doctors on the side lines, but usually they are from an adjacent hospital to which the injured are frequently taken.

The players do not wear shin guards, and often kick each other where it hurts the most—on the shin. Knee caps are often kicked out of place. An English football crowd does plenty of rooting too, notwithstanding the general impression that baseball monopolizes this feature.

Two cups take the place of pennants and are competed for by the 20 leading teams of England.

AN OLD INDUSTRY

Gold Beating an Import Work in Old Birmingham

Gold beating is one of the oldest trades in Birmingham. While to a large extent this trade has gone to Germany, the best gold-leaf is still made in England. The work is done entirely by hand. The leaf is hammered out in small home workshops from 24-carat gold, but is first sent to the rolling mills, whence it is returned in long thin ribbons 1¼ inches wide and one-thousandth part of an inch in thickness. Then it is ready for the beater. The ribbon is generally cut off into small 1¼ inch squares, weighing about six grains.

The thin square is placed in the centre of a vegetable parchment pad, consisting of 100 sheets on top and the same number beneath. This is beaten with a 14-pound hammer, and the gold, when considerably reduced in thickness, is placed between leaves of goldbeater's skin—skin prepared from a thin but tough membrane found in the large intestine of the ox. Eight hundred pieces of the hammered leaf are arranged over each other, between leaves of the skin—the whole being placed between parchment bands and beaten for a couple of hours with a 7-pound hammer. Then the 800 pieces are cut up into 3,200 pieces and again beaten. When the work is done the leaf is one fifty-thousandth part of an inch in thickness, and almost as light as air.

Lawyers and Legislators

There are nearly fifty K.C.'s in the British House of Commons. Some of these are K.C.'s twice over—both English and Irish—as in the case of Sir E. Carson and Mr. Campbell among Conservative-Unionists and Mr. Tim Healy among the Nationalists. Mr. Falconer is a writer to the Signet, and Mr. Jos. Martin a K.C. of the Canadian Bar. King's Counsel are also well represented on the Front Benches apart from present and former Attorneys and Solicitors-General, and include Mr. Asquith, Mr. Birrell, and Mr. Ure for the Government, and Mr. F. E. Smith for the Opposition.—Manchester Evening News.

CHAPTER XIV..

CHRISTMAS ON THE FARM.

How gloriously beautiful seemed the world to all in the Gaylord household that Christmas morning. Delilah was unusually cheerful; her bright sayings and merry laughing keeping the family in continuous good humor.

At the breakfast table, when Father Gaylord said grace, it was noticed that his voice trembled as he said a word or two extra in thankfulness for the harmonious family spirit.

During the meal he related a tale or two in the experiences of Samson's father during the early days of the Bentley settlement, and Mother Gaylord declared there was never a more loving-hearted neighbor or courageous woman than Sister Haskell.

Samson rehearsed his experiences in stealing a cub from its lair, to be followed to his home by the mother bear, who was shot by his father when almost at the heels of the son. And Delilah brought the conversation to a later date by praising the speedy Blackhawk roadsters, and saying, "You must have the sleigh ready right after dinner, Samson, for we are expected to show ourselves on the ice behind the colts." And he promised.

When the house and barn work were attended to, and all were free to take a breathing spell, the family repaired to the parlor, where the daughter of the house began dealing out the presents that had been provided for each, and hid away for a month or more.

Samson was first on the list, his gifts consisting of a pair of red yarn mittens and two pairs of woollen socks from Mother Gaylord; a pair of suspenders and a black necktie from Father Gaylord; two nice white handkerchiefs from Cynthia, and, last but by no means least, a handsome gold chain and charm, which Delilah personally attached to his vest with her own compliments.

Mother Gaylord's presents were a white woollen shawl from Delilah; a pair of woollen slippers from Cynthia; and two full suits of store underwear from her husband.

Delilah was made happy with the gift of a gold watch and chain from her parents, and a pair of kid gloves with Cynthia's best wishes; while Cynthia's presents consisted of a pair of shoes from Father Gaylord; two pairs of hose from Mother Gaylord, and a mohair dress pattern and trimmings from Delilah.

Two suits of store underwear from his wife; two white shirts, a dozen paper collars, and two pairs of paper cuffs from his daughter; a black necktie and suspenders from Cynthia, were Father Gaylord's portion.

At this juncture Samson excused himself and went to the barn, where certain packages had for a week been carefully stored in the haymow. He returned with full arms, and as Delilah opened the door to admit him, a shout of laughter went up from those within.

Cynthia's package was found to contain five yards of blue ribbon, a pair of kid gloves, and a knit waist, such as the girls wore in those days.

Delilah opened her mother's box, and it was good to see the delight in the motherly eyes as she felt a long silk fur-lined cloak close about her form.

"Oh, Samson, how good you be," and her eyes filled with tears.

Father Gaylord busied himself unboxing a handsome black suit of clothes for Sundays and special doings. "By jimwax, Samson, I'll pass for a city chap with these togs on," he said. But his good wife declared they were none too nice to go with her new cloak, and he should be satisfied with what the Lord sent him.

Then Samson ordered Delilah to turn her back while the last three boxes were being opened, and presently she was within a two hundred dollar sealskin coat that reached nearly to the bottom of her dress, with a cap and muff to match. It was a beautiful outfit, and set off her fine form to perfection.

For a moment or two she knew not what to say or do. Then, turning quickly, she flungs her arms about Samson's neck and administered a Christmas kiss upon his lips.

"You are a darling, Samson," she exclaimed, and went to admire herself in the mirror.

When Samson and Delilah drove down toward the lake that Christmas afternoon, the whole village appeared to be moving in the same direction. There were a hundred or more teams flying about on the clear ice, and many of them were by no means slow of speed.

Among them was Sorril Dan, from Ogden, with a track record of 2.20, and driven by his owner, Ned Tompkins, beside whom was Jemima Gaylord, Delilah's cousin. Albert Kendall handled the reins over his high headed chestnut, while Lizzie Seymour held his attention with her everlasting chatter. Then, who should make a spurt past the Blackhawks but Henry Rollins and Theresa Harding, the young lady looking very pretty in her new Christmas furs.

"Well, I snum," said Samson to his companion, "if there ain't our two proud mothers a-showin' off their new cloaks. Jest look at 'em, sittin' there beside their husbands as happy as two young brides."

Delilah looked to where the two teams were standing side by side, and the occupants chatting in their usual neighborly manner. "They do look comfortable; and their cloaks are just alike. You were very thoughtful to buy our mothers such nice presents, Samson."

"They are the only mothers we'll ever have, Delilah, and we must treat 'em right. They've done more for us than we can ever pay back."

Delilah looked him in the face, the tears filling her eyes. "Samson, why did I hate you so long? You are too good for a girl like me."

"I reckon it takes two to settle that question, Delilah," was the quaint answer, as he headed the blacks toward the centre of the lake. "I hain't never come across any man yet that is too good for Dave Gaylord's daughter; and I'm tolerable certain he hain't born, and never will be."

"You say that because you like me, Samson," she said, with a satisfied smile.

"I say it because it's a fact. And there hain't no one to dispute it—not in my——"

At that moment Ned Tompkins' racer appeared beside the Blackhawks, and they were off like the wind.

A shout of "Haskell's colts and Sorril Dan! Look out!" and the teams within range were drawn to a standstill to watch the race. It was indeed a pretty burst of speed, and for about half a mile the sorrel held his own; but finally Haskell's pair took the lead, and as they swung about to return, Tompkins, finding his horse unequal to the pace set by the blacks, drew rein, and acknowledged defeat.

"Want to take fifteen hundred for them blacks, Samson?" questioned Tompkins, jogging up to where the span was moving at leisure.

"No, sir," replied Delilah, promptly. "One of them is mine, and no money can buy him."

"That settles it," laughed Ned. "I hear Samson has got where he can't do anything without your consent."

"When did it take place?" queried Jemima.

"I'm coming over to see you after New Year, said Delilah, to cover a direct answer.

"And tell me all about it, and how it happened?" laughed her cousin, as Ned drove away in search of some one he could beat.

Then Bill Feltus' pacer poked his white nose over Samson's shoulder.

"Ready for a race, Haskell?" came from the rear.

"Any time you say, Bill."

"Then swing into gear, and we'll make for the island. It's a straight course, and just a mile."

As there was never a lack of interest whenever these rivals met, every team on the ice drew toward the course to eb taken by the racers, among whom were Fathers Gaylord and Haskell, who were none too old to enjoy the sport that was about to be witnessed.

It was an even race for about half the distance, when the pacer, by an unexpected spurt, gained a neck. Feeling a touch of the reins, the blacks sprang forward like two deers, and regaining what they had lost.

"That hain't fair!" shouted Feltus. "Keep your hosses on their feet."

"I'll send your old sidestepper in the air before I'm through with you," came the answer.

But Feltus was equal to the emergency, and with a slight jerk of one rein, as they were nearing the end of the course, the old timer lunged forward, winning by half a length.

"You won't do that on the way back," declared Samson, slightly nettled at his defeat.

"Mebbe I won't," replied Feltus with a grin. "I hain't fergot the trick you played on me the last time we raced, and I kalkilate to even things up this trip. This feller hain't warmed up yet."

When the horses had become sufficiently rested, they started for the home end, the blacks apparently enjoying the opportunity to exhibit their speed, while the gaunt old pacer, his rolling motion increasing with every step, was without doubt an opponent to be reckoned with.

Not a sound was heard but the cutting of the sharp shoe-caulks on the ice, and the scraping of the steel sleigh runners.

Samson's pair kept an even stride, and for the first half mile was on even terms with the pacer.

Then Feltus took a fresh grip on the reins, with the purpose of settling the race in his own favor; but Samson was with him, and for the next quarter neither could gain an inch.

"When we reach the last thirty rods you must holler," admonished Delilah, in a low voice.

"I was jest thinkin' of that plan but but didn't know how you might feel about it. You know how I holler when I get excited."

"But we must win, Samson. I can't have these handsome colts beat by Bill's lanky thing."

Samson knew by experience what Delilah's request meant, and prepared for a garrison finish.

As they reached the last quarter Feltus touched the pacer with the whip, and in a twinkling he was a length ahead.

Samson had no money at stake. Delilah was as good as promised to him. But when she told him that he must win the race, there was but one thing to do.

Feltus was now more than a length ahead, and gaining at every stride. The Blackhawks were seemingly at their speed limit, with sure defeat ahead.

Samson, with firmly set jaw, reached forward and gripped the reins afresh. Then he shouted, once, twice, three times, following it up with a steady roar that reached the distant hills and echoed back.

Feltus knew what it meant, and followed suit with the free use of his whip. So boisterous did the contestants become, that several of the horses along the line bolted, and many others were controlled with difficulty. It was an interesting moment for spectators, as well as those in the race, even Messrs. Gaylord and Haskell being seen to rise to their feet and assist in the shouting; and as Samson finally forced his pair to the fore, his voice was noticeably moderate compared with that of his parent, who, one would imagine, had a fortune at stake.

While game to the last, Feltus took his defeat deeply to heart, and when Samson was blanketing his steaming horses preparatory to leaving for home, William, in conversation with Ned Tompkins, was condemning his opponent's methods of racing, and emphasizing his opinions in a manner that did not accord with the Scriptures.

But Delilah was well satisfied with the results, which was all that Samson desired.

FROM PIT TO PREMIER

Australia's Premier Worked in Coal Mine as a Boy

The Hon. Joseph Cook, who became Premier of the Commonwealth of Australia upon the defeat of the Labor Government, fought his way upward from a very humble station in life. He was born in 1860 at Silverdale, Staffordshire. As a boy he worked in a coal mine for $1.50 weekly, and on emigrating to Australia in 1885 he worked in the Lithgowfields, near Newcastle, New South Wales.

He studied shorthand, and rapidly acquired proficiency, obtaining a certificate for a speed of 160 words a minute. He had an inclination to enter the ministry of the Methodist Church and even passed some of the examinations, but his crisp and fluent style attracted the attention of the Coalminers' Association; who chose him as their secretary. In 1891 he entered the New South Wales Parliament.

Soon his debating power and administrative ability brought him into prominence in the Free Trade party, then led by Mr. (now Sir George) Reid, and from 1894 to 1899 he was a member of the Reid Ministry, as Postmaster-General and Minister of Mines and Agriculture.

After the federation in 1901 Mr. Cook was returned to the first Federal Parliament. He was Sir George Reid's, and afterwards Mr. Deakin's, lieutenant in the House of Representatives, and became Leader of the Opposition on the latter's retirement.

Montreal's Narrow Streets

"Montreal is wrongly built," said Dr. Louis Laberge, Chief Medical Officer of Health of that city. "The streets are too narrow, and do not let enough sunlight reach the ground for the prevalence of good health. The sun is a good decomposing force. If it is allowed to shine on the ground the heat penetrates several feet and in the night it evaporates and breaks up all the putrescent vegetable matter. With our narrow streets this cannot be done. It is certainly a most serious problem for us to face. It cannot be remedied without the spending of much money."

Automobile Cruiser

The Italian army has adopted a "cruiser of the desert," an armored automobile carrying seven men and two guns, one on top in a revolving turret.

Refining Canadian Gold

The amount of Canadian gold being submitted to the refining process at the Ottawa branch of the Royal Mint is increasing year by year. The value of gold refined last year was $1,658,823.

CONSTABLE THROWS HORSE AND STOPS A RUNAWAY

Remarkable Feat of P. C. Cummings Averts Probable Injury to People On Street—Motorists Dodge Team with Difficulty.

TORONTO, Aug. 26.—Special—Remarkable courage and strength were exhibited by P. C. Cummings (411) last evening, when, at the corner of Roncesvalles avenue and Queen street he stopped a runaway team which came tearing down the avenue at a terrific rate of speed, hauling a ponderous furniture wagon.

It was at a time when traffic was very dense on the busy corner, and the daring act of the constable must certainly have averted a tragedy.

The team started from in front of No. 78 Roncesvalles avenue, where a load of furniture was being taken off. There is quite a grade at that point, and the heavy wagon suddenly moved forward, so that the whiffletree struck the heels of one of the horses.

On account of the grade the frenzied team gained speed with every bound, and they were heading into a crowd of people, many of whom were not aware of the danger, when P. C. Cummins sprang for one of the bridle bits. He was dragged for a considerable distance and pounded by the maddened animals' feet, but he clung like grim death and threw the horse down against the opposite curb.

Rounding up Opium Smokers

Toronto Police Looked From Roof Into Shanghia Club--Another Raid on Albert Street.

TORONTO, Aug. 25.—Climbing to the roof of a shed in the rear of the Shanghai Club, 209½ York street, Plainclothesmen McConnell and Dawn saw two men lying on couches in one of the club rooms apparently smoking opium, and immediately made arrangements for their arrest, one officer remaining on the roof while the other entered the building.

The names of the men are Charlie Mark, of 78 Elizabeth street; Moy Key, of Oakville. The Chinamen, owing to the activities of the police, are making use of every wile to keep out of the hands of the law, and the officers are experiencing great difficulty in making arrests and securing conviction against them.

The Heids Refuse To Talk With Aull

COBOURG, Aug. 25.—On the advice of his counsel, Mr. T. F. Hall, young Aull has got on long distance phone for the purpose of speaking to his wife in Toronto.

"I asked to speak to Mrs. Aull. "This is Mrs. Aull speaking," said the voice, thoug I knew quite will it wasn't, and then I said it was Robert speaking. Then the receiver plunked and that was all. "Do you think I am going to stand for that," he queried.

" I was in the cook shop most of the time," said Aull, recounting his jail experiences, "and that was lucky for me that I was. I couldn't face the gruel served up in the morning and again in the evening, and I was fortunate in getting bread and milk as a substitute. The mid-day meal was not so bad and during my whole month's confinement that was the only part of the fare I partook of—pork and beans on Wednesday and fish on Friday.

"But say," he proceeded in argumentive mood, "do you think it is fair, even though a man is in jail, that he should be treated so that he loses 18 pounds?"

A number of prisoners in Cobourg jail will admit that Bob Aull, Jr., is a handy man with his fists. Boxing gloves are not provided in that institution, but with towels padded round their hands, they were free to practice the noble art of recreation. The young fellow had it on every one of his opponents.

He also brings back with him from the jail, a souvenir in the shape of a little white kitten.

ARE WOMEN SMARTER THAN MEN?

It is admitted that a woman knows how to buy more for a dollar than a man does.

Let the average married man do the household shopping for a week and see how the cost of living will jump.

Women are more constant readers of advertising than men. Women read advertisements because they appeal to their innate sense of values. They take pride in getting the most for their money.

They like to shop—and before actually visiting the stores they read the newspapers to see what the stores have to offer.

Yet mere man "throws out his chest" and prates about his superiority.

Read the advertising in today's Intelligencer and see what an index it is to your immediate needs.

Manila Governor Resigns in a Huff

MANILA, Aug. 25.—W. Cameron Forbes, Governor-General of the Philippines since November, 1909, to-day sent his resignation to Washington. It is effective September 1st, just a week from to-day, when Mr. Forbes will leave directly for the United States.

It was only yesterday, as Mr.. Forbes says, that he was apprised of the appointment of Francis Burton Harrison of New York as the new Philippine Governor. His friends feel strongly that he deserved more courteous treatment after so long a service.

The retiring Governor General, himself, publishes in powerful terms a reply to attacks by Representative Jones of Virginia who in pressing for the passage of the bill giving "independence" to the Philipines, urged the removal of Governor-General Forbes.

Customs Figures Show Big Growth

OTTAWA, Aug. 25.—The Customs Department statement for July and the first four months of the current fiscal year indicates a most striking growth in Canadian trade. The total trade for July was $100,357,000, as against $91,423,000 in July last year.

For the four months, trade totalled $358,488,000, compared with $328,635,000 in the same period of 1912.

The duty collected in the four months was $38,531,000 as against $35,990,000 in the corresponding period last year.

The imports for July are given as $58,928,000, and exports Canadian produce $33,660,000.

For the four months imports were $225,887,000, and exports, of Canadian produce, $117,180,000.

Emigration to Canada Largely Increased

LONDON, Aug. 25.—A special correspondent of the "Evening News," writing from Londonderry regarding the present unrest, says that the Allan Liner "Scandinavian" yesterday carried 200 emigrants from Londonderry to Canada. Every berth in the boats leaving for the west up from now until October have been booked. Some of this traffic represents returning holiday-makers, but emigrants are a much higher proportion than usual. The local manager of the Allan Line said this had been one of the biggest years for emigration he had known. Next spring the rush West he expected to be bigger than ever. Many emigrants are farmers' sons and agricultural laborers. They earn about thirteen shillings weekly in the North of Ireland.

There are over 4000 shareholder of Canada Cement Preferred.

MILITANTS FIRE FARM BUILDINGS.

London, Aug. 26.—Special—Thousands of dollars' damage was done in Surrey to-day by incendiary fires set by militant suffragists. The women set fire to a number of farm buildings on big estates and all were destroyed with their contents. Constables who investigated learned that three women had been in an automobile in the neighborhood of the fires.

They were believed to have been from London. "Do not forget that women want to vote" was printed on one placard left at the ruins.

Special Photographs Will be Taken

The Government Photographer, Mr. Topley, yesterday visited the fair grounds with Col. Ponton and arranged to take a photograph of the horses, cattle and other prize live stock, in front of the grand stand on Monday. This picture will be enlarged, showing the great crowd of Belleville and Bay of Quinte residents present, and will be circulated all through Great Britain and many European countries.

Saskatoon Bugler Back on Strength

Militia Department Finds he was Wrongfully Dismissed -- Showed Real Spirit.

OTTAWA, Aug. 25.—The action of the officer commanding the 95th Fusiliers in Saskatoon in dismissing Bugler Hill for resenting the flaunting of the American flag by a woman in the face of the regiment on July 31 has not been sustained by the minister of Militia and Defence, who maintains that the evidence asked for and submitted does not warrant his dismissal from the service on that account.

The Minister of Militia, in declining to sustain the dismissal, stated that the evidence was too flimsy. He maintained that the flag should not have been flaunted in the face of the soldiers, for such would provoke any man of proper spirit. When the emblem of a nation was put improperly to such uses as the insulting of the soldiers of another nation it ceased to be a national emblem. While the Minister agreed that Bugler Hill's action may have been indiscreet, the whole thing depended upon the distance the American flag was from the regiment, and how much the soldiers were taunted. In conclusion the Minister stated that the evidence submitted did not warrant Hill's dismissal from the service on that account.

SEVEN THOUSAND FARM HANDS RUSHED TO WHEAT FIELDS

Four Thousand More will Reach Winnipeg on Wednesday - Sunshine Means Bumper Crop.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 25.—Comparative calm once more reigns in the shed for the distribution and clearing of the Eastern harvesters on Maple Street. The 7,000 men who came West with the great week-end influx have been sent to their destinations on the farms of the three provinces, and the demand for help at present is not insistent. Another rush of laborers, which will number approximately 4,000, will be in on Wednesday night or Thursday morning in time to check any possible hardship which the farmers might have to contend with through lack of necessary help at the most critical time of the year.

The reports on the crop conditions which have been received by the officials of the railway companies are more than satisfactory, and at many points a bumper crop is now the anticipation. If the weather does not take a turn for the worse immediately the crops at most points is in a fair way to safety, according to the statements of the officials this morning.

One week more of the present weather and the crop will be a bumper one in the richest part of the wheat belt, was the opinion expressed this morning by A. E. Rosewear, general freight agent of the G. T. R.

The representatives of the different Governments in the clearing shed are all optimistic in regard to the prospects, and entirely satisfied with quality and numbers of the men alloted to each province. The demand from Saskatchewan is being fairly met and the farmers of Manitoba have all the help they require in the meantime.

ONLY FIVE DAYS TO WAIT FOR THE BELLEVILLE EXHIBITION

One of the most imposing and attractive labor processions ever seen in Eastern Ontario will take place in Belleville on Monday, September 1st, Labor Day, and that in connection with this great Agricultural Exhibition.

The parade will be led by the Royal Canadian Dragoons, Canada's finest cavalry corps, and in the ranks will be floats representing numerous Belleville institutions. Especially attractive will be one provided by the Belleville Cheese Board, which association has appointed a competent committee to look after its best interest at this great event.

At a special meeting of the directors of the Agricultural Society held on Saturday, a large amount was set apart for distribution as prizes for the most original and best decorated floats in the procession.

Every department of the fair is fully organized and under capable management.

The keenest competition will obtain in every class of exhibits as at no time in the history of the fair, at a corresponding date, have so many entries been made as this year. So the energetic secretary reports.

With the numerous entries in every class, the several bands engaged for the day, the Royal Canadian Dragoons and numerous special attractions, it is safe to predict that there will not be one dull moment from the opening until the closing of the fair.

Let everybody turn out and give the directors a practical manifestation that their efforts to make Belleville the leading centre in Eastern Ontario are appreciated by our citizens.

The new Chinese Republic has established a department of agriculture and forestry. For a long time China had been pointed out as the most backward nation in forest work.

TERRIBLE RAILWAY COLLISION IN SPAIN.

Bilbao, Spain, Aug. 26.—Special—A terrible head-on collision occurred near Orduna, in Alava, one of the provinces. The details of the catastrophe have not been received, but it is known that at least three persons have been killed and that many were injured.

Stole Girl's Money To Bind Contract

TORONTO, Aug. 26.—Special—C. M. Carson, of 103 Bond street, was arrested last night by Detective Murray on a charge of stealing $8 and some small pieces of jewelry from Miss E. Misener, of the same address. The accused and the complainant lived at the same boarding house and the girl claims that Carson stole the money and trinkets from her room while she was out.

When taken to the detective office he admitted taking the money, but said that he held it as a guarantee of good faith as the woman had engaged to go with him to the Peace Celebration at Chrysler's Farm and appear in some of his shows. Miss Misener told the police she had engaged to appear at the Toronto Exhibition Midway with the accused, but she found that the management of the exhibition would have nothing to do with Carson and from other sources she discovered that he was not "on the square." The local police intend to hold Carson for some days.

NEVER TRUST A BLOND MAN

Pearl Evans, eighteen years old, of No. 50 avenue A. Asbury Park, N. J., declared last Friday that she will never venture from the board-walk of that famous seaside resort.

Miss Evans came to Jersey City to meet a young man who had lovely blond curly locks, blue eyes and a most fetching grey suit. He met her at the Pennsylvania Railway station at the foot of exchange place, and they decided that the Hudson Boulevard was the proper place to stroll.

According to Miss Evans they walked along the Hudson Driveway until De Kalb avenue was reached. Miss Evans had given her escort her purse to carry.

"You wait here until I return. I'll only be gone a few minutes," said the blond escort. Miss Evans waited, then waited some more. She waited for more than an hour. It then dawned upon her that her escort had taken her pocketbook containing a small sum of money and a return ticket to her home town.

Sobbing bitterly the girl told the police her story. She was then sent to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, for the night.

Who was the young man, she was asked. I do not know him. I only met him once before, and his name and address was in the pocket book that he stole. He had beautiful blue eyes and curly hair and wore a swell gray suit.

"I am going back to Asbury. No more Jersey City boys for me. I always heard that blonds were untrue and not to be trusted." Miss Evans wore a bright red coat, black skirt and a beautiful wide brimmed straw hat.

GROWTH OF EQUAL SUFFRAGE IN THE UNITED STATES

(From the Duluth Herald)

But four years ago there were only four states in this country that had conceded to women their right to the ballot. These states had a combined population of 1,644,034.

Today women have the right to vote in ten states, with a combined population of 13,370,232.

This, of course includes Illinois, where the right to vote is limited to the presidency and municipal offices, and does not extend to state and county created by the Constitution.

This is an amazing rate of growth and it takes no prophet to predict that the years will not be many before this tide of equal suffrage covers the whole country.

C. M. HAYS AND HARRIMAN

C. M. Hays, who went down on the Titanic, was not only a good railroad man; he was also a shrewd business man.

When Collis P. Huntington wanted to retire from presidency of Southern Pacific, the Speyers would not consent to H. E. Huntington, a nephew, having the position. Instead they called C. M. Hays from Canada and gave him a five-year conract at $50,000 to run Southern Pacific.

Then Collis P. sold his stock to E. H. Harriman, and a conflict of two dominant spirits began. Harriman issued orders how Southern Pacific affairs should be managed, and Hays did as he thought best.

It was not long before Harriman paid Hays $250,000 and asked his resignation. This outcome of the situation was satisfactory to Hays, and it is said he rubbed Harriman the wrong way whenever possible in order to hurry it.—(Wall Street Journal.)

Commemorating One Hundred Years of Peace

Suggestion That Toronto and Other Cities Co-operate on September Eleven.

TORONTO, Aug. 25.—That in commemoration of the death of British and Canadian soldiers and seamen at Put-in-Bay one hundred years, bells should be tolled and flags held at half mast on September 11th, is a request which has been made to Toronto and a number of cities in Ontario by those in charge of the American Centennial demonstration.

Admiral Perry's naval victory will be commemorated by re-interment of the remains of Britsih and American officers from their present resting place to a memorial crypt. It is the desire of the Interstate Board of Commissioners in charge of the centennial that the event be fittingly commemorated in Canada.

OLD ENEMY ARRIVES

William Travers Jerome Ready to Fight Thaw.

The New York Lawyer Who Fought Millionaire Slayer of Stanford White in All the Big Trials of the Famous Case, Arrives in Sherbrooke—Roger O'Mara, the Detective, on His Way to Aid Prisoner.

SHERBROOKE, Que., Aug. 25.—(Can. Press.)—The arrival of Wm. Travers Jerome, Harry Kendall Thaw's old prosecutor, the assumption by Ex-Gov. Wm. A. Stone of Pennsylvania, of the position of spokesman here for the Thaw family, pending the coming of Roger O'Mara, the Pittsburg detective, and the injection into the case of renewed talk of it assuming internation aspects, were the chief developments of the day in Sherbrooke, since Stanford White's slayer fled from Matteawan.

If Thaw was terrorized by Jerome's coming, he succeeded in concealing his feeling to all who visited him in his cell. Again he spoke of Jerome sneeringly, calling him "Willie" and insisted that his lawyer reissue a summary of Jerome's remarks made in 1908, when he said that no one had ever contended Thaw was insane.

Of the lighter incidents of a day of excitement — exciting principally because of what might happen — was Thaw's show of temper over the fact that his breakfast was ten minutes late, and his continued erratic statements realtive to plans for the publicity campaign which he regards as more important than any legal aspect of his case.

The possibility of an international twist in the case came from ex-Governor Stone, who raised the point that a Canadian, embroiled in the Dominion's ironclad immigration law regulations, would doubtless have a right to appeal to the courts. Thaw, it has been said, would have no such privilege, no opportunity to appeal should he be ordered deported, except to the minister of the interior at Ottawa. Mr. Stone regarded this as contrary to the treaty between Great Britain and the United States guaranteeing to American citizens before Canadian courts the same rights as Canadians.

"In my opinion," said Mr. Stone, "the snow will be deep in Sherbrooke before Thaw leaves Canadian soil."

None of the contingent of Thaw's Canadian lawyers would commit themselves as to whether they shared Mr. Stone's views, altho all of them conceded that the constitutionality of the drastic immigration law—a comparatively new one—had never been tested in the courts.

Appendix Taken From Babe.

CHICAGO, Aug. 25.—The youngest person ever operated on for appendicitis, according to physicians here, is Robert Fearsino, 11 months old, who had his appendix removed this afternoon at the American Hospital here. The child is said to be sustaining the shock of the operation well, and physicians at the hospital assert that he probably will recover.

The operation was performed by Dr. Max Thorek, chief of staff of the American Hospital, assisted by Dr. Marco Furno, the Searzino family physician. Nine minutes were required to perform the operation, and in less than half an hour the infant was out from under the influence of the anaesthetic and able to recognize his mother, who stood beside the cot on which the baby patient lay.

Here's a Monster Fish.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 25.—Establishing what is said to be a world record with rod and reel, W. C. Boschen of New York brought to gaff off Catalina Island, a 355-pound sword fish, after a fight lasting ninety-two minutes. The fish was twelve feet in length, with a sword four feet long and seven inches wide at the base.

Mining Company Fined $100.

KINGSTON, Aug. 25.—(Can. Press.)—The Ontario mines department today prosecuted the Perth Road Mining Company before Justice of the Peace Hunter, on charge of violating the statutes with regard to the sinking of shafts and not using elecricity. A fine of $100 was imposed.

He is a graduate of the University of Rochester. Mrs Hunt is well-known in Sackett's Harbor and vicinity. She is one of nine sisters, all of whom were present at the wedding, with their families.

TORONTO FAIR OPENED BY PREMIER BORDEN

Record Attendance Marks First Day of "Expansion Year"—Prime Minister Makes Reference to the Heroism of the Pioneers Who Are Responsible for What We Enjoy Today.

TORONTO, Aug. 26—The Canadian National Exhibition was launched yesterday amid perfect weather and with a record first-day crowd in attendance.

It began with the opening of the gates in the morning, when a huge cavalcade of stalled vans, tradesmen, sightseers and a swarm of children flooded pell-mell into the grounds. It glowed more fiercely as the morning progressed, but the great shout which burst thru the roof of the dairy amphitheatre, mingled with the strains of the "Maple Leaf," as Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden contributed the dignity of his position to the formal opening, set enthusiasm buzzing with a new impetus.

One thing pointed out was the courage, faith, and foresight of those who from earlier days until now had laid their shoulders to the wheel. Talk of expansion before established success was there would be futile.

"There is not one in Canada who is not willing to pay a tribute to these men whose work is seen here today," said the premier, and the sentiment was echoed to the roof. He then paralleled the growth of the movement with that of the country. Both had similar small beginnings, but both were waxing tremendous, and the same British flag floated above.

"We sometimes doubt that there were times with the builders when doubt overshadowed faith," he said. "But we rejoice that great success has crowned their efforts."

The happy reference to the exhibition as an "object lesson," where science, art, practice and imagination were spread forth had more in an educational way than mere civic or provincial importance. It was of national significance.

Then there was the value of showing to people the wealth of their own country, the estimate of which they hardly realized. This brought individuals in closer contact with each other, and made them sympathetic of each other's ideals and viewpoints. The modest reference of Mr. Borden to the part he had played in public life evoked rounds of applause from the crowded chamber. He had always endeavored to fulfil his duty as it lay before him. This was his idea of citizenship, to live up to what his country demanded. He considered it a duty and a pleasure to officiate on this occasion.

The Royal Irish Guards then broke into melody, and the crowd spread cheering thruout the grounds.

The first of the directors' luncheons bubbled over with goodwill and optimism. An imposing array of prominent Canadian citizens graced the head table and shared with obvious delight in the interest of the day.

Mr. Borden, who was called upon, applauded in brief manner the worthy support which those responsible were giving to the enterprise. He pointed to the self-sacrifice it entailed upon some, and regarded his being able to say it as one of the greatest pleasures he had found in his relationship with Toronto.

"It is my earnest and confident hope that in the future even greater success will attend it than in the past."

There was a touch of solemnity and incidentally of standard British sentiment about the formal ceremonies. With bowed heads the listening crowd heard the divine sanction invoked by Rev. Prof. Law.

"The earth is the Lord's, and the fulness thereof," he prayed. "We humbly invoke Thy blessing upon this enterprise. Thou art the Master of all craftsmanship and hence we pray that this Exhibition may prove to the good of all and the detriment of none."

The grounds have sprung into the first thrilling round of their existence. Practically every exhibit is in place and the crowds have already begun to seek out their favorite displays.

The Midway has wakened to appreciation of the extension of space and the more logical allotment of tents. The new distribution, if anything, works towards the increase of advertising possibility, and the din is accentuated by the addition of many more enterprising vendors. But this is what the public wants and what the directors are going to give them. Everything bigger, everything better and more of it.

The wire is down and the big fair is well off.

The total attendance on opening day at the Exhibition was 32,000. This marks an increase of 6,000 on that of last year on the same occasion.

The directors are jubilant over the situation, and reckon that with similar increases in ratio as the days progress the million mark will easily be attained. Simple calculation will show how this works out when it is borne in mind that the sum total for 1912 exceeded 900,000.

The police and fire casualties of the day were small. A short run in the morning to quench some carelessly ignited tar and an evening spin on an alarm caused by a burning rocket striking a tent cover alone kept the firemen busy. The ambulance was requisitioned once to carry a fainting woman out of the press of the crowds

WILL NOT INTERFERE

Wilson Will Leave Mexico Alone for the Present.

The U.S. Senatorial Committee on Foreign Relations Confers With the President and is Told the Plans of the Administration—Proposes to Enforce Neutrality More Strictly.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—President Wilson tonight took the senate committee on foreign relations and the house committee on foreign affairs into his confidence, and to the members made known the history of the administration's handling of the Mexican problem, including the presidents efforts to bring about peace in the southern republic.

The president read to the congressional conference the message he will deliver to congress tomorrow unless some word is received from Mexico City between now and the hour set for the reading of the message, 3 p.m. tomorrow. There is no hope of Huerta changing, said a message received at midnight. In addition to the message outlining all that has been done, the president read to the members the note which Commissioner of Mediation John Lind presented to Huerta, and which contained the president's four proposals for settling the war, and the reply to that note by President Huerta.

In his message the president advised a policy of non-interference on the part of the United States for the immediate future in dealing with the Mexican problem. He pointed out that this, it appeared to him, was the most sensible course to pursue.

He does not advocate the lifting of the embargo against the revolutionists in Mexico obtaining arms and ammunition in the United States. To the contrary, he advised an enforcement of all neutrality laws permitting no faction to obtain munitions of war in the United States.

In the discussion of the message and the two notes the president indicated how serious a problem the Mexican situation is, and said the question should be treated seriously by both the executive and congress.

The congressional advisers were made acquainted with the whole situation. They were informed as to what pressure was being brought to bear on Huerta by England, France and Japan and of financial condition, both regarding provisional government and the revolutionists. This latter picture which the president drew was not encouraging so far as the belligerents were concerned. It showed a depleted treasury in Mexico City, and the revolutionists in equally as ban a condition.

The president did not monopolize the evening with his message or the expression of his views. From each of the congressmen present the president obtained an expression. A poll of the visitors showed that all agreed with the president's view in regard to the treatment of the problem. All endorsed the police he had pursued in the past, including his sending Commissioner John Lind to Mexico City.

As the matter stands at this hour, the two committees in congress which will have to be the president's steering wheel there, are fully acquainted with the whole story of the present revolution, and what has been done by the administration to prevent a clash between the United States and Mexico, and to bring about the peace of that country.

Owing to the president's wish to keep the question open to the last minute—until the hour he reads his message—the congressional visitors were pledged to secrecy. After the conference the president hade it known that the matter must be treated somewhat confidential until hope had been abandoned. This hope will not be abandoned until he starts for the capitol, which will be about 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Envoy Lind to Return.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 25.—(Can. Press).—President Wilson's personal representative, John Lind, will leave the Mexican capital tomorrow, proceeding to Vera Cruz.

Mr. Lind called on Foreign Minister Gamboa today to say good-bye, but there was nothing in their conversation regarding the resumption of negotiations or to indicate that Mexico would recede from her position.

Mr. Lind will sail from Vera Cruz at an early date, presumably on a battleship. It is expected that William Bayard Hale, who has been in Mexico City in an official capacity, will accompany Mr. Lind, or leave soon afterward.

Rumors persist that Gen. Trevino, who has been summoned to the capital, will become provisional president, but confirmation is lacking, and this report is offset by another that Gen. Huerta has called in most of the retired officers and many of those on detached service to report for duty.

Gen. Felix Diaz, who is on his way to Japan as special Mexican ambassador, is also said to have received a summons to return to the capital.

Will Celebrate Napoleon's Defeat.

KELHEIM, Bavaria, Aug. 25.—(Can. Press.)—All the German sovereigns, including Emperor William as King of Prussia, and the heads of the city republics of Hamburg, Bremen and Lubeck, have assembled here as the guests of the Prince Regent of Bavaria, to commemorate in the Great Hall of Liberation the defeat of Napoleon in 1813.

Besides the rulers, who thus meet for the second time this year, the little Town of Kelheim, of only 4000 inhabitants, is entertaining 70,000 visitors, who have traveled here over the single track railroad or in automobiles from all parts of Germany.

Johnson Cheered.

LONDON, Aug. 25.—(Can. Press.)—Jack Johnson, the pugilist, says that he is going to give the public music halls, where he is billed, a two-days' test to find out if the public want him to show. If they do he will fill his engagement.

He entered a box tonight at the Euston Theatre of Varieties and was loudly cheered. Two performers, who had taken a prominent part against Johnson in the controversy that has been waged over his promised appearance, were unable to finish their turns owing to the demonstration in his favor.

Green First.

An Irishman who was too old for active work was offered the position of crossing tender at a small railroad station. He looked dubious as the duties of the office were explained to him and the meaning of the various flags was clearly stated.

"In the case of danger with a train coming of course you wave the red flag," said his friend, proceeding with his explanation.

A hard old hand grasped his arm.

"Man, dear, it'll never do," said Patrick, shaking his head solemnly. "I could never trust myself to remember to wave a red flag whin there was a green wan handy."—Current Literature.

The Suffragist's Dilemma.

I shall not vote for Mrs. Briggs,
  I do not like her gown;
And I remember well the digs
  I got from Clara Brown.
Jemima Patterson Magee
  Shall get no vote of mine;
A horrid, stuckup thing is she—
  And also I decline
To vote for Anastasia Dunce,
  I fairly boil with rage
When I recall that more than once
  She lied about my age.

And Mabel Jones and Agnes Carr
  And Clementina Ball
I'll scratch, because they never are
  "At home" the days I call.
I cannot vote, you understand,
  For Angelina Pratt,
Because she isn't stylish and
  She wears a last year's hat.

Oh, goodness me! That brings me through
  The list. This ballot's small.
There's no one left. What shall I do?
  I cannot vote at all!

Blow Struck at Sarnia.

SARNIA, Aug. 25.—(Special.)—An article recently published in newspapers throughout the Dominion to the effect that Sarnia is plunged in debt has not only aroused a storm of indignation locally but is fraught with more serious consequences. The Montreal company, in whose hands the disposal of the town's debentures has been placed, claim that the sale thereof has been seriously injured by the newspaper articles in question, and they advise that the town take some action in the matter as the article is, in their opinion, defamatory. It is true that the town has an overdraft of $2,800, but this is not excessive. Sarnia feels it has been very badly used by so-called bad advertising.

Threshing Outfit Destroyed by Fire

A threshing outfit, belonging to J. Tackaberry, who lives north of Colborne, was destroyed by fire. The threshing outfit was in the barn of a farmer, and during the night the machine was backed out of the farm, stuffed with straw, set fire to being entirely destroyed. There was no insurance.

A short time ago the large 100 foot driving belt on Tackaberry's machine was cut to pieces. Constable Jarvis was down from Bowmanville investigating the cause. Incendiarism is strongly suspected.

WEDDING BELLS

McCRODAN-DUNCAN

The Cornwall Standard, has the following item in reference to the marriage of a well known Bellevillian:

Trinity Church was the scene of a very happy event on Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock, when Miss Grace Dunkin, daughter of Mr. W. H. Dunkin, Collector of Inland Revenue, became the bride of Mr. R. J. McCrodan, of Belleville, Ont., formerly in the employ of Mr. L. E. Bailey, jeweller, Cornwall. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. S. Grower Poole, Rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd, in the absence of Rector of Trinty Church. The bride who was given away by her father, looked charming in a cream travelling suit, with Panama hat; wearing the groom's gift, a beautiful necklace of aqua marine and pearls. The church was prettily decorated for the occasion with golden glow and ferns. After the ceremony the wedding party drove to the Grand Trunk depot, and Mr. and Mrs. McCrodan left on the International Limited express for Prescott, from whence they left by boat on a trip through the Upper Lakes. A large party of friends assembled at the depot to see them off, and as they boarded the train they were showered with confetti. The bride is one of Cornwall's most popular young ladies, and many friends join in heartiest congratulations and best wishes.

Saw Sea Serpent At Wolfe Island

KINGSTON, Aug 25.—On Thursday afternoon when the steamer America was going around Belle' Point at the head of Wolfe Island, a large sea serpent was sighed by Captain Palmateer, Captain J. Crawford and the purser. The mammal was about fifteen or twenty feet long and was playing about, causing the water to splash into the air. The attention of the people on board the boat was drawn, and several of them watched the monster until it was out of sight. The affair caused some little excitement for time and many who thought that sea serpent never existed in these waters, are now convinced that they are mistaken.

Borden, Sir James Whitney and other prominent public men will be present.

Fell from Wharf And was Drowned

KINGSTON, Aug. 25.—Michael O'Neill, about fifty-five years of age, a well-known character about the wharves and the lower part of the city was drowned on Friday evening, from the wharf opposite the Canadian Pacific freight offices and sheds. He was assisting in loading cattle onto a scow. The body was recovered about 7.30 o'clock on Saturday morning, and removed to McAuley's undertaking establishment. Dr. A. E. Ross, coroner, was on the scene after the body was recovered. An inquest will not likely be held. Dr. D. E. Mundell was called on Friday evening and investigated the circumstances of the drowning, the cause of which, according to the story of those there at the time, being accidental.

Canadian Women Meet in Hamilton

HAMILTON, Aug. 26.—Last evening the representatives of the various women's Canadian Clubs met in the Conservatory of Music. There was a large attendance. Mrs. John Crerar was in the chair. The speakers were: Mrs. Atherton Smith, of St. John, N.B.; Mrs. Edwards, of London; Miss Blackburn, London; Mrs. Price, of Calgary; Mrs. Dickson, Toronto; Miss Green, Berlin; Mrs. Price, North Bay; Miss Purvis, St. Stephens, N.B. It was explained that in certain cities much good was being done by accepting American ladies as associate members. It was suggested that the constitution of the clubs be changed to meet this situation.

An Alarm Clock Saves His Life

MONTREAL, Aug. 25.—His alarm clock ringing fifteen minutes before its time probably saved the life of the watchman on board one of the Allan Line Company's coal barges. Two minutes after he left it the barge, with 300 tons of coal on board, sank right in the middle of the harbor basin. The watchman says he took thirteen minutes to dress, and had just got ashore when the barge and contents sank.

The coal is being taken out to-day by the Harbor Commissioners' derrick, and whether the barge will ever be refloated it is not known.

Just what caused the barge to sink is not known by the company, as they declare that it was not overloaded, as the capacity is 400 tons.

Duke's Son Next Governor-General

London, Aug. 25.—The Daily Graphic claims to-day to be in a position to state that Prince Arthur of Connaught will succeed his father as Governor-General of Canada, and that the Duke will formally hand over the office and introduce him to the heads of the Canadian executive before returning.

On leaving Canada the Duke will regard his public career as having definitely ended, and he will settle at Bagshot Park, devoting his time to the developing of a stud farm scheme for the rearing of horses suitable for use by the army.

THE PLACE OF WHEAT

While fall wheat is no longer the chief grain crop on Western and Central Ontario farms, says the Farmers' Advocate, it still deserves a place. Supposing the grain is not to be sold, it is still capable of giving a good account of itself as feed, being particularly valuable for poultry and hogs. Pound for pound, it compares very favorably with spring grain, as do the yields when weight is considered. On very rolling or hard clay lands, where spring grain is often affected by drouth and consequent baking of the ground, wheat frequently outyields oats and barley in hundredweights threshed grain. It also furnishes a much greater bulk of straw for bedding, and, as a crop with which to seed down clover and timothy, is much superior even to barley. This applies particularly to the timothy seeding, which seldom fails when sown in the autumn with wheat on a properly prepared field. Since the securing of good catches of clover and grass seeds is of the essence of importance in building up a farm, the value of fall wheat as a nurse crop is not easily over-emphasized. Then, too, as a means of reducing the rush of spring work, fall wheat culture on a minor scale deserves attention. And what better use can be made of the summer's accumulation of manure? Still another sound argument is the old maxim about not putting all the eggs into one basket. This applies particularly in the case of the man of limited resources. It is, too, more interesting to have something green and growing in the late months of the season than to look out across a farm with all but the meadows bare and sere, and those not any too fresh.

As the King of Crops, wheat has been long since deposed from its position in Ontario agriculture. No more is it the great object towards which all the manure and the chief resources in tillage are applied. Being a good "wheat farmer" does not signify what it did once. Wheat now occupies a place of minor prominence on most farms, but is still a profitable crop to grow in a small way, and a ten-acre field of it rounds out nicely the plan of a hundred-acre farm.

THE FOREIGN INFLUENCE

"It has been necessary to send the militia to these places to restore order and free the neighborhood from this despotism, which is all the more intolerable because the despots were acting under foreign instruction.—Vancouver News-Advertiser.

That comment is made regarding the strike riots at Nanaimo, where a great deal of confusion has been stirred up during the progress of the labor disagreement. The Vancouver Sun, the leading Liberal newspaper of British Columbia, also comments as follows:

"According to our despatches, one man has already been killed, and it may be that six have lost their lives. There are many foreigners in the coal fields and we know from the history of similar strikes in the United States industrial districts, that when these aliens are aroused they hesitate at nothing. The whole population of that region must not be placed at the mercy of these people, nor, indeed, at the mercy of any mob, no matter how convinced they may be that they are suffering under wrong. There is no room in Canada for disorder and riot and murder."

The press of British Columbia is disposed to attribute the untoward incidents of the Nanaimo strike to the work of foreign agitators. Meanwhile Canadian labormen are blamed for the disturbances, and a number of Eastern newspapers draw ominous morals. The explanation of the Nanaimo riots seems to lie in the influence exerted by foreigners, men who do not understand or sympathize with the law and order of this country. In justice to Canadian labor, this fact should be pointed out. Where labormen deal in confidence with their elected representatives and are not incited to riot there is no rioting. These meddlesome foreigners are the ones who ought to be punished.—Ottawa Journal.

OUR DECLINING CHEESE EXPORTS

From the latest reports, Canada's cheese export business, which up to the present time dominated the English market, is suffering a serious eclipse. According to official statements, the shipments from May 1st to the middle of July showed a shortage of 5,930 tons, or 26.6%, compared with the corresponding period in 1912, and a decrease of 34.1% compared with the 1911 period. It is feared, says the Journal of Commerce, that the shipments to England will still further decrease if the American duty on Canadian cheese is cut down by 3 cents a pound, as is proposed. As a matter of fact, Montreal cheese exporters are holding supplies, waiting for the proposed reduction, so that they can ship it to the United States. On the 18th July this year, the Montreal stock of cheese amounted to 130,000 boxes, as compared with 44,000 boxes on the same date last year. In 1904 Canadian cheese formed 72.4% of the total British imports of cheese. To-day it is but 56.5%. Another feature which is making for scarcity of cheese is the unusually dry weather, as the result of which cheese factories in many districts throughout the country are closing their doors.

While Canadian farmers and manufacturers of cheese will probably find the American market as profitable as the English market was heretofore, the British consumers of Canadian cheese are somewhat seriously perturbed. They expect, however, that New Zealand, which is one of the most prominent butter exporters, will also become equally prominent as a cheese exporter, and that supplies can be secured from that country. Some years ago Canada exported considerable butter to Great Britain. In 1902, or only ten years ago, 539,845 packages were shipped from Montreal to the British market, which were valued at $6,748,262. Last year seventy packages were sent at a value of $1,134. This tremendous drop of the decade is partly accounted for by the increased home consumption and partly by decreased production of butter. Business men are now asking if a similar tale will be told ten years hence about our cheese export business.

Eighty thousand acres in North Central Wisconsin have been purchased by a Minneapolis capitalist, who will spend $5,000,000 in the establishment of an agricultural community, with the chief object of helping young Scotchmen to independence.

THE RING

BOXING FOR LABOR DAY

The Maypole dance is in full swing among the lightweights. Now Johnnie Dundee and Leach Cross are to box Labor Day at Los Angeles and Ad Wolgast, who was signed to meet Dundee in the Southern city Admission Day, will tackle Azevedo at Oakland on Labor Day.

It is said that the two winners will probably box at Los Angeles on Admission Day. If each fight results in a draw McCarey will be in a quandary unless he decides to put the four lightweights in the ring on September 9 and inaugurate a battle royal.

And all this time poor Tommy Murphy is back in New York singing. "I have no work to do."

ANOTHER HEAVYWEIGHT FIGHTER WAS KILLED

Los Angeles, Aug. 23.—John W. "Bull" Young, a cowboy heavyweight pugilist died in a hospital here tdoay of injuries received at Vernon Arena last night, when he was knocked out by Jess Willard. Immediately after his death, warrants charging manslaughter were issued against Willard and eleven others connected with the fight, while legislators, clergymen and club women revived the demand for an anti-prize bill in California.

The operation on Young's skull to relieve the cerebral hemorage, which followed the knockout in the eleventh round of a scheduled 20-round fight, was at first pronounced a success but was rapidly otherwise. The pupgilist remained in a state of coma from the time he received Willard's right uppedcut to the jaw until his death this morning, when surgeons who operated on him stated that death was due to concussion of the brain.

When Young's death was made known to Sheriff W. A. Hammell, who had placed the principals concern in the fight under arrest last night.

JOHNSON IS IN LONDON AND TALKING AS USUAL

Lonlon, Aug 24.—Jack Johnson, with his white wife, a secretary, two automobiles, a company of boxers, and twenty trunks arrived in London this evening. He crossed from Boulogne to Folkestone on a mid-day steamer. As it berthed, he and his wife were seated in a motor car on the main deck. In this car they later drove to London. The boxer and his manager stated positively that he would appear at Euston and South London music halls twice a night this week.

Wearing a smartly-cut grey frock coat, and giving a full display of his diamonds, the pugilist held a press reception in a furnished room he has taken in the West End of London. He said his salary woud be $5,000 weekly. Johnson waxed wrathful over some things that have been said about his personal character. "Take anybody educated," he thundered, "with a brain properly developed, who knows Jack Johnson, and he knows he isn't the fellow they read about. The people in Paris, the select people, they think Jack is a loyal, true fellow. As for them music hall people, they will soon come around and will be the first to lend a pal a hand."

Asked whether he intended to fight Langford, Johnson said: "No, I am going to draw the color line like some other actors." This is directed at the Vandeville Artists' Federation.

The Daily Mail, which says his theatrical employers seems to threat the public protest against the appearance of Johnson as a gigantic advertisement, and reminds them that there may be unusual qualms among those responsible for Johnson's engagement when they make application for a renewal of their theatre licenses in the atuumn.

NEW YORK NATIONALS HAVE BOUGHT HEARNE

Toronto, Aug 23.—As was expected Pitcher Charles ("Bunny") Hearne of the Toronto team, has been sold to the New York Nationals League club for delivery at the end of the International League season. The deal was closed last night, the Toronto club receiving money and players from the Giants for the twirler. He has pitched consistently good ball for the Leafs ever since putting on the Toronto uniform and gained additional prestige by twirling a twenty-innings scoreless game against the Skeeters at Jersey City. The youngster has everything to recommend him, and under the tutelage of Wilbert Robinson, the Giant pitching coach, should become a star.

HOMERUN BAKER

No less an authority than Connie Mack is of the opinion that a man of Franklin Baker's type is of more value to his team than a temperamental player and star like Ty Cobb.

"It's all down in the record books," says Connie. "Baker is one of the most dangerous batters in baseball today, and he is the cleanup kind that all pitchers respect. Besides this, Baker is a very valuable member of my infield, which upon much of the defence depends."

All Philadelphia will voice for J. Franklin Baker's worth. It was his home-run swatting that gave the Athletics the world's championship in 1911 against the Giants, when he had the unique record of combing two of these long-distance swats. Baker is playing his very best game today and his work is aiding the White Elephants in holding their long lead.

CONNIE MACK'S SYSTEMM

The system used by foxy old Connie Mack, of the Philadelphia Athletics, to get good ball players, has been revealed by Bill Joy, a graduate of the Holy Cross Cross, who has joined the Cleveland Naps as a pitcher.

"At Holy Cross right now," relates Joy, "there are three cracking good young ball players who were sent there by Connie Mack. They are two Murray boys, one a pitcher, the other an outfielder, and Saunders, a shortstop.

"Mack found these kids on the Philadelphia lots. They lacked polish, so Connie is sending them to Holy Cross. He pays their tutition and allows them $50 a month salary, it is claimed. That pays their bills.

"Mack has these players already signed, and if Bill Dyer, Holy Cross coach, has anything to do with it they'll be pretty players by the time they are through college and ready to join Mack's club."

$15,000 WILL NOT BUY PPITCHER

Brooklyn, Aug. 24.—President Ebbets, of the Brooklyn club, says that the purchases of Pitcher Elmer Brown, of Montgomery; Schmutz, of Vancouver, Pfeffer, of Grand Rapids, and Aitchison, of Newark, represent, according to his way of figuring an outlay of $30,000 with another pitcher yet to come. "The Brooklyn club will spend nearly $60,000 for new players this year," said the Brooklyn magnate. "We own the Newark club and we could have sold Aitchison to at least two major league clubs for $15,000. We paid $7,000 cash for Brown, outbidding the Giants, Pirates, Cubs Cincinnati Reds, and the Boston Red Sox. For the release of Schmutz we paid 5,400, and Pfeffer cost $3,000. Taylor, of Oshkosh, and Mowe, of Troy, both shortstops, also have been purchased. We intend to repay Brooklyn fans for their loyalty by going to extremes to provide a winning team."

A WAVERING OFFICIAL

Walter Johnston's Story of an Umpire's Decision Sent by Telephone

Walter Johnson, the greatest pitcher in baseball says the funniest incident of the game that came within his knowledge, was staged in Kansas, his native state, some seven or eight years ago. An umpire played the leading role.

I wasn't a big leaguer then, said Johnson, telling the story, and did not appreciate the affair as I do now. If my memory serves me correctly, Independence and Parsons were playing. Two games were scheduled for the latter city. The umpire in the morning game was Gorman and around him centered the trouble.

That Gorman didn't like the way the fans treated him was proved when he didn't show up for the afternoon game. I am told he never held an indicator in another game, his lone experience causing him to lose any love he might have had for the job.

At the end of the ninth the score was a tie and the crowd was wrought up over the extra inning. Neither club scored in the tenth. In the first of the eleventh Independence got a man as far as third with two down, and the next batter hit a ball to deep short. The umpire's first impression, as well as decision, was that the batter was safe and that Independence had put over the run that looked big enough to win the game.

WALTER JOHNSON

The captain and manager of the home team, seeing that the umpire had waved the batter safe, made a rush for the official. All the Parsons players followed. About this time Umpire Gorman was thinking how much pleasanter it would be back with the old folks. Seeing the home athletes on the rush, he proclaimed the batter out. The home team halted but Independence took up the charge In a minute Gorman was giving an imitation of a rear brakeman on a freight train, alternately making motions that he had declared the runner out and safe.

The crowd then took a hand and started to make things unpleasant for Gorman, who started on the run, beating the crowd to safety by a good margin. After reaching his hotel Gorman telephoned the ball park, got the manager of the home team on the phone and informed him that he had called the runner out and that the run didn't score.

I am sure this is the only case on record where the umpire telephoned his decision. And it stood. The contest was declared a tie, and played over.

The Jockey's Joke

Of Fred Allsopp, the jockey whose death was recently announced, and an Irish friend of his, a good story is related. The jockey told his Irish friend that he had a good chance of winning a race on the morrow, but he must not tell anyone. Next day when his particular race came on a bookmaker was staggered by a young gentleman rushing up to him in a state of excitement and saying, "Put me two pounds on."

"Hi!" yelled the bookmaker, "you have not mentioned on what."

But the youth had gone. The horse won all right, and when the youth went up to draw his winnings the bookmaker expostulated.

"But, you simpleton, you mentioned no horse!"

"No," was the ingenuous reply. "Sure Mr. Allsopp warned me not to tell anyone about it."

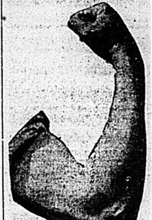
ATHLETICS DEMAND PLIABLE MUSCLES

For Quick Movements, Rapid Recovery and Freedom From Strain, Soft, Firm Limbs Are Needed

It is not the man with hard, knotty muscles who stars in athletics. Hard muscles mean muscle-bound arms and legsand to be muscle bound means lack of speed and elasticity, and speed and elasticity mean athletic superiority. Hundreds of young fellows are hopeful of some day becoming star ball players. These fellows, whose baseball life and usefulness depend upon the condition of their legs and arms, do not have bulging muscles. Their arms and legs are covered with long, elastic, pliable tendons that writhe like snakes as the players hurry through the thousand and one steps of training and playing.

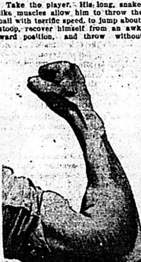
Illustrated here are the arms of a blacksmith and a ball player. Note the difference. The man of the forge shows a bunch of iron muscle. The player's arm is as round as that of a girl.



Rube Benton's arm

Years spent in swinging a hammer gave the blacksmith his powerful looking biceps. For his work just such an arm is needed. But he could not do the work of the ball player. He is like a weight lifter or the man who workr on a moving van—powerful as a Hercules, but unable to use his great strength to advantage save in his own line.

Take the player. His long, snakelike muscles allow him to throw the ball with terrific speed, to jump about, stoop, recover himself from an awkward position, and throw without strain. His muscles are not seen, but they are there, tough as hickory with the spring of split bamboo. Such muscles will do the maximum amcunt of work with the minimum of fatigue.



Hard, knotty and mighty arm of a blacksmith

The trainer of boxers, sprinters, jumpers, football or baseball players seeks to develop such muscles. The pitching arm shown belongs to Rube Benton. He has the biggest arm of the Cincinnati pitchers. His muscles are soft and spongy, and the powerful, searching fingers of Trainer "Doc" Hoskins sink deep into the flesh as he massages the pitching wing of the Red hurler. They would scarcely make an impression on the arm of the blacksmith.

CANADIAN SEALING

Government to Aid Industry at Seven Islands

As a result of a visit of Mr. Swerve, of Seven Islands, to Ottawa, Canada is likely to have a sealing industry. It long has been a peculiarity of industrial conditions on the Canadian coast that while the Newfoundlanders make much money in the sealing industry, Canadians have never gone into it. Mr. Swerve for some time has been operating a whaling establishment at Seven Islands in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and as a result of his conferences with the marine department a sealing industry will be set up by him. The seals are found in large numbers in the gulf and are taken by the Newfoundlanders.

What is Canadian Language?

The Canadian Gazette, London, asks what the Canadian language is. It adds: "The question is really necessary, for we see that the British Columbia Telephone Company have started a school for telephone operators, in which it is aimed 'to have all operators speak the Canadian language.'"

"I AM SATISFIED I COULD NOT LIVE

If It Were Not For "Fruit-a-tives", The Wonderful Fruit Medicine

FENAGHVALE, ONT., JAN. 29th, 1910
"For thirty five years (and I am now a man over seventy) I have been a terrible sufferer from Constipation. No matter what remedy or physicians I employed, the result was always the same—impossible to get a cure. About 2 years ago, I read the testimonial of Hon. John Costigan regarding "Fruit-a-tives" and I decided to give them a trial. I have used "Fruit-a-tives" ever since. They are the first and only medicine that suited my case. If it were not for "Fruit-a-tives", I am satisfied I could not live" JAMES PROUDFOOT.

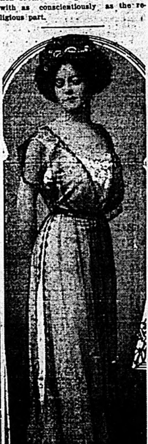
Mr. Proudfoot is one of the prominent farmers of Prescott County and has been Treasurer of Caledonia Township for years. "Fruit-a-tives" is sold at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50—trial size, 25c. by dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

MARRIAGE CUSTOMS IN ARMENIA

In Armenia everybody has a good time at a wedding except the bridegroom. First of all, the friends gather, and an entertainment, with dancing, takes place. The bridegroom is expected to arrive after the entertainment is at its height, and it is considered good form for him to appear with his face covered with powder to simulate pallor induced by the solemnity of the occasion.

The day after this opening marriage feast the bride rides to church and the bridegroom walks. The priest, who receives them in the porch, reads to them a short sermon on their duties in the matrimonial state, and then the wedding party proceeds to the altar, where the foreheads of the high contracting parties are bound together with gold chains.

The wedding festivities continue for at least three days after this and the couple are not regarded as really married until the ceremonies have all been concluded. The social celebration of the wedding is gone through with as conscientiously as the religious part.



For Special Occasions

"Simple but elegant" is an expression often used in describing women's clothes. It exactly suits the full-length model pictured here.

Every woman and girl likes to have one really nice dress in a season which she feels she can wear at any special affair and look well.

It may be made, like the illustration, with low neck, short sleeves, and semi-train. Or it may be easily converted into a high neck, long-sleeved costume by the use of a separate guimp with sleeves attached. The foundation of the dress is apricot-pink satin with a tunic of green chiffon.

Other materials or color combinations may be substituted to suit the individual taste.

The handy needlewoman will do all the embroidering on the tunic.

VALUE OF FIVE MINUTES

In the accounts that were printed of the great Blue and Grey reunion on the battlefield of Gettsburg recently, it was stated, in connection with the three days' conflict of fifty years ago, that it was lost and won on the second day at Little Round Top through the failure of one side or the other to hasten reinforcements. A matter of five minutes' delay on the part of the Confederates lost them the day, and that day lost, lost them all three days and, as it proved afterwards, turned against them for good the tide of battle. If this bit of Civil War history be true, as it is declared to be by military historians, it shows once more the value of a few minutes at a critical period. It powerfully emphasizes the importance of never being tardy, of always being on time. What is true in battle is true in business. Loss of time, even a few minutes—failure to be prompt in keeping engagements—great or small procrastination—invites and generallly produces failure. With equally unvarying cerainty, conservation of time, the being on time every time, is attended with success.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

ONE WEEK NEEDED.

A Little More Fine Weather and Bumper Crop is Assured.

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 25.—(Special.)—One more week of present weather and the crop will be a bumper one in the richest part of the wheat belt, was the opinion expressed by A. E. Rosevear, general freight agent of the G.T.P.

Representatives of different governments in the clearing shed are all optimistic in regard to prospects, and entirely satisfied with the quality and number of men allotted to each province. The demand from Saskatchewan is being fairly met and farmers of Manitoba have all the help they require in the meantime.

The Manitoba distribution has been fairly even all over the province, and there are no urgent demands at clearing headquarters for more men, altho more men could readily be absorbed if they were on the spot to send out.

The C.P.R. sent out two special trains this morning, one to Regina district, and the other to Deloraine, with about 1000 of the later arrivals.

The general condition of special harvester help at present is that there will be yet required about 8000 men in the Province of Saskatchewan, and that Manitoba will receive all the help required immediately.

Outlook in Saskatchewan.

SASKATOON, Sask., Aug. 25.—(Special.)—Comparative calm once more reigns in immigration shed for distribution, and clearing of eastern harvesters. Seven thousand men who came west with the great week-end influx have been sent to their destinations on the farms of three provinces, and the demand for help is not at present insistent.

Another rush of laborers, which will number approximately 4000, will be on Wednesday night or Thursday morning.

If the weather does not take a turn for the worse immediately, the crop at most points is in fair way to safety, according to the statements of officials today.

EDMUND MORRIS DEAD.

Widely Known Canadian Artist Drowned at Portneuf.

TORONTO, Aug. 26.—Edmund Morris, the Toronto artist who painted the Indian studies that hang in the parliament buildings, was found drowned in the St. Lawrence River at Portneuf yesterday morning. The discovery was made by one of the parties that have been searching the banks of the river since Thursday last, when Mr. Morris left his lodgings at Portneuf, leaving behind him his keys and instructions to his landlady to communicate with his relatives.

No reason can be ascribed by his friends for his action beyond the fact that his health has been seriously undermined lately and his actions consequently were erratic. He was subject to fits of despondency and it is not unlikely that it was during one of these that he determined to make away with himself. Edmund Morris left Toronto several weeks ago for Portneuf, where he was in the habit of spending his summers on sketching expeditions.

Immediately that word was received in Toronto of his disappearance, Mr. Cochrane of Lennoxville, a brother-in-law, was communicated with and proceedd to Portneuf, and is now making arrangements to have the body brought to Toronto for interment. Another brother-in-law, Horatio Walker, resides at the Island of Orleans, and Mr. Morris had paid his sister a short visit there just previous to his disappearance.

Edmund M. Morris, A.R.C.A., was born at Perth, Ont., in 1871, and was the youngest son of the late Hon. Alexander Morris, lieutenant-governor of Manitoba and subsequently leader of the opposition in the Ontario House.

AUTO HITS A TREE.

One Man Is Killed and Two Women Hurt in Buffalo.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., Aug. 25.—One man believed to be Henry Stensel of 1310 Wells street, Chicago, was instantly killed, and two women, who give the names of Mrs. Elizabeth Burr of 329 Division street, and Mrs. Henrietta Faxon of No. 262 Strauss street, Buffalo, were injured when an automobile driven by Stensel collided with a tree on the Buffalo-Niagara Falls boulevard, near the city line. A man giving his name as Arthur Schmidt of No. 1211 Fillmore avenue, Buffalo, and a four-year-old boy, who Mrs. Faxon says is her son, escaped injury.

A car bearing license No. 2150, was seen by an automobile party, racing along the boulevard towards Buffalo, shortly before the accident. Where the accident occurred there is a curve in the boulevard, and in attempting to round Stensel drove his car into a tree. The car also struck two nearby telegraph poles, breaking one of them off near the ground. All five of the occupants of the car were thrown from the car.

The driver's neck was broken. Mrs. Burr was severely bruised about the body, while Mrs. Faxon's left leg was broken. Both women told Coroner Scott that it would be useless attempting to notify their husbands, as they were railroad men and not at home. They refused to talk.

SUICIDE PACT.

Schoolboy and Girl Affair Ends in a Tragedy.

ROCKLAND, Maine, Aug. 25.—A suicide pact, for which no motive can be ascribed by the parents or friends of the couple, brought swift end yesterday to a high school romance which was to have resulted a few week hence wedding bells. The victims of the tragedy are Carl Wilbur Perry and Angelyn T. Spear, both of whom are descendants of the city's oldest and most influential families. Perry is 20 and a son of Benjamin C. Perry, a retired lime merchant. Miss Spear is 18, and the daughter of Mrs. Alice Spear.

The young couple left home yesterday forenoon for a motor boat trip among the islands. With the coming of dusk and no word from them, the parents began to suspect an elopement. When this morning brought no tidings the matter was placed in the hands of the police.

Canada's Trade Grows.

OTTAWA, Aug. 25.—(Can. Press.)—The customs department statement for July and the first four months of the current fiscal year, indicates a most striking growth in Canadian trade.

Total trade for July was $100,357,000 as against $91,422,000 in July last year. For the four months trade totalled $358,488,000, compared with $328,635,000 in the same period of 1912.

MARKET REPORTS

CHICAGO, Aug. 25.—Influential buying in the final hour turned a weak corn market into a strong one today, prices at the close showing a net advance of ⅛c to ½c. Wheat finished a shade to ¼c higher, oats unchanged to ⅛c up, and provisions irregular, 7½c lower to 5c higher. The uplift in corn came on reports of scarcity in various sections. Buffalo said hardly a car of spot corn was for sale there. Kansas points were said to be out of corn and using wheat for feed. Tennessee farmers reported that for the first time in the state's history, except after floods, the bottom lands have failed to make a corn crop. From Nebraska came reports of an expert that in the last three weeks the crop there had gone back 24 per cent., and that no relief was in sight.

The Liverpool market closed ⅝d to ½d lower on wheat and ¼d higher on corn.

CATTLE MARKETS

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, Aug. 25.—At the Montreal Stock Yards, West End Market, 1700 cattle, 2200 sheep and lambs, 1000 hogs and 700 calves were for sale this morning.

Common bulls were in good demand and a number of car loads were taken by New York, Boston and Buffalo purchasers, and several cars were also taken for Toronto, at $3.75 per cwt. The supply of good to choice butchers' cattle was smaller than usual, and prices show an advance of 25 cents per cwt., as compared with a week ago. For full loads of choice steers $6.75 was bid freely, which sellers refused, and eventually buyers were forced to pay $6.75, the price asked. Canners' bulls and cows were more plentiful.

The tone of the market for western lambs was stronger, and prices were 25c per cwt. higher than a week ago, but, on the other hand, the market for Quebec lambs was weaker and 25c per cwt. lower. Sales were made at $5.75 to $6 per cwt. Sheep were unchanged. Demand for calves was good and the supply was small. A stronger feeling developed in the market for hogs. The demand from packers was good and an active trade was done.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $6.75 to $7; medium, $4.50 to $5.75; common, $4.25 to $4.50; canners, $2.75 to $3.25; butchers' cattle, choice cows, $5.25 to $5.50; medium, $4.50 to $5; bulls, $4.25 to $5.50; milkers, choice, $75 to $80 each; milkers, common and medium, $65 to $70 each; springers, $55 to $60 each; sheep, ewes, $4.50; bucks and culls, $4 to $4.25; lambs, $5.75 to $6.75; hogs, f.o.b., $10.50 to $10.65; calves, $3 to $12.

G. T. R. Must Pay Share.

GUELPH, Aug. 25.—(Special.)—The sewerage and public works commission sent in the bill this morning to the G. T. R. authorities at Toronto in connection with the building of the subways and the other work in which the railway shares the cost with the city. The railway's bill against the city was $9,456, against which the city has accounts amounting to somewhere about $13,000. The city has expended upwards of $22,000 in connection with the subways, so that debentures will have to be issued for between $17,000 and $18,000.

Electricians Join Strike.

LONDON, Aug. 25.—(Can. Press.)—A strike of house painters and decorators in London for increased wages, which was followed by the employment of non-unionist painters at the admiralty, has brought about a strike of electricians under the control of the office of public works in protest against the employment of "blacklegs." Among the electricians involved are those employed at Buckingham and St. James' palaces, colonial and foreign office, the Tower of London, the museums and general postoffice.

Frost in Guelph Township.

GUELPH, Aug. 25.—(Special.)—Reports of frost last night in this district vary from severe to slight. Puslinch Township reports a comparatively slight frost, and no damage. Eramosa Township reports make the frost quite keen and fear for tomato vines, while in Guelph Township frost is said to have been quite severe. But outside of some early sweet corn nothing is supposed to have been nipped.

CO-OPERATION THE CURE.

Earl Grey Advances it as Remedy for Trust Evil.

GLASGOW, Scotland, Aug. 25.—(Can. Press)—Co-operation as the basis of the ideal state of the future was the keynote of the address of Earl Grey, former governor-general of Canada, at the opening of the congress of the International Co-operative Alliance here today. Co-operation would put a barrier against the tyranny of the trusts, he said, and would reconcile the warring forces of labor and capital.

Six hundred delegates were present, representing 29,000,000 members of co-operative societies in America and Europe, and Earl Grey's views, enunciated with much fervor, were warmly applauded.

He declared that the application of the co-operative principle to the industrial life of Great Britain, the United States, France, Germany, Denmark and Ireland was proved by the substitution of organized distribution for unorganized distribution, co-operative buying for individual buying, co-operative transportation and marketing for industrial selling, and the co-operative use of power for individual use of machinery. The wants of both producer and consumer could thereby be met more effectively at a smaller cost.

In the civilized world, the remarkable growth of the co-operative movement justified the confident expectation that a day of new social order was at hand.

"Altho the delegates," continued Earl Grey, "might be separated by differences of race, language and religion, they had met as one people under the flag of co-operative fraternity, carrying in their hearts the same motto: 'Each for all and all for each.'"

"All who had in their hearts the wellbeing of their fellowmen," he urged, "should do their utmost to promote the transition from present conditions to a social state in which the spirit of fraternal co-operation should prevail."

TELEGRAPH BRIEFS.

Four cases of a severe type of infantile paralysis have developed in the country within a few miles of Parkhill, Ont.

Owing to atmospheric conditions Saturday night, Port Arthur, Ont., wireless station picked up messages from Cape Cod sent to steamers on the Atlantic.

Jack Johnson's engagement to appear in two London music halls last night was declared off. Johnson says he will await an opportunity of answering his critics.

Recruits for the Royal Military College at Kingston arrived yesterday to the number of 47, which is all the college will be able to accommodate this season.

Joseph D. Halluday, editor of The Japan Advertiser, of Tokio, who arrived in Boston by steamship from Yokohama, declares all Japan is eager for war with the United States.

The Duke and Duchess of Connaught, aboard the yacht Alexandra, reached Portsmouth yesterday and proceeded to London. The Duke will take a prominent part in the English manoeuvres.

The government intends to tender an official dinner to Rt. Hon. Herbert Samuel, British postmaster general, during his visit to Canada, but it probably will not be until he returns from the West.

HAS ARRANGED TRUCE.

Mrs. Pankhurst Has Evidently Called Off Militants.

LONDON, Aug. 25.—(Can. Press)—Rumors which have been current of a truce between the militant suffragettes and the British Government seem to find support in a letter written today by Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the suffragette leader, to her followers, advising them to take a holiday for the present. She says:

"I am gathering up strength for a renewed battle when the holiday season is over. I hope that every one of you also will take advantage of the present lull in political activity to take the rest and change you have all so richly deserved."

Another indication that an agreement has been reached is the cessation by the authorities of the enforcement of the provisions of the "cat-and-mouse" act. Out of forty-three suffragettes sentenced to imprisonment for various offences, only one is now in jail. Most of the rest of them are following their ordinary avocations, and no attempt is made to re-arrest them.

It is widely believed that Mrs. Pankhurst has at last agreed to a truce in order to strengthen the hands of those members of the British cabinet who are working to make the enfranchisement of women a government measure.

DRAGOONS IN JAIL.

Two Toronto Men Suspected of Firing Kingston Buildings.

KINGSTON, Aug. 25.—(Special.)—Two government detectives have been in the city for several days, working on a case in which two members of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, Toronto, may have to answer serious charges. At the present time the dragoons are locked up at Tete du Pont Barracks, on suspicion of having set fire to the riding stables at the Royal Military College, two months ago.

As yet the military authorities state there has been no charge laid against the men, but it is believed that the two are being put thru a rigid examination by detectives, and that they are not being allowed legal advice. For this reason some of their friends are complaining, saying that they are not being given a square deal.

SULZER RANKS BROKEN.

Impeached Governor's Backers Tell Different Stories.

ALBANY, N.Y., Aug. 25.—A possible breach in the ranks of Gov. Sulzer's supporters was indicated by the statement today of former Judge D. Cady Herrick, who leads the governor's legal forces in the impeachment matter, that "counsel for Governor Sulzer have nothing to do with any alleged criminal proceedings against Charles F. Murphy, Senator Frawley or Assemblyman Levy, and are not pursuing any investigation of a criminal character against anyone."

On the other hand, Judge Lynn J. Arnold in New York, and others in Albany in the confidence of Gov. Sulzer, reiterated the declaration that steps to procure indictments already have been taken, both in New York and Albany Counties.

LIGHT ON THE HITTITES

A Great Palace Discovered in Central Mesopotamia

An account is published of fresh remarkable finds made by Baron von Oppenheim at Tell Halaf, the Hittite fortress town in Central Mesopotamia, where the Oppenheim expedition has been at work sing 1911.

Among the new discoveries are the ruins of one of the largest Royal palaces ever unearthed in West Asia. The inner court is over a hundred yards square, and it is enclosed by several rows of rooms. Among the smaller finds are elaborately carved stone door-angles and threshold stones, and very large water vessels.

Near the south door of Tell Halaf citadel was discovered a well-preserved female figure in basalt, and a second statue of an elderly woman holding a vessel. In the town proper was excavated a Hittite "cult chamber," the only one known, with two colossal statues, one male, the other representing a man and woman sitting together, and also a large number of statuettes and other small objects.

TO AVENGE HER SON

Would-be Murderess Disguises Herself as Nun and Attacks Judge

As Judge Balestrieri was leaving his residence in Naples he was waylaid by a woman disguised as a nun, who attacked him furiously with a butcher's knife, hacking him seriously about the head, neck, and shoulders. She was knocked over as she was about to plunge the weapon into the judge's heart.

The wounded man gasped out, "Why are you killing me? Who are you? What harm have I done you?" Whereupon the woman retorted, "You are the murderer of my son."

It appears that about a year ago the woman's son, a youth of eighteen, committed suicide by shooting himself, and the distracted mother got it into her head that he was murderer by a couple of cousins. She denounced them to the police, and Judge Balestrieri tried the case, the accused being acquitted.

A Crushed Name

There are many stories told of the pronunciation of certain English names, that of Cholmondeley, pronounced Chumley, generally finding a place in the list. A story, told of Lord Cholmondeley, gives a possible reason for irregularity in pronunciations.

Lord Cholmondeley was one day leaving his house, when he encountered a man, who, not knowing his lordship by sight, asked him if Lord Chol-mon-de-lay, pronouncing each syllable distinctly, was at home.

"No," replied the Peer, without any hesitation, "nor any of his pe-o-ple."

Palmist's Defence

Jane M'Connell, or Marshall, known professionally as Mme. Nita, was convicted at Glasgow of professing to tell fortunes by palmistry. She said she believed that by means of the hand she could tell certain things with regard to the future. She practised no deceit, really believing in what she told the people. She was fined $25.

CHIEF COOK SCOTTO

of the gigantic liner Imperator. He invented a stew which so pleased the German Emperor that he conferred on Scotto the decoration of the Red Eagle of the Fourth Class. The new dish is much like Irish stew.

The Tree of Life

The banana is believed by some people to be the forbidden fruit which is mentioned in the story of the Garden of Eden.

In any case, it is one of the curiosities of the vegetable kingdom, being not a tree, a palm, a bush, or shrub, a vegetable, or a herb, but an herbaceous plant with the stature of a tree.

Although it sometimes attains a height of thirty feet, there is no woody fibre in any par of the structure, and the bunches growing on the dwarf banana plant are often heavier than the stalk which supports them.

No plant gives such a quantity of food to the acre as the banana. It yields forty-four times more by weight than the potato, and one hundred and thirty-three times more than wheat.

CLOTHES DRYING RACK

Attached to Ceiling and Can be Lowered or Raised Again

One of the best of all devices for drying clothes indoors is the rack shown in the illustration. It is 6 feet long and 3 feet wide and can be attached to any kitchen or laundry ceiling. It is lowered and raised by means of pulleys. When the garments are to be hung on the rack it is lowered to a convenient height and then raised when filled. This carries the clothes to the top of the room, where they are not only out of the way, but where the air is warmer and drier and where they dry more rapidly and more thoroughly. This rack is also useful to air clothes on after they have been ironed, as many laundresses like to do rather than fold them up while still smelling of the iron. Even when in use it is not an incumbrance and at other times is scarcely noticeable.

CLOTHES NOT IN THE WAY.

Tar Eats into Iron

Tar as a covering for iron work must be used with great care, inasmuch as the crude material contains sulphuric acid and ammonia. This may cause serious pitting and rusting. Furthermore, it does not adhere well to bare metal and should never be applied except as a covering for other pigments. The refined product offers the advantage of great resistance to foul atmospheres and corrosive gases. On account of its dark color the presence of rust cannot be easily detected.

Kamloops, B. C., situated at the junction of the North and South Thompson Rivers, derives its name from an Indian word meaning "the meeting of the waters."

Collecting of Garbage

To the Editor of The Intelligencer.

Dear Sir,—With your kind permission I would like to give a few facts in regard to what some people have to endure in connection with the collection of garbage since the new system has been introduced. A certain resident, not far from Front street, has considerable garbage each week. Previous to the new system, this garbage was taken away (free gratis) and the parties were glad to get it for feed, and it was always taken away twice and three times every week. Now this certain party has to pay for having it taken away, and if they do not load it or provide some one that will, the garbage remains at the door for many days, the collector positively refusing to take same away unless he has assistance, when he drives off without it. This, of course, is a very serious thing to do, especially in hot weather. Before this everything was clean and sanitary; people were glad to get it for feed. Now, even when they pay for having it removed, all this trouble is involved—and the work is not properly done.

Yours truly,
CITIZEN.

HUMILIATED WOMAN

WOULD NOT ATTEND SOCIAL FUNCTIONS BECAUSE OF HER HAIR.

There are many women in this world handsome in efatures, perfect in form, graceful of movement and brilliant of mind, who keep in the background just because they have thin, colorless and lustreless hair.

In Paris they understand things about the hair that we do not know in this country. It was a Parisian, Dr. Sangerbond, who discovered that thin hair and dandruff are caused by a microbe.

It is Parisian Sage that proves Dr. Sangerbond's theory to be correct, for it is rigidly guaranteed to kill the dandruff germ and cure dandruff, falling hair and itching scalp in two weeks or money back.

Parisian Sage is a delightfully pleasant hair dressing and invigorator; it is not sticky or greasy. It should be used freely in Spring and Summer as it keeps the scalp clean and cool and free from odors.

Parisian Sage comes in large 50-cent bottles and is for sale by W. H. Lattimer and leading druggists everywhere on the money-back plan. "The Girl with the Auburn Hair" is on every package. Made in Canada by the R. T. Booth Co., Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont.

Frightful Death of Two Airmen

ROUEN, France, Aug. 25.—The French aviator, M. Montalent, and a passenger, M. Metivier, were killed yesterday by the collapse of their hydro-aeroplane.

Montalent was one of the nine competitors in the hydro-aeroplane race which started from Le Pecq., near Paris, this morning, for Deauville, a seaport in the north of France. He reached Rouen third and was flying at a height of 1,000 feet as he approached the town.

The waiting crowds saw the machine suddenly pitch violently and drop. The occupants were thrown out Montalent crashed through the deck of a river barge; Metivier fell into the river. Both were so badly mangled that they could scarcely be recognized.

Montalent was a native of Rouen, where he was one of the largest landowners.

A window recently patented by a French inventor consists of a number of pivoted sections which may be moved to any desired angle by pulling a chain.

PLENTY OF WORK FOR EXPLORERS

Huge Tracts of Globe's Surface Are Desolate Wastes or the Home of Savages

On a rough estimate, about seven millions of square miles, or one-eighth of the total land surface of the world, are waiting to be discovered. Some 200,000 square miles of this lie in the Arctic regions of the North, but among the frozen tracts that form "Antarctic" in the South, where Scott and his gallant followers perished, nearly 3,000,000 square miles are relegated to the sole use of whales, seals, penguins, petrels, and other animal and bird inhabitants of frozen homes.

It is true that human communities could never be formed in such climes as these, but the scientific world is ever eager for the discoveries of explorers, and even among uninhabited districts their work is never wasted.

In Arabia there exists a tract of unexplored country nearly five times as large as Great Britain. It stretches from Mekka almost to the south-east coast, and is called Dahkna, or "The Dwelling of the Void."

A Riverless Tract

Probably no more desolate waste is to be found on the globe, for not a single river is estimated to flow throughout its entire 400,000 square miles. Some authorities state that the whole desert is not worth a dollar. Others give credence to the legend that treasures and hidden cities lie in the heart of the sands.

Of quite a different character are the enormous mountain-fastnesses of South America, which lie along the Upper Amazon and in the districts of Columbia and Peru. The celebrated treasure of Cuzco lies secreted among the Peruvian heights. Impenetrable forests, mountain jungles, and innumerable fever-spreading rivers hold the most intrepid adventurers at bay, to say nothing of carnivorous ants, malignant snakes, water-moccasins, and those most deadly of serpents, anacondas. During recent years over a dozen expeditions were either wholly or partially wiped out in their efforts to wrestle with these regions.

Rich in Minerals

Although the famous El Dorado which set the sixteenth century ablaze has never been unearthed, the country generally might fittingly be called El Dorado, from the rich minerals and priceless stones emanating therefrom.

Strange, wild-eyed men descend occasionally from the mountains, bringing wonderful fragments with them. But they refuse to act as guides to those who would accompany them back.

It is curious to realize that vast portions of our own Empire have never been seen by British eyes or the eyes of any white men. Nearly a quarter of Australia is still unexplored, mainly in the west, where the population averages only one person in about twenty square miles. According to this basis, England's total population would work out at 2,500.

New Guinea has baffled countless expeditions, though many are still trying to fight their way inland from the coast. Despite the fact that the interior of this island is practically a geographical blank, it is neatly divided on the maps between Britain, Germany, and Holland. Among its products are birds of paradise, spices, and cannibals.

An Amazonian Empire

Another particularly interesting district which has so far defied civilization lies secreted among the Himalaya Mountains. Rumor says that it is presided over by women, who are responsible for such rude laws as are necessary even in a lawless district, manage the affairs of state, and live in a luxury of inverted Mormonism by possessing four or five husbands apiece.

The foregoing selection does not exhaust by any means the list of geographical blanks waiting to be filled. Before the Atlas Complete can lie on our shelves we must penetrate the darker haunts of Borneo, North America, the Congo basin, the seven-hundred-mile mountain range that stretches from Der Fur into the heart of Sahara, and numerous other spaces.

SNAKES LIKE MUSIC

Their Nerves Are Affected in a Similar Manner to Dogs

Science has been studying the question as to whether or not snakes have an appreciation of music. This applies particularly to the cobra, which responds to the piping of a gourd instrument played by the East Indian fakir with a rhythmic movement suggesting a dance. The conclusion seems to be that it answers to the musical notes much in the same way as a dog does—that is to say, through a special or nervous sympathy. When the whistles blow at noon in the Zoo the wolves set up a great howling in concert. Whether or not they enjoy this sort of music is disputed, though probably they do, for some dogs undoubtedly take pleasure in harmonious strains and will run a considerable distance to sit up in front of a hand-organ and "sing," while other dogs unquestionably suffer from certain kinds of music and express their pain in lugubrious howls.—London Tit-Bits.

Cities Need Good Design

London, in a design made by Sir Christopher Wren after the fire of 1666, was tendered a great plan for rebuilding the city, which the people failed to have executed, and thereby lost a great asset. Now the people of London are spending hundreds of millions to carry out some of the suggestions of Wren, knowing that it will be a paying investment for the city.

Paris spent two hundred and sixty millions in the revision of the city-plan made under Napoleon III., and has found it such a paying asset that it is going to spend two hundred and fifty millions more in similar improvements.

AEROPLANE'S USE LIMITED TO WAR

Too Expensive and Too Dangerous to Become a Popular or Practical Means of Travel

Although the possibilities of the aeroplane as an asset of very great value indeed in the warfare of the future have been generally recognised by aviation experts for some years past, there would still seem to remain considerable doubt in the minds of those who have made a study of the conquest of the air as to whether the aeroplane is ever likely to prove of assistance in ordinary everyday business life. The Birmingham Post secured a number of interesting expressions of opinion on the subject from leading students of the science of aviation.

"I have made a profound study of aeroplanes for many years and, as yet, I have not found any use for them except for military purposes," said Sir Hiram Maxim. "Quite true, they may be very popular, and considerable numbers of them sold for sporting purposes, but sport does not increase the wealth of nations.

"Passengers wish to start from some definite point at a given time, to travel in safety and comfort in all kinds of weathers, and to be delivered at the place of destination promptly on time, and they ask all this at a very low price. It is impossible for the aeroplane to fill all of these conditions, and as far as freight is concerned, the cost of carrying a pound by aeroplane over a given distance would be quite as much as it would cost to carry a ton by rail or boat; therefore it is very difficult to see how the aeroplane can be of any commercial value."

M. Victor Menard, official aviator at Reims, had this to say: "I must confess at once that, as far as everyday business life is concerned, I do not consider it probable that the aeroplane will ever play a particularly useful or important part. Although the science of aviation is, to a very great extent, merely in its infancy, it is my firm convection that for commercial purposes, except in times of war, it will never prove of real value to mankind, that is to say in the same way as does the motor car.

"I should like to add, however, that in the colonies and 'new' countries where railways are regarded as luxuries and not necessities, the aeroplane will probably play a very important part for postal purposes, and also for medical purposes. In faraway homesteads in Canada, for example, in times of illness, the doctor of to-morrow is likely to make great use of the aeroplane."

Count Henry de la Vaulx, one of the many French aeronauts who have made their mark in the science of aviation believed that sportsmen would take kindly to the aeroplane for the sake of adventure, but, "I must confess that I cannot see that it is ever likely to prove of much value in everyday life, for the sole and simple reason that, comparatively speaking, flying must be an undertaking always fraught with a certain amount of danger."

Another English authority, Mr. H. Barber, said that in his opinion the aeroplane is never likely to prove of much assistance in everyday life. He based his conclusion on the fact that the expense of flying, while it will probably become less than it is at present, must always be considerably greater than any other means of securing sport or transportation, and for that reason it could only be indulged in by persons with well-lined purses at their disposal.

CHAPTER XV.

Delilah Forms A Partnership.

An exceptionally practical young woman was this daughter of the Gaylord home. And now that she had made her peace with, and accepted as a prospective life partner the man whom she had antagonized as far back as she could remember, she set about planning her future.

At first she was in doubt as to what her conduct should be when in his presence. To begin by treating him as a lover seemed to be too radical a change; yet she determined to be true to her own heart, and treat him in accordance with the understanding between them.

Samson had been informed by several of his village friends that his marriage to Miss Gaylord was scheduled for February fourteenth; but as the young lady herself had not seen fit to verify the assertion, he had nothing to say one way or the other. But the indications were pleasing, and there was no doubt in his mind but that the time set for her decision would reveal all that he had so long hoped for.

Upon the evening of Christmas day, while he was quietly reading in the kitchen, after they had returned from an extended sleigh-ride behind the chestnuts, in company with Theresa and Henry, she had tip-toed behind him, placed her hands over his eyes, drew his head back, and kissed him on the lips. Then, pressing her warm, smooth cheek for a moment against his, she ran laughing from the room. It was her way of bidding him good-night.

And when she had accustomed herself to treating him as a sweetheart, and made up for the many indignities of earlier days, she began preparations for the New Year oyster supper at Ogden, which was to be the event of the season, and, incidentally, the announcement of their engagement, through William Feltus, as privately arranged by herself, which also included the coming nuptials of Theresa Harding and Henry Rollins.

She was anxious that Samson and herself should appear to the best advantage upon that evening, with which end in view she drew on her own purse for numerous minor articles that would add a finish to his attire.

As they took their seats in the handsome new cutter, behind the prancing blacks, and drove to Kendall's Tavern, from where the company was to start, it is safe to say that no more contented couple could be found in the settlement.

Many of today's middle-aged residents of Bentley well remember how pretty Delilah Gaylord appeared on that occasion, in her white gown and cream sash, and who could blame her for assuming an attitude of dignity as, with her arm linked in that of Samson's, she entered the hall of the Ogden House, and walked its length to a seat of honor beside Theresa and Henry.

It is unnecessary to speak at length of all that occurred on that eventful evening, filled as it was with good natured railleries and wishes for a happy future. Suffice to say that William did his full duty as the announcer of a double wedding, to take place, after many trials and perplexities, and misunderstandings, upon the fourteenth day of February coming, in the Bentley meetin' house, to which all were asked without further invitation; and when the party left for home at a late hour, there reposed under the seats of two cutters twin sets of beautiful china tea services, the wedding presents of Bentley's young people to two of its most popular couples.

Wearied though she was when Samson entered the house after caring for the horses, Delilah was waiting for him with a warm lunch; nor did she appear to be in haste to retire to her room.

"Samson," she said, after they had rehearsed the doings of their companions at the oyster supper, "I have bought my half of the farm. I won't say how much I paid for it, but it was enough to make the sale legal, and the papers are in my possession.

"My idea is to establish a partnership, in which you and I shall share alike in the profits and losses of the farm, I to have full control within the house, and an equal responsibility with you in all matters of business. Nothing of a financial nature can be done without our consulting together, and no paper will be legal without both our signatures. You will be the active manager, and I will be the secretary and bookkeeper. The firm name will be 'Samson and Delilah Haskell,' and the partnership will go into effect on the day we are married, February fourteenth. Are the terms agreeable to you, Mr. Haskell?" There was a mischievous smile upon her lips, and the brown eyes sparkled with merriment.

"And we are to share equally in everything?" asked Samson.

"We are to share equally, even in your present bank account."

"And you say we are to be married next February fourteenth?"

"On the conditions mentioned," and she assumed a pretended air of business.

"Jest say it over again, Delilah." It seems most too good to be true."

"Samson Haskell and Delilah Gaylord are to be united in marriage on the fourteenth of February next."

"The terms are agreeable to me, Delilah; but I want you should add a codicil that your pa and ma are to remain with us. We can't get along without them nohow."

"I knew you would say that, Samson," she said, going to him and putting both arms about his neck. "I love you, Samson. I have loved you longer than you know. That is why I treated you so badly at times. You have had a long, hard fight for me, Samson, but you have been true to your manhood through it all. I never knew a more manly man, and I am proud of you. The days is almost here when I shall be glad to acknowledge myself the wife of Samson Haskell, the most honorable young man in Bentley."

"But what made you select St. Valentine's Day for our wedding, Delilah?" he asked, as he held her in his arms, the dark head resting contentedly against his shoulder.

"Because, last year I sent you a picture of a miser counting his money. This year your valentine shall be a prettier and more lasting one—Miss Delilah Gaylord in her wedding dress. You will be satisfied, Samson, and I know we sha'l be very happy."

You say you have never attended a country wedding, followed by a banquet and dance? Then you are not qualified to judge of the event of twenty-five years ago come next February fourteenth, when two blushing brides took the names of the men they loved; nor can you more than imagine the many surprises of the evening, conceived by the active brains of the mischievous company.

But the most pleasing surprise was the appearance in the hall of a delegation from the upper hills, led by the husky fellow whom Samson had unceremoniously thrown from the race track on the day of the great fight, bearing a beautiful pair of sleigh robes for Samson and Delilah, and an easy chair for Henry and Theresa, in the name of five and twenty mountain boys, whose friendship for the villagers was sincere and lasting.

It has indeed been a happy life for Samson Haskell and his beautiful wife. All dissensions were done away with by mutual wish before their marriage, since which time nothing has been permitted to creep into their home which would cause unpleasantness.

They have been content with life on the farm, and if Providence has prospered them, it is not because of penurious practices; for one-tenth of Delilah's income is dedicated to charity, which, in conjunction with a like percentage of Samson's liberal business returns, goes towards alleviating the needs of many a less fortunate home. But, possessing an abundance of this world's goods, they do not miss it.

Friends have left the little village to settle in other places, and the headstones in the graveyard have increased one-half. But through it all Delilah has ever been a loving wife and indulgent mother, seeking not so much her own comfort as that of those about her. And while her faithful husband strives to keep apace with her in benevolence, it often appears to him as though "his end of the whiffletree is allus a-scrapin' agin duty's wheel."

It is always a pleasure for the writer to visit the beautiful country home of this noble couple, and to note the spirit of unity which exists between them. Truly they are walking hand in hand through this world, the joys of which, though abundant, are not to be compared with the glory that awaits them in the world to come.

"SOME HA'E MEAT, AND CANNA EAT"

So Bobby Burns tersely describes the rich, but still poor, dyspeptics. But their case is not now so desperate as when Burns wrote. For the man who has the food now can eat without suffering for it, if he just follows the meal with a Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablet.

These remarkable tablets banish the troubles of the chronic dyspeptic—the man who is bilious—the sufferer from heartburn, gas on the stomach or occasional indigestion. You can eat hearty meals of wholesome food—and digest them, too—if you take Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets.

Compounded by expert chemists, after probably the best formula known to medical science, they are quick and certain in their action, giving prompt relief from all forms of stomach trouble, toning up and strengthening the digestive organs and bringing about permanent cures.

A man is no stronger than his stomach. Fit yourself for your best work by taking Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets. 50c. at your druggist's. National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, Montreal. 146

COST OF LUXURIES

Fine Clothes and Food Not Necessary—But Hard to Abandon

It isn't things which we need that cost so dearly as to keep most of us poor, but the things that we don't need and would be better without. In other words, it's the luxuries which at once impoverish and enslave us.

For instance, take the much discussed matter of eating. It is literally true that a person in good health can keep the human machine going at full efficiency on the merest fraction of what the average Canadian thinks he must spend for food. A glass of milk, a handful of uncooked and uncracked wheat—wheat just as nature meant it should be eaten—and, for desert, a prune or a pinch of raisins make a meal rich in all the essentials of nutrition at a cost which is negligible.

The same rule of simplicity is true of other daily necessities. Clothing, to cover nakedness and serve as bodily protection, can be had for the merest fraction of the sums usually expended upon it. In proof, see how little you spend on your camp clothing and how serviceable and comfortable it is. While for bedding a pile of pine twigs and a blanket make a couch as restful as the downiest contraption that ever graced a king's palace. It has been demonstrated that people can be fed with palatable and sufficient food at an actual cost, right in this era of high prices of six cents a day.

They can be, but they won't.

AMBASSADORS' PAY

European Countries Give Big Money to Their Diplomats

In contrast with the position of the United States Ambassador to Great Britain, who has to rent his own house, on a salary of $17,500 a year, is the situation of foreign diplomats in Washington. All of the important embassies in Washington are either owned outright or are rented by the countries represented, ample funds are provided for upkeep, and salaries range from $30,000 to $50,000. England pays her ambassador at Paris, $45,000; at Berlin, $40,000; at St. Petersburg, $39,000; at Rome, $35,000; and at Vienna, $40,000. Germany pays her ambassador at Paris, $30,000; at London, $37,500; at St. Petersburg, $37,500; at Rome, $25,000; and at Vienna, $30,000.

The French ambassador at Berlin receives $28,000; at London, $40,000; at Rome $24,000; at St. Petersburg, $40,000; and at Vienna, $35,000. Russia pays her ambassadors at Berlin, London, Paris, and Vienna, $40,000 each.

The highest salary paid to any United States ambassador is $17,500 a year.

THE SPEED OF LIGHT

The first astronomer to satisfactorily demonstrate the speed of light was Ole Roemer, a Scandinavian scientist, who read his immortal paper on this subject before the Academy at Paris, on July 22, 1675. Roemer's calculations and conclusions have stood the test of time and subsequent investigations on all important points. Knowledge as to the velocity of light was of tremendous importance to astronomical science since it enabled astronomers to accurately estimate the enormous distances with which their science deals. Roemer found that light travelled at the rate of 186,000 miles in a second. The sun, being distant from earth 92,000,000 miles, flashes light to us in eight minutes and fourteen seconds. Yet the sun is a near neighbor compared with the so-called fixed stars, which in reality move with inconceivable velocity, although the most powerful telescopes will not show that velocity as anything but rest. Beyond the outskirts of our insignificant solar system are other systems, and beyond them still others so far as the sight of man, aided by instruments, may bridge the ghastly chasm of the infinite. Distances beside which the immense line stretching from earth to sun is an invisible point are now measured by means of Roemer's epochal discovery as to the velocity of light.

Diseases of Wood

Wood has contagious diseases! A stick of wood in a lumber yard may be sick and infect other timbers, which later develop the disease when they are supporting great weights in a new building. Some of the diseases are so contagious that in a building they will jump several feet across masonry or brick to some stick of healthy wood.

Most of the diseases are varieties of dry rot caused by a fungus, and most of the varieties of the dry rot fungi cannot stand heat much over 100 degrees; so the most likely cure is to close a building up tight if any beams are infected, and heat it up to 120 or 140 degrees. Even this is not always successful, for ends of beams are buried in the outer brick walls and the heat may not touch them.

Toy Size Fire Engine

A complete steam fire engine, mounted on two wheels and light enough to be handled by two men, has been invented in England for suburban and private use.

Aerial Mail Service

A device has been invented to permit an aeroplane to pick up mail bags and parcels from the ground while in full flight.

Wire Conducts Sound

By accident a scientist discovered that sound travels more swiftly over a telephone wire than through the air.

Strong Cactus Fibre

A river in Peru is spanned by a bridge more than 200 feet in length which is suspended from 32 ropes made from cactus fiber.

YOUTHFUL BURGLARS GIVEN A SUSPENDED SENTENCE

Clayton Vanderwater and Charles Welsh, the two young men who a week ago pleaded guilty to the charge of breaking into and stealing from Mr. F. Herity's store at Moira, Huntingdon township, were today brought up before the magistrate for sentence.

Mr. E. G. Porter, K.C., who appeared on behalf of the accused, presented to the court a largely signed petition, and numerous letters from prominent residents of the township, asking that His Worship deal leniently with them. From the letters read it was evident that previous to committing the offence with which they were charged, both young men had borne excellent characters. Mr. Porter asked for a suspended sentence, stating that in this case justice would be served. He also stated that Mr. Herity had been fully compensated for his loss.

Mr. Anderson, County Attorney, spoke of the seriousness of the offence, and of the punishment which could be inflicted. He would not, however, if the magistrate saw fit, be adverse to acceding to Mr. Porter's request.

In delivering judgment, Magistrate Masson gave the young men some timely advice, and stated that they were liable to fourteen years imprisonment for the offence they had committed, but as they were young, and had evidently borne good reputations previous to committing this offence, he would deal leniently. The statute gave him power to impose a suspended sentence, and he would do so. He suspended the sentence for a period of two years, during which time they would be under bonds of $500 in themselves and one surety of $200 to be called upon any time during the two years for sentence. The costs of the court would also have to be paid.

Bonds were prepared and signed, and all costs paid, when Vanderwater and Welsh were allowed to go with their parents.

Premier Lays Foundation Stone Of Toronto School

TORONTO, Aug. 26.—Premier Borden visited the site of the new Toronto Technical School at 11 o'clock this morning and, in view of a large gathering, declared the corner stone "well and truly laid."

His address dealt with the practical results of an education along technical lines, and he foresaw for the new Toronto institution a great field for usefull effort.

This afternoon and evening the Prime Minister will devote to seeing the fair, which he opened yesterday, and he and his party will return this evening to Ottawa.

Boys Stole $10 From Church

TORONTO, Aug 26.—The Presbyterian Church at Broadway and Simpsons avenues was entered, early yesterday, and $10 stolen from the collection box.

Detective Wallace and plain clothes man Norris noticed two boys spending money freely at the Exhibition yesterday afternoon, and took them in charge. The greater part of the missing money was found on the two boys when they were examined at the station, and they will appear in the Juvenile Court.

Insane Man who Tore Four Cells to Pieces

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Aug. 26.—Having discovered that the Oxford County Jail cells were absolutely unfit to hold energetic prisoners, the Property Committee of the County Council has purchased a steel cell, will be installed immediately.

An insane man, H. Midgeley, who was confined in jail this summer, tore four cells to pieces, and nearly dug his way through the outside wall, his sole instruments being his boot heels. This was the cause of the purchase.

MAKING WOMAN'S WORK LIGHTER.

Do you know that there are something like 50,000 patented articles, the purpose of each of which is to lighten some part of a woman's work?

Do you know that great companies have scores of high priced experts doing nothing else but working out new ideas for the household?

It is an education to walk through a modern houseware store; there is something new every day.

Merchants and manufacturers bring these new ideas to public notice through the advertising columns of the daily papers.

Watch the advertising in The Intelligencer for suggestions for lifting some of the burdens.

Superannuation in Civil Service to Be Established

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 26.—It is intimated that Government will next session, introduce legislation re-establishing the system of superannuation in the Civil Service, abolished some years ago. This course was recommended in the report of Sir George Murray last year. The system now in vogue is to deduct a part of the monthly salary, and, on retirement, to return this amount, with compound interest.

Young Man Arrested For Highway Robbery

Appeared in Kingston Police Cou r And was Remanded for a Week.

KINGSTON, Aug. 26.—A young man, who, it is claimed, was one of the members of the gang who assaulted and robbed J. C. Gibson on Swift's wharf ome weeks ago, was arrested yesterday on board the steamer Glenmount by Officers Mullinger and Craig, and lodged in jail. He appeared before Mayor Kigney in police court this morning and was remanded for a week

It will be remembered that the other members of the gang who were arrested and sentenced for the assault on Gibson, directly implicated this man in the affair. A warran was issued for his arrest and since then the local police have been on the watch for him. Hearing that he was a member of the crew of the Glenmount, they visited the steamer yesterday and located the wanted man.

The Balkan war cost 358,000 lives and $1,300,000,000.

Mosquito Bite Cause of Death

MONTREAL, Aug. 26.—The bite of a mosquito proved fatal in the case of John H. Danes, who came to Montreal a little over a week ago, and was living at 2540 Mance street.

When he arrived Danes had a mark on his forehead no larger than an ordinary mosquito bite. He scratched it so vigorously, however, that he soon had an open sore in its place. Then his head began to swell and he went to the General Hospital.

He died yesterday, Danes was 48 years of age.. Coroner McMahon decided that the fact of the case did not warrant the holding of an inquest.

Hawk Catching Feat Of Hudson Young Lady

MONTREAL, August 26.—Hawk-catching has a great chance to becoming the popular amusement of Hudson, Que., A true tale was brought in to a city paper to-day of a deed of great daring by a young lady who was living at one of the farms at Hudson. Hearing a commotion 'midst the feathered occupants of the hen house, she went to the rescue, with visions of capturing a fox, and having a fox-skin pair of leggings.

The visitor was a hawk, however. Its talons were firmly intrenched in the neck of an ancient hen, and the victory in this case appeared to be with the strong and swift Then, enters the young lady. The ancient hen still struts proudly about, while a favorite pet around the house is a pretty hawk.

WALT MASON ON TRANSPARENT CLOTHES

Great Scott and Great Caesar! An old-fashioned geezer is shocked by your feminine clothes, with skirts that are slitted to show off silk knitted hose, garters and fixings like those! A small piece of satin you can't wrap a cat in will make a grown woman a gown; five ounces of shoddy will tog out a body, and then she goes prancing through town! The short-waisted fatty, the girl tall and slatty, the maiden as thin as a rasp, go in their hobbles till man's reason wobbles and old timers sit and gasp. If this be the fashion dressmakers! should cash in, but that they'll object to, alas! They won't be contented till they have invented a woman's regalia of glass. Do dressmaker's patrons e'er think of the matrons of old, bless their various names, their stately way going in drapery flowing those queenly and dignified dames. Oh, maiden Oh, wider! Just pause and consider your fashion, contrasted with theirs! Then, Marys and Besses, put on modest dresses and throw your fierce rags down the stairs!

CANADA TO RECEIVE HORSE FROM KING.

Montreal, Aug. 27.—Special—Canada is to have in the stables of the Federal breeding department a splendid breeding horse from the stables of King George V. This fact has just come to light, although the offer, it is understood, was made some time ago. Mr. J. F. Ryan, Montreal, who is the manager of the stables at Ottawa, sailed with Col. Sam. Hughes and the other Canadian officers, who are on their way to attend the annual autumn manoeuvres in England, to receive this splendid gift. He will bring the animal back with him when he returns next month.

Hundreds Out of Work Through Lightning Flash

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., August 26.—Following the partial destruction by fire, of the big power plant of the Lake Superior Corporation, after the building had been struck by lightning last night, 150 men are idle this morning, while the firemen and the electricians are working under pressure to get matter into shape for another start. It is hoped that a large proportion of these men will be able to recommence in a few daysfi but several hundreds will be idle for at least two weeks.

As soon as the building was struck, the operator made a dash for the swichboard in an endeavor to withdraw wthe switches, but was thrown back with great force from the board.

The transmision lines, of which there are hundreds running along the roof, caught fire and reduced the roof to ahes. So far it is not as yet known how far the huge dynamos are injured by water, and this will not be known for several days. The damage will however, run into many thousands of dollars, while all molten metal in blast and other furnaces had to be drained. It was only the timely arrival of the city department with the big new fire steamer that prevented the damage from being enormous.

Want to Stop Oscar Wilde's Book

LONDON, Aug. 26.—Fresh litigation over Oscar Wide's literary remains is threatened. John Lane, the Bodley Head publisher, who has arranged to issue Lord Alfred Douglas' book entitled "Oscar Wilde and Myself," in October, has received a writ from Robert Ross, Wilde's literary executor, on the plea that the publisher contemplates using material to the publication of which Ross objects.

Frank Harris is also jumping into the arena. He has had the type for several years of a book called "Wilde: His Life—Confessions," and has now decided to issue it in the autumn for private curculation

WAGGON PASSED OVER LAD

A three-year-old Kingston lad by the name of Peters, who lives at 225 Wellington street, met with what might have been a serious accident yesterday morning, when he fell beneath the wheels of a waggon passing the corner of Queen and Wellington streets. The back wheels passed over the boy's limbs, but he was unhurt.

WOULD NOT PROHIBIT THE "THREE-DECKER."

St. John, N.B., Aug.27.—Special—By a vote of 1,425 to 483, the electors rejected the by-law yesterday prohibiting the erection of wooden buildings of more than two stories in the city. That little interest was taken in the election is shown by the fact that of about 12,000 entitled to vote, less than 1,900 went to the polls. The most effective argument against the bylaw was the fear of increased rents if "three-deckers" were prohibited.

BARN AND AUTOMOBILE DESTROYED BY LIGHTNING

This section of the community was yesterday afternoon visited by a rather severe electric storm, which did some damage. During its progress a barn, situated on the Front of Sidney on Mrs. Zufelt's premises, was struck by lightning and burned. Just previous to the storm, Mr. E. Mastin, who resides in this city, in company with another gentleman, called at the place, to see Mrs. Zufelt's brother, Mr. A. Davis, who lives with her. Mr. Mastin had a two-seated McLaughlin automobile, and was advised to place the machine in the barn until the storm was over. He did so, with the result that the auto fell a prey to the flames. When the lightning struck the barn it appeared to set fire to all parts of the structure simultaneously. Although Mr. Masten and others ran to the barn as soon as possible, the flames were enveloping the auto. Nothing was left of the auto but the metal fittings. It had also recently been fitted with new tires. There was no insurance on the machine, which was valued at $1200. A buggy, cutter and some harness were taken out of the driveway part of the barn. The loss to Mrs. Zufelt is considerable and is only partially covered by insurance. Had it not been for the heavy downpour of rain which prevailed at the time the house would, in all probabilty, been destroyed.

WESTERN CANADA
A BUMPER WHEAT CROP
THOUSANDS OF MEN REQUIRED

This Year's Harvest promises to be be the largest in
THE HISTORY OF CANADA

According to present indications the wheat crop of 1913 will be the greatest ever harvested in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta, thus requiring the farm laborers of the East to assist in harvesting the world's greatest bread basket.

The Governments of the respective Provinces state that many thousand men will be required for this year's harvest. These will have to be principally recruited from Ontario, and the prosperity of Canada depends on securing labor promptly. The Canadian Pacific, on which Company will fall practically the entire task of transporting the men to the West, is already making special arrangements for this year. Excursions from points in Ontario to Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta will be run and special trains operated, making the trip in about thirty-six hours and avoiding any change of cars or transfers. This will be a day shorter than any other route. Dates, rates and conditions will be announced in a few days.

A GOOD EXAMPLE

Almost every one who read what Mrs. Marshall said about "How to Keep a Husband Happy," will admit the Vice-President of the United States has a sensible wife. Most matrimonial shipwrecks are due to financial shoals. Women, therefore, would do well to heed Mrs. Marshall's chief precept:

> "Spend not even one penny more than the family income permits."

Sensible economy is the very keystone of peace in the home. The advice of the Vice-President's wife is wholesome, sound and logical.

A window recently patented by a French inventor consists of a number of pivoted sections which may be moved to any desired angle by pulling a chain.

WEATHER FORECASTS FOR SEPT.

BY IRL R. HICKS

A reactionary storm period will be in full strength on the 1st, 2nd and 3rd. This period will feel the shock of the moon's eclipse conjunction with earth and sun on August 31st, intensified by moon in perigee and on the equator on the 1st. Equinoctial storms, attended by great electrical disturbances and widespread earthquake convulsions, will very probably occur at this time. The first day of September, and days next to it, will be a critical storm and seismic centre. Change to much cooler weather, with frosty nights in northern latitudes, need not be surprising from about the 2nd to the 6th, with daily progression from northwest to southeastward.

A regular storm period is at its centre, on the 8th, covering the 6th to the 12th. It will be remembered by those who have studied our forecasts closely, that September the 11th, and a few days before and after that date, as a rule brings a phenomenal crisis in the magnetic and electrical elements. Northern lights, electrical storms, earth currents, volcanic unrest and all related phenomena are most probable about this time. If the barometer fluctuates rapidly, finally falling to very low readings, any time in or about this period, such may be regarded as evidence of violent winds, hurricanes and possibly tornadoes. These disturbances will probably culminate on the 9th, 10th, 11th and 12th. Cool nights with frost in the northwest will follow this period, spreading eastwardly over the country from about the 10th to the 13th.

A reactionary storm period will bring storms and other disturbances on and touching the 14th, 15th and 16th. The full moon is at an eclipse node on the 15th, and on the same date it is in apogee and on the celestial equator. The great planet, Saturn, is in quadrature with earth and sun on the 10th—a fact that almost certainly increases the tendency to sever earthquakes for several days before and after. This period is also near the centre of the earth's autumnal equinox, and at the entrance of the Mercury equinox. Watch your barometer at this period; it will foretell the approach of any possible danger from atmospheric convulsions. Earthquakes and storms will reach a marked crisis within sixty hours of sunset on the 15th. Another high barometer, and change to very much cooler, with frost northward, will follow on the western flanks of these storms. Watchfulness may save many perishable plants and fruits from damage—especially in the northwestern to central sections.

A regular storm period involves the 17th to the 22nd. This period is at the centre of earth's autumnal equinox. The Vulcan, Mercury, Earth and Jupiter disturbances will all combine their forces on this period. Equinoctial storms of wide sweep and violent force are more than probable at this time. A correct interpretation of barometric readings will foreshadow the nature of approaching storms before they strike. Boreal storms from the northwest, will meet tropical storms from equatorial regions at this time, resulting in tornadic storms over central to southern states and change to much cooler and frosts will result in many states as a sequel to these equinoctial convulsions.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 25th, 26th and 27th. This period is at the centre of the Mercury period, and at the culminating crisis of the autumnal equinox of the earth. There are strong probabilities of a spell of threatening, stormy weather extending over several days, and perhaps filling the gap between the regular storm periods immediately before and after these dates. We calculate that equatorial, or equinoctial storms and hurricanes will be more numerous and more severe during this autumnal period than common. In their progress from the West Indies, under the influence of the Jupiter and earth periods, they will outlast and overlap the normal limitations of regular and reactionary storm periods. But they will take on increased energy, and be joined by local and inland storms of intensifying violence, during the central days of the storm periods. There will be danger of frosts at nights in the high barometer areas that follow on the heels of storm areas, and the danger of frosts at these times will be in proportion to the lowness of barometer readings attendong the storms. The 29th and 30th belong to a regular storm period central in October. On and about the 29th there are good reasons to expect violent perturbations of earth, atmosphere and seas. On that date moon is in perigee, on the equator and new at an eclipse node. One of the maximum seismic periods of the year is central on the 29th, extending from about the 25th to October the 5th. Sea coasts are not elevated well above sea level, in all parts of the globe especially exposed to equinoctial storms and tidal waves will be subject to such dangers at this time. In such localities, the barometer should be closely watched, and storm warnings heeded.

LORD STRATHCONA COMING TO CANADA

Lord Strathcona sailed for Canada on Saturday abroad the Lusitania. Expectation is rife as to the purpose of the trip though intimation from official circles points to the belief that the forthcoming visit is undertaken for reasons of a purely personal nature.

Depite this assurance however the belief is expressed, as it was also on the occasion of a former visit in 1911, that his Lordship's retirement from the high commissionership is imminent.. Official confirmation or denial by Lord Strathcona himself when he arrives in Ottawa will be the only means of solving the rumor.. An added significance on the present occasion is the fact that his lordship's name was not on the boat's sailing list up to the day preceding that of sailing, and he caught the boat train from London London at the last moment. Lady Strathcona is accompanying her husband to Canada.

MESSAGE DEFERRED FOR RECONSIDERATION

Mexican Crisis Is Still Grave and Departure of John Lind From Mexico City Is Intended as a Hint to Huerta That Quick Action Is Necessary—Note to Congress To Be Given To-day.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Aug. 27.—The Mexican crisis still exists. Although information received over night from John Lind, President Wilson's special adviser, in connection with the effort to establish peace in the southern republic, has caused the President to defer until to-day the delivery of his momentous address reviewing his efforts for peace, the situation reamins practically unchanged. There is only the faintest hope among officials that the Mexican Government will so modify its attitude of opposition to the American proposals as to permit a re-opening of the negotiations, with a prospect of their conclusion in a manner acceptable to the United States.

Mr. Lind's departure from Mexico City for Vera Cruz to-day, as reported in press despatches, does not mean that he has been definitely recalled and that peace negotiations have been broken off. It does mean, however, that this Govrnment has no hope that a request from the Mexican Government that the President postpone the delivery of his Mexican address to Congress will result in a change for the better in the diplomatic situation.

Mr. Lind, it is understood, departed from Mexico City after notifying the Minister for Foreign Affairs that the delivery of the President's address would be deferred as requested, and that if the Mexican Government desired to communicate with him further he would be glad to receive its message at Vera Cruz.

This action of Mr. Lind was intended as a hint that unless Mexico had something definite to suggest toward an agreement with the United States that would furnish the foundation for restoring normal conditions in the country Mr. Lind would regard his peace mission as a failure, and would return to the United States.

Secretary Bryan said last evening that Mr. Lind had not been recalled. But it was indicated by other officials that unless Mexico came forward with an expression of willingness to accept the American peace terms, in principle at least, President Wilson would make known to the American Congress the failure of the conciliatory efforts, and would propose a program for future handling of the Mexican situation that might be construed in Mexico as the first step in the line of ultimate American intervention.

Last night President Wilson's intention was to read his address to the Senate and House assembled in joint session at three o'clock yesterday afternoon. The advices from Mr. Lind caused this program to be rearranged so that unless the unexpected happens the delivery of the address will take place at one o'clock to-day.

The State Department is engaged in the preparation of a list of all the Americans who have been killed, wounded, robbed or attacked or threatened in any manner. There is apprehension of trouble when the time comes to order all Americans to withdraw from the country if such a course is decided on. Then if at any time, disorder and violence would occur, and unless well-armed and provisioned caretakers were left with the many valuable properties, robbery and the destruction of thousands of mining and manufacturing plants and ranch improvements would follow.

SENDS CALL FOR MEN

Saskatchewan Requires 8,000 Harvesters at Once.

Crop Situation In the Regina District Is Complicated by Lack of Farm Hands and Insistent Demands For Assistance — Threshing In Progress Around Brandon, Portage and Morden, Man.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 27.—Threshing is going on apace in Brandon, Portage la Prairie and Morden districts. The grade is good and the yield excellent.

With the crop rapidly maturing all over the country and less than 200 men presenting themselves for work in the harvest fields, to-day, the farmers of Saskatchewan are clamoring for help. Advices received at railway companies' offices in the city are to the effect that the crop this year surpasses all records, and is as a matter of fact, actually earlier at most points than it was last year.

Many districts where there was believed to be plenty of help to take care of the crop in the sister province, are now telegraphing to Winnipeg for help, but there is no prospect that any substantial help can be had until after the next influx from the east, which cannot reach the city before late to-day.

About 2,000 men are scheduled to arrive in the city to-night, and a like number will be here Thursday morning, but these men are all requisitioned in advance, and steps will have to be taken to provide men to fill the demand which officials expect will gather in volume during the next week. Speaking of the number now actually required, representatives of the Saskatchewan Government stated yesterday that at least 8,000 men are required immediately in that province to get work completed without undue risk to farmers.

Officials of the G. T. P. stated yesterday that telegrams are now being received at the offices of the company to the effect that help must be sent out to the district round Regina and to the centre divisions of the main line to enable the crop there to be taken care of. Farmers on the main line section, however, have themselves to blame to a certain extent, as men were sent out and found that they were a little too soon, and farmers refused to hire them, with the result that they were sent elsewhere. Some difficulty is found in filling their places, and men who would otherwise have been sent to other points have to be sent to the district which should have been satisfied.

Saskatchewan officials stated yesterday that the state of matters disclosed in requisitions, which have been received, go to show that many of the districts where it was believed there was abundance of help are now urgent in their demands for laborers.

Calls are coming in from all points on the C.P.R. main line for help, and in the particular district west of Indian Head and in Alameda, Carnduff and Manor sections there are not nearly men enough, although officials in the city believed that these districts had been allotted sufficient men to obviate any possible hardship in the way of labor shortage.

Down the Soo line and in Melford districts also men are now required in numbers which officials in the city are unable to supply.

So far the crop in the province of Manitoba has been taken care of admirably, and there is no reason to believe that the shortage of harvest help in Saskatchewan will be felt here, according to statements made by the passenger department of the C. P. R. Immigration officials state that there are few men in the city to send out, as most of the unemployed who desired work in harvest fields have been already sent to positions on farms.

Trains which will arrive to-night and to-morrow morning will go a long way to satisfy the demand, and if the weather holds officials do not anticipate much actual loss through want of help.

On the whole the response from the east has been greater this year than last, and the type of men who have come west is infinitely better.

About four hundred harvest hands from the eastern provinces arrived last night on a special train from Duluth and were immediately despatched westwards.

SPENT LIFE IN GALLEYS.

And Now Broken Old Italian Is Proven Innocent.

MILAN, Aug. 27.—After 38 years in the galleys in Sicily, Erasmus Vassalo, as the outcome of a deathbed confession, has been proclaimed innocent and has been freed. With three other victims who in the meantime have died in prison, Vassalo was condemned to hard labor for life at the Palermo assizes in 1877 on a charge of murder. He had already spent two years in confinement awaiting trial. Never since has he ceased protesting ihs innocence to deaf ears. The confession regarding the real assassin came from the family of the murdered man, dictated in the presence of a priest and notary. Vassalo, now 62, is broken in health by the harsh Italian prison regime, and can scarcely speak. The prison authorities left him to pay his own fare from Ancoma to his native Palermo. On reaching home he found his wife and all relatives, save his only son, long since dead.

Ottawa Wins Cup.

TORONTO, Aug. 27.—The team from the 43rd, D.C.O.R., Ottawa, carried off the Gzowski Cup, the great skirmishing match of the Dominion Rifle Association meet at Rockliffe Ranges, and also annexed the British Challenge Shield, which is given the team making the highest combined scores in the Gzowski and Dundonald matches.

Rain, which threatened all day, really never got started, and conditions were ideal for the riflemen. Scores were consequently high.

FOUND GERMANY OUT

Japan Refused an Alliance With the Fatherland.

Publication of Late Count Hayashi's Diary Reveals Interesting Facts Regarding the Anglo-Japanese Treaty—Britain Wanted to Link Up With Germany, But Japan Refused.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—The revelation that the diplomatic negotiations which finally resulted in the Anglo-Japanese alliance first contemplated an Anglo-German-Japanese triple alliance and that Germany was largely instrumental in starting them, but was shut out by Japan, is made in the diary of the late Count Tadasu Hayashi, former Japanese ambassador to Great Britain and twice Foreign Minister, part of which was recently published.

The Jiji Shimpo of Tokio printed portions of the diary, but the Japanese Government prohibited further publication and the censor suppressed telegrams sent by foreign correspondents in Japan reporting details.

The diary showed that the British Government, under the Premiership of the late Marquis of Salisbury was in favor of the inclusion of Germany, but that Japan opposed it. Count Hayashi, in order to bring about the formation of a triple alliance between Great Britain, Germany and Japan, he said he knew the British Government and such personages as Joseph Chamberlain, Arthur Balfour, Lord Lansdowne, the Duke of Devonshire and the Marquis of Salisbury were in favor of it. He said that the German nation was strongly anti-British, but not the German Government. He added that King Edward, Emperor William and Imperial Chancellor von Buelow had recently had long conversations on the subject at Osborne in the Isle of Wight, and were anxious for such a triple alliance.

Count Hayashi approached Lord Lansdowne, then British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, suggested an Anglo-Japanese agreement on policy in China.

Lord Lansdowne, in reply, said he thought a third power should be included. A program was roughly drafted at that time and this afterwards became the treaty of alliance.

Japan suggested that a third party should be omitted from the alliance because Anglo-Japanese interests were identical. Great Britain, however, for some time clung to the idea of a triple alliance according to Count Hayashi, as she was anxious for an alliance with Germany in order to isolate the Franco-Russian alliance in any action it might take in the far east or elsewhere.

In the end the Japanese wishes prevailed.

A Native Indian Royal Wedding

LONDON, Aug. 26.—Two of the most powerful native ruling families of British India were united yesterday when Princess Indira, only daughter of the reigning Maharajah Gackwar, of Baroda, was married here to Prince Jitendra, son of the Maharajah of Cooch-Behar, after a romantic courtship.

The most intense interest has been aroused in the attachment of the couple, whose wedding had first been fixed to take place in India on May 5th, but was suddenly broken off, after which the bride and her parents sailed from Bombay for England, and were followed by Prince Jitendra.

It is understood that the Gaekwar finally yielded to the importunities of his daughter and consented to the marriage, at which, however he was not present.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

"THE GIRL AND THE BARON"

The Manager of the "The Girl and The Baron" company, the big Broadway musical production which comes to Griffins Opera House on Wednesday, Sept. 3, relates a very good yarn on the cornet player in the orchestra in a small Texas town. The orchestra had been called to rehearse the music of the production, but the cornet player failed to put in an appearance and after a long wait the company's musical director began to lose patience and demanded that he be sent for, As it was most important that he be on hand. "Why it's useless to send for him, he is busy and won't come because it is too fine a day, but if it had rained he would have been the first one here."

"In the name of all that's wonderful, gasped the surprised director, "What do you mean by that?"

"Simplicity enough" replied the unabashed clarionette player, "because if it rains he can come, but when it's fine weather no, for he drives the city sprinkling cart, and it's too dusty today".

A Kingston Newsboy's Financial Luck

KINGSTON, Aug. 26—Little "Freddie" Stanford is one of the Whig's many newsboys, and probably the youngest of them all. Freddy, not more than five or six years of age, bare footed and in overalls, which reached half way to his knees, was on Swift's wharf on Monday evening with his papers.

The steamer Toronto was in, and Freddy, with other "newsies," approached the gangway, where a number of lady and gentlemen passengers were standing. One of the ladies saw the little chap and heard him calling out: "Tonight's Whig! "Tonight's Whig!" The young "newsy" immediately took her fancy, and she began throwing coppers on to the wharf to him. Other passengers followed suit. Freddy was assisted in picking up the coppers and also some silver pieces by a number of the other newsboys and people standing on the wharf, and he deposited them in his pockets, laughing as if he had just wakened up on Christmas morning and had caught a glimpse of a richly laden and decorated tree.

It was a profitable few minutes for the little Whig lad and provided good fun for the generous passengers and those standing about at the time. It is safe to say that Freddy will not fail to visit the wharf again, when he is selling papers.

Canadian Clubs in Congress at Hamilton

HAMILTON, Aug. 26.—The fifth annual conference of the Association of Canadian Clubs opened in the Conservatory of Music this morning. Today was devoted to buiness, and tomorrow also, but Wednesday will be spent sight-seeing in the Niagara district. Mr. W. M. McClemont, President, occupied the chair, and announced the appointment of the following Chairman of Committees: Resolutions, C. R. McCullough; Nominations, W. Sanford Evans; Secretary's report, J. H. Bons.

Mr. G. Edwin Main, Honorary Secretary, presented the annual report. He said the date of the conference had been fixed so as to coincide with that of the Canadian National Exhibition, in order to secure cheap railway fares. He made reference to the Victoria Women's Canadian Club's desire to send a testimonial to Sir. Charles Tupper, and the Orillia Canadian's Club proposal that the tercentenary of the advent of the white man to that district be celebrated. A sub-committee was named to report on those suggestions and also on a proposal to establish the office of permanent Secretary.

WHEN ROGUES FALL OUT

The fight in the State of New York over the impeachment of the Governor is becoming interesting, and may develop into a still further exposure of the inward doings of Tammany and its political manipulators. It is difficult to believe that anything Governor Sulzer can say about them will be of a worse character than the past history of Tammany has shown.

From the following telegram it would appear that the Governor is after the scalps of some of his former associates. He ought to know them.

Albany, Aug. 26.—An effort will be made this week, according to confidents of Governor Sulzer, to procure the indictment of several members of the Legislature who were most active in the impeachment of the Governor and also the indictment of certain men of high authority in Tammany Hall, who are not officially connected with the Legislature. One of the charges, it is said, will be criminal conspiracy.

This is the latest strategic move of the Sulzar "war board," as outlined to-day by Judge Lynn Jarnold, one of Governor Sulzer's most trusted advisors.

Lawyers and laymen here who had a hand in the Sulzer programme, expressed confidence that their contemplated move will block the impeachment trial. They declare that when the evidence they have collected is made public it will cause the Court of Appeals to decline to join the Senate in a trial, and that this will cause the whole matter to fall to the ground, as the Senate would have no power under the constitution to proceed alone with the trial.

THE ANGLO-FRENCH TUNNEL

Great enthusiasm is being expressed everywhere in France in regard to the increasing probability of an Anglo-French tunnel under the Dover Straits becoming an accomplished fact.

"Le Temps," "Le Journal des Debats," "Le Figaro" and M. Clemenceau's paper, "L'Homme Libre," are all favoring the scheme, which, to meet French ideas, should be a double barrelled tunnel, one for railway traffic and one for an automobile highway.

President Poincare, Premier Barthou, the War Minister, M. Steeg, the Naval Minister, M. Blaudin, and Senators Georges Clemenceau, Alexandre Ribot, D'Estournelles de Constant, have all expressed themselves as warm partisans of the double-barrelled tunnel scheme, which they hope will be eventually acceptable to the British Council of Imperial Defence.

The objection, in the past, to this tunnel was fear of invasion from France into England, and from England into France. To the ordinary mind this objection seems childish. To prevent invasion, all that would be necessary to do would be to flood the tunnel.

Many a man who growls all day goes home and kicks the dog for barking at night.

ELECTION FRAUDS

The Hon. Robert Rogers is continuing his good work in the West in exposing the political wrongs inflicted upon the electors of Saskatchewan by the Scott Government of that Province. At a luncheon given in Moose Jaw on the 24th inst., the Hon. Mr. Rogers, among other things said: "You are undoubtedly carrying a greater handicap than that carried by any other Province in our Dominion, by reason of the fact that you occupy the unenviable position of not having respnsible Government under British law and British justice, caused by the methods of the Scott administration to maintain Laurierism in the prairies." In substantiation of this statement Mr. Rogers quoted numerous instances showing utter disregard of British justice and fair play by the Scott-Calder administration.

The denunciation of the conditions prevailing in Saskatchewan was received with ringing cheers, and the sentiment of the gathering was that the Minister of Public Works had not been severe enough in his condemnation of the degradation of public life in this Province by the party of secession, disloyalty and dishonor.

After the luncheon, some of the men who represent British sentiment in this Province retailed dozens of examples of methods employed by the representatives of Laurierism in this Province.

Mr. Rogers gave most telling evidence pertaining to the efforts of the local machine to secure the election of Premier Scott himself. In Swift Current, in a vote of 1,330, Premier Scott claimed election by 200 majority, but sworn evidence produced by the Minister of Public Works showed that 500 Britishers had been deprived of their franchise, and 100 non-residents and 200 aliens given the franchise, to secure the election of this leader.

"What more conclusive evidence could be given of the disloyalty of Laurierism on the prairie," said Mr. Rogers, "than the action of the Government in removing the British subject clause from the election oath, and the work of the Government supporters in advertising the fact that it was not necessary to be a citizen of the country to exercise the franchise; that they hailed with enthusiasm the fact that a 'Hindoo, Hottentot or Chinaman' had as much right to participate in the election of representatives in a British country as the Britishers who were permitted by the Scott machine to participate?"

The handicap placed on this Province by the lack of responsible government was illustrated in the closing words of Mr. Rogers' address: "Our great natural resources command the admiration of the civilized world, and let us hope that the day is not far distant when through the action of your good citizens with the establishment of responsible government, under British law, and British justice, you will be able to take up with the Government of Canada the great question of the transfer from the Dominion to this Province of your natural resources."

Montreal Gazette: "The working expenses of the Canadian Pacific railway for the past fiscal year, which were $93,149,000, amounted to 66.82 per cent. of the gross earnings of $139,395,000. Working expenses represent wages and the product of wage earners' work. The figures stated not only show how great a part the transportation interest plays in the industrial field, but that the worker is receiving a steadily growing proportion of the whole income of the railways. Some roads, fortunately situated, stand the strain. Some find that it reduces their power to raise new capital because it cuts the earning power of that already invested in them.

Equality of strength in both arms occurs almost twice as frequently with women as with men, more men than women being stronger in the right arm than in the left.

SCIENTIFIC LIST OF FAMOUS WOMEN

Queer Deductions Arrived at by Woman Who Carefully Studied Subject—Many Were Queens

Mrs. Cora Sutton Castle, Ph.D., of Columbia University worked with painstaking and scientific care for four years to compile "A Statistical Study of Eminent Women," containing the names of 868 women, whose eminence was estimated under the definition of the Century Dictionary, which says "high in rank, office, worth or public estimation, conspicuous, highly distinguished."

The first twenty women on Dr. Castle's list, arranged according to their eminence, are:

Mary Queen of Scots, Joan of Arc, Victoria of England, Elizabeth of England, George Sand, Mme. de Stael, Catherine II. of Russia, Maria Theresa, Marie Antoinette, Anne of England, Mme. de Sevigne, Mary I. of England, George Eliot, Christina of Sweden, Elizabeth Barrett Browning, Mme. de Maintenon, Josephine of France, Catherine de Medici, Cleoptara and Harriet Beecheer Stowe.

"The race between Cleoptara and Harriet Beecher Stowe," said one reviewer, "to say nothing of Jeanne d'Arc coming in one lap ahead of Queen Victoria, is an interesting spectacle. Dr. Castle's list abounds in these curious juxtapositions. Marie Brinvilliers, for instance, whose chief claim to fame rests in the number of people she managed to poison, just precedes Genevieve, the patron saint of Paris. Charlotte Corday is one behind Charlotte Bronte."

Dr. Castle is convinced that eminence among women has been severely inhibited by lack of opportunity and points out that the eighteenth century furnished 24.5 per cent. of the total list of eminent women, while the nineteenth supplied 38.5, which means that 63 per cent. in all, were born during the last two centuries. "Of course, it is inevitable," she says, "that the work of contemporary and near-contemporary women should be recorded more abundantly, but that rule works both ways, for while the number of women recorded may be greater because the material is near at hand they are often underestimated and it will take many years for them to become adjusted to their proper places in the world's history.

"Forty-two nations produced the 868 eminent women, among which England stands first with 178, France second with 170, Germany third with 144, and America has 75.

"Twenty-nine different fields of celebrity are represented in this list of women, among which fields literature leads with 337 cases, marriage comes in as a rather distant second with 87, and religion, sovereign, actress, music, birth, mistress, scholar, political influence or ability, artist, philanthropy, tragic fate, heroine, motherhood, reformer, dancer, and immortalized in literature follow in order."

USING WASTE PAPER

Many Ways in Which They Prove Valuable in the Home

Tissue and all soft papers are splendid for polishing windows. The texture is firm enough to stand a good deal of rubbing, and as the parts soil they can be thrown away. In this way a clean surface is applied to the glass throughout the operation. In using a duster the soiled part is rubbed again and again on the glass. This small point is worth considering.

Paper is the one great agent for cleaning the outside of frying pans and saucepans. A brisk rubbing with pieces of old newspapers will remove every trace of soot from the outsides of these vessels after using, then they can be washed readily inside and out.

The inside of a frying pan, too, readily yields its grease and burnt color if well rubbed with a piece of paper. When all the grease has been removed it can be washed in the usual way with no difficulty whatever.

Candlesticks, when made hot, will yield all their grease to soft paper far better than to a duster.

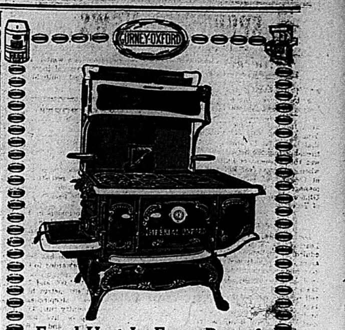
When grates and stoves are blackleaded the use of paper daily will keep up a high polish and remove all spots, thus saving more labor in re-black-leading.

Brass work and door- plates will keep their lustre longer by being rubbed with paper than with a cloth.

Newspapers put down evenly and thickly under carpets not only make the carpet feel trebly thick and soft under foot, but moths, disliking the printers' ink exceedingly, will not lay their eggs near it. It is also said that moths will not molest furs if wrapped in newspapers when put away.

Shredded and finely cut paper makes a very good filling for cushions and pillows.

It doesn't take a bride long to discover that no woman can live in absolute content and a vine-clad cottage with a tightwad husband.



Equal Heat In Every Part of The Gurney-Oxford Oven

Every woman well knows the bad results from constantly opening the oven door to move a cake to another shelf or turn a pan of biscuits. Often the shifting or the cold air striking in proves utterly disastrous to her baking.

The Divided Flue on the Gurney-Oxford range equally distributes the heat to all parts of the oven which is regulated to the exact temperature required by means of the Economizer.

This wonderful time-labor-and-money-saving device controls the heat of the whole range.

It is worked by a small handle which moves around a series of six notches. The housewife soon learns that by moving the handle to No. 1 she has a very hot oven, to No. 3 a moderate oven, and that No. 6 checks the fire so as to burn scarcely any coal while she goes out shopping On her return she simply moves the handle to the number that gives the required heat and the result is prompt.

The smooth top castings will not catch or retain grease.

The bright nickle trimming lifts off for cleaning and keeps the range new and shining in appearance.

For years stove experts have been working out woman's problem in the kitchen and the Gurney-Oxford range is the solution.

SPORTING NEWS

THE RING

ARTHUR PELKEY HAS RETIRED

Arthur Pelkey, the white champion heavyweight of the world whose home is in Chatham, Ont., was so unnerved after the fatal accident to "Bull" Young in the ring at Los Angeles, that last night he announced his retirement from the fistic arena. Pelkey was the opponent of Luther McCarty when the latter was killed in a bout at Calgary on Victoria Day. The manager of "Bull" Young was Harry Glimore, jun., of Chicago, formerly of Toronto.

BOUT POSTPONED

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 26.—The Leach Cross-Johnny Dundee bout scheduled for September 1, at the Vernon arena, was postponed indefinitely last night in deference to the death of John Bull Young. The action was taken at the suggestion of Cross himself on the ground that it would be best "to wait awhile." Further investigation of the cause of Young's death as a result of injuries received in the Vernon Arena with Jesse Williard, probably will await the verdict of coroner's jury. Agitation continues for legal action to prevent prize fights at Vernon as well as elsewhere in the state.

CANADA HAS THREE CLAIMS

Eliminating Jack Johnson—and that brunette gentleman is hereby considered eliminated, obliterated and wiped out—has it occurred to you, friend reader, that the three men who have the best right to put "heavyweight champion of the world" on their calling cards are all Canadians?

No, it has not. Yet it is even so. Truly, the press is of great educational influence. Except for us you might have gone to your grave without that knowledge.

First, there is Tommy Burns, Tommy, who is a native of Hanover, Ont., and a Citizen of Calgary, has at least a theoretrical hold on the title. He was the recognized champion until defeated by Johnson. Considering Johnson as legally moribund, a court of law, after examining all the evidence and precedents, would, if the title were a piece of real property, like a corner lot or a beefsteak, probably decide that Tommy is the rightful heir.

Then there is Arthur Pelky, or Pelkey, the name being spelled both ways, according to whether or not the printer is short of ee's. Whatever claim Luther McCarty had to the title—the same being about the shadow of the spook of a claim—has certainly descended to the giant Arthur, by reason of his tragic victory at Calgary. Arthur is a native of Chatham, Ont.

Leaving theoretical claims and white hope titles out of the question and coming down to real fighting ability, Canada scores again with Mr. Samuel Langford. True, the "tar baby" has lived so long in Boston that he is usually considered a native of the Bean City, but such is not the case. The records give to Weymouth, Nova Scotia, whatever honor attaches to being Sam's birthplace. There isn't much doubt that Samuel is the best of the bunch of the present-day heavyweights. Joseph Jeanette is the only boxer who has any business to dispute this proposition.

Canada has turned out a lot of good fighters. George Dixon, the greatest of the little fellows, was born in the Dominion. Kid Lavigne, the classiest of lightweights, while a native of Michigan, was of French-Canadian descent.

HOCKEY.

RESPECT HOCKEY CONTRACTS

Montreal, Aug 26.- Although there will be no hockey commission this season, a working agreement between the East and West in Professional hockey, is assured on the same lines as that between the Dominion Lacrosse Association and the Western body. Frank Patrick was joined today by his brother Lester.

Manager Kennedy of the Canadians stated, although he had not seen Patrick he understood that an agreement would be reached whereby the eastern clubs would retain the players who were under contract to them a year ago, and the west would do the same. Any new men joining the professional ranks will be free to accept the best offer made to them.

This will not likely mean a reduction n salaries from last winter, but will eliminate all chances of increase through the east or east outbidding one another.

GENERAL SPORTS

WALK AN OLYMPIC FIXTURE

The 3,000 and 10,000 metre walking events are to remain on the Olympic programme of the future. United States, Great Britain, and the British Colonies, stood behind pedestrian's sport, and but for their vote it would have been a thing of the past.

Finland, Denmark and Sweden alone supported the inclusion in the programme of the Greek style of throwing the dicuss with both hands and the free style shot putting, dicuss and javelin throwing.

The following programme has been compiled and will be forwarded to the Olympic Committee for recognition.

Standard runs up to 5,000 and 10,000 metres; 110 and 400 metres hurdles; 3,000 metres steeplechase 10,000 metres cross country run; 3,000 metres race for teams of five men, 3 to count; 400 metres and 1,600 metres relay races; 3,000 and 10,000 metres walks, the marathon race, running broad and running high jumps; pole vault; hop step and jump; throwing the javelin, throwing the dicus and putting the shot, best hand only; throwing the javelin, with the javelin held in the middle; throwing the hammer; 56 pounds weight; tug of war, team of eight men; the pentathlon and the decathon.

BASEBALL.

ATHLETICS HAVE ELEVEN PLAYERS ON HOSPITAL LIST

What ever chances remained for a shift in the prospect that the Giants and Athletics would once more face each other as world's series contenders faded almost to the vanishing pont in the gloaming of Monday. Twelve full games now separate New York and Philadelphia in the National League with the Quakers wobbling and the Giants again in the full stride of their fast 1913 gait.

In the other division the Athletics, although shot to pieces with injuries have been able not only to hold their lead, but to increase it. Just when they should have shown quality and aggressiveness if they hoped to win, the Cleveland Naps failed badly, and wtih a string of defeats broken out once during the past week found them trailing the leaders by nine games as the new playing week opens.

From the present appearance Manager McGraw soon can begin to groom Mathewson, Marquard and Tesreau and Demaree for the post-season fray, while Conie Mack will have to pick the youngster to co-operate with Bender and Plank unless Jack Coombs shall have recuperated sufficently by October to take a stand on the firing line.

The poor showing of the Clevelands and the successful struggle of the Athletics, with no less than eleven men on the hospital list to hold their lead, were the striking features of the play in the American league. The Philadelphia club's catching department became so serious with Lapp, Thomas and Schang laid up with injuries, the veteran first baseman Hary Davis, had to go behind the bat on Saturday. Oldring had tried his hand at shortstopping with considerable success, but Mack has now Lavin the new man he secured from the Browns, to fill in until Barry recovers. Houck, Brown and Shawkey, the team's young pitchers, have stood up nobly under the strain, and between them are accountable for the Athetic's four victories, while two of the game dropped were by the veterans, Bender and Plank, last week.

A HAZARDOUS SPORT

The whir-r-r-r of a motorcycle, tipped at an angle of 90 degrees and traveling at the rate of 100 miles an hour on a board track, is the music which sounds sweetest to the speed demon.

Motorcycle racing is the most hazardous of all racing—the last word in the mania for speed. Although only a few years old, this sport, dangerous as can be imagined, nerve-racking in the extreme, has taken deep root.

It has the same peculiar hold on racers it has on spectators. They cannot withstand it. Although they realize that for them death lurks at every turn they can scarcely be dragged off the track at the finish of a race. Excitement for them is life, and in motorcycle racing they find it in the unadulterated form.

Speed, speed and still more speed is the demand of the day. Riders are trying their best to satisfy the demand. Already there have been miles ridden in less than 37 seconds, but neither riders nor spectators are satisfied. They want a speed of a mile in 30 seconds, and believe that they will attain it.

WHAT ONE MAN DID

Ban Johnson Did Much to Make Baseball What It Is

Organized baseball owes much to Ban Johnson. He broke in as a rebel chief but once firmly established in power became the big czar. Johnson, through his American League, instituted a number of long-needed reforms. He made of the much-abused umpire a national figure instead of a "scapegoat," and by forcing respect for him from the player eventually commanded also the veneration of fandom. It was Johnson who was largely instrumental in stamping out all forms of rowdyism upon the field. And when he had forced recognition to equality from the National League, he was one of the leading spirits for peace and good will toward one happy, concerted union for the common good.

The Johnson regime marked a new era in professional baseball. He was at first looked upon with suspicion. It was not believed at the time he expanded to major league distinction that there was room for two big circuits. He not only proved that there was but added such an impetus toward universal patronage that the great pastime has gone booming on more and more steadily with each succeeding season.

A BATTERED BATTLER

Nelson Has Lots of Money But He Is Entitled to It

It is doubtful if a more thoroughly "beaten up" individual than Oscar Matthew Battling Nelson ever appeared before the public.

Nelson took everything that came his way for years, including large purses, punches and theatrical contracts. He is worth perhaps a quarter of a million, all of which he has earned with his pair of broken hands and broken-up countenance. Look at his nose, broken so often that he has lost count of the breaks. Look at his cauliflower ear, caused by stopping punches with the side of his head. Look at his hands, knocked out of all resemblance to human hands by landing unscientifically, but effectively upon the heads of opponents, and then ask yourself if you would look like the Battler for all of his money?

Battling Nelson's disfigured countenance and battered hands.

This Editor Knows Golf

A western editor evidently knew whereof he spoke when he made the following comment on his editorial page: "Golf is something like the newspaper industry. Anyone who has never tried it can publish a paper better than the average editor. Anyone who has never attempted to club a small ball over a quarter section of land knows in his heart that he can do the thing far easier than the pitiful wretches he observes going through the motions. Some people who have never played simply know it is as easy as rolling off a log."

Electric production of ferro-silicon as well as potash will be carried out by a new method in Sweden, employing current from hydro-electric plants.

Heavy Cost of Big Battles

It is a little curious that some of the most far-famed battles—Titanic struggles we are accustomed to call them—have really been less destructive than less well-known battles. We look upon Sedan as a battle of giants, but it was less costly in life and limb than Plevna, and both of them were much less murderous than Blenheim or Waterloo, which in their turn are surpassed in the gruesome list by the little-advertized battle of Assaye, when thirty-one per cent. of the British troops were placed hors de combat.

Nosegays for Place Cards

Have you tried the nosegay place cards? They are so easy to make, so dainty and so individual. Buy a dozen of the tiny paper-lace doilies. Make miniature, old fashioned bouquets of fresh flowers in several colors—sweet Alyssum, forget-me-nots, rosebuds, sweet peas and bachelor's buttons are a good combination, says Good Housekeeping.

Tie the stems of each bouquet to a small stick and place in a glass of water in a cool, dark place until just before the meal is served. Then make a hole in the middle of each doily, put the little posy through it, and fold the lace up around the flowers and wrap the stems in tin-foil.

Then with a bit of narrow ribbon corresponding to the color scheme of your table tie a little name card to each nosegay. If a pin is put in each bouquet guests may then wear the nosegays as boutonnieres.

DRUGS EASILY GOT.

Too Much Cocaine Sold In Ontario Says W. B. Graham.

TORONTO, Aug. 27.—That there were many unscrupulous druggists who exacted profit at the expense of human life, and that the terrible cocaine fiend was becoming more common each year, was the statement made by W. B. Graham, registrar and treasurer of the Ontario College of Pharmacy, while reading a paper to the annual convention of the Dominion Pharmaceutical Association yesterday afternoon. Mr. Graham, who is inspector of drug sales for the college, dealt very extensively with the degrading influences resulting from the use of obnoxious drugs, in an address entitled "Laws Governing the Sale of Habit-forming Drugs and the Benefits from their Proper Administration."

Mr. Graham declared that the cocaine laws of the province and the Dominion had not been put on the statute books any too soon. As inspector of sales of large amounts of cocaine for the college he could say that there was more cocaine being sold than was absolutely necessary for medical purposes. This was also his opinion with regard to morphine and opium.

There was little doubt in the mind of Mr. Graham that immediate steps should be taken to curtail the illegitimate sale of the habit-forming drug. It would indeed be a wise policy for both provincial and Dominion Governments to expend a sum of money toward furthering this end. Mr. Graham contended that much money was annually spent to restrict the sale of liquor, but that nothing was done to prevent fellow-men from becoming drug fiends.

Over two thousand ounces of cocaine were sold during the past year in Ontario, and that was far more than necessary for prescription and surgical uses. Therefore, a number of people had suffered at the hands of the druggists, financially, physically, mentally and morally. An earnest appeal was made by the speaker to the delegates to discontinue keeping in stock any more of the drug than was allowed under the law, and if a prescription was duplicated by a physician too often, to report him to the authorities. There was a penalty for physicians who used the drug improperly.

KARLUK DAMAGED IN ICE.

Stefansson's Ship Met with Mishap and May Have to Return.

NOME, Alaska, Aug. 27.—The old whaler Karluk, which was taking Vilhjalmur Stefansson's Canadian Polar exploration expedition into the Arctic, met with a serious accident in the ice off Point Barrow, the northernmost point of Alaska, and may have to unload her cargo, according to word received here yesterday from the revenue cutter Bear.

The extent of the damage to the Karluk is not known, but it is reported that a large hole was stove in her hull. The Stefansson expedition found unusual ice conditions at Barrow. The Karluk was caught between the ice floes and is drifting with the ice. Aird Benton, a member of the crew, quit at Barrow, and told the officers of the revenue cutter of the Karluk's plight.

The exact nature of the accident to the Karluk has not yet been learned.

Upholds Col. Hughes.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—A good deal of interest has been aroused here over the incident of the Saskatchewan bugler, who resented the Stars and Stripes being waved before his regiment, the Pall Mall Gazette declaring that Hon. Sam Hughes has done quite rightly to reinstate the bugler. It says, "It's not good manners for those voluntarily seeking the hospitality of the British Empire to flaunt their own flag aggressively."

Will Hold an Inquest.

ST. CATHARINES, Aug. 27.—Coroner Greenwood will to-day in the Methodist Church Cemetery at Virgil open an inquest into the death of Arthur Stewart, the young deckhand drowned off the steamer Macassa of Hamilton, two weeks ago, whose body was found at Niagara-on-the-Lake. Borden May Visit Quebec.

QUEBEC, Aug. 27.—Premier R. L. Borden will shortly visit Quebec, when he will be tendered a complimentary banquet by citizens of Quebec, at which he is expected to make an important statement that will cover transcontinental railway terminals, which up to the present have been greatly delayed and are causing great uneasiness in Quebec, as there is nothing whatever really in the way of facilities to accommodate the transcontinental railway under present conditions when it is put in operation.

Ships' Graveyard May Go.

SARNIA, Aug. 27.—Col. Anderson, chief engineer of the Dominion Public Works Department, arrived at Sarnia on the Government boat Lady Grey. The colonel came here to inspect the ships' graveyard in Sarnia Bay, and held a consultation with prominent citizens here as to the advisability of clearing away a number of the old hulks resting on the bottom of the bay. Many a thrilling marine story could be told of the old boats which are rotting away on the bay shore.

Rumor Absurd Says Roblin.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 27.—Sir Rodmond Roblin yesterday gave out a statement with regard to the Ottawa despatch mentioning him as a probable successor to Lord Strathcona in the Canadian High Commissionership of the old country. Sir Rodmond said: "It is worse than idle rumor, and absolutely unwarranted. There is no public position on earth I would accept in lieu of the one I hold."

WRIT IS WITHDRAWN.

Now Thaw Case Is In a Worse Tangle Than Ever.

SHERBROOKE, Aug. 27.—Harry K. Thaw's Canadian attorneys withdrew the writ of habeas corpus obtained last week in his behalf and the fugitive from Matteawan will not be arraigned in the Superior Court today, as had been expected. The withdrawal of the writ may prolong the proceedings indefinitely.

Rumors had been bandied about all day that the writ might be withdrawn, but it was not until last evening that that notice was filed with the clerk of the court. At the same time a telegram was sent to Judge Arthur Globensky at Montreal, who granted the writ, that such was counsel's desire. He was due here to-day to hear arguments on the application.

The next move in the Thaw case is now distinctly up to those desiring his deportation. Under the present commitment he might remain in the Sherbrooke jail indefinitely, electing to have a hearing before a district magistrate, or demanding a jury trial before the King's Bench, criminal side, which does not sit until October. Briefly, Thaw's lawyers have decided to let him pace his cell, meanwhile perfecting plans to defeat attempts to put him across the Canadian border.

"It is beyond me," said William T. Jerome. "The fine points of Canadian law involved are such that I would not feel justified in even guessing at the outcome. We hope to get him in the end, but this tangle must be straightened out first."

District Attorney Conger of Dutchess County, N.Y., was equally puzzled and reticent. "If Mr. Jerome can't solve the muddle, certainly I can't," he said.

Further to complicate matters, counsel representing the State of New York are not sure that the commitment under which Thaw was chosen to remain in jail contains a charge of violating any of the Dominion's laws. It is that of being a "fugitive from the Matteawan penitentiary, where he was confined on a criminal charge for life."

OFFICERS CHOSEN.

Rev. Principal Mackay President of Canadian Clubs.

HAMILTON, Aug. 27.—The business of the fifth annual convention of the Association of Canadian Clubs was concluded last night at the Conservatory of Music. Mr. W. E. Sanford Evans, Winnipeg, was made honorary vice-president, in recognition of his services in assisting in founding the first Canadian Club in this city.

The report of the nominating committee was presented by G. C. Copley, and it was adopted, the following officers being elected for the ensuing year: President, Rev. Principal Mackay, Westminster College; vice-president, Lady Drummond, Montreal; provincial vice-presidents, Nova Scotia, Dr. J. B. Hill, Truro; New Brunswick, Mrs. Atherton Smith, Quebec, A. R. Doble; Ontario, Prof. W. L. Grant, Kingston; Manitoba, A. L. Crossin; Alberta, C. F. Adairs; Saskatchewan, W. Gunn; British Columbia, D. Von Cramer.

At the evening session Harry French of the Shaftesbury Home, spoke on "Child Life." He referred to conditions that exist in London amongst children, and referred to the number for whom good homes were being found in Canada.

In the afternoon Ven. Archdeacon Cody, Toronto, gave an able address on "Elements of National Progress."

It was decided that next year's convention should be held at Vancouver. It was decided to establish a permanent office for the executive, and that the fee be $5. A vote of thanks was tendered to the Hamilton Canadian Club for its hospitality, and it was decided to celebrate the centennial of Sir George Cartier next year.

BOTH WANT PREFERENCE.

But Australian Parties Are Unsettled Says Hon. Mr. Foster.

OTTAWA, Aug. 27.—Hon. Geo. E. Foster returned yesterday from his tour to Australia and the Orient, with the announcement that while both the rival parties in the former are favorable to a policy of mutual preferential trade with Canada, political conditions there make any such agreement impossible of negotiation at present. There is little likelihood of developments for some time.

"I discussed the matter of mutual preference with Hon. Mr. Tudor, Minister of Commerce, shortly after my arrival in Australia," said Mr. Foster. "He was wholly in sympathy with such a policy, but the elections were on and the result was the defeat of the Government and six weeks' delay while returns were gathered. The new administration is also in favor of mutual trade with Canada, but it has a majority of only one, including the Speaker, in the House, and the Senate is 2 to 1 against it. There must be another election, and under the circumstances no negotiations were possible."

Mr. Foster goes to London in January.

Aviator Starts Long Flight.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—In his second effort to win the $25,000 prize offered for a flight around the English and Scottish coasts within a period of seventy-two hours, Harry G. Hawker, the English aviator, made a brilliant beginning yesterday, whizzing through a distance nearly 500 miles in extent.

The flight is being made in a hydroaeroplane, and, under the rules of the contest, the aviator can make descent into the water at only nine points—Ramsgate, Yarmouth, Scarborough, Aberdeen, Cromarthy, Oben, Dublin, Falmouth and Netley, near Southampton.

Mexican Rebel Chief Captured.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 27.—Gen. Candido Navarro, one of the most active of the rebel chiefs, who has been operating in the northern part of the State of San Luis Potosi, was captured Monday. He recently suffered three successive defeats at the hands of the Federals. Repairs on the National Railway have been practically completed and the Government expects to operate trains this week.

Try to be satisfied to commence on a small scale.

Try to avoid the too common mistake of making an unwise effort to "begin where the parents ended."

Try not to look at rich homes or covet their costly furniture.

Try going a step further, and visit the homes of the suffering poor when secret dissatisfaction is liable to spring up.

Try being perfectly independent from the first, and shun debt in all its forms.

Try to co-operate cheerfully in arranging the family expenses, and share equally in any necessary self-denials and economies.

Try to be cheerful in the family circle, no matter how annoying may be the business cares and the housekeeping trials.

RED-HAIRED GIRLS

Quick to Marry But Poor Mates for Red-headed Men

Are red-haired girls more popular than their sisters? If not, then think of the number of red-headed spinsters you have known. You will have to scratch your head a long time before you can remember a single Titian-haired wall flower. The brilliance of women with red hair has been proven by history—Queen Elizabeth, Marie Antoinette, Cleopatra, Helen of Troy.

Prof. C. B. Davenport, who has carried on extensive research work in eugenics, says:

"A curious antipathy is that of red haired persons of opposite sex for each other. Among thousands of matings I have found only two cases where both husband and wife are red-headed and I am assured by red-haired persons that the antipathy exists. If, as it is sometimes alleged, red hair is frequently associated with a condition of nervous irritability, this is an eugenic antipathy."

Red hair is a funny thing, the authorities say. It will turn up generation after generation. It is a known fact that at times the child of two black-haired parents develops a full crop of red hair.

Scientists try to explain why hair is red. They say it is from a superabundance of iron in the blood. The color of hair is due to a pigment called melanin, which is secreted in the roots of hairs. Absence of this coloring matter makes white hair. Melanin is formed by oxidization. A variety of organic compounds may undergo oxidization into melanin pigments ranging in intensity from yellow to black; the greater the oxidization the darker the the product. And iron, when oxidized, inside of the body as well as out of it, produces red. This explains the freckles which so often either mar or put an extra touch of daintiness to a red-haired woman's beauty.

Pretty Lingerie Frock

One of the finest and softest of white lingerie stuffs for pretty frocks is white silk mousseline. In this model it gracefully lends itself to the girlish form. With the rich lace pattern embroidery and ball fringe, it is at once fashionable and unique. A fancy Pompadour girdle with sash ends, finished with wide bands of American Beauty satin is a most important detail to this Frenchy conceit. The dot upon the eye of the design, white satin button boots, and the ribbon hair bandeau fastened on either side with a ribbon rose completes a picture of ideal attractiveness.

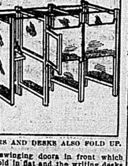
FOLDING ELECTION BOOTHS

Group Collapses Into Flat Space Like Ordinary Screen

New York State has adopted the folding election booth shown in the illustration. These folding booths are hinged together at backs and sides like the ordinary folding screen and collapse in just the same way. They have swinging doors in front which also fold in flat and the writing desks fold up against the backs of the booths when not in use. When collapsed a whole group of booths take up no more room than a space the height and width of one booth and about a foot through.



DOORS AND DESKS ALSO FOLD UP.

Depends on Canada

Speaking at Washington, Senator Hammond of Minnesota said: "We have to look to Canada for paper, and must treat that country well, or our paper will cost us a good deal more than it does at the present time. We are at the mercy of Canada with regard to pulp and paper and we must remember that we import one million cords of wood every year from that country, free of all restrictions. We also import large quantities of groundwood from Canada."

Remarkable Baronetcy

It is not many baronetcies that can show such a record as that held by the Rev. Sir John Cæsar Hawkins, of Oxford. The title was created by George the Third in 1778, and in 1785 it passed to a grandson. The second baronet died in July, 1793, and was succeeded by his mother, who held the title for the remarkable period of sixty-eight years and four months. Her successor was the present baronet. Thus, between 1793, and the present—over 120 years—there was but one change in the holder of the title. The baronetcy has never yet passed directly from father to son, and the present heir is a cousin of Sir John. Members of the family were medical advisers to George II., George III., and Queen Victoria.

More About the Collection of Garbage

To the Editor of The Intelligencer.

Dear Sir,—I regret to notice the letter in your last evening's paper from some one who is afraid to sign his name, except under the nome de plume of "Citizen." The facts are in regard to the particular matter referred to that Mr. Orr, who was taking the garbage for his pigs, had sold his pigs and did not come for garbage any more, not having any use for it. The garbage remained for a week or more not taken away, and the attention of Inspector Arnott was called, and he at once sent the garbage wagon and had the garbage removed. The garbage was contained in receptacles too large for one man to lift, and Mr. Arnott helped the collector to put same in the wagon.

The collection of garbage in the city has been a great boon to a great many people, but there are always fault finders in every community, and I can quite see that there are a few here, but I am glad to know there are a very few. The system of collection is not quite perfect, and if the citizens who may not be served perfectly at the present time will bear with Inspector Arnott and the authorities they will have their grievances remedied at the earliest possible moment. If there be any complaints whatever the Secretary of the Board of Health, (City Clerk), telephone 195, will make note of said complaint and the inspector will attend to same. The principle upon which the fee for collection is founded is that the beneficiary (the occupant of property) pays his exact share—every one equal, instead of making an assessment against property where the service performed and amount to pay for such service would be most unequal.

I beg to remain,
Yours faithfully,
J. F. WILLS,
Mayor.

Mrs. Capt. Hunter of Belleville also gave a most interesting description of her trip to Japan, on a visit to her daughter, Mrs. Perley, who was a missionary there in the school at Tokio. She exhibited many curios which she had brought with her and described the customs and religions, also the work done by our missionaries in that foreign land. She is a brilliant speaker and her listeners were intensely interested and enthused by the earnest appeals she made for more sympathy and help for our missionaries, who so willingly make such a great sacrifice to carry the gospel to the down-trodden heathen in our mission fields. The programme was interspersed with solos and duets, Mrs. Hunter rendering a solo in her own inimitable style. Ice cream and cake were served, to which all did ample justice. Mrs. Hogle made an ideal hostess and all claimed that it was the most instructive social meeting they had enjoyed for some time.

FIREPROOF CLOTH FOR CLOTHING

English Chemist Can Make Flannelette and Other Light Materials Absolutely Inflammable

At last a cheap process for making cloth absolutely fireproof has been discovered. There have been lots of fireproof materials brought out that could be used for many of the purposes for which ordinary cloth is used, but this is the first time that there has been any definite steps taken toward producing a cloth that is cheap enough for ordinary uses. And it is also the first time there has ever been devised a process that would fireproof ordinary cotton cloth in a way that enabled the cloth to be washed or laundered.

The new process is the work of an English chemist and his claims are based upon the fact that the fireproofing of any material desired, and especially of cotton cloth, will not increase the cost of production more than a fraction of a cent.

Heretofore the cotton cloths that have been fireproofed have taken on a hard and unyielding texture that made them almost impossible for the ordinary uses of such materials. It is well known that the cotton flannel material which women use throughout the world for making wrappers and night clothing, is highly inflammable and that a number of tragedies have been caused by its being worn. Despite this disadvantage the cloth is used because it is soft and gives good wear. The discovery of a process for rendering such material fireproof, therefore, is deserving of more than ordinary mention.

The process through which fireproofing is obtained is described as being extremely simple. The cloth is soaked in a solution of sodium stannate. This is a combination of soda and the acid of tin. The cloth is thoroughly dried and is then placed in a vessel containing sulphate of ammonium and subjected to heat. This being accomplished the cloth is thoroughly washed. When dried once more it is ready for use. The fibers of which the cloth is composed become impregnated with a tinny substance which forms a practical protection against fire and yet does not in any way destroy the fine texture of the cloth.

The uses to which the fireproof material can be put are practically unlimited, its inventor claims. It can be used for lace curtains, for clothing for women, children, firemen and for house furnishings. After it has been properly treated the cloth absolutely refuses to burn, no matter how long a time it might be held in direct contact with a flame. Woolen goods can be fireproofed as well as cotton.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Mud Stains on Cashmere

Brush thoroughly with a dry whisk, sponge lightly with distilled water, to which a few drops of ammonia have been added.

Washing Black Stockings

Although black stockings are mostly stated to be "fast dye," unless you pay a good price for them the color is apt to run when they are washed. Dissolve a handful of salt in a basin of warm water and soak the hose in it for an hour or so before washing them for the first time. This will prevent the "greyness."

To Make Rice Starch

Rice starch is generally used for cold water starch employed for collars, cuffs, or kindred articles requiring much stiffening. Mix two ounces of rice starch with three-quarters of a pint of cold water to a smooth paste. Leave overnight, or, if possible, for a day or two, because the longer it soaks the better the starch will be. When required for use dissolve half a teaspoonful of borax in a few drops of boiling water. Mix the starch well; add a teaspoonful of turpentine and the dissolved borax. This should keep well if covered over.

Grain Insurance Rates On St. Lawrence Are Too High.

MONTREAL, Aug. 27.—A convention of delegates from all the Boards of Trade of the Province of Quebec is being held at Chicoutimi this week to take into consideration marine insurance rates on the St. Lawrence.

The rates of insurance on grain cargoes from Montreal to Liverpool last year ranged from 25 cents per $100 in summer to 45 cents per $100 during the latter part of November, while at New York and Boston the figure was 15 cents per $100 throughout the whole year.

That the difference constitutes an effective discrimination in favor of United States ports is indicated by the fact that of 87,579,696 bushels of Canadian wheat which were forwarded from Fort William and Port Arthur last year, 45,326,450 bushels were shipped to Europe through the Dominion, and 42,252,246 bushels via the United States.

BERLIN, Aug. 27.—The German Foreign Office, under the belief that John Lind had left Mexico City on his return to the United States, yesterday made the following comment on the Mexican situation:

Toronto Dragoons Held at Kingston

KINGSTON, Aug. 26.—For the past two days two members of the R.C.D., of Toronto, have been under arrest at Tete de Pont barracks, being suspected of having set fire to the riding stables of the Royal Military College about three months ago. Two detectives from Toronto have been working on the case. One of the men deserted after being sent away from here early in the summer. Friends of the second man, who is detained under suspicion, declare that he's not being fairly treated. He is being held by the military authorities in connection with a criminal matter, although no charge been laid, he is being "sweated" by detectives, and not allowed legal advice.

Kingston Workmen Had Narrow Escape

KINGSTON, Aug. 26.—This morning at the Locomotive Works Power House, as a block of iron weighing about 500 pounds was being hoisted into position with a hoisting apparatus, it slipped and fell a distance of fifteen feet, striking in its descent, three of the workmen. William Dehaney and two other men were struck on the heads, and sustained scalp wounds.

The mass in falling struck a cross beam and the full force of the blow was deflected, else the men would have been severely injured. They escaped with slight injuries, and went to Hotel Dieu, where they were attended by Drs. McCarthy and Burton, afterwards returning to work.

Royal Military College Has Record Class

KINGSTON, Aug. 26.—The Royal Military College opened today for the reception of the members of the recruit class, who enter a week ahead of the other classes in order to become familiar with military routine. This year's class will comprise about forty-five cadets and is the largest in the history of the institution. Last year's graduating class was larger than usual, and with the increased accommodation which is being provided, the authorities will be able to accommodate that number.

A large number of the recruits arrived today and the remainder are expected tonight. Tomorrow they will come up for medical examination and will immediately afterwards take up the regular routine.

SAMSON HASKELL OF BENTLEY

CHARLES A. MACFARLANE

PART TWO

CHAPTER XVI.

Chairman Haskell.

"Can you tell me how soon the stage leaves for Bentley?" I asked the station agent at Ogden who I observed eyeing me with some interest as I alighted from the train that had just stopped at the little wooden structure called a depot.

"It's a-goin' to start in about five minutes from t'other side of the depot," was the reply, and as the train was about continuing its journey he busied himself with a few articles of express that had been handed to him from the baggage car.

I was about engaging passage with the driver of a two-seated square-box wagon that was in waiting at the street side of the station, when a gentleman who had just tied a handsome roadster to a hitching post a short distance away, approached and offered to convey me to my destination.

"I reckon you'll find my buggy a trifle easier in the springs than the stage wagon; and my hoss will take you over in less than an hour. You are welcome to a seat 'longside of me if you want to come. I'll start in about ten minutes," and entering the depot, he returned shortly, relieved me of my suitcase, and presently we were travelling at a rapid pace toward the little village of Bentley, ten miles distant.

"I'm real pleased that I was on hand to drive you over to our village, and, bein' chairman of the board of seelickmen for the past fifteen year, I take it on myself to welcome you to Bentley. If I do say it myself, there hain't many towns hereabout that equils ours for stateliness and gen'ral picteresknes, and we're allus glad to show visitors the latest and most improved way of carryin' on our town affairs. Goin' to stop with us a day or two, or a week or two, or a month, mebbe?"

I mentioned that I purposed remaining a month or six weeks, if all went well. "Primarily my object is to purchase a pair of horses for city work. My father thought I would be likely to find what we require at Bentley. If you know of a span of six or seven-year-olds that are for sale, I will pay you for the assistance."

"I reckon you've come to the right place, and if I do say it myself, you're met with the right man. I've jest got the article fer ye: pair hansum bays, six-year-old, fifteen hands, weigh 'leven hundred apiece, sound's a dollar, and can cover a mile in 2.50 as a span. Raised 'em myself, and know jest what they can do. Seein' I've got one pair too many for my farm, and the colts keep growin' up, I'll let 'em go for five hundred; not one cent less. What may be your name, if it hain't askin' too much?"

"Randall Rollins. My home is in Boston."

"I want to know! Any connection of Henry Rollins as was born an' brought up in Bentley?"

"His son."

"Gee! That's real nice. And yer ma is Theresa Harding that used to be?"

"The same."

"Well, I snum! Now, if that hain't real nice. I come pretty nigh ketchin' up with Theresa myself when we was young. The only difference 'twixt us was, she liked Henry Rollins best, and I wanted Delilah Gaylord. Ever hear yer ma and pa speak of Samson Haskell?"

"Indeed I have. My father suggested his assistance in the purchasing of suitable horses, and mother credits him with being the only honest horse dealer living. Are you Mr. Haskell?"

"Jest the same. Your pa can count on Samson to send him his money's worth, and a shade better. But it's queer they don't never come up to their old home sometimes. Hope they hain't fergot old friendships, as city folks do, mostwise."

"They have often wished to visit old scenes and associates, but, as you know, mother's parents are dead, and the farm has passed to others; my father's parents live with us now, so there are none of our immediate relatives left here to visit. But they often speak of you and Mrs. Haskell."

"I didn't s'pose they'd fergit us—not entirely, considerin' all that's happened in the past," and a droll smile played about his mouth. "I hear your pa has a store in Bostown?"

"Yes, we have a department store on Winter street, and live in Somerville, a suburb."

"Jest so. How old be you now,"

"Twenty-three, past."

"My! How time does go by. Any more colts in the pastur?"

"Oh, yes. There are three besides myself; Lydia, Letitia, and Henry Jr."

"That's a real nice family. Makes plenty of company for Theresa. She allus did like to have things lively, as I remember her. Theresa and Henry were jest suited to each other in size, color and disposition. I'm free to confess that I liked Theresa Harding awful well, and if me and Delilah Gaylord hadn't decided to quit our disagreements, when we did, I should have courted your ma in real earnest. As it was, when Delilah treated me real bad, and she did mostwise during our school days, Theresa was allus on hand to comfort me, and I hain't fergot it. But as Theresa wanted Henry real bad, and Henry would have give his life for a smile from Delilah Gaylord, and Delilah made believe Henry was her choice for the sake of keepin' me in hot water, it kept matters middlin' interesting from the time we was little tots 'til we was old enough to know better.

"But me an' Theresa never was gaited fer travellin' together. Our gaits were a good deal like Lew Grimese mouse-colored hosses. One was a big, high-headed feller, and t'other was a small filley. But she could trot like sixty, and kept the big hoss gallopin' to keep up his end of the whiffletree. They'd git there after a fashion, but there wa'n't nothin' symetrical in their pace. Howsomever, I hain't fergot the comfortin' grace Theresa give me in them days, and it makes me and Delilah feel bad that she and Henry don't visit us sometimes."

I could but laugh at the quaintness of expression, and twinkling of Mr. Haskell's gray eyes as he anticipated a meeting between his wife and my father, whom, according to stories told us children by Grandfather Rollins, were particularly friendly in their youthful days.

"Made any arrangements fer fodder and stall, whilst you're stoppin' in our village, Ranny?" asked my companion, as we swung around a beautiful lake about two miles from our destination.

"I intend to put up at Kendall's Tavern. My father said I could find all necessary accommodations there."

"You hain't a-goin' to do no sech thing, Ranny Rollins," was the emphatic response. "No off-shoot of Henry and Theresa Rollins is a-goin' put up at the tavern whilst Samson and Delilah Haskell have a spare stall an' fodder in plenty. It's settled right here an' now that your are a-comin' home with me. Delilah'll be tickled most to pieces to welcome you. She allus did like Theresa, and I reckon she hain't quite fergot Henry," and he laughed good naturedly.

I was much pleased with having met Mr. Haskell so opportunely, as my father and mother considered him the one man in the district who could be depended upon to secure or furnish a pair of horses suitable for our store work.

For years a live stock dealer, this genial ruralist, ever ready to buy or sell, knew nearly every saleable animal within a radius of thirty miles, and no better judge of horses was to be found in the country. Honest to a fault, yet apt in business transactions, he was recognized as a leading spirit in his vocation.

Often had I heard my parents speak of Samson Haskell, but never until now had it been my good fortune to meet with him; for, while myself a native of Bentley, I was but an infant when my parents moved to the city, where my father entered as a junior clerk the store of which he is now the head, under the firm name of Henry Rollins & Company, of which for a year I have been the junior partner.

I also learned that my host was the leader in home municipal affairs, the chairman of the board of selectmen, or "seelickmen," for a continuous period of fifteen years, and respected by all classes for his integrity and hospitality. From the founding of the settlement forty-nine years previous, by his father, the Honorable Ezekiel Haskell, Samson had been so closely identified with its progress that to speak of one was to think of the other; and when the father withdrew from local affairs to take a seat in the state house, the son was unanimously chosen to fill the vacancy, a position which he had since held with credit to himself and the prosperity of the community at large.

An interesting character was this man, of whose friendship I had so often heard my parents speak. Six feet one in height, with a physique of which a trained athlete might well be proud, he was unusually attractive, and the more I studied the strong features the more prepossessing did they become.

There was, however, a firmness about the chin that denoted ability to control, yet the twinkling eyes and ready smile bespoke that spontaneous humor peculiar to men of his type.

His face was clean shaven, and his well shaped head was crowned with an abundance of sandy hair. So easily did he carry his years that ten of the forty and nine could have been deducted, and none but those who had long known him would have been the wiser.

He was an easy talker, the words being delivered smoothly, with an occasional drawl, but when under headway he abbreviated his words, the d's and g's being conspicuously absent, while his humorous saying of "we don't make no pretenshuns of style like city folks, but when it comes to bein' entertained, an' gettin' enough fodder, with a comfortable stall an' plenty of clean straw to lay on, I reckon Samson an' Delilah Haskell kin hold their own agin any on 'em," quite clearly demonstrates his habitual vocabulary.

He was unusually witty, with a keen relish for the ludicrous; but an unswerving underlying principle prevented his going to extremes. As I afterwards learned, now that his honored father was no longer connected with the town, Samson was the one man to whom all turned for guiding wisdom, and his voice was akin to law. A wide awake citizen in business of a personal nature, he was accounted the wealthiest resident of the county, but a tender heart prompted many a favor, which, though bestowed willingly, was purposely enacted through other hands.

He was plain "Samson" to all who knew him, yet his financial and official standing hedged all encroachments upon his dignity as a man of affairs. No one questioned his fitness for the town's highest office, which, while demanding not a little attention, yielded no personal benefit in return.

By his birth upon the shore of Lake Bentley nine and forty years previous, with no covering other than the canvas top of an emigrant wagon on its wearisome journey from California to Maine, the settlement of Bentley had come into existence. A child of the forest, he had grown with it to manhood. As a man of energy, he had made himself indispensible; and now, in the prime of life, he was the acknowledged head of his native town, and the friend of such as worthily sought his assistance.

Such was Samson Haskell, whom I met for the first time that June afternoon two years ago, and for whom, upon more familiar acquaintance, my love has deepened, until today it is second only to the regard for my own parents.

FACTS ABOUT THE BIBLE

It will surprise many persons to learn that there are two chapters in the Bible which are practically identical, these being the 19th chapter of the Second Book of Kings and the 37th chapter of Isaiah. There are 929 chapters with 592,493 words in the Old Testament, and 260 chapters and 181,253 words in the New Testament. Asked off-hand, one would probably say there were more words in the Bible than in Shakespeare's works, but, as a matter of fact, the balance is in favor of the Bard, who has the respectable total of 814,780, or 41,317 more than the Bible. Altogether his plays have no fewer than 1,277 characters, one of whom (Hamlet) has 11,610 words to deliver.

"Hamlet," indeed, is the longest play, containing as it does 3,930 lines, while the "Comedy of Errors," is the shortest, with 1,777 lines. The longest word is "honorificabilitudinatibus," which is certainly a tongue-twister. The curious can find all the letters of the alphabet in the 21st verse of the 7th chapter of Ezra, while reference to the 117th Psalm will show that it is not only the shortest chapter in the Bible, but also the middle chapter of the book.

CANADA'S BEST ASSET

Satisfied Settlers Like This Briton Who Writes Home

In a letter to the Birmingham Weekly Post, Mr. W. A. Sturch, formerly of Binton, Warwickshire, praises Canada as a land of opportunity for the man willing to work. Mr. Sturch, his son and two daughters secured positions all together in the Niagara fruit district. Here is what he says about it:

"We are getting $10.20 per week and the girls $5.00 each per week; therefore you will see the difference between England and Canada. My weekly wage in England was $4.00 per week of six days, and from 12 to 15 hours per day. Here we work ten hours per day and six days per week, and I must say that I have worked a lot harder and longer in England for my $4.00, with 8 cents stopped for insurance, than I do out here for $10.20 and nothing stopped. I must also say that there is plenty of work out here for anybody who will work, and good pay. We could have had five or six places at the offices in less than an hour, but we would take only what we wanted—that was to be all together. We like it and are doing well.

"Some people say that you have to work a lot harder than they do in England, but let me tell you they are wrong altogether. All that is wanted out here is steady men who will keep on working steadily for their ten hours. During the time I have been here I have not had a solitary word of complaint made to me; therefore, you see the difference between Canada and England again.

"It is a splendid country, far more so than England. We are close to Lake Ontario, the largest lake in Canada, and I must say it is grand. You think you hve a large fruit country in England, but you only want to see it round here, between Lake Ontario and Lake Erie, to know what a fruit country is like.

"No man need fear coming out to Canada, for he can have work in less than two hours after he lands if he likes."

The Tree of Life

The banana is believed by some people to be the forbidden fruit which is mentioned in the story of the Garden of Eden.

In any case, it is one of the curiosities of the vegetable kingdom, being not a tree, a palm, a bush, or shrub, a vegetable, or a herb, but an herbaceous plant with the stature of a tree.

Although it sometimes attains a height of thirty feet, there is no woody fibre in any par of the structure, and the bunches growing on the dwarf banana plant are often heavier than the stalk which supports them.

No plant gives such a quantity of food to the acre as the banana. It yields forty-four times more by weight than the potato, and one hundred and thirty-three times more than wheat.

Fall Against Table Killed Kitchen Girl

Porter with Whom she Was Quarreling Arrested at Once.

TORONTO, Aug. 27.—Striking her head against a heavy table in the kitchen of Smith's Hotel, at Queen and Simcoe streets, this morning, Lucy Ives, one of the kitchen help, died from a broken neck. James Dickenson, porter of the hotel, is now under arrest on a charge of murdering her, but the charge will likely be reduced to manslaughter.

Dickenson and the woman had a dispute this morning over putting some ice in the ice-box. Dickenson refused to do the job, and, after the Ives woman had got some one else to do it, she went back again, and the two had a squabble. The woman struck the man over the face twice while he was eating his breakfast, and a short time later he got up and, according to witnesses, slapped her under the side of the face, and she fell striking her head on the tabel When she fell Dickenson ran away, and was later found in bed at his home on Simcoe street.

He had been at several hotels, and was so drunk that he could not walk when arrested. He was not arraigned this morning, as he was not sober enough to realize what happened.

Drowning Accident At Sturgeon Lake

LINDSAY, Aug. 27.—A sad drowning accident occurred at Coppins' landing, Sturgeon Lake, in the township of Fenelon, near Bald Point yesterday afternoon, the victim being George Roland Westaway, the only son of Byron Westaway, a farmer residing close to the scene of the fatality.

Young Westaway, who is a youth of seven years and two months old, left his home in the afternoon and went to the residence of Mr. Coppins, a neighboring farmer. Here he joined Mr. Coppins' son, a lad of about 15 years, who was going to the lake for a barrel of water.

The two boys drove down with the team to the shore and backed the rig in for the purpose of conveniently filling the barrel with water.

At this point the bottom is rocky and for several feet from the shore the water is shallow, but drops suddenly down for several feet. It was into this hole that the wagon backed, and both the youths were precipitated into the water. Young Coppins struggled to the wagon on coming up, but the Westaway boy sank from view.

An alarm was given and the body was recovered in about five feet of water fifteen minutes afterwards by Mr. Fred Coppins.

Great Increase In Delivery System

OTTAWA, August 28.—The rural mail delivery system has undergone an immense increase within the past year. At the present time eighteen hundred routes are in operation. This is an increase of about a thousand since the present Government assumed office.

While a number of routes are being established in the West, the service is much more largely centred in the East, especially in Ontario, which has displayed a much greater tendency to utilize it. The result has been the closing of a large number of country post offices.

ALPHA CLUB OF TABERNACLE CHURCH HOLDS OUTING

Massassaga Park Alive with Sports on Water and Land—Excellent Baseball Game—Fire works at Night.

The annual outing of the Alpha Club connected with the Tabernacle Church was held at Massassaga Park, yesterday, and proved to be the usual success, in a general sense. An extended schedule of sports had been provided for, but owing to participants in the foot races being unavailable, the land sports, with the exception of a snappy baseball game between the Grand Trunk and Ontario teams were called off.

To begin with, there was a disappointment in the securing steamer transportation, the Aletha being secured by the Trenton Brass Band for an excursion to the Park, but arriving at the Belleville Wharf in time to take an added hundred or more, the steamer Varuna doing her best to accommodate the balance between other duties, while the "Where Now," Mr. Leavitt's little steamer, which was expected to be in commission for the day, failed to start, for what reason no one seemed to know. As it was a large number wishing to make the Point in the afternoon were unable to secure passage, and were compelled to return home.

The water events were quite interesting, the first race being for motor boats, with V. Moynes' speedy "If," F. McDonald's "Dart," and L. Allore's 'U Bet' as starters. The results were in the same order, for Mayor Will's prize of $5.00, Alpha Club's prize of $3,00; Ed. O'Flyn's prize of $2.00.

In the second race, for motor boats of six-horse power and under, Sir Mackenzie Bowell's prize went to Mr. LaRue; Ritchie Co's prize to Mr. Gerow; McCormick's half dozen photos will go to Mr. Keetch; and a $1.50 shirt donated by C. J. Symons will be worn by Mr. Ayler..

The punt race was won by Mr. J. Callahan's "After You," prize gold cuff lings donated by Allan McFee, P. Hays' "Bobs" coming in for A. W. Woodley's $1.00 worth of bread tickests, there being no third entrance, the two contestants agreed to donate the $1.00 worth of slab wood, donated by F. S. Anderson to the Children's Shelter.

The canoe race, was a minor affair, having for prizes: Ladies hand bag by Angue McFee; jewel case, J. A. Goodsell; running shoes, Mr. Garney. The names of the winners were unattainable.

But the most interesting feature of the day was the baseball match between the Grand Trunks and the Ontarios, which proved to be "nip-and-tuck" for the mastery. The first inning brought two runs each, where they struck until the tenth inning, when the G. T. R's added two more, only to be tied in the second half by the Ontarios. The eleventh innings, however, settled the game, owing, possibly, to the change of pitchers by the Ontarios, the railroaders adding five while the Ontarios were retired for a zero.

The batteries for the clubs: McGie P., and Mills C. for the Ontarios; Cook P., and Smith C. for the G. T. R. were excellent, and struck to their jobs with true grit to the end. It was a fairly played game, with few complaints, and the rooting was at times boisterous, particularly during the final inning.

Score by innings.

A fine series of fireworks were displayed about eight o'clock, when as many as had launches left for home, the majority waiting for the Aletha, which appeared at the dock about 9.30.

The Trenton Brass Band rendered selections during the trip each way, and on the grounds.

No accidents were reported.

WHAT IS PARIS SHOWING?

The first persons to tell you the latest fashion news are the merchants who advertise the newest styles.

Not content to wait for the mails, enterprising merchants these days keep themselves posted by cable.

They are not more than a week or so behind Paris in showing the new shapes and shades and colors.

Advertising in daily newspapers like The Intelligencer has become the livest sort of live news.

The well informed man or woman must keep posted on what is being exploited in the advertising.

The friendly rivalry of business men keeps the advertising keen, well written and right up to the instant.

ATTEMPT TO KIDNAP LLOYD GEORGE FAILS.

London, Aug. 27.—A suffragette plot to kidnap David Lloyd George, which just failed to succeed, has been revealed, states the London Daily Sketch.

For $2,500 three desperadoes were to cause a collision with damage to Mr. Lloyd George's automobile, while he was near Walton-on-Hill. Then they were to seize him and carry him in a fast automobile to a secret place arranged by the suffragettes. A male suffragist revealed the plot.

Some More About Garbage Collection

To the Editor of The Intelligencer.

Dear Sir,—As I have noticed several letters in the paper complaining of the city's new system of garbage collection, I would like to say a word on the other side. I do not speak for myself alone, but for many friends and neighbors who heartily agree with me For many years we have found the disposal of our garbage a great nuisance and difficulty, especially in the summer. We have tried to burn t much of it won't burn and it chokes up the stove. We have tried to bury it and could not dig enough holes in the garden. We have begged people to collect it for their pigs. They refused to touch mixed garbage, with tea leaves, orange peel, etc., and came very irregularly. We engaged a man at 15c. a week, who frequently wanted extra money when he thought there was more stuff than usual. At last the city collection was begun, and we think it the greatest benefit bestowed this year by our Mayor and Council I am sure many thousands of our citizens will join me in a chorus of gratitude.

Thanking you for your valuable space.

Serious Fire In Sidney Township

A disastrous fire occurred yesterday afternoon in the township of Sidney in the vicinity of Frankford. Threshers were at work at Mr. Maitland Sine's farm, when from some cause the barn caught fire, and in a very short time was a mass of flames. Although every effort was made to rescue the threshing machine from the barn, it was impossible to do so, and it fell a prey to the devouring element. The barn, with the season's crops and the threshing machine were destroyed. The loss to Mr. Sine is a serious one, and also to Mr. P. Smith, who owned the threshing machine. Some hundreds of bushels of grain was destroyed. The cause of the fire is not definitely known. The loss will amount to several hundred dollars and the insurance will by no means cover it.

WINTER STRAWBERRIES

One of our prominent residents, Mr. James S. Peck, of Ann street, has a decided novelty growing in his garden, in the shape of "winter" strawberries. Mr. Peck procured the plants only in May of this year, and they have already borne enough of the luscious berries to make one or two pickings. They are of exceedingly good quality, rich in flavor, and not in the least below the standard of the earlier variety. It has been suggested to Mr. Peck that he exhibit some of them at the Belleville Fair. An interesting feature in connection with this unique strawberry is that they continue to ripen until snow falls. Fancy a strawberry social in October!

Strike of Girls Closed Factory

Eighteen Quit Work When Wage Reduction Was Made.

TORONTO, Aug. 28.—Some five hundred employees of the Simpson Knitting Factory on Berkeley Street were thrown out of employment on Monday through the action of eighteen girls who struck work. The latter were dissatisfied because the management had reduced their wages five cents per day. Some time ago, when the rush season commenced, the rate of pay was increased from $1.10 to $1.25 per day, as it was found necessary to work the operators day and night, in separate shifts. Now that business has reached a normal state, only day shifts are required. Consequently the operators were notified on Saturday that the rate of pay during the winter would be only $1.20 per day.

The eighteen who struck were not aware of the change until they went to the factory on Monday morning. They promptly decided not to accept the reduction, and quit work. The management were caught unawares and had to stop the factory.

Yesterday operations were resumed, but the eighteen did not return to work. Unless they do so to-day their places will be filled. The girls are not organized, so there is little danger of the trouble spreading.

Building Collapes In City of Peterboro

Intelligencer Special

PETERBOROUGH, Aug. 28.—The northwest wall of Turnbull's millinery and drygoods store at the corner of George and Simcoe streets, collapsed at ten o'clock this morning, carrying down with it its human cargo of clerks and morning shoppers, and also a gang of workmen who were reconstructing the wall. No deaths have been reported so far, but two clerks are still unaccounted for out of the full complement of fifty employed.

Twenty workmen are still buried in the ruins and about twenty injured persons are in the hospital. Extensive repairs were being made to the adjoining store, and this weakened the partition wall of the Turnbull store. The crash came with little warning.

London Bailiffs Invade House of Jack Johnson

LONDON, Aug. 27.—The Standard says the prospect of Jack Johnson, the American negro pugilist, appearing in London is becoming daily less hopeful. An unexpected incident has seriously affected the fighter's plans.

This was the sudden appearance, on Monday night, at the house in Bayswater, where Johnson is staying, of a number of bailiffs, sent by a firm of solicitors, who had got judgment for $7,500 damages for breach of contract with the MacNaughton Music Hall Syndicate the last time he was here, Johnson having then broken his engagement and skipped to Paris. The bailiffs stayed at Johnson's house all night, but a conference in the morning resulted in a settlement.

IT MUST COME BY EVOLUTION

Sir Gilbert Parker, man of letters and member of the Imperial Parliament, was in Ottawa Sunday on his way to Vancouver.

Sir Gilbert granted a brief interview to a press reporter, and in the course of five minutes gave his personal views in such big questions as Empire Naval Defence, Imperial Federation, Imperial Preference, and the alleged decadence of the British Race.

Said Sir Gilbert of imperial Federation:

"I do not think that the Unionist party, or indeed any party in England has any idea of putting forward any cut-and-dried scheme for Imperial Federation or Empire Administration as represented by an Imperial Council or Empire Parliament. A great constitutional development like that cannot be taken off-hand. Whatever form Imperial Federation takes it must be by natural evolutions. If the Unionist party came into power it would move with great care in regard to Empire administration on the basis of Empire representation."

Asked regarding the Unionist party's policy of Empire commerical reciprocity, the author of the "Seats of the mighty" said: "At the next general election we cannot offer preference to the Overseas Dominions on wheat or dairy products, but we can and we will offer a preference on certain other products now taxed by the British exchequer."

As to the Naval question Sir Gilbert was somewhat reticent. "The United Kingdom," he said, "will be satisfied wth Canada's honorable decision as to how she shall play her honorable part."

" What do you think, Sir Gibert, of the theory that the British race is decadent?"

"I think that the answer to that theory and your question was supplied by British heroism in the Titanic disaster."

Nothing prospers like the grafter—for a time.

AN OVERGROWN POTATO STALK A FEATURE OF WELLAND FARM

Resident Planted Seed in Unfertile Ground But To-Day Stalks Measure Over Seven Feet and are Still Growing.

WELLAND, Ont., Aug. 28.—Stretching toward the sky like the fabled bean stalk, two potato vines in the backyard of Elias Burgar, 18 Albana street, have already reached the unusual height of seven feet and are still soaring upward as if to set a high altitude record—in which they are succeeding very well.

The potato from which the giants sprouted was taken from his kitchen early in June by Mr. Burgar and planted in his backyard in soil that heretofore had a reputation for unproductivness. In a week or so stalks came through and before long began to show signs of vigorous growth. As a rule a potato vine spreads out and is seldom, if ever, more than three feet long. Not so with this curious freak of nature. It has long since passed that mark and with the aid of a few strings to hold the stalks in a perpendicular position is now towering a foot over the six foot fence and growing higher.

When the stalks were measured they were allowed to follow their natural bent and were not straightened. Just a trifle over seven feet from the ground to the top was shown. The blossoms are just beginning to come out and the whole has the appearance of a young tree.

Mr. Burgar cannot explain its wonderful growth and would like to consult some authority. He says he has heard of a similar growth of a potato vine.

BOB BURMAN, SPEED KING MAKES NEW MILE RECORD

And is Beaten in 3 Mile Race By a McLAUGHLIN Car.

A new world's record was made during the auto races n Victoria Park, Calgary, on Saturday, August 2nd, when Bob Burman circled the half-mile dirt track in 1:05¼.

Aside from Burman's fast mile, the sensation of the day was the defeat of the so-called "speed king" in the three mile race for big cars. Gordan Radcliffe, driving a McLAUGHLIN car turned the trick on Burman who drove a high-powered racer. The time made by the McLAUGLIN car was 4:04. Burman made big effort to overtake Radcliffe in the stretch, but was unable to do so, and the "speed king" was forced to take second. The McLaughlin car won by 2 feet, and the excitement was intense. This victory is another evidence of the superiority of the McLaughlin which is considered by many to be the best car in its class in Canada. 1td

Fell from Train And Escaped Death

TORONTO, Aug. 27.—Falling from his train as it rushed towards Sarnia Tunnel at a high rate of speed, John Gill, of Dublin, Ont., was picked up early yesterday morning in an unconscious condition a few miles out of Sarnia, after lying all night beside the tracks of the Grand Trunk main line.

The man was seen almost beside the rails by the crew of an early morning freight train, and was at once taken in the engine cab and rushed to Sarnia. Although exposed for many hours following the accident, he was not seriously injured, and the physician who examined him said that beyond a few abrasions he had escaped with a severe shaking up.

According to the railway officials the man was a passenger on the special harvesters' excursion train, which left Toronto Monday night. At the time of the accident he had been drinking heavily, and was still under the influence of liquor when found. The officials are at a loss to explain how he was not badly injured by his fall as at the time the train was travelling at a speed of about 50 miles an hour. After having his wounds dressed Gill left on the next train for the West.

HAZEN WAS HELD UP AT POINT OF BAYONET

By a Sentry at Nanaimo Who Did Not Know Minister of Marine

VANCOUVER, B. C., Aug. 27.—The Hon. J. D. Hazen, Canadian minister of marine, had an exciting experience at Nanaimo when he attempted to pass a military line enforced in consequence of the recent strike riots.

He was held up by a sentry who marched him, at the point of a bayonet to the Highlanders' camp as a suspicious person who was trying to get out of the city without submitting to examination.

When the sentry discovered Mr. Hazen's identity he was greatly shocked, but the cabinet minister complimented him on his watchfulness.

FISHERMEN MAY BE LIARS BUT NOT FOOLS

In Weedon Grossmith's reminiscence From Studio to Stage, he devotes a whole chapter to fishing stories and tells of his friend, Heather Biggs, who annoyed him frequently by asking him for a match while angling during intensely cold weather. To supply the request meant pulling in his line, unfastening his mackintosh, then the overcoat, and finally the undercoat. But then who can grudge so small a thing as a match? Grossmith writes: "The second day we fished it was positively colder. Heather Bigg's pipe had gone out as usual. "Weedon got a match." It suddenly occurred to me he must have brought matches with him, or how did he light his pipe—so I anwered, "No!"

"What a nusiance!" he replied, and drew in his line, undid his mackinktosh, then the overcoat and undercoat, and, at last, took out a box of matches. "Why," I said, "you've got your matches with you." "Yes," he replied, "but I didn't want to catch cold getting them."

"Anglers not only become liars, but they are utterly selfish, but never fools, as Dr. Johnson dubs them. I have come across anglers who were cads, snobs, liars, knaves and even thieves, but never fools!"

VICTORY IS RECALLED AT CHRYSLER'S FARM

Between Five and Six Thousand Farmers and Their Families From Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Make a Pilgrimage to the Spot Where Many of Their Grandfathers Defeated the Invader.

MORRISBURG, Ont., Aug. 28.—Gathering from all directions from the first break of dawn yesterday, between five and six thousand farmers, with women and children, residents of the three united counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry, came to the historic spot known as Chrysler's Farm to commemorate the victory one hundred years ago, that was perhaps the deciding factor in preserving Canada for the British Empire. Long before the hour set for the opening of the program the old farm was a moving kaleidoscope of gay colors, with thousands of banners flapping in the breeze and the multi-colored uniforms of the soldiery mingling with the more sombre hues of the civilian visitors. Of the entire crowd perhaps one-half were people whose ancestors fought at Chrysler's Farm.

Early on the scene was Andrew Broder, M.P. He was followed shortly afterward by Hon. Geo. P. Graham, M.P., ex-Minister of Railways, whose address opened the afternoon's proceedings. Mr. Graham addressed himself particularly to the children, who numbered nearly 2,000, the speaker endeavoring to impress upon them the meaning of such demonstrations and the chief lesson of this demonstration he found in the fact that the men of 1813, as he believed the men of 1913 also did, held their heritage within the British Empire dearer than their lives.

Mr. Broder had little to say other than to thank the people for the hearty support accorded him in organizing the celebration.

Between 500 and 600 children took part in the celebration through the kindness of Mrs. E. C. Whitney of Ottawa, a granddaughter of John Chrysler, whose fame was own in the battle of Nov. 11, 1813.

Last night the Governor-General's band played on the river front, and there was a fireworks display. To-day the Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux and Sir James Whitney will be the orators.

TENDERS FOR CANAL.

Bids For Huge Contract Will Be Awarded In a Few Days.

OTTAWA, Aug. 28.—The tenders for the new Welland Canal work, the largest in the history of Canada, involving about $10,000,000, was advertised to be opened yesterday. Not since the awarding of the original Grand Trunk Pacific work in 1904, has there been such a gathering of wealthy contractors as are here today. Tenders have been received from Sir John Johnson, London; Hubert Larkin, St. Catharines; Booth & Flinn, Pittsburg, Pa.; S. Pederson & Sons, London, Eng.; Messrs. Corbett of New Brunswick; Davis Bros., Ottawa; Gillespie & Co., New York; Porter Bros., formerly of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and others.

Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Railways and Canals, is absent in New Ontario, and Hon. Robert Rogers, Minister of Public Works, will not reach Ottawa before Sept. 5.

It was intimated at the Prime Minister's office yesterday that the Welland Canal contract would not likely be awarded for several days.

WILL REMAIN NEUTRAL

U. S. Has Done All She Could Says President Wilson.

Strict Policy of "Hands Off" Will Be Enforced With Regard to Latin-American Republic Until Country Awakens to the Foolishness of Isolation—Urges All Americans to Leave For Home.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—President Wilson went to Congress yesterday and revealed how the Huerta Provisional Government in Mexico had rejected the friendship of the United States and its effort to aid in the establishing of peace and a government which could be recognized by this nation, and which would be obeyed and respected by Mexico's own people. After picturing the hopelessless for Mexico if she maintained her present position, "isolated and without friends who can effectually aid her," the President announced the necessity of a firm neutral stand by the United States Government, a policy of "hands off" to await the time of Mexico's awakening. He also voiced an urgent appeal for all Americans to leave Mexico and for the United States to aid them every possible way, but in emphatic language served notice upon those who assume to exercise authority in the revolution-torn country that they would be held to a definite reckoning for losses and suffering of American citizens.

The message of the President was received with enthusiastic applause by members of the House and Senate gathered in joint session in the House chamber, and last night the machinery of the Government was set in motion for making effective policy of neutrality and "hands off" while the warring factions continue their struggle. To prevent the shipment of arms or munitions of war into any part of Mexico, or to any faction, the United States troops on the border already have been warned to exercise increased vigilance. Whether more troops will be sent to the border is a question to be determined within the next few days.

Secretary Bryan prepared to confer with President Wilson early to-day, and the assurance was given that everything necessary should be done to carry out strict neutrality. Secretary Daniels conferred with the President during the day and the Navy Department is ready to despatch more ships to Mexican waters if required to prevent the shipment of arms to Mexico by sea.

Foreign powers, it was understood last night, have not been asked to place an embargo on the shipment of munitions of war to Mexico, but the President in his message asserted that this Government had been given the generous moral support of foreign nations in the proposals to the Huerta Government. It became known that the administration has under serious consideration the ordering of several thousand more troops to the Mexican border line.

In his message, which was in the nature of an appeal to the moral forces of this and foreign nations, the President made it clear that he based high hopes upon the effect the announcement of this Government's policy will have upon, not only the people of this country and the Governments of other nations, but upon the people of Mexico themselves. Now that the United States has exhausted the effort to bring about peace and a stable Mexican Government, the President believes that this Government's example to the world will avail great good in the end.

Congressional leaders declared last night that President Wilson's vigorous assertion of a definite policy toward Mexico, would have the effect of staying in Congress, for a time at least, open criticism of the administration and demands for information.

Mexico Is Indifferent.

MEXICO VITY, Aug. 28.—President Huerta evinced little interest, apparently, in the effect of President Wilson's speech to the U. S. Congress. When the message was read to him he said:

"That is substantially what I expected," he said, "we never had any reason to doubt the friendship and disinterested motives of the United States."

None of the afternoon papers carried despatches of what transpired in Washington. Surprisingly little interest is manifested in the developments, either by the public or seemingly by officials.

Should Leave at Once.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—President Wilson last night warned all Americans to leave Mexico at once. At the same time the American embassy and all consular representatives throughout the southern republic were instructed to "notify all officials, civil and military, in Mexico," that they would be held strictly responsible for harm or injury done to Americans or their property.

Olympic Fund a Fiasco.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—The appeal for a public fund of $500,000 for the purpose of re-establishing Great Britain's supremacy in sport at the next Olympic games looks like ending in a fiasco. Although the fund has now been open ten days the subscriptions amount only to $24,000, this small sum being made up chiefly by large donations.

The response of the general public to the appeal has been negligible.

British Ambassadors Transferred.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—Sir Maurice de Bunsen, the British ambassador at Madrid, has been transferred to Vienna to replace Sir Fairfax Leighton Cartwright, who has resigned.

Sir Arthur Henry Hardinge, at present Minister to Portugal, has been transferred to Madrid.

Fire Chiefs at Kingston.

KINGSTON, Aug. 28.—Delegates are arriving to-day for the fifth annual convention of the Provincial Association of Fire Chiefs, which opens to-day. One hundred delegates are expected. Visitors will be welcomed by Mayor Rigney and Ald. Shaw. The sessions will last until Saturday.

TROOPS INVADE TRACK.

Wide Open Gambling Rudely Stopped at Porter, Indiana.

PORTER, Ind., Aug. 28.—Two companies of the Indiana National Guard arrived here at 5.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and immediately took charge of the Mineral Springs race track, where betting on horse races is said to have flourished since the opening of the meet last Thursday. The troops were ordered out by Governor Ralston after he had received word that the track officials were permitting gambling, and that the county authorities were doing little to stop it.

Yesterday's racing card had been completed, and the largest crowd of the meet had dispersed before the arrival of the troops.

There probably will be no racing to-day with the soldiers camping in the enclosure.

Gasoline Explodes.

LISTOWEL, Ont., Aug. 28.—Roy Bryant, assistant to F. S. Howe, barber, was badly burned about the face, arms and body yesterday afternoon by an explosion of gasoline in the basement of the barber shop. His condition is quite critical, but hopes are held out for his recovery. The young man lighted the gasoline hot-water heater, came upstairs, went down again to see how it was burning, found it out, and apparently struck a match to light it again, when the explosion occurred, setting his clothing on fire and filling the cellar with a dense smoke.

Mr. Howe pulled some of the burning clothes off and managed to get the fire out, but not before the boy was frightfully burned.

Inventor To Cross Atlantic.

PARIS, Aug. 28.—A Greek septuagenarian named Constantine Panajonetti, is making experiments on the River Seine with a model of a curious bottle-shaped boat, in which he proposes to travel from Paris to New York next month.

In an interview he said this vessel, 300 feet in length, built after his model and provided with three motors each of 15 horse-power, will easily and safely travel from 90 to 125 miles an hour. By secret device he claims to have rendered his vessel unsinkable, and declares when his system is applied to transatlantic liners such accidents as that which befell the Titanic will be impossible.

Made Knight of Grace.

TORONTO, Aug. 28.—W. J. Gage, founder of the National Sanitarium Association, has received word that King George has approved of his appointment as Knight of Grace of the Order of the Hospital of St. John of Jerusalem.

The order originated for the care and relief of crusaders, and was reorganized in 1888. Its work is now largely the control of the St. John Ambulance Association. The title carries no precedence and no initials.

Unveiling of a Memorial Window

On Wednesday, the 27th inst., the interesting function of unveiling a memorial window presented to the Presbyterian church in Stirling, took place. The window was presented to the church by Wellington Boulter, Esq., of Picton, in honor of and in commemoration of his brother, the late George H. Boulter, M.D., who for sixteen years represented North Hastings in the Ontario Parliament, and was a devoted member and Elder of the church.

Great interest was taken in the proceedings by the people of the village, many of the Dr.'s old friends in the Riding, who knew his sterling qualities in private and public life, being present, rejoicing in the honor of perpetuating his memory.

Mr. Mather occupied the chair, who, after the singing of a hymn and the offering up of prayer by the Rev. Mr. Miller, pastor of the church, introduced in a short and appropriate speech Mr. Wellington Boulter, the donor of the memorial window.

Mr. Boulter briefly and feelingly expressed the great pleasure it gave him to make the presentation to the church of which his late brother was a constant attendant, and a valuable official, assisting, as he did, in all enterprises in which the church was engaged, educationally and otherwise. He added that that pleasure was shared by his only sister, Mrs. Dempsey, of Ameliasburgh, and his nephew, Mr. Geo. H. Boulter, of Belleville, both of whom were present to join in the ceremony of the unveiling of the window. He could not close his few remarks, he said, without expressing his thanks and gratitude to the many who were present to do honor to the memory of one whom they held in the highest esteem, and consequently were his most intimate and confidential friends; particularly so was Sir Mackenize Bowell, his brother's associate and colleague in private as well as in public life, both having represented the North Riding of Hastings for many years, the one in the Dominion House and the other in the Ontario Legislature, and served together in the 49th Regiment for many years. He was also gratified to see present E. G. Porter, K.C., M.P. for his brother's old Riding, and J. W. Johnson, Esq., M.P.P., and Col. W. N. Ponton, K.C., from Belleville. These gentlemen knew his brother well and their presence was evidence of their respect for his memory and appreciation of his life's work.

The audience were then briefly addressed by Sir Mackenize Bowell, J. W. Johnson, M.P.P., E. G. Porter, M.P.; S. Pierce, ex-M.P.P.; Robt. Cook, M.P.P.; Mr. Dobson, High School Teacher, of Picton; J. S. Baldrick, Esq., and Dr. Bisonett, of Stirling, all of whom spoke in the highest possible terms of the late Dr. Boulter, as one whom it would be well for the rising generation to endeavor to emulate, resulting, as it would, in the county having an honest and stalwart body of men.

It were well to add that Mr. Dobson's speech was a well merited eulogy of the enterprise in promoting useful and good works of Mr. Wellington Boulter, in the many important positions he had held in Picton and in the county of Prince Edward, who, Mr. Dobson declared, never ceased in doing good works.

During the proceedings the audience were favored with singing by the choir, a duet by Miss Bisonette and Mr. Radcliffe, and a solo by Miss Bisonette.

The meeting was then closed by the singing of the doxology and the benediction.

We may add that Mr. Wellington Boulter deserves the thanks of the officials of the Presbyterian church in Stirling for his generous donation, and of the whole community for the love and affection displayed for his brother in the perpetuation of his memory by the donation of a memorial window.

Even puny little man has strength sufficient to raise objections.

Declination of Cheese To the Old Country

To the Editor of The Intelligencer.

Dear Sir,—As a careful reader of your paper, I was much interested in your editorial in Tuesday's paper, under the heading "Our Declining Cheese Exports," in which you point out that the shortage in cheese exports from Canada to Great Britain, from May 1st to July, 5930 tons, and you also make very clear that the larger portion of this shortage is due to the fact that 130,000 boxes of cheese are being held in Montreal by cheese exporters, awaiting not for shipment to Britain, but waiting for the reduction of 3c. per pound duty on Canadian cheese going into the United States, when this lot of good Canadian cheese will be rushed into the United States with a handsome profit to the Montreal merchants.

Now, sir, this little editorial would doubtless have passed unnoticed by me, were it not for the fact, that, when reciprocity in natural products with the United States was an issue in the last Dominion election, I had the courage to stand on the public platform and tell the farmers of this district that the removal of a duty of 6c. per pound on Canadian cheese going into the United States, would be a good thing four our farmers, and because of my so doing I received more abuse from the then editor of The Intelligencer than was probably ever handed to one individual in the same length of time, and strange as it may now seem, The Intelligencer was able to convince the farmers of this district that, should such a thing happen, this country would be flooded with American-made cheese; all of which goes to show the truth of Barnum's saying, "the people like to be humbugged."

However, as most o your readers will have forgotten these things, your editorial in Tuesday's paper will help some of them to start thinking, and if the possibility of a reduction of 3c. per pound on Canadian cheese entering the United States causes 130,000 boxes of our cheese to be held in Montreal for future shipment into the States, may not any intelligent farmer have good reason to ask himself, or his representative in Parliament, what would have happened, had the present duty of 6c. per pound been removed from Canadian cheese going into the United States, and this is exactly what would have taken place had the reciprocity agreement been entered into.

And now, sir, while your editorial was interesting, it was not a bit more so than your news item of a few days' previous issue, regarding Canada's ever increasing trade. No slogan did better service in the defeat of recipraocity than the one much used in Ontario: "No truck nor trade with the Yankees," and yet The Intelligencer tells us that under the present government our imports from the United States exceed one million dollars per day and we do more trade with the Yankees than with all the rest of the world combined, and while this would have almost constituted high treason under the Laurier Government, it is absolutely all right under the Borden Administration, the only objection to it at all being found in the fact, as stated in The Intelligencer of August 26th, that the people of Canada were indirectly taxed, or paid in duties, the immense sum of $38,531,000 on the past four months' business, making us, as Canadians, the most heavily taxed people in the British Empire.

However, some day the farmers of Ontario may grow tired of enjoying this distinction; they may some day realize that buying in the dearest market and selling in the cheapest market is not good business, and some day they will realize that the rejected Fielding tariff and reciprocity in natural products with the greatest market in the world, the United States, was in the best interests of this Canada of ours.

D. V. SINCLAIR.

Editor's Note.—We are always glad to open our columns to such intelligent and breezy writers as our esteemed townsman and friend, Mr. Sinclair. We are also deeply interested at the manner in which he selects a little cheese to hedge a flood that would have poured into our markets had the reciprocity pact been carried on Sept. 21st, 1911. Mr. Sinclair knows our industries at the present time could not successfully contend with those of the United States, and considering our importations, it is well that Canada's bars are up. It might be a matter of further enlightenment if Mr. Sinclair would ascertain if the Montreal merchants are still holding the cheese—else it might be in a condition to walk off of its own accord.

THE TOWN KNOCKER

The following, which we clip from the Toronto Daily Star, might, in a sense, prove appropriate to every city and town in the Dominion, where kickers and knockers are over numerous. While Belleville is creditably free from such specimens of humanity, if there should be, here and there, a discontented spirit, we would suggest a heart-to-heart talk with His Worship Mayor Wills, who, in accord with the majority of our citizens, has little sympathy with this class of citizens.

The Mayor of a town in Western Ontario has made quite a sensation by offering to buy out all the property of a member of the town council who is, he says, a kicker and a knocker, on condition that the other man will go away and live somewhere else.

We do not know anything about the facts, and it may be that the Mayor, by making so unusual an offer, is but scoring a telling point against an adversary. But it is heavy scoring.

The truth is that each town is burdened with men who are a detriment to it, and it would actually pay the municipality to buy them out at their own valuation and be rid of them.

They oppose everything and have no faith in anybody. They suspect the motives of those who do the most generous actions.

It is said of John Bright's brother that he was never known to say a striking thing except once when he was granted an interview by Queen Victoria. A little grandchild was brought in, and Mr. Bright observed: "When I see so many lovely babies I often wonder where all the ugly old men come from."

It was a notable remark. And when we see so many fine young fellows in our towns and cities, one is led to wonder what happens to some of them that they turn into kickers and knockers at the age of fifty or sixty.

REJUVENATING THE PARTY

Party politics is a series of conundrums, says The Canadian. Look at a couple of sentiments from a leader in the Toronto Globe: "From the point of view of the best interests of the Liberal party, and of its rejuvenation as an agent of true Liberalism, no one need greatly regret the defeat of the Government in 1911." . . . . "If the conviction is made clear and strong that the Liberal party is not only radically true to the principles of Liberalism, but also that it has thought itself through a programme of industrial, economic, and social reform."

"Rejuvenation" is a blessed word. It seems that some of the old blood must give place to young blood. Who is to recede? What is to induce the new blood to the sacrifice? There must be something more than the facts that a desirable young man's father was a Liberal. Traditional allegiance never did anything in itself to rejuvenate a party.

Who is to speak for the Liberals if, after fifteen years of office, and two years' freedom for reflection, the country needs to be convinced that the party "Has thought itself through a programme"? Where is the sign that the party, as it is represented at Ottawa, has thought about anything, but the immediate chances of defeating Mr. Borden?

The truth is, of course, that the rejuvenation which the chief apologist desires is not obviously in process. There is a stirring in the national consciousness, but the embryo is not on the Speaker's left—not yet.

CANADIAN LAWS

It is being assumed, says the Montreal Gazette, that there will be long delays in deciding the points raised in the case of Harry K. Thaw, now in Sherbrooke jail, and already criticism unfavorable in its character is being passed on the weakness of Canadian law, Canadian courts and Canadian magistrates. It is possible that events will show the fault-finders that they spoke prematurely. People in this country wish to see the case promptly dealt with, and it is to be assumed that those who in a judicial or magisterial way have to deal with it, having the purpose of the law in view, and wishing to secure it with dispatch as well as decorum, will act promptly and effectively and let justice be done. It is not necessary to have a writ of habeas corpus to set free a man who is held in prison without just cause.

MUNICIPAL ENTERPRISE

Toronto papers announce that within twelve months over twenty million dollars has been borrowed by their city, either by the sale of bonds or on temporary notes. For some of the money a high rate of interest had to be promised. Some of the newspapers think the interested authorities are going too fast, and, possibly, with reason. Most cities have in their administrations those who think only of the day of spending, and forget the long bills that have to be faced when the days of paying come.

Although in a smaller degree, Belleville has had her experiences in this way, which causes her city council to move carefully in the carrying out of improvements, lest a repetition results.

CURRENT COMMENT

New York Sun: "If the Ulster loyalists have their way the new title of George V. will be "King of the United Kingdoms of Great Britain, Ireland, and Belfast," etc.

* * *

Toronto Star: "As long as the Thaw millions are flowing freely, Harry K. Thaw may be sure that a certain number of people can be got to regard him as a noble-minded and persecuted martyr."

* * *

Montreal Gazette: "The three Doukhobors in the Regina jail who went on a hunger strike quickly surrendered when forcible feeding was resorted to by the prison authorities. They must be of the male sex."

* * *

Toronto Star: "Thaw has no right to be in Canada. Put him out. It is up to the Government to see that he is as promptly ejected as if money were not talking for him." Yes, drop him over the back yard fence.

* * *

Montreal Telegraph: "The United States Government has intimated that it would be satisfied if assured that the Mexicans would hold an "honest election." Well, New York has one coming on. Will it set an example?"

* * *

Montreal Telegraph: "To accuse a man of making too much of his personality, is to accomplish that stroke of wanton and transparent falseness which will make even the studied exaggeration of a cartoon entirely miss the mark." Please repeat it. We don't catch the idea.

The Newcombe Piano Co. now occupies its new Toronto showrooms at 359 Yonge St., and show here a duplicate of their Exhibition display. The Newcombe is the only piano equipped with Howard's Patent Straining Rods, which ensures purity and stability of tone. For beauty of design and general value it is hard to equal the Newcombe and visitors are invited to compare these instruments with any and all others on the market. The City showrooms will be open every evening during Exhibition and every effort will be made to allow visitors to see and test the good points of the Newcombe.

FIRE PROOF BUILDERS' SUPPLIES.

Just to the rear of the stock sheds, in the East end of the Toronto Exhibition Grounds. The Metal Shingle and Siding Company, of Preston, Montreal, Saskatoon and Calgary, have erected a new Steel-trussed barn 36 by 56 feet in size. This is the newest and latest improved idea for farms and was erected complete in one day. This Company's Steel Garages in Colonial designs are of great interest to automobile owners. They are very attractive, fireproof, easily erected, and very economical.

Architects and Contractors are specially invited to get off the street car at King and Dufferin Streets, just two blocks from the main entrance to the Fair Grounds, to visit the new plant of the A. B. Ormsby Company, Limited, of Toronto and Winnipeg, now nearing completion. PUNCTURE PROOF TIRES.

At the East door of the Transportation Building of the Toronto Exhibition is being shown one of the greatest conveniences for motorists ever invented. This is the Simplex Self-healing Puncture-proof Tube for automobile and auto-cycle tires. This tube has been thoroughly tested both on and off autos. You can drive nails through it and the punctures are automatically sealed, preventing the loss of air. The Simplex Sales Company, 559 Yonge St., Toronto, control this invention and, to prove its efficiency, offer to place a Simplex Puncture-proof Tube, which has been punctured over a hundred times, in any tire it will fit and drive you fifty miles without any appreciable loss of air. That is a demonstration which proves the Company's claims. Autoists should insist that Simplex Puncture-proof Pneumatic Inner Tubes are included in their 1914 cars, and dealers and agents everywhere should get into touch with the Company at their office or at the Exhibition.

Visitors Flock in Thousands to Fair

TORONTO, Aug. 28.—Visitors are continuing to flock to Toronto to see the greatest annual Exhibition in America. The boats brought thousands to the city this morning from American and Canadian cities.

Many intend to stay in Toronto for a few days, but a large number will return on the last boats to-night. The passenger traffic at the Union Station is much heavier than last year. The most notable difference is in the touring traffic.

The hot weather this year compared with the cold wet weather of last summer, largely accounts for the increase.

IMMIGRANTS ARRIVING

Two special trains arrived in western Canada last week bringing 650 farmers from the United States. The interest attached to the new-comers is the fact that they have no intention of going homesteading, but have left their native and with the idea of purchasing farms and settling down in the Canadian West.

The first of these trains came in by way of North Portal and brought 275 persons from Illinois, Iowa, Kansas and Wisconsin. They arrived under the guidance of the C. P. R. department of natural resources and they are bound for Calgary. Some of them possessed from $30,000 to $40,000 and on the whole they averaged $10,000 apiece. The second special came through Emerson and carried 375 homeseekers for the Lost Mountain Valley district. The members of this party hailed from Winconsin, Iowa and Indiana. They brought with them on an average of from $7,000 to $8,000 each.

These are the kind of emigrants Canada wants.

Who Ever Knew Any Corn to Stay?

Who ever saw a corn so old, so tough as to resist a Blue-jay plaster?

There are corns which resist the first plaster—that's true. But the most stubborn corn must come out with the second.

Think how easy it is. The little plaster is applied in a jiffy. The pain stops instantly.

For two days the corn is forgotten. Then you take off the plaster and the corn comes out.

It comes out entirely and forever, without soreness or any discomfort.

Did you ever know anyone to use a Blue-jay without just that result?

If not, why don't you try it? Why not end your own corns in this modern scientific way?

Now used on a million corns monthly.

B stops the pain and keeps the wax from spreading.
C wraps around the toe. It is narrowed to be comfortable.
D is rubber adhesive to fasten the plaster on.

MONTREAL PLAYERS ARE SOLD TO MAJOR LEAGUES

Brooklyn, Aug. 27.—President Lichtenheim, of the Montreal Club of the International League anounced to-day the sale of two, prominent Montreal players. Outfielder Gilhooly goes to the New York Americans in exchange for Pitcher George McConnell and a cash consideration, not stated.

The Philadelphia Nationals secured Catcher Burns in exchange for Catcher Howley and two other players not mentioned.

EBBETS TO SELL NEWARK CLUB

New York, Aug. 27.—It is stated that Charles H. Ebbets, president of the Brooklyn Baseball Club, may sell out his interests in the Newark Club, prospective champions in the Internationals League.

The tip has ben passed, according to popular gossip, that the major magnates must dispose of their of their minor league holdings in order to thwart any possible Federal investigation into the alleged Baseball "Trust." In the event of a sale it is quite likely that the Newark franchise will be purchsed by Mihlon and Upperou, who now control the Newark Velodrme bicycle track.

The Newark Club has had a very successful financial year so far. It is estimated that $30,000 has been made.

ANOTHE STAR PASSES

Boston, Aug. 27..—The passing of another veteran player from the major league baseball was recorded when President Jas. Gaffney, of the Boston Nationals, announced that Arthur Devlin, third baseman, had been released to the Rochester team of the International League.

Devlin was one of the old New York National League stars whose great work helped the Giants win several league championships and one world's championship—that in 1905.

Devlin's last game in the big league had something of the dramatic about it. Coming to the bat as a pinch hitter in the ninth inning of Monday's game against Pittsburg, he drove in the run which tied the score for Boston, with a well placed hit to right field. He did not know at that time that be was to be released after the game.

GREEN YOUNGSTERS ARE OFTEN TRIFLED WITH

Earl Herbert a Cincinnati recruit, caused a howl of joy among the Red players by asking Joe Tinker "which gate we players go through at this ball park." Without even a grin, Joe pointed to a little gate labelled "Directors and Officials," and then the whole crowd of Reds danced with glee as a fat doortender hurled Mr. Herbert forth into the dusty street.

"Almost as bad," said Frank Bancroft, "as the day Marty O'Toole joined the Pirates. It was at Chicago, and when O'Toole asked what gate was used by the visiting players he was informed that everybody, players and all, had to pay. O'Toole bought a 25-cent ticket, and went to the bleachers. Then as soon as the Pirates came out for practce he hopped over into the field to join his new pals, and a policeman was just dragging him away when I interfered and rescued him."

BEN TIN CUP RICHEST PLAYER IN THE GAME

Ben Tincup the Cherokee Indian pitcher recently signed by the Phillies is said to be the richest player in baseball, If not better off financially than some of the club owners themselves. When Ben becomes of age next April he will receive the title of 400 acres of oil land in Oklahoma which the United States Government is holding in trust for him. The income he will derive from this source amounts to about $50,000 a year, according to reports. Ben also has a $20,000 bank account laid aside. The Phillies are counting on his delivering a fine assorement of baseball goods next season. Dooin has him in tow and it is said that the Indian has run 100 yards in 10 seconds in a baseball uniform at the park in Philadelphia, while showing great form wth the bat. It is doubtful whether he develops into a pitcher, as Dooin hopes to turn his speed and batting to account by making an outfielder of him.

YEP! IT WAS MR. BORDEN

And He Didn't Look Very Different From Others

For those from "Missouri," the antics of fun-making clowns and all the eyeopeners of the showman as presented before the grandstand at the Exhibition evidently form only a part of the attractions. To the man from the "fields' there are other who figure strongly.

Last evening during a time when the grandstand excitement was not at its height, and one curious "son of toil" inquired of an usher who was the hoary-headed gentleman was that occupied the front box.

When the questioner learned that it was the Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden, he hurried off to his associates to spread the tidings.

Four returned, and after drawing themselves up at a advantageous viewpoint, one surprisingly remarked "My, he doesn't look any different from anybody else, does he?"

FOOTBALL NICKNAMES

In England the big football teams have nicknames just as the baseball and lacrosse teams have here. For instance the Norwich City professionals are the "Canaries." Other clubs bears the name of either bird or animal. Millwall are described as "Lions," and their playing-pitch as the "Den." Newcastle United are the "Magpies," and Hull City are "Tigers." In fact, nearly every professional club has a second name of some sort. Bury are usually referred to as the "Shakers," and Woolwich Arsenal as the "Gunners." Fulham, the "Cottagers," and Nottingham are the "Lacemen." Sunderland are called the "Wearsiders," because of their close proximity to the River Wear, Chelsea are the "Pensioners," and Southampton are more often known as the "Saints."

A VETERAN CRICKETER

The One and Only "W. G." Still in the Game

Although sixty-five years old, Dr W. G. Grace is still a keen cricketer. Dr. Grace played in his first recorded match 54 years ago, and when only sixteen appeared for the Gentlemen against the Players. In first-class matches he has played no fewer than 126 three-figure innings—125 in England and one in Australia—and in all kinds of cricket he has hit as many as 217 hundreds, a feat which no other cricketer has approached. He has scored no fewer than 13 double-centuries in first-class matches, and in consecutive innings in 1876 he made 344, 177 and 318 not out.

In 1895, when within two months of his 47th birthday, "W. G." scored 1,000 runs as early as May 30. But perhaps the most remarkable performance of his career was at Gravesend in May, 1895, in a match between Kent and Gloucestershire. He was in the field while every ball was bowled, and scored 257 and 73 not out, his wonderful batting coupled with Painter's unexpected success as a bowler in the second innings of Kent, giving Gloucestershire a brilliant victory.

Dr. Grace has also on seven occasions accomplished the double feat of scoring 1,000 runs and taking 100 wickets in one season. It has been well and truly said that he is the greatest cricketer who ever played, and that we cannot hope to see his like again.

Mr. Balfour's Drive

Mr. A. J. Balfour is very enthusiastic about golf. And thereby hangs a tale. One day he was waiting for a train for Windsor at Paddington Station. He was carrying a resplendent, gold-handled umbrella, and as he gazed abstractedly round, his eye caught sight of a cork lying on the platform. Obviously forgetting his surroundings, he strolled towards the cork, took up a correct attitude, and made a splendid drive with the cork. Just as he did so his umbrella snapped, and a portion of it followed the cork across the line. This recalled Mr. Balfour to his surroundings and he was embarrassed to find that he had been providing a free entertainment for the people on the platform.

DAVE ALTIZER

"Dare Devil Dave" Altizer, who has a fine record in the American association, is a base ball freak. Each fall some major league magnate pays Joe Cantillon, of Minneapolis, a good price for Dave, hoping he has finally "arrived," and will shine in the fastest company. And each spring Altizer is sent back to Minneapolis for much less than he cost. He is much of a baseball mystery as the "why" of the spit-ball. Altizer is gingery and fast, although he has rather a crabbed temper which he shows when he goes to bat muttering. At his best he is a Trojan—mighty at bat and in the field.

It cost one million dollars to excavate for the foundation of the Woolworth Building, New York.

BETTER TEAM WORK NOW THAN OF YORE

Cy Young Says This is Indisputable Fact But It's Hard to Judge Individuals

There is no denying that baseball has improved since I started in the game nearly a quarter of a century ago, says the veteran Cy Young. Perhaps there hasn't been so much improvement in the individual players as some may imagine, but there has been a big change in team play. There really is no way to tell whether individuals have improved or not. In horse races and athletics we have records which indicate whether there has been improvement, but in baseball we have nothing of the kind.

We cannot prove, for instance, whether a pitcher like Walter Johnson has more speed than Amos Rusie had in his palmy days. It is merely a matter of opinion whether our best infielders are better than the men of a quarter of a century ago.

But in team play there is no chance for an argument. You no longer see outfielders rooted to one spot. For almost every batter they change position, and, in fact, knowledge of the batters is almost half the game. Infielders use their brains more than they used to. It is no hit-or-miss arrangement which man will cover second on an attempted steal; it's clockwork for the second baseman to cover first on a sacrifice. Nothing is being overlooked to make the game better and faster.

Do not imagine, for a minute, that pitching hasn't improved. When I started into baseball, all a pitcher needed was speed. As a matter of fact, that was all I had. Now, to be successful, a pitcher must, first of all, have control. He must know the weakness of each batter. He needs a change of pace, a fast one and a slow one, to be anywhere near the top, and he must include a curve ball in his stock.

And just as long as men think, the game will improve. It is only natural that it should do so, when brainy men devote the best part of their lives to the study of the game. Baseball is not perfect. It never will be, and for that very reason it continues to hold its popularity.

WOOD IS VALUABLE

Good Substitutes Found For Rapidly Vanishing Oak of Ontario

Over 1,200 wood-using industries in Ontario contributed the data for a bulletin on this industry issued by the Forestry Branch, Ottawa. Thirty-four different kinds of wood are used by these industries.

The bulletin shows the increasing poverty of Ontario with regard to the more valuable work-woods. Almost half of the thirty-four kinds of wood used are obtained principally from outside sources and three and one-half million dollars are annually sent out of the province for imported wood stock. The imported oak alone costs one million six hundred thousand dollars annually, for this tree has become commercially extinct in Ontario while the hickory and chestnut groves of southern Ontario have also, almost entirely disappeared. Even good clear white pine is becoming hard to obtain and its market value is steadily rising for it represents twenty-one per cent. of the total wood consumption in Ontario for industrial purposes.

Of more interest to the small consumer of wood-products are the side lights thrown on the possibility of substituting cheap home grown woods for the expensive foreign species. Recent tests made of their physical properties have demonstrated the suitability for certain purposes of many native species, hitherto despised by the dealers. For hardwood flooring in place of the oak and maple now in general use, may be substituted the home grown birch and beech which take a high polish and have the advantage of being considerably cheaper. Likewise for interior finishing, the expensive oak can be very closely imitated by stained black ash and stained birch is almost undistinguishable from mahogany, while stained red gum requires an expert to distinguish it from the costly Circassian walnut. The expensive white pine is being replaced where durability is not a requisite, by the cheaper spruce, basswood and elm. Poplar and balsam-fir are two of the most common trees in Ontario and that they have wider uses is evident from the fact that poplar is highly valued for hardwood flooring in Manitoba while balsam-fir is perhaps the most widely used native species in the Maritime provinces.

Freak Golf Games

Two English golfers undertook to play from Maidstone to Littlestone-on-Sea, a distance of about thirty-five miles, in 2,000 strokes. They actually accomplished the feat in 1,087 strokes. In view of this a well known player made a bet with Neville Foster of Ashdown Forest Golf Club and W. Warman of Newton Green Golf Club that they could not play from Forest Row to Crowborough over Woodland Heather, over several steep hills, a distance of about eight miles, in 350 strokes. The feat, however was accomplished in 184 strokes without the loss of a single ball.

Cutting Metals by Heat

A Belgian has invented a method for cutting metals similar to the oxygen-acetylene process but using hydrogen in place of acetylene in a double torch, one jet heating the metal with the mixed gases, the other cutting it with pure oxygen.

Foggy Smoky London

English scientists have found that more than half a million tons of sulphurous acid are discharged into London's atmosphere every year, mainly by the combustion of illuminating gas, to the injury of the city's stone buildings.

CARE OF THE TEETH

Absolute Cleanliness Necessary to Prevent Decay and Preserve Health

Good teeth are not accidental. They are our birthright. If by reason of lack of early training we failed to preserve our birthright, for the sake of our children let's not let the coming generation have poor teeth. Let's teach them habits of cleanliness as regards their teeth. They will thank us for it later.

Teeth kept perfectly clean cannot decay. Decay is caused by bacteria which find lodgment in protected places on tooth surfaces and by breaking down the sweets and starches of food remnants produce an acid that demolishes the tooth substance.

It is regarded as impossible to avoid all decay without constant attention for the purpose of keeping all tooth surface absolutely clean, but with such care as can be given by proper brushing and rinsing the teeth and mouth three times a day and the use of silk floss once a day, it is possible that 75 per cent. of the decay in children's teeth may be avoided.

It is highly important to protect the teeth of children, for with decayed teeth food cannot be properly chewed and improperly chewed food cannot be properly digested. As a consequence proper body development is impaired, progress in studies is retarded and resistance to disease i rendered below par. Constant swallowing of the foul products of decay, combined with the lack of proper assimilation of food, produces anæmia, tonsillar disease, rheumatism and a number of ailments classed as "school diseases." If "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure" it is manifestly worth while to avoid these conditions by remedying the defects of teeth which so commonly cause them.

To properly brush the teeth and accomplish the most good, select a medium stiff brush with tufted bristles and in brushing place the brush with bristles up beside the upper teeth and rotate so that the bristles will cleanse both gums and teeth. Brush the opposite way when cleansing the lower teeth. To cleanse the inner surface of the teeth use the end of the brush. Also use the brush on the tongue and palate and finally rinse the mouth thoroughly, forcing the water between the teeth.

The most important tooth in the mouth and the one most frequenly lost through decay is the first permanent molar. The "baby molars" should not be lost until the ninth year of life, but the first permanent molar, which comes in at six years of age, should not be lost at all.

BAKING POWDER

Here is a Splendid Recipe for the Home-made Article

Eight ounces of cream of tartar.

Four ounces of baking soda.

Four ounces of corn starch.

Place all in your flour sifter and sift at least 10 times.

The only failure comes from not being mixed well. Put into tight dry can and use the same as that you buy. The price is about one-third as much as when purchased at the grocery, and if made carefully and used properly you will find that it is as good as the best patented baking powder.

TO SAVE THE SITUATION

With tight skirts in the social world and tight money in the financial world, the present pace is rather a dizzy one. The influence of the tight skirt seems to be passing, however, and the influence of tight money may follow it.

The dictum of fashion inflicted tight skirts on the ladies. For some time they suffered in silence. Then someone made a mixture of fashion and the dictates of common sense, and lo! the slit-skirt was just as uncomfortable looking as the tight skirt—therefore, just as fashionable—but one could walk in it almost naturally.

Tight money seems to be the fashion in the financial world, so we may hear of slit money directly, to bring busness back to normal—Ottawa Journal.

Line 'Em Out.

Look back three thousand years ago
We find, if we inquire,
They played good ball in Jericho
And better ball in Tyre.

Then Nineveh set quite a pace,
Some class had Babylon,
But when they closed the pennant race
The Hittites always won.

Mere signals, steals or inside plays
Just make the sluggers grin
Today, as in those ancient days,
The hitties always win.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

HAD REAL BULLETS,

Tragedies Narrowly Averted In Militia Manoeuvres.

CHATHAM, Aug. 28.—When the Blue army halted at noon yesterday an inspection was made of ball pouches and rifles. The officers were startled to find that several men were carrying loaded shells, such as are used in the regimental shooting galleries. A thorough search was made and all such shells were taken up. Serious results might have followed the first skirmish had these shells not been discovered, for in the heat of action it would have been very easy for a man to confuse the loaded and the blank shells. There will be an inquiry as to the manner in which the men were accidentally served with loaded shells.

The Blues marched seven miles from the night camp before noon. Last night extra sentries were posted to prevent any possibility of a surprise attack by the Red forces during the night. The main armies are now only three miles apart.

During the day the 24th Regiment had been the advance party, and they had been very active with their scouts. Last night they were in charge of outposts and sentry duty. The youngest member of the invading force is Teddy McCall, the eleven-year-old son of A. I. McCall of this city. He is expert in signalling and is a member of the signal party. Yesterday he insisted on walking, and for six miles he kept up with the army. Finally the pleas of the officers were listened to and very condescendingly he climbed aboard a motorcycle and much against his will rode the last mile of the march.

William Becker, aged 50, was instantly killed by a Hydro-Electric wire while working at the Kuntz Brewery at Berlin, Ont., yesterday.

Arnold Moon, an East Zorra farmer, escaped uninjured when a C.P.R. express crashed into and killed one of his horses on the Dundas street crossing at Stratford.

Bernard Quaritch, the well-known London dealer in rare books, died yesterday from the effects of an illness contracted during a recent visit to the United States.

A suffragette plot to kidnap Lloyd-George, which just failed of success, has been revealed, states the London Daily Sketch. A male suffragist gave the scheme away.

Russell Clark, a fourteen-year-old newsboy of Kingston, was struck by lightning while delivering his papers and knocked down. He was unconscious for two hours, and one side of his body was paralyzed.

Apparently dead as the result of a suicide pact, though the cause of their action is an absolute mystery, the dead bodies of Carl W. Perry, aged 20, and Miss Angie Spear, aged 19, were found floating in a motor boat on the bay at Portland, Me.

MAWSON PARTY RESCUED.

Relief Expedition Arrives at Camp Just In Nick of Time.

CHRISTCHURCH, New Zealand, Aug. 28.—Relief arrived just in the nick of time to save the lives of Dr. Douglas Mawson, the Australian Antarctic explorer, and his five companions who were left in March last on Macquarie Island, in the Antarctic Ocean, when the remaining 24 members of Dr. Mawson's expedition returned to Tasmania on board the Aurora from their South Polar trip.

The six men were believed to have ample provisions to last them until the Antarctic spring, but the commander of the Government steamer recently sent to their relief reports that the explorers had exhausted all their supplies, and that the men had been living for some time on the hearts and tongues of sea elephants. All of them were obviously in very weak condition when the relief ship reached them.

William Hinsworth Is Promoted In Inland Revenue Department.

Ottawa, Aug. 28.—William Hinsworth, for many years chief clerk of the Inland Revenue Department, has been appointed Deputy Minister. He has been Acting Deputy for some months, since the retirement from the Deputyship of W. J. Gerald.

J. U. Mr. Vincent is the law partner of the son-in-law of Hon. Bruno Nantel, Minister of Inland Revenue.

Shake-Up In Edmonton.

EDMONTON, Alta., Aug. 28.—In one of the most sensational council meetings ever held here the majority of the council, after attempting the dismissal of City Commissioner Chalmers and failing to get the two-thirds majority necessary, appointed him to the nominal position of supervisor of health and relief, in order to force his resignation. City Auditor Richardson was dismissed, and the gas department, of which the head is James Brodie, was abolished. A special committee submitted a long report, charging Chalmers with incompetency.

Toronto Man High Chief Ranger.

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 28.—W. R. Woodstock of Toronto was elected by acclamation high chief ranger of the Ancient Order of Foresters, in session there, yesterday. W. Williams, Toronto, was returned to office as permanent secretary. Elections for high court officers will be held to-day. The reports yesterday show progress by the order over the Dominion.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 27.—Sentiment was decidedly bearish on the local grain exchange today owing to the fine crop prospects. Prices opened easy, but firmed up later on strong corn markets. The opening was unchanged to ⅛c lower. Cash trading was at a standstill. Oats and flax was steady. Cash flax was 1c lower.

Car Strike In Three Cities.

VANCOUVER, B.C. Aug. 28.—A street railway strike is expected before the end of the week in Vancouver, Victoria and New Westminster, and all interurban lines operated by the B. C. Electric Railway.

Ten days ago a Board of Conciliation, headed by Justice Murphy, reached its decision, and majority and minority reports were submitted. The majority report not only declined to give the increased wage scale asked by the men, but brought in a recommendation to reduce the present wages.

Saskatoon Bonds To Be Validated.

SASKATOON, Sask., Aug. 28.—To satisfy the Canadian Agencies, Ltd., at the coming session legislation will be introduced declaring valid the bonds recently sold by the city, in which the rate of interest was raised by the council to five per cent. after bylaws had been voted up at four and a half per cent. A test case was decided by the Supreme Court of Saskatchewan, in which the validity of the issue was upheld, but the city's fiscal agents wish to make assurance doubly sure.

Strathcona Will Attend.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Lord Strathcona, Canadian High Commissioner in England, who sailed for this country on Saturday last, has accepted an invitation to attend the annual meeting and banquet of the American Bar Association, in Montreal, Sept. 1. The association made public yesterday Lord Strathcona's cabled acceptance, sent just before he sailed.

CROWD BREAKS LOOSE.

Frenzied Women In Sherbrooke Court Cheer Thaw.

SHERBROOKE, Que., April 28.—Harry K. Thaw won three victories from the New York State authorities yesterday and was locked last night in the Sherbrooke jail, immune for the time being from the Dominion immigration authorities after having received from the townspeople of Sherbrooke, an ovation that would have done honor to a prince of the royal blood.

So riotous was the scene in the Superior Court, when, at the morning session, Justice Globensky refused to allow counsel representing New York State to be party to the proceedings, that the court subsequently warned spectators that a repetition of the cheering, chair climbing, handkerchief waving and general hysteria would mean jail sentences for the demonstrants.

Speaking from the bench at the afternoon session, he said that never in his experience as a member of the bar and of the bench had he been a witness to such a "disgraceful scene." It was carried out in the presence of court attendants and four armed Dominion police, who stood immobile while emotional women rushed toward Stanford White's slayer, saying "Three cheers for Thaw"; "Three cheers for the British flag. We will give you justice, Harry."

The three points in which Thaw's lawyers were successful in their first legal skirmish were:

1. New York State was denied the right to be party to the proceedings in court.

2. Counsel for the state failed in their efforts to have Thaw arraigned before a magistrate, and the commitment on which he is held quashed. This would have released him to the immigration officers.

3. Judge Globensky granted the plea of Thaw's counsel for a discontinuance of the writ of habeas corpus, which might have brought about his release yesterday. This remedied a stragetic blunder made by Thaw's attorneys last week, who apparently did not realize then that in seeking their client's release they were playing into the opposition's hands.

DOLLAR WHEAT PREDICTED,

Dollar Corn and Dollar Potatoes Are Also Likely.

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—Dollar corn, dollar wheat and dollar potatoes is the forecast sent out to farmers by the Orange Judd Farmer. Other food products are likely to carry prices in proportion.

"The world's production of oats, rye, buckwheat and other small grains is below normal," it is said, "and corn is the smallest in years. The same is true of potatoes in America and Europe. The intrinsic market worth of wheat at Chicago is fully $1 a bushel.

"The shortage in the corn crop is 600,000,000 bushels. The price is up two cents a bushel at 75 cents. The estimated crop is 2,300,000,000 bushels. Reduced yield of forage, pastures and hay will increase the demand for corn as feed for live stock. Its use as human food and in manufacture is steadily increasing. With all these things taken into consideration, it can be seen readily that corn should be worth $1 a bushel."

HAWKER HAS BAD FALL.

Accident Probably Ends Chance of Winning Big Prize.

DUBLIN, Aug. 28.—Hawker's flight was stopped again near Portraine, 12 miles from the control station here by the fracture of one of the wings of his hydro aeroplane. Coastguards went to his assistance.

It was his intention to fly to-day from Oban by way of Dublin to Falmouth, a distance of 502 miles, thus leaving 202 miles for his final dash in the morning from Falmouth to Southampton, where he must arrive at half past nine in the morning in order to be successful.

When Hawker and his mechanic were taken from the water into which they had fallen from the height of 100 feet, they were found to be suffering from cuts on their heads and arms, and were taken to the coastguard station for treatment.

GERMANY IS INVOLVED.

Chinese Rebels Have Fallen Foul of Foreign Nation.

BERLIN, Aug. 28.—The commanding officer of the German East Asiatic cruiser squadron reports to the Government that the Chinese rebels in the fort near Wuhu recently fired on the cruiser Emden with both rifles and cannon. The Emden immediately answered with 25 shots, silencing the fort.

Advices received a week ago by the German Foreign Office indicated that trouble was impending between the German warships and the southern revolutionaries. The rebel leader, in a letter to the German consul at Nankin, declared that the Emden had bombarded the rebel position on Lion Hill, and he announced his intention of retaliating on the German cruiser and the consulate.

Two Killed In Mine.

TIMMINS, Aug. 28.—Early yesterday morning, at the Hollinger reserve, an explosion occurred, whereby two men, named Jack Nolan, a drill runner, and Mike Tereske, a deckhand, were killed. Tereske had just taken down a supply of dynamite, and reached the heading where Nolan was working, when the explosion took place. Nolan was a brother-in-law of Jack Newton of Golden City, and was well known in Cobalt and Porcupine. Mr. Newton is here today arranging for the disposition of the body. As far as can be ascertained, the explosion was a pure accident, and the cause will probably remain a mystery.

Mimico Truant Recaptured.

PETERBORO, Aug. 28.—A young lad, arrested here late Tuesday night, finally confessed that he had made his escape from the Mimico Industrial School. He said his name was Murphy. An officer was expected here today to return the lad to the school.

KING'S ATTENDANTS NOT OVER-WORKED

Royal Palace Run Like a Big Business Institution With Lots of Help

The changes that have taken place in the Royal household of Great Britain during the past twenty-five years are numerous, though in some ways the general management of the Royal establishment approximates now more closely to what it was twenty-five years ago than it did in King Edward's reign.

A quarter of a century ago the headquarters of the Royal household was at Windsor Castle, and Queen Victoria went only occasionally into residence at Buckingham Palace. In those days there were fewer Court officials. But the officials of the Royal household twenty-five years ago were worked far harder than most of them are now, and were practically always in attendance. Nowadays there are several officials of the household who are not required to be in attendance more often perhaps than once a month.

In Queen Victoria's reign most of the chief officials of the household resided at Windsor Castle, but when the headquarters of the Court were changed, after King Edward's accession, to Buckingham Palace, the "resident" officials became far fewer, for most of the ladies and gentlemen of the household have houses of their own in London, and only go to Buckingham Palace when required. Nowadays, not more than four officials of the household are in residence.

Maids of Honor

The Maids of Honor are never now in residence, and the Mistress of the Robes very rarely. Twenty-five years ago, when the headquarters of the Court was at Windsor Castle, the Mistress of the Robes was nearly always in residence at the Castle. The Mistress of the Robes nowadays is only in attendance on the Queen on state occasions. A quarter of a century ago she was not only in constant attendance on the Sovereign but supervised the whole management of the royal wardrobe, checked all her Majesty's dress bills, and it was she who (under her Sovereign's directions), regulated the hours of attendance of the other Ladies-in-Waiting.

Mr. Gladstone, during his ministry, came to Windsor Castle four times in one week. Nowadays the Prime Minister has an audience with the King not oftener than once or twice a month, unless he has some special reason for desiring to see the King, or the King wishes to see him.

The letter which the Prime Minister used to write every night during the sitting of Parliament to the Sovereign has become a thing of the past. King George relieved Mr. Asquith of performing this entirely formal duty almost directly after his accession.

Servants for Servants

Nowadays the general management of the Royal household is conducted on far more businesslike lines than it was twenty-five years ago. If there were then fewer officers of the household than there are now, there was a much bigger staff of servants, most of whom had little or nothing to do. The attendance in the state and private apartments was performed mainly by the Indian servants, who themselves were waited on almost hand and foot by another set of servants.

The Indian servants were, however, all pensioned off after King Edward's accession and the whole management of the household was put on a different footing.

During the reign of King Edward the court was very rarely at Windsor Castle, but King George and Queen Mary both like Windsor, and are constantly in residence there; so that though Buckingham Palace remains, of course, the headquarters of the court, many of the servants and some few of the officers of the Royal household are permanently at Windsor.

It is but a little over a quarter of a century ago that Buckingham Palace was provided with a telephone, at the suggestion of the late King. Now there is a big private exchange at the palace, with an operator on duty day and night.

Officer's Wine Bill

Lieut. J. F. V. Guise, of the battleship Thunderer, was charged before a court martial at Weymouth with disobeying the commands of Captain Oliver in exceeding the limits laid down for his wine and spirit bill, and also with committing an act to the prejudice of good order and ship's discipline in ordering a ship's steward to enter liquor consumed by him against the names of other officers in the wine book.

He pleaded guilty to all the charges, and was ordered to forfeit three months' seniority, dismissed from his ship, and severely reprimanded.

FISHWORMS IN WEST

Not Known For Years But Not Now a Rarity

An old-timer passing along a Regina street noticed an earthworm on the pavement. Proceeding a short distance, it all suddenly dawned on him that it was something out of the ordinary and seized with the happy thought that it might be one of a few of the only survivors of the species in the West, he returned and transferred it to a nearby lawn. Passing up the street a little further, however, he noticed several earthworms, and their presence in the district struck him as a very remarkable thing. This [illegible] of Saskatchewan for fifteen years or more. During a large part of that time he had been engaged in agricultural pursuits, and in all that time he did not remember having seen such a worm in any part of the Province.

Several other residents reported having seen a few fishworms lately, something which they never saw before.

Earthworms inhabit nearly all parts of the earth except the frozen regions of high latitudes and altitudes, dry sandy soils, and portions of the North American prairies. It is recognized by old-timers that up to the present they have been a scarcity in Saskatchewan, and why they should be getting common is not known. One reason given is that the climate is becoming milder.

WHERE DO PINS GO?

Like Everything Else They End In Dust

For many years the world has been baffled by the problem of where the pins go that are turned out in millions of millions by the pin factories.

But the problem seems to have been solved at last. A Paris scientist, Dr. Xavier, has been experimenting on pins, hairpins, and needles by the simple process of watching a few. He states that they practically disappear into thin air, by changing into ferrous oxide, a brownish rust that soon blows away in dust.

An ordinary hairpin took only 154 days to blow away. A steel nib lasted just under fifteen months. A common pin took eighteen months to vanish. A polished steel needle (defied the [illegible] ravages of the atmosphere [illegible], taking two and a half ears to disapear.

So the reason why the world is not a foot deep in the pins it buys is, it seems, exactly the same which makes an iron surface scale off when exposed for a long time to the atmosphere without the protection of paint.

Education in Canada

Ontario leads among the provinces as having the greatest percentage of persons five years of age and over capable of reading and writing. Of the Eastern provinces Quebec has made the greatest proportionate increase in the past ten years in the number who can read and write. That the educational standard of the British immigrant has improved in recent years is evidenced by the fact that their proportion of illiterates is smaller in those provinces which have received the greatest number of them within recent years. The per cent. proportion of illiterates among the foreign-born immigrants is much higher and is fairly level for all the provinces, being highest for both sexes in Manitoba.

Big Land Owners

Mr. Outhwaite, a member of the British House of Commons, during the debate on the Rural Cottages Bill, gave an interesting table of the little patches of land held by members of the House of Lords. Here it is:

28 Dukes hold 4,000,000 acres.
31 Marquesses hold 1,500,000 acres.
194 Earls hold 5,862,000 acres.
270 Viscounts and Barons hold 3,781,000 acres.

Suicide From Telegraph Pole

An unknown man was found at daybreak suspended by a scarf from the crossbar of a telegraph pole, about nine feet from the ground, on the main Edinburgh and Glasgow road, near Winchburgh. The circumstances pointed to a determined suicide. His cap bore a Dalkeith shopkeeper's name.

Woman's Leap From a Cliff

Lochvane Cliffs, near Solva, Wales, were the scene of a terrible tragedy, a young woman jumping over the precipitous cliffs to her death in the sight of her sister and a neighbor. The deceased woman was the daughter of Mr. Levi Davies, Lochvane. She had been suffering from mental derangement for some time.

Welsh Boy's Bravery

The story of a boy's gallant conduct was told at Cardiff Police Court, when Mary Nowland, twenty-four, was charged with attempting to commit suicide by drowning. The lad, whose name is Charles Wilcocks, jumped into nine feet of water to bring the woman to shore. Superintendent Davies said this was the third occasion upon which Wilcocks had acted with like bravery.

A Descendant of Claverhouse

The death took place at Spylaw Bank Collnton, Mid-Lothian, in his seventy-fifth year, of Mr. Francis Barclay Grahame, of Morphie, Kincardineshire. Mr. Grahame, who was unmarried, succeeded his father, the late Baron Grahame, in 1877. He had the distinction of being a lineal heir of John Graham of Claverhouse, Viscount Dundee, from whose younger sister and co-heir, Anna, he was descended.

Slow, But Sure

Mr. Hebenton, a draper of Kirkcaldy recently received a postcard signed by a lady in the same town, asking him to show her some patterns for a dress. He at once gave the order his attention, but was much surprised to be informed that lady was not in need of a costume, and had sent him no postcard. On examining the card he found it had been posted over eight years ago.

A cup of tea or coffee contains from 1½ to 3 grains of caffeine—a poisonous drug.

Five grains of caffeine is enough to kill a rabbit. Of course that much wouldn't kill a man.

But continual tea and coffee drinking usually produces biliousness, headache, dullness, sleeplessness, irritability and heart agitation. Many people have gotten rid of these troubles by quitting tea and coffee and using

INSTANT POSTUM

It is pure and made entirely of Northern wheat and the juice of Southern sugar-cane. Postum is a genuine food-drink—rich in Nature's phosphates, and contains no drug whatever.

Postum comes in two forms.

Regular Postum (must be boiled).

Instant Postum requires no boiling, but is made instantly by stirring a level teaspoonful in a cup of hot water with cream and sugar to taste.

Experiment until you get it to suit your taste, then have it always made that way. Made right, Postum has a delightful flavor.

If tea and coffee don't agree, suppose you leave them off ten days and try Postum.

Drink it instead of tea or coffee.

Italian Was Nearly Electrocuted at Lindsay

LINDSAY, Aug. 27.—As laborers were engaged in ballasting the C.P.R. track in proximity to the bridge, here, one of the men, an Italian, went down the incline to the G.T.R. tracks. In doing so he slipped and fell across a power wire. Here he struggled and gave vent to wild and excited exclamations in the language of his country for several minutes. Fortunately the wire broke, freeing him from his perilous position and probable death.

The Power Company were notified of the occurrence by some boys, who were out in that section and the broken wire was repaired immediately.

CHAPTER XVII.

A Mother's Plot.

I was much pleased with my native town, a village of less than four hundred inhabitants, situated a half mile back from one of the most beautiful sheets of water I ever beheld, surrounded by inviting groves and prosperous farms, a background of looming mountains adding beauty to the picturesque scene. Skiffs lay upon the shores ready for use, while a large sail boat floated at anchor in the bay.

In the village proper were two churches, a school house, two general stores, a town house with a hall in the upper story, and one small hotel, known as "Kendall's Tavern." A large red grist mill utilized the water which coursed through an outlet from a good sized pond at the eastern end of the town, below which was an immense tannery which gave employment to a goodly number of the villagers. Minor enterprises, such as a wheelwright and cabinet shop, a cooper shop, harness and tinsmith shops, the ever necessary blacksmith shop, a cobbler, and an ancient hame-maker, made up the industries of Bentley. A front corner of William Houston's store was occupied by the postoffice, and nailed to the sill of the upper window of the same building was a sign announcing the readiness of one Benjamin Mitchell, Attorney and Notary Public, to transact such legal business as might be entrusted to him. And last, but by no means least, the indispensible doctor.

I was also attracted to the modern architecture of many of the buildings, public and private, and to the streets, which were in perfect condition. Sidewalks there were none; such unnecessary luxury would have been looked upon as a grave extravagance in view of the marked attention given the roadbed; and I decided that the public officials were to a high degree faithful to their trust.

As we drove westward for nearly a mile, my attention centered upon a roomy, well-kept farm house to the left, standing about one hundred feet from the road. It was painted a pure white, with green blinds, and a liberal piazza circled the front and each end. On the front lawn, the grass of which was closely cut, were several flower beds, and about a dozen fine trees, an immense elm occupying a central position, a couple of red settees under the spreading branches of which were reached by a gravel walk leading from the house. A macadamized driveway entered the grounds at one side, curving to the house, and connecting again with the road two hundred feet beyond.

The barns and outbuildings, situated at the rear, were painted a light color, and the neatness of the entire premises harmonized with that of the community through which we had just passed.

Stretching far back and along the road to the left, and reaching to the lake on the right were many acres of beautiful land in the highest state of cultivation, showing a perfect system of agriculture, the larg number of horses, cattle and sheep contentedly grazing on a distant elevation enhancing the beauty of the scene.

"The same man owns both sides of the road," I suggested, as we neared the lawn entrance. "It is a beautiful property, and must be worth several thousand dollars. Who is the owner?"

"Samson and Delilah Haskell," was the modest answer.

The gray eys twinkled merrily as I glanced up into his face—he was fully four inches taller than myself.

"Then this is the famous David Gaylord farm?"

"The same. And as Henry and Theresa well know, there's considerable many interestin' memories connected with it, pertickler as Delilah, who was born here was a most troublesome party. To this day my wife holds to her half of the property like a turtle to a dog's tail, and refuses to leggo her hold. I reckon your pa and ma have told you children the story," and Mr. Haskell laughed heartily as the horse turned in toward the house.

"From what I have been told I judge there were countless hairbreadth escapes, with the usual jealousies and tragedies."

"I dunno as to the escapes and tragedies, but I reckon there was a spirit that smelt of gun powder, if back talk counts for anything."

As Mr. Haskell drew rein at the barn door a neatly attired lady, whom I had observed watching from the piazza, stepped to the ground and came towards us. She was above the average height of woman, and well formed; the dark brown hair, in which there were no visible indications of age, was done up after the pompadour fashion. Her face was fresh and free from lines, and while quite plump, she advanced with a springy step and easy grace that bespoke the refined country lady. Time had been kind to the beautiful features, and the sparkling brown eyes told of an abundance of spirit. A smile curving her lips as she glanced at me gave evidence of a ready welcome.

"Delilah, this is Ranny Rollins of Bostown," introduced Mr. Haskell, as I stepped from the carriage.

"His face betrays his identity," was her answer, and, drawing close to me, she placed her hands upon my shoulders, a tender light coming into the beautiful eyes as they studied my features. Before I was aware of her intention, she drew my face to hers, and kissed my lips. "The image of your darling mother."

"I know'd she do it," said Mr. Haskell, laughing mischievously. "I shet down on her kissin' Henry Rollins considerable many years ago, an' she can't help kissin' his son by way of remembrance."

"Don't mind him, my boy," she said good naturedly; "Samson is jealous because I did not kiss him first."

"Ranny came up for a pair of good hosses for the store," remarked Mr. Haskell, overtaking us at the piazza steps, having given his horse into the care of a stableman. "I told him about the bays, and placed 'em at five hundred—'less you decide to give Henry your half."

I looked up into the sober face of my host, and, noting the humorous twinkle in his eyes, broke into a hearty laugh. I had already discovered a vein of wit in this unique countryman, and decided there was a limitless depth to his nature.

"Is that all you came for, Ranny?" asked Mrs. Haskell, with feigned injury, but a quick eye-flash toward her husband did not escape my notice. It was an instantaneous flash, but a hidden meaning was apparent.

Then it dawned upon me that father had lamely objected to mother's idea of purchasing horses in Bentley, three hundred miles distant, when they could be obtained at the Boston sale stables within a mile or less of our place of business. But her declaration that Samson Haskell was the only honest horse dealer that ever lived, and father would surely be cheated if he bought elsewhere, quickly swung him into harmony with her wish, when my destination was decided upon, and immediate preparations for an extended vacation went into operation.

A month previous I had discovered Mother intently, and with apparent pleasure, studying the portrait of an unusually pretty young woman, and now I recalled her confusion when asked who the original might be, for I was signally attracted to the face. I received no satisfactory answer, but had not forgotten that the package, delivered into her hands by myself, bore the postmark of her much loved native village.

Again, the promptness of Mr. Haskell in offering to convey me from Ogden to Bentley; the watching of Mrs. Haskell for our arrival; the instant recognition and tender greeting; all indicated the expectation of a visitor, whose arrival was timed to the hour. If such was the case, then Samson Haskell had acted his part to perfection.

Then I mentally summed up the mutual affection of the two mothers, who had been bosom friends from childhood. I had long known of my mother's great love for Mrs. Haskell, and many times had she expressed the intention of "visiting Delilah next summer," but the pleasure was yet to be realized; the nearest to it being the sending of myself, under what now appeared to be a mothers' intrigue.

That my coming to the Haskell home was a prearranged plan, I now felt sure; but the real purpose I was yet to ascertain. It was certainly not alone to buy horses. Nor was such a needed vacation my sole object.

"How are your mother and the children? I hear there are three besides yourself?" queried my hostess.

"Quite well, thank you."

"And Grandpa and Grandma Rollins?"

"They are also in excellent health; as is my father, who is always busy."

"Why don't your mother and the children come up to see us? It is years since Theresa and I have seen each other. You were then a baby."

"She has often longed for a sight of the old home. Mother said, as she bade me good-bye, 'I would so like to go with you, Ranny,' and there were tears in her eyes."

"Randall Rollins——!" but a sob checked the words, and she strove bravely to keep back the tears that forced their way to her eyes.

A moment later I was being presented to Mr. and Mrs. David Gaylord, a blessed old couple now well into the seventies, who had never been forced to part with their daughter and only chlid, and lived, as they had for nearly half a century, on the original "Dave Gaylord Farm," blessed with the love of a third generation, and proud to be called Father and Mother by "Chairman Haskell, of the Board of Seelickmen."

I was busily engaged in answering all manner of questions relative to my family and self, when Mrs. Haskell, who had left me with her husband and parents, reappeared with her daughter, Rebekah, or "Becky," as she was familiarly known.

As they entered the parlor I turned toward them, but upon raising my eyes to the younger lady I started perceptibly, and felt myself blushing like a schoolgirl. Before me stood the oriignal of the mysterious portrait, but much more beautiful in the flesh than on cardboard.

She was her mother's second self in feature and complexion, nearly as tall, and her form, while inclined to slimness, was perfectly developed, and graceful in outline. Her carriage was easy, but the ladylike, retiring attitude was apparently natural. Her attire was simple yet becoming, the white waist relieving a dark skirt, while the colored neck-ribbon gave a most pleasing effect. The abundance of dark brown hair was brushed back after the fashion of the day, a small bright ribbon-bow ornamenting the top. The third finger of the left hand was circled by a solitary ring, from the setting of which glistened a superb diamond. She was, I judged, a year younger than myself.

"Ranny, our daughter; Rebekah, Mr. Randall Rollins, of Boston," introduced Mrs. Haskell.

She raised her eyes to mine, started, blushed deeply, then, recovering her composure, extended a well-shaped hand.

"Without speaking, she glanced from my face toward the front of the room, my eyes involuntarily turning in the same direction. There, upon a mantle between the windows, resting in a gilt easel frame, was my latest portrait, taken but two weeks previously, and for which Mother had almost forced me to sit.

"That picture has gotten here very quickly," I explained, in answer to her questioning look. "I sat for it two weeks ago, and none were to be finished for three weeks."

"I had no idea who the original was until this moment; Mother neglected to tell me."

We both turned to Mrs. Haskell for explanation; but her face told no tales.

I was now fully persuaded that two match-making mothers were playing a deep game—a game of human hearts. But what Miss Haskell's opinion might be was to develop later.

TO BENEFIT OTHER SUFFERERS

You May Publish My Letter About "Fruit-a-tives"

Mr. Jones is proud to acknowledge the great debt of gratitude he owes "Fruit-a-tives". He is glad to have his letter published in order that other sufferers may be induced to try these wonderful tablets made of fruit juices.

SARNIA, ONT., FEB. 5th. 1911

"I have been a sufferer for the past 25 years with Constipation, Indigestion and Catarrh of the Stomach. I tried many remedies and many doctors, but derived no benefit whatever. Finally, I read an advertisement for "Fruit-a-tives" I decided to give "Fruit-a-tives" a trial and they did exactly what was claimed for them. I have now taken them for some time and find they are the only remedy that does me good. I have recommended "Fruit-a-tives" to a great many of my friends, and I cannot praise these fruit tablets too highly"

SPY'S HEAVY SENTENCE

German Dentist Who Did "Dirty Work For Money

Without leaving the box, a jury at Winchester found William Klare, a hunchback German dentist, guilty of obtaining secret information from Portsmouth Dockyard, and he was sentenced to five years' penal servitude.

Mr. Foote, K.C., for the Crown, said Klare had lived at Southsea, and ostensibly carried on the business of a dentist. Some months ago he met Levi Rosenthal a man of German nationality, living at Portsea, and told him there was much money to be made by obtaining naval information. He said he wanted a book on torpedoes for Germany. About $500 would be paid for the job, but it would lead to more.

Rosenthal spoke to a Portsmouth town councillor and the police and naval authorities were informed. By arrangement Charles John Bishop, a clerk in the office of the Commander-in-Chief, got the annual report of the Torpedo School, a highly confidential naval book of great importance, and handed it to Klare.

Mr. Foote, addressing the jury, observed that this was a case of a man doing this dirty work for money, and differed entirely from that of officers who exposed themselves to risks in the endeavor to serve their country

Kingston Lad Hit By Lightning Bolt

Russell Clark was Standing Under a Tree in Front of J. M. Campbell's Residence—His Foot is Still Numb.

KINGSTON, Aug. 28.—While standing beneath a tree in front of the home of J. M. Campbell, Emily street, between 5.30 and 6 o'clock on Tuesday evening, Russell Clarke, son of C. G. Clarke, Upper Princess street, was struck by lightning, which for a short time paralyzed his limbs.

With medical attention, Drs. I. G. Bogart and G. W. Mylks, having been summoned, young Clarke soon recovered sufficiently to be removed to his home in a cab.

A Belleville Boy Succeeds in Chicago

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Robertson and son Kenneth of Chicago, have been for the past few days the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Wright, King street. Mr. Robertson, who is a brother of Mrs. Wright, and an old Belleville boy, is another young Canadian who has made good in the West. He is engaged extensively in the manufacture of railway supplies, all of which are his own invention; chief among them is "Robertson's Patent Cinder Hoist," a device for removing hot cinders from the pits where they have been dumped by the engines. The machine is rapidly getting a foothold on all American and Canadian roads and many of them have been installed on their systems

Mr. and Mrs. Robertson are accompanied on their trip by Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Walker, also of Chicago. Mr. Walker is the Chicago head of the Blue Valley Dairy Co., one of the largest of its kind in the United States, having branches in all the important centres in the Middle Western States.

They left on Wednesday by motor for Rochester, and after doing Rochester, Niagara Falls and Buffalo, will spend a few days at the Toronto Exhibition, returning to Toronto by auto at the end of next week.—Picton Gazette.

Severe Storm In Kingston and Suburbs

KINGSTON, Aug 22.—A very severe electrical storm, in fact, the worst experienced in this locality. for some time, passed over Kingston late yesterday afternoon. The storm, which began about 5 o'clock, lasted for almost an hour and played considerable havoc in this city. Heavy crashes of thunder were heard and the lightning was very sharp.

Saved a Kingston Drunk From Water

KINGSTON, Aug. 28.—This afternoon about two o'clock P. C. Mullinger pulled Pat Keenan out of the lake at the foot of Johnson street and took him to the lockup. The man, who was in an intoxicated condition, had either fallen in or jumped in on purpose, and had the constable not happened along at that time he would have been drowned. Keenan is an offender at the police court.

WOMEN'S INTUITION.

Women are credited with a sort of sixth sense—intuition—which keeps them right in many emergencies.

In nine cases out of ten this so-called feminine intuition is nothing more than extreme carefulness and good judgment.

Women take pride in being careful and thrifty—they like to dress well and see their children dress well.

It is a source of satisfaction to them if they can look better than their neighbors, and do it for less money.

Women are readers of advertisements. They know it pays to read them. They find advertising not only profitable, but entertaining.

Turn for a moment to the advertising in to-day's Intelligencer. See what great interest it possesses.

See what an example the merchants of this town are setting in legitimate business enterprise.

CONTRACT FOR TORONTO HARBOR GOES TO CANADIAN CONCERN

Tender of Stewart Company for Government Share of big Contract is Likely to be Accepted.

TORONTO. Aug. 29.—Special—The contract for the first part of the Federal Government's share in the Toronto Harbor works will probably be awarded to the Canadian Stewart Company, one of the biggest construction firms in America, according to information received in a despatch last night. The sum involved, it is believed, will be between three and four million dollars, or more than half of the Government's contribution to the total estimated cost—something under $20,000,000—of the new harbor.

No official announcement of the awarding of this contract will be made until the return to Ottawa of the Minister of Public Works, Hon. Robert Rogers, who is now touring in the west on Federal business. A number of tenders, however, are filed at the department, and it is understood that the tender of the Canadian Stewarts is the one which will be accepted.

Chief Ranger Will Present the I. O. F. With a New Home

TORONTO, Aug 28.—Hon. E. G. Stevenson, Supreme Chief Ranger of the I.O.F., announces tha he will personally provide and maintain, while he lives, a home for aged Foresters. I will be a have of rest for old members of the order who are without friends, and may be a little perplexed as to their maintenance in their declining days.

The announcement was cheered to the echo by the 206 delegates attending the supreme Court.

Not ony will Mr. Stevenson provide and during his lifetime maintain the home out of his own income, but he has arranged that at his death the institution will be endowed to the extent of $100,000 by the proceeds of two life insurances policies of $50,000 each which he carries.

Expect to Bring Word of Explorer

EDMONTON, Alta., Aug. 28.—Six officers of the Royal North West Mounted Police who have been at Herschel Island and Fort McPherson both inside the Arctic circle, since the summer of 1911, will arrive in Edmonton in a few days, and it is expected that they will bring word of Harry V. Ratford, an American explorer, who has been in the north for several years. The party relieving the returning officers left Edmonton last June and reached the world's rim in the middle of July, when the latter started for civilization. The post at Herschel Island is a log building with a similar structure for the horses. In the winter the outpost is covered with snow, while in the summer it stands on a bleak plain, with the sun blazing down on it 24 hours a day. Six months in the year it is dark and the rest of the time it is light. Superintendent Fitzgerald and two companions lost their lives near the island several years ago in attempting to negotiate the trail during a blizzard.

Aged Kingston Resident Dead

KINGSTON, Aug. 28.—One of Kingston's oldest residents died at 7.50 o'clock on Wednesday morning, at his residence, 102 Centre, when Armstrong McCormick passed away. The old gentleman had been in declining health for a long while, but was able to be around. On Tuesday afternoon he had an atack of pneumonia and end came rapidly.

Mr. McCormick was born in Ireland on June 7th, 1822, and came to Kingston in 1841. He was married in 1849 in St. Andrew's manse, by Rev. Dr. Machar, to Miss Agnes Nickle, aunt of W. F. Nickle, M. P. On the 9th of August last his wife passed away at the age of eighty-two and ten months. The day of her funeral, the 12th of August, marked the fifty-fifth anniversary of the day the couple moved into the homestead on Centre street, where they lived until called away by death.

JUNK DEALER HAD RIVAL'S STORE PAINTED

MOOSE JAW, Aug 28.—A warrant has been issued for the arrest of Sam Tadman, junk dealer, on a charge of hiring a man at seventy-five dollars to paint his rival's store a brilliant pink.

His alleged accomplice, Joe Gillard, is already under arrest on the same charge.

A Wealthy Western Farmer and Women Who Want Him

EDMONTON, Alta., Aug. 28.—Joseph Schwartz, a wealthy farmer of Rocheser, Ala., who asked the assistance of the police of Edmonton some time ago in finding a wife for him, receives his mail in a wheel-barrow these days, and the postmaster of the settlement threatens to strike. The lone farmers has letters from every state in the Union and from all parts of Canada and Europe, the writers being women of all ages. According to the letters, most of the writers are spinisters. They are ready and willing to make a home for Schwartz and live on the farm. Some of them are widows with children. Schwartz is busy garnering his crop, but he is devoting several hours every night to reading and classifying the letters, he will answer when his grain is harvested.

Presentation to a Popular Couple

The members of the choir of the Victoria Avenue Baptist Church met for rehearsal at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Beecher Doolittle last evening. The real object of the gathering was to do honor to two of their members who are shortly to be married. Mr. Jack Cookson and Miss Gladys Parsons were presented with a congratulatory address in the course of the evening by Mr. W. H. Faulkner, accompanied by a handsome mantel clock, designed in oak and gilt. The gift was presented by Mrs. Doolittle in the name of the choir. A number of short speeches were made by the members of the choir, including the popular leader, Mr. W. B. Riggs, and the pastor, Rev. Chas. Geo. Smith, B.D. Mr. Cookson, who was completely taken by surprise, expressed the appreciation of Miss Parsons and himself at this expression of esteem and goodwill in a neat little speech. Music and games were then entered into heartily, after which a tasty ice cream luncheon was served, and the health of the prospective bride and groom was heartily drunk by all present.

A Horse with An Appetite for Fish

SMITHERS, B. C., Aug 28.—(Special.)—There is an Indian horse in the Naas River country that eats fish and has a preference for colichangs. Sergeant Pat Phillipson, who is known here as a man who always tells the truth, vouches for this story.

The horse, it is said, will leave a pan of oats any time to eat colichana. Morever he keeps fat and in fine fettle on the diet.

It is a great sight, says the man to see this horse cantering along the beach in the colichan season. He trots along briskly, his head held high in the air, his neck proudly arched, his coat glistening and his eyes flashing as he glances about in search of the modest and succulent collichan.

Walked R. R. Tracks Lady Hit by Train

MONTREAL, Aug. 29.—While walking towards Montreal on the Grand Trunk Railway tracks yesterday, Gweneth Wells, 18 years old, was injured by a passing train and subsequently died in the General Hospital Miss Wells, who lived at 22 St. Charles avenue, Dorval, stepped on to the down track near Dixie to avoid the freight train and failed to notice the outward bound express for Ottawa.

Fairbank's Hotel Wiped Out by Fire

Lack of Water and Fire-Fighting Facilities Again Shown—Incendiaries Suspected.

TORONTO, Aug. 29.—(Special.)—Fairbank's frame hotel, owned by W. D. O'Leary, at the corner of Vaughan road and Eglington avenue, was burned to the grown last night. Lack of water and fire-fighting facilities in the district were again evidenced. The employees were unable to save much of the furniture or fixtures.

The fire originated in the stables in the rear of the hotel. The cause is unknown, but on account of the frequency of incendiary fires in the neighborhood of late, last night's blaze is regarded with suspicion. A small fire occurred in the hotel a few days ago.

The hotel was situated one mile and a quarter from the nearest fire hall, and when the alarm was rung in and the seriousness of the situation explained as many detatchments from the city fire department as could possibly be spared were ordered to the scene. It was a long run for the firemen, and by the time they reached the spot they found the hotel had been thoroughly gutted. Their work was then confined to preventing a spread to neighboring houses and the postoffice.

The loss is estimated at $15,000.

Earlscourt and the Fairbank district have suffered heavily through lack of fire protection within the last few months. Homes of working people have been wiped out in a very few minutes, and, owing to the stand of insurance companies because of poor fire protection, more than one family has been left in destitute circumstances.

$50,00 in August From McEaneny Mine

COBALT, Aug. 28.—Some remarkable ore is being taken from the McEaney Mine at Porcupine. The little stamp mill will produce $50,000 in the month of August from the clean-up. Last month it was considered good when $3,000 was the record. This is from ten stamps, with extraction on the plates only. The ten-stamp mill has already produced gross $165,000 in gold. The block of ground which enabled the little mill to make such results in August was at the 100-foot level. For twenty-three feet in the drift the ore was stopped for a width of six and a half feet. And over this width it ran $130 to the ton. This is, of course, much higher than the average. It is expected that the additional ten stamps will be working in a short time and the cyanide plant installed. This will give additional tonnage and a good recovery.

Increasing Demand For Canada's Goods

OTTAWA, Aug. 29.—According to statistics compiled by the Department of Customs, the volume of exports of manufactured articles from the Dominion is increasing rapidly. For the first four months of the present fiscal year ending July 31 last, Canada exported $16,051,000 worth of manufactured goods, compared with $12,659,000 worth for the corresponding period of 1912.

The exports of fish are also rapidly increasing. For the first four months of the present fiscal year $5,032,000 worth of fish was exported, as against $3,748,000 worth for the first four months of the fiscal year of 1912.

The products of the forests and mines also show large increases in volume of export. Of minerals Canada exported $17,180,000 worth, and of products of the forest $14,171,000 worth. These figures are considerably in excess of the exports for 1912 for the same period.

Four Horses Were Cremated

TORONTO, Aug. 29.—Special—In a fire which broke out at an early hour this morning in a stable at the rear of No. 266 Parliament Street, four hourses were cremated, and the building completely destroyed. Two of the horses were the property of W. Wallace, while the other two were stabled by an Italian. The barn was deserted from eight o'clock in the evening, when the last horse was stabled. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Death Before Prison

Rather than go to prison, Charles Porter, a pensioner from the Northampton Regiment, living at Enfield, committed suicide.

Porter had been summoned for failing to maintain his wife, and had pleaded with the magistrates to allow him time to pay, but had been sentenced to a month's imprisonment.

Whilst being conveyed from Colchester to Ipswich he escaped from the constable who had charge of him and threw himself in front of a train.

CAN'T FATHOM ADVICE

Americans in Mexico Panic-Stricken by Wilson's Warning.

Most of Those Who Have Besieged the Consulate at Mexico City Are Registering Their Property and Getting Out—Many Think There Is a Hidden Meaning Behind the President's Words.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 29.—Americans resident in the capital are at a loss to know how to interpret the peremptory warning issued by President Wilson to leave the republic. Somewhat reassured by the declaration that armed intervention is not intended, they are now wondering whether there is a hidden meaning back of the latest warning.

The consul-general, Arnold Shanklin, was unable to give any advice other than that based upon instructions from the State Department to send to all consuls in his district a message which is to the effect that they should advise all Americans in their territory to leave Mexico at once, going to the nearest seaport, where ships would be in readiness to take them off.

Most of the Americans who called at the consulate are planning to register their property and obey Washington's injunction. A few are availing themselves of the fund appropriated for the refugees; a great many put the cost of transportation in a secondary place. The great majority of those who have been able to arrange their affairs have already deported from the capital, and some from other places. Those who remain have, for the most part, interests to leave behind which would mean the sacrifice of their only means of livelihood.

The warning has created something like consternation on the part of not a few Americans. It will undoubtedly result in a new exodus, and the general determination is to abandon everything they possess in the belief that their lives are endangered, but in what way they are unable to find a reasonable answer.

Outlook Is Better.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Strong hope prevailed in official circles last night that the Huerta Government and the United States would arrive at a mutual understanding leading to a peaceful settlement of the revolutionary disturbances in Mexico.

Administration officials expressed themselves as pleased with the day's developments. President Wilson regarded as hopeful the tone of the note rent by Frederico Gamboa, Minister of Mexican Foreign Affairs in reply to supplementary suggestions made by John Lind before leaving Mexico City for Vera Cruz last Monday.

The full text of the two communications was received here, and while neither side, according to the official interpretation, yields any of the essential points in its contentions, the method of approaching the difficulties at hand is admittedly more friendly and framed with more regard for a practical solution. Officials found encouragement, too, in Mr. Lind's decision to return to the Mexican capital as they had left it to his discretion to go there if there was a prospect of renewing negotiations along tangible lines.

The two notes exchanged by Lind and Gamboa were published in full here yesterday and official Washington read them closely.

Much interest was manifest in the suggestion made by Lind that all proposals be laid aside for the present except that which asks Huerto not to be a candidate in the coming elections. It was learned that while President Wilson knew the gist of Mr. Lind's second proposals, he was not acquainted until yesterday with the text of the communication in which Mr. Lind promised that if his last sugestions were accepted assurances were to be given American bankers of the moral support of the American Government of the present Mexican regime.

FIVE PERSONS KILLED IN PETERBORO DISASTER

Collapse of Turnbull's Departmental Store In Process of Renovation, Carries to Death Four Women and One Man — Walls Weakened by Alterations — Crowds Hamper Work of Rescuers.

PETERBORO, Aug. 29.—Five persons were killed and at least two were seriously injured about 9.30 a.m. yesterday when the building at the corner of Simcoe and George streets, vacated by Barries, Limited, to make alterations by which the premises were to be added to the J. C. Turnbull Co.'s departmental store, collapsed with but little warning to the fifty or more clerks and customers in the store.

Two customers, two clerks and one workman were buried under the debris, and all were dead when found by the rescue parties.

The dead are:
J. J. Cuffe, carpenter.
Miss Lillian A. Boddison, saleswoman.
Miss Dolly Sissons, saleswomen.
Mrs. Elizabeth Brown, customer.
Mrs. John Kelly, Norwood, customer.

Mrs. Alfred Finlay of Norwood was taken to the hospital suffering from serious injuries to her back and her recovery is doubtful.

Harry Manley, an elderly man who was employed by the Turnbull Co., is also seriously injured. Other clerks and workmen received minor injuries.

The two saleswomen and two customers who were killed were on the second floor of the Barries' building, the ready-to-wear department having been moved there.

All the bodies were discolored and bruised and there was some time before identification was made.

That the accident did not reach the proportions of one of the greatest disasters Canada has known is regarded as almost a miracle, as, in addition to the staff of clerks, nearly 70, there were a number of customers in the store, while a score of workmen were engaged in construction operations.

Extensive alterations were being carried out on the building, which necessitated the removal of one of the main walls. The Turnbull store and the Barries, Limited, premises on the corner were in process of being converted into one building. Weakened by the removal of the wall, the Turnbull building a substantial brick, three-storey structure, sagged suddenly, after a preliminary creaking. A section of about 30 feet of the outside wall of the northwest corner was the first to go, and almost immediately afer the entire building collapsed. With the first warning sounds there was a wild rush to safety. A summons was at once sent to the fire department, and the response was quick. Scores of citizens joined the firemen in the work of removing the debris, from which issued the cries of the injured, but owing to fear that the remainder of the structure still standing might fall, the work had to be proceeded with cautiously. However, bodies nearest the surface were speedily taken out and first aid attendance given to the injured by doctors and nurses.

News of the disaster traveled like wildfire and relatives and friends of those known to have been in the building thronged the scene. Many women wept hysterically until assured of the safety of their loved ones. So dense was the crowd that the labors of the rescuers were seriously retarded.

By 11.30 a.m., two hours after the collapse, four bodies had been taken out, and it was believed that the only one still buried was that of Dolly Sissens, a salesgirl. Lillian A. Boddeson, aged 24, another clerk, was dead when found, as were also Mrs. Elizabeth Brown and a woman who could not be identified, and J. J. Cuffe, a laborer. Mrs. Findlay of Norwood, a customer, died in the hospital. Agnes Tucker, a clerk, was taken out in a serious condition.

Among the injured are Harry Manley, who has a broken leg, and George Curtis, a bricklayer, who jumped from a scaffold at the second floor when the first symptoms of disaster were noticed.

From ground floor to roof not a room remained intact, and the sidewalk was piled high with a huge mass of timebr, bricks, roofing and store goods.

Only a small portion of the Turnbull store fell, and fortunately the clerks could hurry towards the main floors and reach safety. Some jumped from the windows at the rear.

The janitor was in the cellar when the accident happened but when rescued he did not show a scratch.

Miss Eva Sissons, a salesgirl, cousin of the missing girl, was attending a customer and had just gone into the Turnbull store when the collapse came. Her customer was killed.

The bodies found are badly mangled, making identification difficult.

It is not thought that the loss will exceed $15,000, as the building was old and mostly unoccupied. Only a small portion of the Barries' building remains standing, but a small portion only of the wall of the Turnbull place, were it joined the Barrie store, fell away.

Mayor Bradburn said that the city was in no way to blame, adding: "There will probably be an investigation, but I have not yet had time to think about it. We have no city architect here or no official whose business it is to inspect buildings under repair.

A REAL GENTLEMAN,

Asquith Let Wild Women Mishandle Him Till Daughter Came.

ELGIN, Scotland, Aug. 29. — The British Prime Minister was the object of an attack yesterday afternoon in which his chivalry restained him from adequately defending himself. While he was golfing with his daughter on the Lossimouth links, two stalwart suffragettes, who had quietly come up to the green, sprang at him suddenly. They knocked off his hat, grabbed him by the clothing and dragged him some distance over the ground.

The Prime Minister bore his rough treatment complacently and refrained from using force to make them desist while they imparted to him their opinion that he was a scoundrel and a pastmaster in the arts of Ananias.

Miss Asquith, who was a little distance off when the suffragettes pounced on her father, ran to his assistance and proceeded to apply militant methods to the militants.

The battle waged for only a few moments, when two detectives rushed up and with difficulty released Mr. Asquith from the clutches of the suffragettes. The detectives took the women to the club lodge, where, after listening to various opinions of themselves, hardly less complimentary than those they had expressed to the Premier, they were placed in a motor car and driven to the Elgin police station, to the accompaniment of much booing and hissing and repeated cries of "Let us get at them; we will duck them in the sea!"

At the station the women refused to give their names or addresses. Mr. Asquith resumed play after the suffragettes had been hauled off him and was loudly cheered when he reached the last green.

CANADIAN HEROES.

Two Torontonians In London Rescue Drowning Girl.

LONDON, Aug. 29.—(C. A. P. Cable.)—A party of Canadian visitors spending the summer at Bexhill-on-Sea, a popular Sussex holiday resort, had an exciting experience yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Fudger, a son of Mr. Fudger, of the Robert Simpson Co., and Mr. and Mrs. Billy Blackstock, all of Toronto, were on the beach contempating taking a bath, when they noticed a young lady, a stranger, in the trough of the sea apparently in difficulties. Mr. Fudger shouted to the girl to know if she was all right. She replied "No."

Instantly he dashed in to the rescue, followed immediately by his friend Blackstock. With great difficulty the rescuers seized the girl and endeavored to make headway against the strong ebb tide. The position of the trio became extremely precarious. A rope was finally thrown from the shore and the party rescued.

He was named by F. H. McGuigan of Toronto, the company's representative on the board, and C. D. Robertson of Welland, representing the men, and the labor department has approved.

The board will meet in Toronto probably early next week. The men are demanding an increase in pay, with better working conditions in general.

Lightning From Clear Sky.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Aug. 28.—A bolt of lightning from a clear sky yesterday afternoon instantly killed James Lee, 21 years old, of Absecon, a suburb of Atlantic City.

Lee, with Zephania Fenton, were tying a motor boat at the foot of Ohio avenue. There wasn't the least show of a cloud in the sky. Suddenly there came a blinding flash. The bolt struck Lee fair on the top of the head. Marks were found on his throat, under the chin. There was not another mark on his body nor was his clothing as much as singed.

Fenton was knocked overboard and stunned, but aside from the shock to his nerves he was uninjured. The boat was undamaged.

The Milky Way.

Among the Greeks the Milky way was known as the Galaxy and the Circle of Milk. The Chinese and Arabians call it the Celestial river. Some of the American Indian tribes regarded it as the path of departed souls to the spirit land, and in England it used to be familiarly called Jacob's ladder.

London's Oldest Papers.

It is generally thought that the Times, published in 1778, is the oldest London daily, but the Morning Post was in existence in 1772. The oldest Sunday newspaper, the Observer, was established in 1791, when it was sold at 8d. a copy, a price which was also charged for the Weekly Dispatch. The result of these prices was that the average person could not afford to buy a newspaper, but used to pay for the hire of one.

A PLEASING AFTERNOON

The very pretty social on the east side children's playgrounds under the auspices of the Women's Institute, yesterday afternoon was a very pleasing affair, made up as it was of selling booths for ice cream, cake and candy, patronized very freely by young and old. The pavilion was tastefully decorated with golden-rod and flowers, creating a most pleasing place for the serving of refreshments. The little folks enjoyed the event immensely. This was the closing of the grounds for the season, which is now being cleaned up for the fall and winter, the children returning to school on Tuesday next. It has been a pleasant spot for the vacation season, those entitled to its privileges enjoying the pleasant afternoons. Much credit is due those in charge for the especial care extended to the little ones.

Body of Horse Found in Well

Mr. Samuel Curry, of this city, who also has a fine farm in the fourth concession of Sidney, on Saturday night lost a standard bred four year old mare of considerable value. Mr. Curry naturally thinking the animal had either been stolen or strayed away, had circulars printed and distributed, describing the animal and offering a reward for its return. Last evening the body of the horse was found in an unused well on the farm. The horse had evidently, in walking about the farm, came across this well and fell in. The well, we are informed, contained but a small quantity of water. The animal was valued at $300.

THE U. S. AND MEXICO

In dealing with the Mexican problem, upon which the world, and particularly the United States Government is centering its attention, President Wilson, in his message to Congress, advises patience on the part of his country's representatives, and the exercise of the just restraint of a great nation. If the opportunity again offers to show what true neutrality will do to enable the people of Mexico to set their affairs in order that opportunity will be used to give friendly counsel. Against this not even Mexican pride can object, while it may appeal to such of the Mexican leaders as can or will seriously think of what the situation means. Mr. Wilson is evidently neither a weak man nor a reckless man, and will not, while in his present spirit, do anything to bring about the invasion or occupation of Mexico by U. S. troops, which some more ardent or more thoughtless persons have suggested. What looks most serious in his message is the advice to U. S. citizens living in Mexico at once to avoid the danger he or those who represented him see in the situation. There are living, throughout the northern states of Mexico especially, many U. S. citizens, generally representatives of large commercial interests. Any attacks upon them, by either government or revolutionary supporters, might create an excitement that would be too strong for administrative calmness. Meantime, though, the mission of mediation having been sent and failed, President Wilson's words are such as to make for calmness.

TRUCE TO MILITANCY

If the reports from England are true that the militant suffragettes have declared a truce in their war against the Government for the ballot, it will be a great blow to the telegraph editors of this continent, who for a year or more could always rely on getting a good story for their pages when other news was scarce.

Setting fire to buildings, planting bombs and attacking members of the Cabinet, the militants have been a boon to the news editors of the country in the summer season.

But most other folk will welcome the truce, none more than the suffragists of this country, who regarded the militant tactics of their sisters across the water as a detriment to the cause. It is to be hoped that permanent peace will result, and that if the British Ministry does not at once give the women the franchise there will at least be a change in the tactics of the women whose hunger strikes and suffering in prison have gained the sympathy of the world, even if the methods which brought them about were not condoned.

THE THAW SENTIMENT

Sherbrooke itself, or that part of it which made a scene in court when it became apparent that the Thaw interests had been successful in retarding justice, is apparently suffering from an attack of morbid hysteria, of which it will be properly ashamed later on. Desperate efforts are being made by the Hearst papers in New York to create the same sort of sentiment there in favor of Thaw, says the Montreal Herald. Somebody has said that if the devil in person were to come to earth and get himself arrested there would be plenty of people found to cheer for him and send him bouquets. Thaw is not the devil, of course! he is merely a murderous paranoic whose money, unscrupulously used, has saved his life. Whether or not it can restore him to freedom by, as the New York Times expresses it, bedeviling the Canadian courts and Canadian law, remains to be seen. We can only hope that it will not succeed in its attempt. The average Canadian, unacquainted with and, therefore, perhaps without admiration for, the niceties of legal procedure, sees nothing to admire in Thaw or in the methods used on his behalf. It will be an everlasting disgrace to Canada if this man succeeds in wriggling his way out of the hands of the authorities.

CURRENT COMMENT

Over in Sweden, says an exchange, they are said to be considering a law which will give women the right to propose marriage. In Canada we don't need any such law. When the woman gets good and ready the man proposes.

• • •

In England it is proposed to include writers' cramp among the industrial diseases for which compensation shall be paid under the workmen's compensation law. We would suggest that the first favor be extended to the newspaper scribe.

• • •

Edmonton Journal: "A Bulgarian leader says that his nation will wait ten years and then make war again on its enemies. That is a safe time limit. If every nation would only wait ten years before it carries out an idea of going to war, there would be very few wars."

• • •

Montreal Herald: "Liberalism in Ontario may be in a bad way, but it doesn't seem to know it. A Liberal candidate was easily found to contest the coming bye-election in East York where the Government majority at the last election was 782. Is another victim to be laid on the altar of "banish the bar?"

• • •

Montreal Gazette: "The Thaw trials advertised New York, and New Yorkers were ashamed of the advertisement. The Thaw flight and legal fight are advertising Sherbrooke, and the citizens are unashamed. At least that is the deduction that is being drawn from the speeches and the cheers of some of the inhabitants. The New Yorkers adopted the proper attitude." Apparently this is Sherbrooke's day for notoriety.

• • •

London Free Press: "Thaw, a crazy murderer, escapes from an asylum for the criminal insane, and cannot be brought back should he reach another State in the great American Union. The insight which the incident gives of the independence of the individual states, the one from the other, is striking. One would think that it would be possible to follow a murderer to the confines of the earth, even if he be addle-pated, being all the more dangerous for that reason."

Ottawa Journal: "One reason why the aldermanic system is losing ground is illustrated by the situation in Montreal. The aldermen and the controllers form opposing factions, fighting for authority, for credit in the eyes of the citizens, and to shift responsibility for bad management. This undignified scramble between the city fathers tends to increase the apathy of the citizen, while good representatives are cheated of the credit due them, and poor representatives masquerade in the clothing of the good."

• • •

Guelph Mercury: "Very seldom does this old family journal feel like reaching around and giving itself a pat on the back. When a local druggist, however, won first prize in an advertising competition open to England, United States and Canada for cities up to 20,000, with a series of ads clipped from The Mercury, there's a pardonable thrill of pride circulatin' in our spine." That's nothing unusual. A Belleville merchant has told us that whenever he inserts a special advertisement in The Intelligencer he is compelled to lock his doors because of an inability to serve the crowds.

The Buffalo Express aptly remarks that "despite the current cant about "political hacks" and the popularity of the axiom that "few office holders die and none resign," the political lightning is always seeking fresh victims. It loves a new even more than a shining mark. One reason for this is that marks (in the slang sense) are needed to keep fuel under the political pot, but the principal reason is that a man ages rapidly in the political game. The fickle citizen is very apt to tire of one that seeks its suffrages often. No pitcher goes to the political well very long without being broken."

• • •

Montreal Herald: "The Toronto Telegram is very angry with The Herald because some time ago we protested against the cabling to this country by the Canadian Associated Press of every possible "knock" at Canadian credit uttered by anybody and everybody in London. So annoyed is the Toronto journal at our criticism of its pet cable service that it devotes over two columns of its valuable space to castigating us and rehashing a number of facts which have been public property for many months." When The Telegram is through feasting on The Herald's carcass, we will head a delegation to gather up its bones and bury them with honors.

WESTERN CANADA
A BUMPER WHEAT CROP
THOUSANDS OF MEN REQUIRED
This Year's Harvest promises to be be the largest in
THE HISTORY OF CANADA

According to present indications the wheat crop of 1913 will be the greatest ever harvested in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta, thus requiring the farm laborers of the East to assist in harvesting the world's greatest bread basket.

The Governments of the respective Provinces state that many thousand men will be required for this year's harvest. These will have to be principally recruited from Ontario, and the prosperity of Canada depends on securing labor promptly. The Canadian Pacific, on which Company will fall practically the entire task of transporting the men to the West, is already making special arrangements for this year. Excursions from points in Ontario to Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta will be run and special trains operated, making the trip in about thirty-six hours and avoiding any change of cars or transfers. This will be a day shorter than any other route. Dates, rates and conditions will be announced in a few days.

Thirty million cigar boxes are used in the United States each year.

HE TOOK A CHANCE

For Love's Sake Hunchback Undergoes Operation on Distorted Bones of Spine.

BY C. V. CLARENDON.

On the night before the operation Doctor Klein entered his patient's room and sat by his bed. "You are resolved to take the chance of it?" he asked.

His steel-gray eyes were fixed unwaveringly upon those of the cripple beneath the sheets. The cripple smiled back at him as frankly.

"Perfectly," he murmured. "My chance is, I understand, on the whole favorable. You say I am the fourth who has risked this?"

"The fifth," answered the great surgeon composedly.

"And two of them died?"

"O, dear, no. Well, yes, two died, but one of these would have died anyway from other causes. In his case death was a merciful release. I am firmly convinced that you will get up as straight as I am."

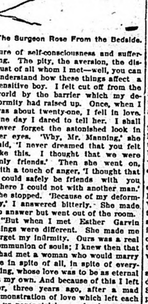
And he went on learnedly to describe the details of his famous operation which was to cure the hunchback. The pressure of the vertebrae upon the spinal cord must be removed, the distorted bones reset and held in a cast; it was perfectly feasible, but because the slightest slip of the scalpel would mean paralysis and a lingering death no other surgeon dared attempt it.

"And I suppose," the surgeon ended, smiling kindly, "that there is, as usual, a woman in the case."

The hunchback's eyes lit up.

"I'll tell you, Doctor Klein," he said, "for you have been my best friend in the world. Yes—there is a woman in the case.

"I haven't burdened you with my early history, but I may as well say that I am a man of good family and in my youth enjoyed the advantages of an excellent education. My early life was, as you may imagine, a torture of self-consciousness and suffering. The pity, the aversion, the disgust of all whom I met—well, you can understand how these things affect a sensitive boy. I felt cut off from the world by the barrier which my deformity had raised up. Once, when I was about twenty-one, I fell in love. One day I dared to tell her. I shall never forget the astonished look in her eyes. 'Why, Mr. Manning,' she said, 'I never dreamed that you felt like this. I thought that we were only friends.' Then she went on, with a touch of anger, 'I thought that I could safely be friends with you where I could not with another man.' She stopped. 'Because of my deformity,' I answered bitterly. She made no answer but went out of the room.



The Surgeon Rose From the Bedside.

"But when I met Esther Garvin things were different. She made me forget my infirmity. Ours was a real communion of souls; I knew then that I had met a woman who would marry me in spite of all, in spite of everything, whose love was to be as eternal as my own. And because of this I left her, three years ago, after a mad demonstration of love which left each of us panic-stricken and ashamed. I, because I knew that I had been a cur to tell her; she, because she knew this feeling in my heart. I left her and never saw her again.

"For two years I tried to put her out of my heart, but in vain. Then I heard of your operation. I scraped together every penny I could, and, when it reached eight hundred dollars I came to you—and you know the rest. But you refused to take a penny of it and so I can only repay you with my deepest gratitude. And when I am well I shall tell Esther, and she will bless your name a hundredfold."

The surgeon rose from the bedside. His face was white, his steady hand trembling. Without a word he pressed the hunchback's fingers and left the room.

"Ask Miss Garvin to step into my office," he said to the orderly, and, five minutes afterward, the anaesthetist entered.

"Miss Garvin," said Doctor Klein, "I want you to take a holiday tomorrow and let Miss Chapin etherize my patients."

"Why?" asked Esther Garvin quietly and directly.

Doctor Klein half rose from his chair and sat down dizzily.

"Esther," he said, placing his hand upon her sleeve, "are you still quite sure that you can never love me? Yes, I see that you are. You gave me to understand once that your heart was pledged. I want you to tell me one thing, and I do not ask it impertinently. Where is the man you love?"

"I don't know," she answered.

"He has gone out of your life?"

"But I love him still," she cried defiantly. "I love him and always shall. O, Doctor Klein, I—we all owe so much to you. None of us but is too conscious of your many kindnesses, your goodness, your charity and self-sacrifice. Don't make it harder for me. I don't love you, I can't love you." Suddenly she flung herself upon her knees. "Do you know why I was first attracted to you?" she cried. "The man I love is a hunchback. His whole life has been poisoned by his infirmity. I hoped it would be my task to bring him back to an understanding of goodness, to instill a gracious benevolence into his mind and nature. But he left me because he dared not ask me to link my life with his. Then I came here, to be a nurse, to give my life to others. I met you, I learned of your operation and hoped that some day the time would arrive when he, too, would hear of you and would come to you to be made a straight man like other men, and then—"

"I loved you," said Doctor Klein hoarsely.

"You loved me," she repeated mechanically. "And then I dared not tell you about what lay so near my heart. But I have told you now because—because—"

She did not know. Perhaps it was her lover's presence in the hospital that she felt unconsciously; she looked helplessly at the doctor. He raised her to her feet gently.

"Miss Garvin," he said slowly, "five minutes ago I contemplated the blackest crime that any doctor could imagine or dream of. You have straightened out the mental kink in my own brain as I shall straighten Mr. Manning's body tomorrow."

"Mr. Manning!" she cried, and stood staring at him in terror. "You know, then? He is—"

"My dear," the doctor answered, "he has told me everything. He loves you. And he is under this roof tonight. But you must not go to him now. You shall see him tomorrow, and you and I will cure him."

And Manning saw Esther's face smiling on him as he sank to sleep under the ether; and Esther's was the first that he saw when he awakened in his room afterward. But Doctor Klein was standing at her side.

"You will be well soon," said Doctor Klein. "You will be straight as a man should be and I—I wish you—"

But he knew that his life also stretched straight before him, ruled and planned and unchangeable.

CARRIED RIDER FROM REVIEW

Even General Custer, Accomplished Rider as He Was, Could Not Stop Runaway Horse.

There was perhaps no more picturesque cavalry commander engaged in the Civil war, north or south, and most certainly none with a more remarkable career, writes Gen. James Grant Wilson in the Bulletin of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, than George Armstrong Custer (1839-1876), who was graduated at the United States military academy of West Point in 1861. Entering the army as a second lieutenant in that year he rode at the head of his cavalry division in the famous Washington review of May, 1865, as a major-general!

While in less than four years' service he had seven horses killed under him—a greater number it is believed than was lost by any other leader of Union troops who participated in the war, he miraculously escaped both death and wounds.

Among the numerous charges owned by Custer, his four favorites were Don Juan, Jack Rucker, Dandy and Vic. The first mentioned was a thoroughbred stallion of great speed, strength and spirit, on which the dashing young sabreur appeared with his celebrated Third Cavalry division in the grand review at the close of the war.

When approaching the reviewing stand on which were assembled President Johnson with his cabinet, Grant, Sherman, Meade and many other prominent generals, Don Juan became excited and frightened at the floral bouquets and wreaths showered upon him and his rider, as well as the wild tempest of cheers that greeted them, and ran away, in spite of the efforts of one of the most accomplished horsemen in the army to control him. The youthful major general of twenty-six at length stopped the stallion and rejoined his command in season to appear with it as the division swept past the reviewing stand.

Beating the Turks in Two Weeks.

A modern battle upon the huge scale projected in and beyond the Maritza valley sometimes takes many days to develop, and may require some days after fighting in general all along the line to bring it to a decisive issue. Warfare is more complicated than it was 40 years ago. In 1870 the Germans crossed the French frontier on August 4. Worth was fought on the 6th, Spicheren on the 8th, Vionville on the 16th and Gravelotte on the 18th. Sedan had been won and the Emperor Napoleon was a prisoner by September 1. But in the Russo-Japanese war the great conflicts were by no means so rapidly decided, and Mukden was really a series of separate battles.

The total population of Montreal and vicinity with this amount to about 664,000 for 1913; that of 1912 having been 602,437.

When I Left School.

I remember, I remember the day that I quit school,
I got a nice diploma for minding every rule.
I was the wisest mortal who ever left the place,
There was no person like me in all the human race.
I had old Homer faded and Solomon as well,
The real reach of my knowledge would take too long to tell,
And I was downright sorry, it really, seemed a shame
That I should have to go out and teach the world its game,
For I was tender hearted and couldn't bear to see
The looks of jealous anger when people heard of me.

The teacher, to assure me, was kind enough to say
The other folks would manage to get along some way.
I couldn't quite believe him. You see, that was before
I'd taken my first toddle outside the college door.
Then I set forth to conquer the poor, old, easy world
With wind and weather charming and every sail unfurled.
'Twas several long years ago, how many I forget,
But still I don't mind ownin' the world ain't conquered yet.
I remember, I remember the day that I quit school;
Since then I have been learnin' how not to be a fool.

A Redeeming Distinction.

Berton was sent to school for the first time. At the close of the first day he came home wearing a very happy expression.

"Well, Berton," said his mother, "you look so pleased that I'm sure you got on very well indeed. How did you get on with the spelling?"

"I couldn't spell many of the words, mother," admitted Berton. "an' I couldn't read much of anything either."

"Why, that's too bad," said the mother, rather shocked. "Did you do well with the other studies?"

"Not very," replied the boy. "I couldn't remember the 'rithmetic or joggerphy very well."

Berton's mother's face wore a look of disappointment. Berton, rushing to her, exclaimed joyfully:

"But that don't make any difference, mother. The girls all like me, an' I've got the biggest feet of any boy in the room!"—New York Evening Post.

The Modern Polonius.

My son, you start away today,
Your own career beginning.
And there are triumphs which you say
You're eager to be winning.
Your heart is brave, your aim is high,
And may no change defeat you,
May fortune, ere your proud hopes die,
Come sweetly forth to meet you.

My son, the way is hard and long
That you must be pursuing,
And many cunning foes and strong
Will scheme for your undoing.
But cling to hope and try to learn
To keep from idle fretting,
Nor ever fear that you may earn
More pay than you are getting.

My son, be ready for your chance,
Nor linger hesitating,
Yet do not recklessly advance
Where reason counsels waiting.
Be wise, be strong, nor smoke nor drink,
Deem every cent a rare one.
If you'll obey these rules I think
Your chance may be a fair one.

And don't you remember the runs, Ben Bolt,
The runs that were made by the score?
The count at the end of the glorious fray
Was one hundred to seventy-four.

And don't you remember the chill, Ben Bolt,
The chill that went through every vein,
When a home run went over the neighbor's fence
And bing! went a big window pane?

—Milwaukee Sentinel.

A Hint.

A little girl came down to dessert at a dinner party and sat next to her mother. This lady was much occupied in talking to her neighbors and omitted to give the child anything. After some time the little girl, unable to bear it any longer, with sobs rising in her throat, held up her plate and said, "Does anybody want a clean plate?"—Newark Star.

Bursting Trees.

Intense heat and intense cold produce fractures in various substances. In the most extreme cold weather it is not uncommon, especially if the cold has come on suddenly, to find trees that are split from the ground to the top by the action of frost. Freezing expands the water in the cells of the wood, and so suddenly is this done that the trees burst as would a pitcher or mug in which water was confined.

Platinum.

In color platinum is bluish gray, and, although to the inexperienced eye silver, nickel and aluminium look something like it, the first two are attacked quickly by nitric acid, while aluminium is so very light in camparison with platinum that it would be difficult to mistake one for the other.

THE RING

RITCHIE MEETS WELSH

Vancouver, B. C., Aug 28.—Lightweight champion Willie Ritchie and Freddie Welsh, the English champion will meet in the ring here Sept. 20. Afer much dickering, Jim Griffin, of San Francisco, was agreed upon as referee, and Griffin consented. Ritchie preferred Eddie Graney as the third man in the ring.

LANGFORD SCORES KNOCKOUT

Sam Langford, the Boston "Tar Baby," scored a knockout over Porky Flynn in four rounds at the Atlas A. A. in Boston on Wednesday night. The match was to have been twelve rounds, but within 10 seconds to go in the fourth session, Langford put Flynn away for the count with a mighty right jab to the jaw.

This is Langford's first appearance since he returned from Australia. Flynn showed great aggressiveness in the opening round, and floored the dinge with a crashing left drive.

"MUST CLEAR HIMSELF IN HIS OWN COUNTRY"

LONDON, Aug. 28.—The Rev. F. B. Meyer, Honorary Secretary of the National Free Church Council, whom Jack Johnson expressed a wish to interview, issued the following statement:—

"Johnson has been sentenced to jail for offending against the white slave laws of the United States. Instead of prosecuting an appeal against this verdict and sentence he has forfeited his bail and escaped to Europe.

"If he wants to stand right with Engand, he must prove his moral muscles are not flappy.

"Let him face the music and clear himself in his own country.

MR. BRUSSO, NOW; NOT TOMMY BURNS

Tommy Burns, the pugilist, writes to an eastern friend that he is coming on business ostensibly in connection with his property in Preston, his home, but possibly to do something in the fighting game, which out west is not in favor since the recent Calgary fatality. The ex-champion personally has discarded the gloves but is keeping on the lookout for likely comers. He would now prefer to drop the assumed name of Tommy Burns and be known as Noah Brusso, his baptismal name. He says Prize Fighter Pelkey's correct cogomen is Peltier the corruption being due to mispronounciation of the French.

FATALITIES BECAUSE OF NO CLEVERNESS

Some persons have remarked that more of the heavyweights fighter have been killed in 1913 by blows than in any one year that the oldest fan can remember. Why is it, do you suppose? Many answers have been advanced, but the most plausible one appears to be that our present crop of heavyweights is one that lacks cleverness. A fighter must have some natural ability and must be fitted by nature to stand great strain. However, there has been so much demand for a heavyweight hope to beat Jack Johnson that many young men of stalwart appearance and not even half fitted for such a rugged undertaking, but who have been attracted by the call of gold, have become martyrs to the game. One has but to cite the Calgary affair of May, when a fourth-rater killed Luther McCarty by a blow. McCarty in previous fights had trained to the minute. Luther, according to the statements of his trainers following his death, did not train a lick, as he was confident that he would defeat Pelky without half trying. Overconfidence and the lack of physical fitness caused McCarty's untimely end. In the more recent accidental killing of Bull Young by Jes Willard again the lack of condition of the former resulted in his death. Willard is considered but a third-rater, and to have killed Young indicates that Bull must have been practically a novice. Willard never claimed to be a hard hitter. The pages of prize ring history, when men possesed real cleverness, show that there were no fatalities when Jem Mace, Jake Kilrain, Paddy Ryan, Jim Corbett, Jim Jeffries, Tom Sharkey, Joe Choynski, Kid McCoy, Peter Maher, and many other big fellows who held the public attention. They fought with real cleverness.

BASEBALL.

A FALLEN IDOL

The Cleveland club has asked waivers on Long Cy Falkenberg, who at one time this year held the season's record of ten straight victories without a single defeat. It is argued that his winnnig streak was a fluke, and that the big fellow is not the kind of pitcher that will help win a championship. The Naps desire to use him in a deal with some minor league club that has asked for him, but President Somers will not say what one. Clarke Griffith of Washington, has refused to waive, and it is likely that the waivers will be withdrawn.

GAME NOT A RECORD

Toronto, Aug 28.—The New York Herald has received this letter from George C. Boniface, Jr., the actor, who like others who have won success on the stage is an ardent baseball fan:

"I read in the Herald an account of the game between Toronto and Jersey City. Your assertion that it was the longest nothing to nothing contest on record is not quite true. In the late seventies I saw the Harvard and Manchester, N. H., teams play twenty-four innings, and the score was nothing to nothing.

NOT FOR SALE

New York, Aug. 28.—Denial of current reports that the present owners of the St. Louis Nationals contemplated a sale of the club if the right price was offered is contained in a statement by Mr. Britton, made public to-night. Mrs. Helen Britton, his wife, who owns a majority of the stock in the Cardinals, has no intention of selling the club, her husband declares, and on the contrary, after having spent $30,000 for players this season, the club is willing to spend that much more if it can find the right men and give St. Louis a winning team.

GENERAL SPORTS

LOOKS LIKE A FIASCO

London, Aug 28.—The appeal for a public fund of $500,000 for the purpose of re-establishing Great Britain's supremacy in sport at the next Olympic games looks like ending in a fiasco. Although the fund has been open ten days; the subscriptions amount only to $24,000, this small sum being made up chiefly by large donations. The response of the general public to the appeal has been negligible.

Argentina has imported a number of camels from the Canary Islands for experiment for agricultural purposes in regions not suited to horses or oxen.

JOCKEYS ARE PAID LARGE SALARIES

That is, the Ones at the Top Who Earn as Much as Bank Presidents

The successful jockey has always been the object of a certain amount of hero worship, and in receipt of very substantial remuneration. In England, says a writer in the Birmingham Post, a jockey is paid not less than $25 for a winning mount and $15 for a losing mount, but these sums afford little indication of what is the aggregate income of a leading jockey, although it can easily be ascertained by adding up the number of mounts, successful and unsuccessful, that he is in receipt of an extremely good income, often approaching $10,000, and sometimes exceeding that amount to a substantial extent. The following return is interesting as showing the annual incomes, on mounts alone, of the older school of jockeys: S. Loates, $15,075; "Morny" Cannon $11,670; W. Bradford, $10,080; G. Barrett, $9,500; F. Allsopp $8,090, and so on down the line.

The sums received for mounts however, do not afford any reliable indication of a jockey's income. Danny Maher earned something like $7,500 on his mounts alone in one season, but he could have dispensed with this sum and still have had a comfortable income to his credit. His retaining fees are large and he rides only for the leading stables and most prominent owners. The same might be said of F. Wootton and A. Whalley.

Big Retaining Fees

The jockey obtains, of course, his chief revenue from retaining fees. These are paid by the owners of racehorses for the right to the jockey's services when they are required, and there are several cases in which one jockey is in receipt of retaining fees from two or more owners amongst whom there is an understood order of preference. The retaining fees to day, as in the case of Huxley, are frequently $5,000 or more a year; $2,500 is quite a common amount for a second call, and a similar sum is often paid for the privilege of commanding a jockey's services in the event that the first and second claims are not made. In addition, many leading jockeys earn from $2,000 to $4,000 a year by riding "trainers' trials."

Fred Archer received prodigious sums when in the height of his fame. For instance, when he won the Cesarewitch on Rosebery he received from the owner $5,000, and on winning the memorable race for the Derby of 1880 when Bend Or snatched victory at the post from "Robert the Devil," his gift from the owner, the Duke of Devonshire, was $2,500. But that amount was doubled when, six years later, Archer won the Derby a second time for his Grace.

Other Big Presents

John Watts got $10,000 from Mr Abington for steering "Merry Hampton" to victory in the Derby of 1887 and a similar amount from Lord Rosebery when he won on "Ladas," in 1894. J. Daley received an even larger sum when he won the Derby in 1867 from 29 other competitors, on Mr. H. Chaplin's "Hermit."

The largest sum from one person is said to have been received by Wells—a native of Sutton Coldfield—when in 1868, after winning the Derby on "Blue Gown," he was presented by Sir Joseph Hawley with the whole of the Derby stakes of $27,250. Wells had twice previously won the Derby.

In recent years it has been the custom with owners to give a big cheque, rarely less than $5,000, to the jockey winning for them one of the chief events of the year. Tod Sloan had phenomenal success on the English racecourse, and his earnings in his first memorable season were probably not less than $75,000.

Gifts From Outside

Again, presents figure largely in the incomes of jockeys, and it is said that during one week of brilliant riding Sloan received $5,000 in gifts from known and anonymous admirers. The outside public are extremely generous to jockeys who have been instrumental in landing for them big stakes. In fact, gamblers are proverbially good natured—liberal to a degree if money comes their way. Money comes and goes easily.

"TRIAL OF THE PYX"

Coins Minted Here Are Within Standard

The Assay commissioners reported to the Minister of Finance at Ottawa the result of the "trial of the Ottawa Pyx." The assays and trials were made at the mint and both gold and silver coinage were found to be within the legal "remedy" as to weight and fineness. Eighteen ten dollar and nineteen five dollar gold pieces melted together weighed within fourteen one hundred thousandths of an ounce of the standard. Of the silver coins, a package of four fifty-cent pieces, 24 twenty-five cent pieces, 14 ten-cent pieces and 18 five-cent pieces melted into an ingot weighed within one one-thousandth part of an ounce, of the standard.

Britons in the West

According to Government figures natives of the British Islands constitute 35.31 per cent. of the population of Victoria and 38.80 per cent. of Calgary. In the other cieties of the west belonging to this class the proportion runs from 25.80 per cent. in Regina to 30.57 per cent. in Vancouver. The foreign born are over 20 per cent. of the population of Winnipeg, Vancouver, Calgary, Regina and Edmonton.

Kingston Landmark Gone

The old Cataraqui bridge, which did service at Kingston for 85 years, is now a thing of the past. The old structure was torn down to make way for a causeway.

Contract has been let for the erection of Manitoba's new legislative building at Winnipeg to cost about $3,000,000.

SHOES OF THE PAST

Present Day Footwear Owes its Shape to the Romans

The early shoe seems to have been a sandal. In the Roman, Egyptian, and Greek days men wore sandals of hide or leather or wood.

When we read of shoes in the Bible we know that sandals were meant. In Egypt they made sandals woven from palm leaves and papyrus. It was the fashion for a conquering Egyptian to have painted on the soles of his shoes the figures and faces of his conquered enemies.

In early times the sandal took on many forms. In Greece the sock was used for comedy and the buskin for tragedy. The buskin reached to the knee, something like a Wellington boot. The sock reached only to the ankle and was worn whenever quick movement was desired.

It was in Rome first that the sandal began to take shape like our modern shoe. There are in Eastern Europe many people whose civilization is derived from Rome, who still cling to the un-reformed sandal. But in the days when Rome was in her glory shoes were far from a simple affair. For instance, the shoe gear of the patricians was decorated with golden clasps and elaborately embroidered.

The sandals of Egyptians had wooden soles. And the French peasant of the present generation derives his sabots from that source. Emperors wore purple buskins, and red was even permitted the nobility, but the common people were forced to content themselves with the plain sober colors.

In the early years in England extraordinary developments took place in the shoe line. The Plantagents had the toes of their shoes turned up like horns or drawn out to a long length and pulled up to the knee. These were brilliantly bedecked with jewels and precious stones. Rosettes and ribbons were also attached.

All nations recognize that footgear is the most important part of an army's equipment. It has been claimed that the sturdy sandals of the Teutonic tribes enabled them to cross Europe to the walls of Rome, and that if it had not been for the stability of their shoe apparel they would never have been successful in conquering the Romans.

PRINCESS AS SWIMMER

Keen Royal Competitor in Bath Club Competition

Among those taking part in the annual swimming and diving competitions at the Bath Club there was no keener competitor than Princess Mary, who has been well named the "open-air Princess." For five years she has been a member of the Bath Club, to which the Prince of Wales also belongs.

The race in which the young Princess took part was that for the Ladies' Challenge Shield. In this the competitors have to swim fifty yards, by breast stroke, and to pass in floating, diving, and fancy swimming. The Princess went through the various tests very well, though she was not placed among the first three.

A PERILOUS POSITION

The office of Grand Vizier of Turkey is becoming as undesirable now as it was 400 years ago under the Sultan Selim, the grim. It was regarded then as a high road to execution, and "mayest thou be Selim's vizier!" was a common phrase for "strike you dead!"

Upon one occasion Selim consulted his viziers as to what should be done concerning his troubles with the Mamluk, ruler of Egypt. His secretary, Mohammed, advised war, and Selim was so pleased that he made him Grand Vizier on the spot. But it required a dose of the bastinado to persuade Mohammed to take on the doubtful honor.

Kaiser Pays for Straight Legs

Wilhelm Burchardt of Tilsit, is out of the hospital in Koenigsberg, Germany, with a pair of straight legs, the present of the Kaiser. Now he will be able to do his military service, and he probably will enter the Guards. When Burchardt reported some months ago for examination preliminary to entering the army as a recruit the army surgeons found him in excellent physical condition, but had to reject him as unavailable because he was extremely knock-kneed. The young man, who wanted badly to serve, sent a petition to the Emperor for aid. The Emperor responded by having him sent to a hospital for an operation, and paid the expenses from his private purse. The operation was a complete success.

Nothing fits into the dress-eat-and-run policy of modern man so well as the egg diet. There is nutrition in the egg. It is easy to digest. It has staying qualities.

But the man who sings his own praise seldom gets a curtain call.

CELEBRATION IS OVER

Chrysler's Farm Centenary Ends in Blaze of Glory.

Premier Borden and Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux Are the Guests of Honor at Commemoration of Victory—Massed Troops Are Reviewed and Captured Cannon Are Fired Off.

MORRISBURG, Aug. 29.—The Chrysler's Farm Centenary celebration was concluded yesterday under ideal conditions. No more fitting climax could have been conceived than the stirring addresses of Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden and Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, M.P., the review of the massed troops under the command of Col. Hemming, the firing of several rounds from old cannon captured at Chrysler's Farm, and the pyrotechnic display at night, which pleased old and young alike.

Ten thousand people were on the historic battleground yesterday afternoon. The arrangements passed off without a hitch, a fact that speaks volumes for the committee.

The appearance of the Premier and Mrs. Borden and Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux upon the platform was the signal for a great outburst of cheering. The seats upon the platform had been most judiciously distributed. Old ladies and gentlemen, connecting links betwen the present generation and the heroes of Chrysler's Farm, predominated. A striking figure was that of Mr. Johnson Pandast of Hiawatha, a great-great-grandson of Captain George Pandast, who was one of the heroes of the battle. Mr. Johnston Pandast wore two medals given to Capt. Pandast, one by King George III. and the other by Queen Victoria. Upon the platform were also Canon Starr of Kingston, Judge McDonald of Brockville, Hugh Munro, M.P.P., Hon. J. D. Reid, Minister of Customs, and one who came in for a tremendous reception from the crowd, namely, Trooper Mulloy.

Mr. Andrew Broder read telegrams from Sir James Whitney regretting his inability to be present, from A. E. Delorimier, K.C., descendant of Capt. Delorimier, who fell at Chrysler's Farm, and a list of 59 names of men who were alive in 1875 and who had been present at the battle. At the conclusion of the addresses the troops marched past the saluting base. The soldiers were a great attraction to the people, and they followed them all over the field.

GOUIN WAS AWAY.

And Lawyer Jerome Had His Trip To Quebec For Nothing.

SHERBROOKE, Que., Aug. 29.—Harry K. Thaw's lawyers, successful so far in keeping their client in jail, safe from the immigration authorities, rejoiced last night when they received word from Quebec that the trip of William Travers Jerome to see Sir Lomer Gouin, Premier and Attorney-General, had been in vain.

Mr. Jerome, leader of the New York State force seeking Thaw's return to Matteawan, accompanied by Deputy Attorney-General Franklin Fennedy, left here Wednesday night hoping to lay before the Premier facts that would persuade him to sweep aside the commitment on which Thaw is held in Sherbrooke, and place him in the hands of the immigration authorities. Presumably Mr. Jerome did not know that the Premier was to leave Quebec for New York to join those paying tribute to Lord Haldane, who is to arrive there from England to-day.

Messrs. Jerome and Kennedy were due to return from Quebec last night. Until they decide on some plan of getting Thaw out of the Sherbrooke jail the status of the case remains the same as when he was brought here.

REDS VICTORIOUS.

Blue Force In Ontario Manoeuvres Forced to Retreat.

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 29—The military manoeuvres were brought to a close yesterday afternoon with the conclusion of the sham battle near Mount Brydges. Both the contending forces had an active night, as each was anxious to win and neither wanted to be taken unawares. At two o'clock the Red force broke bivouac with the intention of surprising the Blue force at Christina, but the latter had evacuated its position. A body of the Blue cavalry escorting a gun was, however, surprised shortly before dawn. The gun was captured and the men taken prisoners.

By ten o'clock in the morning all the militia taking part in the manoeuvres were in action half a mile south of Mount Brydges, and by noon the defenders had driven the Blue force into retreat and the battle was over.

"Ripper" Threatens Militants.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—A London cable says: A mysterious person, signing himself "Jack the Ripper," threatened yesterday a lone warfare against the militant suffragists unless they abstain from violence. In a note addressed to the Women's Social and Political Union he says:

"Unless the women cease their violence, I shall suppress militant suffragists by a method that has been proven effective. They are the pests of the British Isles."

It was signed "1913 Jack the Ripper."

Boy Drowned at Brighton.

BRIGHTON, Aug. 29.—A very sad drowning accident occurred here in Presquisle Bay yesterday morning, whent Robert, aged about 12 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bullock of Rochester, N.Y., fell from a motorboat while crossing the bay. The efforts of a large number of friends in grappling for the body up until midnight proved of no avail. A diver from Toronto is expected here in the morning. The Bullocks were to break up camp here on Saturday and return to their home in Rochester.

PEACE PALACE OPENED.

Magnificent Structure at The Hague Is Inaugurated.

THE HAGUE, Aug. 29.—The Palace of Peace was inaugurated here yesterday afternoon, when the ceremony of handing the edifice over to the charge of the Dutch Foreign Minister was carried out in the great court in the presence of Queen Wilhelmina, the Dowager Queen Emma and Prince Consort Henry. These were surrounded by a distinguished gathering of diplomats, representatives of peace societies and people prominent in all the arts and sciences.

Abraham Van Karnebeek, president of the Carnegie Foundation, with a brief speech handed the palace into the care of its appointed custodians. He eulogized the interest shown in the peace movement by the Queen and emphasized the significance of the inauguration of the palace, expressing a full meed of thanks for the generosity of Andrew Carnegie.

Johnkheer Reneke Van Swinderen, the retiring Dutch Minister for Foreign Affairs, then accepted the custody of the building on behalf of the diplomatic corps, in which it is vested under the presidency of the Dutch Foreign Ministry. He referred to the opening of the Palace of Peace as an important page which had been added to the history of arbitration, the significance of which was deepened, he said, by the presence of so many statesmen and lawyers of international standing. Then, after a few sentences in French, eulogistic of Andrew Carnegie, who he said, "had placed the fruits of his strenuous labors at the service of humanity," Mr. Van Swinderen turned to Mr. Carnegie, who was standing beside him and, breaking into English, he congratulated him upon his work in behalf of the advancement of the peace spirit.

FIRE ON HUGE LINER,

Imperator Fire Swept at Dock—Two of Crew Perish.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—The steamship Imperator, the largest vessel afloat, was swept by fire early yesterday as she lay at her dock in Hoboken, with her crew and 1,131 steerage passengers aboard.

Second Officer Gobrecht, who led the crew into the hold to fight the flames, was cut off from his men, enveloped in a cloud of smoke, and suffocated. His body was found an hour later, untouched by fire, and brought ashore.

Seaman Otto Stumpf, one of the party who went down with Gobrecht into the bowels of the vessel, was missing at roll call. He undoubtedly perished, too.

A fleet of fire-fighting craft, augmented by apparatus on shore, surrounded the ship and poured tons of water into her hold. When the fire was checked at eight o'clock the great vessel had listed 15 degrees.

The small army in the steerage, aroused from sleep by the crackling of the flames, rushed panic-stricken for the pier. Most of them returned to the ship for their clothing when re-assured by the ship's officers, and spent the remainder of the night huddled in discomfort at the shore end of the pier.

The great ship was dark with all on board asleep save the officers on watch, when smoke, ascending from the provision room, was discovered simultaneously by a seaman on dock watch and a petty officer on the bridge. Almost at the same moment the crackling of flames was heard in the steerage quarters.

A quiet alarm was sounded, Capt. Ruessor, commander-in-chief of the vessel, was among the first to respond. The crew of 1,180 men were in their places within a minute. The complex fire-fighting apparatus of the vessel was set in motion. Every compartment was ordered closed, except those which it was necessary to leave open for the steerage passengers to get ashore.

The stampede of steerage passengers toward the deck checked, for a moment, the fight against the flames. Ships' officers and hundreds of the crew lined up in two columns along the route to safety, and guided the terror-stricken men and women to the pier. With the ship clear the entire force turned its hands to extinguishing the flames.

For three-quarters of an hour they fought the fire with only the Imperator's own apparatus. Then, despairing of success, the Hoboken Fire Department was notified, and a general alarm sounded.

OPPOSES COMMISSION.

Ex-Mayor of Hamilton Favors Controllers and Council.

TORONTO, Aug. 29.—Nearly fifty delegates were in attendance at the fifteenth annual meeting of the Ontario Municipal Association yesterday in the City Hall. George H. Lees, former mayor of Hamilton, who presided, advocated a municipal department of the Ontario Government. He expected from such a department such practical information for councillors as would save much money, time and trouble in civic administrations. He opposed commission form of municipal government and upheld that of a board of control and council.

Mr. Lees also sugested the advisability of the provincial or Federal Government appointing a commission empowered to devise a standard system of civic accounting. He claimed that this would perfect the system of statistics.

He also referred to the handicap on large cities of having to conform to the Municiapl Act, in which there is much less handicap for smaller municipalities.

ECONOMY IN FOOD

French and Germans Models of Thrift in Kitchen

Much that we treat as refuse, which actually comes under the head of waste, the French and Germans utilize and the time has come to follow their example and learn to make delicious soups and stews and ragouts from food we have heretofore thrown away or poorly used. The pods of peas make excellent pea soup. The cutside leaves of celery, cabbage, and lettuce should not be thrown away, but, utilized for soups, stews, or creamed and served as vegetables. Every single food material seen on the market, or purchased and brought into the house, should be studied for its possibilities and these used to the utmost. But this cannot be done unless you know the value of different foods.

This means that you will learn what to substitute when any one article so increases in price as to become a luxury to you. When potatoes are too high you will substitute rice and macaroni. When fresh vegetables begin to tempt you, you will remember that you are paying purely for flavor and not for nutrition when they are too high and too new. The trouble is that we have forced seasons until we do not now properly distinguish if the food is in season or not. If we could and would return to the old-fashioned way of not using fruits and vegetables, such as strawberries and peas until they were ripening within some few miles of our own neighborhood we would gain in pocketbook. It is not good sense or economy to pay too high a price for such luxuries, but you must be the judge of the time when any single food is properly within reach of your purse or your demands.

The second item of waste, and one emphasized by every man or woman studying present conditions, is the tendency to buy in too small quantities. This is made necessary in the city by lack of storage room, but the custom has spread into places where no such limitation exists. Those living in small quarters may be able to study out adjustments of space which will accommodate many more original packages, in place of the day to day purchase which actually costs just twice as much.

So the adjustments required for meeting the increased price of food materials may be summed up in learning how to purchase and use food. First and formost is a close study of food values. Then a learning how to market with intelligence and forethought.

Do You Know

That plants need sulphur? Stick plenty of unburned matches, head first into the soil of plants which begin to look unhealthy. If there should be anything at the roots it will kill them.

That to remove the lime from the inside of your kettle it is best to boil vinegar in it? The acid acts upon the deposit of alkaline matter inside and will cause it to disintegrate and crack off.

That to clean willow furniture salt and water is excellent? Apply with a brush and then rub dry.

That milkly glasses should be rinsed in cold water before being washed in hot water. The hot water, if used first, will coagulate the albumen in the milk, making the glass look smeary when dried.

A mirror set inside the top of a vanity bag is a true friend to the woman who is careful of her appearance.

A little hook and eye, instead of stitches, will keep a shield in place. Place one hook at each end and one on the centre of the curve. Match the places with eyes sewn to the bodice or guimpe. These hooks and eyes are most convenient for adjustable shields.

Principals with "THE GIRL AND THE BARON" at Griffins Opera House, Sept. 3rd.

The Courtesy is Deeply Appreciated

To the Editor of The Intelligencer.

Dear Sir,—Will you kindly insert the following in your extensively circulated paper throughout the county of Hastings?

I wish to publicly thank the Elders, office bearers and members of St. Andrew's church, Stirling, in permitting me to unveil a memorial window to the memory of my late brother, Dr. Boulter and his wife, who for the greater part of his long life gave to his adopted country his best energies, not only as a citizen but for so many years its first local representative from Confederation in connection with my old friend Sir Mackenzie Bowell, who also represented the same constituency in the House of Commons and afterwards as Premier of our loved Canada. I also wish to thank him for his presence and address, with the present members, E. Guss Porter, M.P.; J. W. Johnson, M.P.P.; present member of North Hastings, Mr. Cook, M.P.P., and former members who were present at the church on the 27th at the ceremony of the unveiling of the memorial window, who with Col. Ponton, my brother's old comrade in the old 49th Regiment; also our respected townsman, R. Dobson, Esq., for so many long years our honored Principal of the Collegiate Institute here, and other speakers present, and past representatives, who all bore testimony to the good work my late brother tried to do through his long life in the unselfish manner he acquitted himself to his fellow citizens and residents of the county.

To the choir of St. Andrew's church and the soloists who graced the occasion by their presence; to the photographer, Mr. Dobson and his good wife not only at the church but at the last resting place of my brother and his wife in the beautiful cemetery of Stirling, with its lovely surroundings, pictures were taken of my brother's many kind friends to preserve as tokens of their respect to his memory on behalf of my sister, Mrs. Dempsey, and myself, the only ones left of our family. We respectfully thank all who were present on that occasion.

Yours respectfully,
WELINGTON BOULTER.

DESERONTO NEWS

(From the Post)

The former friends of the late Peter Brant, of the Reserve, will regret to learn of his passing away on Friday of last week, the immediate cause of his death being dropsy. Mr. Brant was 69 years of age at the time of his death.

The trustees of a rural school in London Township have apparently had difficulty in securing a qualified teacher.

Frank O'Dea, of Marinette, Wis., is in town after an absence of fifteen years. He is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Felix Genereau, Main street.

About 11.30 on Monday night the dread fire alarm sounded. This time it was not a false alarm, for a fire of considerable dimensions among some frame dwellings on Park street, near Mechanic street, was under way by the time the alarm sounded. It is said the fire started in an empty house, how will not probably be known. Before the flames were finally subdued four dwellings were burned, three of them belonging to Mr. Austin Vandusen, Green Point, and one belonging to Mr. Ed. Green.

A man apparently under the influence of liquor was performing on the street on Saturday night last with a magnificent iron grey horse. The horse seemed to have more than the average horse intelligence, else its owner would have been overturned out of his buggy into the street. Chief Donaldson's presence on the occasion would have been a gentle reminder to this smart Alec that he did not own our streets.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

"THE GIRL AND THE BARON."

The latest musical success, "The Girl and the Baron," which will be the offering at Griffin's Opera House on Wednesday, Sept. 3rd, will prove that the theatre-going public appreciates real merit and will liberally patronize an offering that gives "value received." The company presenting "The Girl and the Baron" is one of raro merit selected only after careful study, each individual member being admirably fitted to the part that he or she portrays and herein lies much of the success of "The Girl and the Baron." The cast of "The Girl and the Baron" includes Nat S. Ferber, Eva Malvin, Frankie Burns, George C. Hall, Emily Montrose, Robert Algiers and others, who are surrounded by a big beauty chorus that sing and dance. The scenery is very beautiful; the costumes gorgeous, showing some of the latest Parisian creations and the electrical effects very novel. During the play "The Girl and the Baron" the very latest song successes will be introduced and many new and novel dances will be shown.

Grand Lodge True Blues Meet in Picton

The Grand Lodge of the Loyal True Blues met in the Parish House on Tuesday evening, Grand Master R. C. Newman, presiding.

Among those present were: J. I. Hart, M.P.; Mr. Fitzgerald, Mr. Forsythe, G.M., of Nova Scotia; Mr. Bromley and a large delegation of ladies and gentlemen representatives of the various lodges throughout Canada. Addresses of welcome were presented by Mayor Adams on behalf of the town, the members of the Council being present. The Grand Master replied in fitting terms, thanking them for their address and the kindness of the reception accorded them. Mr. Forsythe of Nova Scotia also reing terms of Mr. Wogrell's work in plied. Mr Fitzgerald spoke in glowconnection with establishment of the Orphanage in Picton. Mr. J. J. Redmond was introduced, and as Master of the County Orange Lodge, extended fraternal greetings, which was responded to by the Grand Master and J. I. Hart. An address was also presented by E. C. Garbutt and Fred Martin from Enniskillen Lodge of L. T. Blues No. 4 of Picton, and was replied to by the Grand Master and Mr. Brumley. All the addresses and replies breathed the spirit of good fellowship and fraternity and loyalty to our King, our country and our flag, and a desire to make the Orphan's Home a power for good for the unfortunate children committed to its care. The town and county were very highly commended for their loyal sympathy and support in assisting to maintain this institution in its present state of efficiency.—Picton Gazette.

JEWELER VS. THIEF IN BATTLE OF WITS

Many New Safety Devices Protect Valuable Stock From Motor-car Bandits and Their Kind

When the craze for jewel-snatching by armed men in motor cars spread from Paris to London, it caused the big jewelers to spend anxious hours over the question of securing the safety of their stock. Security devices of all sorts were fitted up literally by scores within two or three months.

The device most generally adopted was that of a safety-bolt, worked either by a button below the counter or by a lever pressed by the foot. With the latter particularly, the door to the safety of the street can be silently barred without rousing the slightest suspicion on the part of the most observant operators.

If a jeweler is showing trays of rings, and if, after putting one aside, he does not at first get the count right, it gives a person rather an eerie feeling to reflect that one is a prisoner till he does. The beauty of this electric safety-bolt is that not only can the thief be kept in, but any accomplice can be prevented from coming to his assistance.

A similar safety device is a button arrangement connected with the sliding curtain which has taken the place of the old shutter system. A touch on the button, and there is an iron wall between the bandit and the car that is waiting for him.

Many jewelers adopted the street-gong system. The button in this instance not only works the safety-bolt or iron curtain, as the case may be, but sounds a loud gong on the outside of the shop—a warning that police help is urgently needed within.

But for an unarmed jeweler's assistant deliberately to lock an armed jewel thief in with himself demands some courage. So in scores of jewelers' places revolvers are kept in a convenient place just below the counter.

The cunning jewel thief chooses his time. Lunch-time is a favoritee occasion, or immediately before closing-time, when there is possibly only one assistant on duty, the rest being either at lunch, or tidying themselves for the street. So in a good many shops the meal-time hours were rearranged to ensure there being always two men in the shop.

It is not to be supposed, however, that jewelers were helpless in the hands of jewel thieves before these extra precautions were taken. Many big jewelers have long had—ever since the window-snatching epidemic of some years ago, indeed—safety window shelves, which, the moment the glass is broken, sink out of sight and out of reach of grasping hands. Moreover few jewelers' counters have overhanging rims nowadays. The change dates from a very clever trick that brought big hauls many years ago. The thief, well dressed, would walk in, and look over some rings. At an opportune moment he would slip one of the finest out, and casually fix it on the underside of the overhanging rim, either with a piece of wax or a simple staple. In a second or two its absence would be noticed, and the customer challenged. Indignantly he would demand to be searched. Naturally, he went scot-free, or got, at most, a few hours in the cells.

Meanwhile, a confederate would have strolled in ten minutes after the incident, on the pretext of making some small purchase, and walk off with the ring.

BLUEJACKETS' PROTEST

New Scale of Pay Coincides With Increase in Price of Clothing

British bluejackets are strongly protesting against an Admiralty increase in the price of their clothing.

The men say that the increases counterbalance the benefits recently given of free kit on entering the Service and reserve pay, and that the Admiralty have given them two cents with one hand and taken away three cents with the other.

Among the increases are 4 cents a yard on serge, 4 cents each on flannel vests, 14 cents a pair on trousers, 28 cents a pair on boots and shoes, and 12 cents on jerseys.

These articles are in continual demand, and it is estimated that the effect of the rise in prices will be to increase the cost of a sailor's clothing by $20 or $25 a year.

Non-Drinking Animal

A Pangolin, ant-eater with a covering like armor-plate, died of gastritis after a few days in the zoological gardens at Regent's Park, London. A peculiarity about the pangolin was that it never drank. It was the first specimen in the gardens since 1877. It was a quaint looking animal, completely armored with hard pointed scales.

A man seldom realizes how many friends he hasn't until he runs for office.

CORNWALL, Ont., Aug. 28.—Provincial Government Inspector Ayearst and two assistants, A. Coorian and Frank Armstrong, were in Cornwall yesterday prosecuting a couple of hotelkeepers in the north end of the town for selling liquor by the bottle. The sales were made to the inspectors on August 2nd. One of the men was fined $50 by Police Magistrate Danis, and the other case was adjourned for eigth days, the accused refusing to plead guilty. Little Boy Had Miraculous Escape

GANANOQUE, Aug. 28.—A young son of John Bell, who resides just outside of the north limits, of the town on the junction road, had a very narrow escape from being killed a few days ago. The lad, who is about ten years of age, was passing near where men were setting a threshing machine at his father's barn. One of the men had been driving down a stake with an axe and not seeing the boy behind him, struck the boy on the head, inflicting a nasty wound, which fortunately, was not serious. It is a miracle it was not fatal.

Woman Detective To Stop Smuggling

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Aug. 29.—Special—Residents of this city are complaining of the over-zealousness of the Canadian Customs officials. They have suddenly become more alert than heretofore, and especially with the women of the city, who occasionally buy small articles on the American side. One woman recently purchased a fifty cent article on the American side, and when questioned about it was taxed 35 cents duty.

Another was compelled to pay 60 cents on an article costing $1. The collector of Customs has Mrs. Ogilvie, attached to the Toronto office, here. She is stationed on the upper bridge. She was here during the Christmas holiday last year.

SAMSON HASKELL OF BENTLEY

—BY—

CHARLES A. MACFARLANE

(Copyright Applied For)

CHAPTER XVIII.

REBEKAH HASKELL.

If Miss Haskell harbored the slightest suspicion that my visit to Bentley was other than of a business nature, she in no way betrayed the conviction. The cordiality exhibited was so unaffected and wholesome that I at once felt delightfully at ease.

She possessed an unlimited education, and her knowledge of current topics, the latest literature, and familiarity with standard works, very quickly put me on my guard, lest I be weighed and found wanting.

In her voice, so prettily modulated, I detected a spontaneous drollness, not unlike her humorous father, yet to a less pronounced degree; and her aptness in repartee was amusing, but never of an offensive nature. From beneath it all there welled up a simplicity almost childlike; but that the young lady was capable of asserting her privileges upon questions of principle, I was not slow to perceive.

"We should feel quite well acquainted, Mr. Rollins," she said, with a modest laugh. "Father and Mother have so often spoken of your parents, and wondered if 'little Ranny had grown to be a big man', that I have really longed to get a look at some of you. But, to be sure, we simple country folk are subjects of minor importance to you city bred people."

"Quite the reverse, Miss Haskell. If you knew how we city people long to leave the exacting grind of business and social life for a breeze of God's pure air, you would not wonder that we envy you the freedom of so many physical blessings. We are simply slaves, driven to the highest nerve-tension by the gods of ambition, never to be satisfied. If privileged to choose, from what I have seen of your lovely village, which I am proud to recognize as my place of birth, I would exchange my city interests for one of these country stores, where physical, financial and political prosperity travel in a gloriously happy combination."

"If you include the dickering in butter, eggs, cheese, potatoes, and all manner of farm produce, a feature of that 'gloriously happy combination,' not to mention a load or two of cordwood, a quarter or half of beef, or a whole hog at Christmas time in exchange for your merchandise——"

"For which a ready market is ever found in the great cities," I interrupted, with an air of business that was meant to carry conviction.

"But then," she half meditated, as if referring to a more favorable side, "there are the schoolhouse dances and social seasons, and occasional free fights inaugurated by some gallant young man over a fancied wrong to himself or his sweetheart, and the church fairs with their pretty bargain-counter girls, which even your cities cannot equal," and she ended in a merry laugh.

"The days of schoolhouse and barn dances are past," added Mr. Haskell. "The dances are held in proper halls now, and there hain't been no fights at any of the social or religious doings for considerable many years. In the days of Henry Rollins and Theresa Harding, when we young people flocked like geese, and danced to the music of that old fiddle, we had what you might call fun, with a couple or three fights after supper to settle our feed."

His voice was tender, and as he opened a home-made box, that stood on one end in a corner of the room, I noticed how caressingly he took the faded instrument from its resting place. "This has seen service in the past; but it hain't playin' for dances any more, and the dances hain't what they were in the days of me an' Delilah, an' Henry an' Theresa. Not by a long ways."

As he drew the bow across the strings a sound of remarkable sweetness filled the room, and I was surprised that the original cost was but two dollars and fifty cents, Mr. Haskell having procured it when a boy by a "swap with Bill Houston."

In obedience to her father's request, Miss Haskell went to the piano, and presently they were rattling off Money Musk in the usual rural manner, followed by Fisher's Hornpipe, the Irish Washerwoman and Hull's Victory. Mr. Haskell still had easy command of the strings, and in his day must have been a marvel. As for his daughter, her touch and execution were well nigh perfect, as two of the latest musical productions amply demonstrated.

"I truly believe, if your father and mother were to come up, Samson would inaugurate an old-time dance in the barn," suggested Mrs. Haskell. "He would be almost willing to furnish the music and call off himself for the sake of drawing old friends together."

"And Delilah would put Henry on her list for a waltz, if she has got religion, and teaches a class in Sunday school Gee! but I'd like to see 'em on the floor now,' and Mr. Haskell laughed heartily at the imagined spectacle.

"Of course you are familiar with the Haskell-Rollins rivalry?" questioned Miss Haskell, turning a sober face to me.

"Simply sections of it," I replied. "My parents are rigid adherents to the adage 'where ignorance is bliss 'tis folly to be wise.' But I hope to learn more of their early caprices before returning home."

"Oh, but I know it from beginning to end," exclaimed the young lady. "Mother has so often related sections of her girlish escapades that I know her entire life by heart. And it is really very interesting. How I would like to see it in book form," and her merry laugh increased my desire to hear the complete story.

"'I guess Mother told you all that was necessary from her side of the fracas," said her father. "But she stirred up considerable many rumpuses in them days that hain't been spoken of for twenty years or better. Ranny shall hear the story complete, and then he can judge of how good his mother was to me, and how patient I was to stand sech treatment."

Miss Haskell looked quizzically from one parent to the other, but said nothing.

"It was wuss'n Job a-sittin' in the ashes and a-scrapin' his b'iles with a hoe, whilst his wife wanted 'im to die," appendixed Grandpa Gaylord, to the amusement of us all.

I felt peculiarly at home with these people, so different from what I had anticipated, and whose hospitality was extended to me not alone because of past friendships, but from a natural kindness of heart.

At Mrs. Haskell's suggestion we viewed the old homes of our parents from the piazza; homes in which they had been born and reared, but now in the possession of strangers. Fully a mile distant, upon a hillside to the southeast, stood the old Rollins house and outbuildings, in good repair, the land, which extended to the marsh below, in an excellent state of cultivation, and divided into distinct fields by stone walls and rail fences. It was identical with the description given by my grandfather, and I would have known the location, plan of buildings, and even the road leading thereto, without the assistance of friends.

On the nearer side, and to which the land extended, was the millpond extension, that overflowed in winter, giving excellent skating to the village young people, at which pastime both my parents were adepts. Again my eyes scanned the old farm, that Grandfather had cleared of trees and rocks, where Father had hauled wood, performed farm and dairy work, and run errands, much against his will. To this old home, a quarter century ago, he had brought pretty Theresa Harding, a blushing bride, and there I was born.

To the southwest, on the road to Westover's Corner, and about half a mile distant, lay the Daniel Harding farm. We could see but the roofs of the buildings, which appeared to be in a state of decay.

"The old Harding place goes under the hammer next week," remarked Mr. Haskell. "Deakin Rasmus Hale foreclosed four months ago after taking the stock and farm tools, and now he finishes the deal, as usual, by sellin' the estate, expecting to bid it in for the amount of the mortgage. Jim Gillen moved out six months ago and went west.'"

"What is the place worth?" I asked, with no particular purpose in view.

"In its present state it is worth from ten to twelve hundred. Hale's claim is five hundred. It won't bring much more. Want to buy?"

"I would like to buy it for Mother, that she might make it a summer home. There is no place on earth so dear to my mother as that old farm home. But I am not prepared to purchase at present, much as I would like to acquire it for her sake."

"We will ride over and look at it tomorrow, Ranny," said Mrs. Haskell, as we re-entered the house, it now being the supper hour.

At the table I was presented to "Samson Haskell the second," a handsome, manly fellow of twenty, and nearly the height of his father. This comprised the Haskell household.

As I took a seat opposite Miss Rebekah, a pair of bright blue eyes, half mischievously, half defiantly, flashed a challenge that told me of a purpose. But what that purpose might be she kept quite to herself. And throughout the meal I felt those eyes critically studying my face, as though searching for some mental deficiency. But she continued her cordial frankness, which from the first I had so greatly admired.

"When you go home next fall, Ranny, I want you should ask Grandpa Rollins to fergive a mean caper I played on him over thirty year ago. I speak of it now, lest I ferget, fer I'm afeared it will take a signboard or two from the turnpike to my mansion in the sky if it hain't fixed up in proper shape." An expression of penitence passed over Mr. Haskell's face as he seemingly hesitated for words, and I at once became interested in the confession that all present knew was about to be made.

Mrs. Haskell smiled, and Grandpa Gaylord deliberately drew his shirt-sleeve across his mouth, while a benedictive expression came to the wrinkled countenance of the grandmother, as she gave voice to "the Lord bless 'im."

"It's about them steers," suggested Grandpa with an expectant smile, as if to draw out the anecdote, and, having finished the meal, we settled in our chairs to listen.

"Rollins had a pair of Durham steers that were as wild as hares, and as hard to yoke. Mostwise it took two harness 'em. One day he told Henry to put the steers to the big sled and haul a load of wood from the far end of the farm. The boy wanted the old oxen, as they were steady, but your Grandpa told him to yoke them steers, an' yoke 'em quick. Henry got Buck, the off one, under the yoke without much trouble, but the nigh one didn't want to work that day, and bolted for the barn. He had the neck-piece adjusted several times, but before the bow could be fastened, the steer would jump and run. Henry had tried real hard fer a half hour to fasten that steer beside his mate, but it was no use, and he had almost decided to cry, when his father took holt, madder'n a hornet, and proceeded to instruct his son in the art of yokin' steers.

"'You bring that steer here,' he says, holdin' the neck-piece with one hand, and the bow with the other. Henry led the steer by the horn to the side of Buck, and waited for further orders. 'Now you watch how I do it, then do as I tell ye, an' no more foolin'.' Rollins put the neck-piece on the back of his own neck, and run the ends of the bow through the holes, whilst Henry looked s'if he'd rather go skatin' than haul wood.

"I don't know what made me do it, fer I liked Rollins; but I slipped up behind, give the bow a quick shove to the last notch, snapped the fastener, give Buck a kick, and off they went in fine shape. Fer a minute or two it was fun to see 'em travel, Rollins workin' hard to keep his feet, at the same time tryin' to git free from the yoke. But he couldn't pull his head out, an' he couldn't stop the steer. He yelled 'Whoa, Buck,' but Buck had his eye on a haystack in the field, and refused to listen. I seen poor Rollins stumble several times, and began to fear the speed was too swift.

"When they came to the bars in the fence, Buck cleared 'em, but Rollins bein' stiffer in the legs, lost his footin' and dragged. Then me an' Henry started to the rescue, but I reached him first, pulled out the fastener, and the bow fell.

"When we picked him he was half dead. But he never suspicioned that I had anything to do with it, and allus supposed the bow had stuck and held him tight. Henry didn't let on how the accident happened, an' it has allus been a secret betwixt us. No wood was hauled that day from the far end of the farm, nor the next."

"I have heard Grandfather tell the story, and it has always been a mystery to him how the bow was drawn so tight, and the key to slip into place," I said. "To this day Grandmother declares that but for you he would have been killed, while Father simply smiles and keeps the secret. I will deliver your request for forgiveness, and can promise a ready acceptance, in that it will clear up a puzzling incident."

"'I hope so, Ranny; and it will take a heavy load from my system."

"Mr. Rollins, I am indebted to your coming for a hitherto unknown incident in the life of my father,'" said Miss Haskell, as we rose from the table.

"I am glad to know that my presence has so quickly borne fruit, Miss Haskell," I replied, walking with her through a door to the side piazza. "Such reminiscences are amusingly interesting, as told by your father."

"In a way, perhaps. But Father and Mother are such enthusiasts upon ancient deeds and friendships. My faintest recollection vibrate with 'Henry, Theresa, little Ranny—Henry, Theresa, little Ranny;' and now that 'little Ranny' has come, the song will be renewed with never-ceasing energy."

"Then we may look for interesting developments," I laughingly ventured.

"As to the interest, that depends upon the developments," and again the blue eyes flashed me a look of saucy defiance.

Must Come Under Imperial Control

New Zealand Defence Minister Opposes Local Navies—No Partnership with Australia.

LONDON, Aug. 29.—During the discussion in the New Zealand Parliament on naval defence, the Defence Minister stated that the Government's policy would show that New Zealand is prepared to do its duty to itself and to the Empire.

A true national spirit, the Minister held, would never be developed under a system of money contributions for defence purposes.

The people of the Dominion must themselves be prepared to shoulder their responsibility and to fight as their fathers fought, should occasion arise.

Whatever New Zealand did, however, in the matter of naval defence, her ships must be under Imperial control, for Imperial purposes. The Premier said that, under the Government's proposals, when they were announced, it would be seen that there would be no loosening of any ties with the Mother Country.

They could not, however, ignore the fact that under the changed conditions, there was not the protection of New Zealand waters that they were entitled to. The Government, in framing its policy, had considered what had happened in the past.

New Zealand had not the slightest intention of going into partnership with Australia in naval defence.

Sir Joseph Ward urged that the only course for New Zealand was to continue the present association with the British Navy.

C. N. R. Want Men For Western Work

EDMONTON, Alb., Aug. 29.—The railways are now experiencing a shortage of labor for construction work in the west.

Mr. A .T. Fraser, the District Engineer of the Canadian Northern Railway, stated yesterday that more men could be employed on the main line through from Edmonton to the Coast and on the branch lines. Two hundred and fifty extra men are wanted on the Vegreville-Calgary line.

The shortage is partly caused by the demand for harvest help, teamsters and graders being offered big wages by the farmers in the harvest fields. The supply of the regular railroaders, however—men who do not take to the fields—is also short.

A FINAL WORD BEFORE THE DAY OF THE CENTRAL FAIR

"I just love to talk to people," said a very deaf old lady.

"But," replied her friend, "you can't hear what they say.'

"Oh, well, I don't care what they say; I know what I say myself."

And so with the Belleville Fair; we know it is going to be the best show this year ever held in Belleville. We like to talk about it. We anticipate with pleasure the good old fashioned horse races; the display of roots and grains; the sleek high-bred cattle, and the various other exhibits usually to be found at the fairs, but this year the larger and better array added to this will be the ball game, the best of the season, and the scarlet-coated dragoons, mounted on the pick of prancing steeds. With all of the above going on, the bands playing their liveliest, the girls looking their prettiest in their gladdest finery, the Belleville Fair this year will be some fair and more.

The exhiibtion of horses should be unusually good this season. The beautiful animals of the dragoons, of course, will be seen at their best in the musical rides. There is also some rivalry among the local horsemen, including some new comers to Belleville who will show some very fine horses.

Mentioning the local horsemen, reminds me of the experience of a well known Belleville horse expert. It seemed he had been watching the eccentric movements of a horse being driven by a farmer on Front Street. The beast kept stopping every few minutes, and apparently the farmer had some difficulty in getting it to go. The curiosity of the local man was sufficiently aroused to cause him to speak to the farmer. "Is he sick?" "No," said the farmer, "I don't think he is sick." "Is he balky?" "No, he's not balky, but I'll tell you. He's a little hard of hearing, and he's so afraid I'll say 'Whoa,' and he won't hear me, that he stops every once in a while to listen.

Quinte Central Fair, Belleville, Monday and Tuesday, Sept. 1st and 2nd—Labor Day, Agricultural Day.

39th Gathering of L. T. B. Association

The 39th annual session of the Loyal True Blue Association of the Dominion convened in the Parish Hall, Picton, on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. The meeting was opened by Supreme Grand Master, R. C. Newman. On the platform were seated Past Grand Masters Miles Plumley, of St. Catharines; Wm. M. Fitzgerald, Bro. James Worrell, Bro. J. I. Hart, Bro. Wm. I. Cole, Grand Treasurer; Mrs. Burnett, of Toronto; also Provincial Grand Master Jas. Forsythe, of Nova Scotia. The reports and addresses of the Grand Master, Grand Secretary and Treasurer, and Orhpanage Board proved the Order to be in a flourishing condition.

On Tuesday evening the Mayor and town council, county Orange Lodge, and the True Blue Lodge of Picton extended addresses of welcome. These being over, the Grand Master asked the Grand Directors of Ceremonies to present Past Grand Master Bro. Wm. I. Cole, who the Supreme Grand Master addressed for a few moments re. his faithful services for two years as Grand Master, after which he presented him with a solid oak cabinet of silver. Bro. Fitzgerald, P.G.M., also addressed the meeting in behalf of the noble work of Bro. Cole, both for the Association and Orphanage. Past Grand Master Cole was completely taken by surprise, and could hardly find words to thank them for their kind words and the magnificent present. Wednesday's sessions were full of business. In the evening the local lodge at Picton gave the delegates a trip down the bay and returned to the Orphanage, where a garden party was given in their honor. The Picton Band was in attendance. On Thursday morning it was decided to hold the next annual meeting in Orillia, Ont. The election of officers resulted as follows:

Supreme Grand Master—R. C. Newman, Toronto.
Deputy Grand Master—Milton Adams, Picton.
Grand Secretary—N. Ingram, Port Perry.
Grand Treasurer—Mrs. T. Burnett, Toronto.
Grand Director—James Forsythe, Amherst, N S.
Grand Chaplain—David Church, Orillia.
Inside Tyler—Wm. Lock, Toronto.
Outside Tyler—James Milk, Ottawa.
Auditors—Geo. Farley, Toronto; Wm. Ringer, Picton.

Board of Directors of Orhpanage—Wm. M. Fitzgerald, Toronto; Jas. I. Hart, Orillia; R. C. Newman, Toronto; Wm. I. Cole, Canifton; Mrs. A. Patterson, Toronto; Mrs. J. Stinson, Toronto; Mrs. T. Burnett, Toronto; Mrs. Mary Reynolds, Hamilton.

The officers were then installed and the Grand Lodge closed to meet in Orillia next year.

Carnegie Wants Peace Alliance

THE HAGUE, Aug. 29.—While officiating with Sir Alan Johnstone, of England, at the unveiling of statues of the late King Edward VII. and Sir Randal Cremer to-day, Mr. Andrew Carnegie said:

"King Edward and Cremer left the world better than they found it."

He then advocated a peace alliance for the wordl's peace between Great Britain, Germany and the United States.

Bride and Groom Failed to Arrive

MONTREAL, Aug. 29.—After failing to appear in Christ Church Cathedral, where one hundred guests had assembled to see them married, H. C. Morley and Miss E. Brook have both mysteriously disappeared from their respective places of residence, and cannot be found.

The occurrence is one of the strangest remembered by the clergy of Montreal. Never in the history of the Cathedral had such a thing happened. The ceremony was to be celebrated at 2.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon; but at 9 o'clock in the morning the groom had left his lodgings, with nearly all his possessions, for places unknown. No intimation was given to the guests that the marriage would not take place that day, and Rev. Dr. Herbert Symonds, the vicar of the Cathedral, and Rev. Mr. McGregor, the curate, waited for over an hour for the couple. Then one of the salesmen announced that the groom was indisposed and could not come.

Mr. Morley, who had charge of the sample rooms of the Brodeur Company on St. Peter street, was about 45 years of age. His fiancee was slightly younger. They had evidently known each other for many years; but Mr. Morley never mentioned his intended marriage, and his landlady only learned of it on Wednesday, when Mr. Morley was indisposed and his fiancee called to see him.

On learning that her intended husband was ill, Miss Brook exclaimed: "And to-morrow my wedding day." She stayed with Mr. Morley some hours preparing medicines, and then left. Whether the two had a dispute or not is not known. At nine o'clock yesterday morning Mr. Morley left his lodgings without saying where he was going. He has not come back.

Western Fair Buildings Go in Early Fire

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 29.—Reduced to ashes by an incendiary fire that made a clean sweep of every structure on the Campbell street side of the fair grounds, five of the Western Fair buildings were destroyed early to-day with a loss of $100,000.

The cement building, the L shaped Machinery Hall, the Transportation Building, and the main horse stable and the W.C.T.U. dining hall fell a victim to the flames that ate the frame structures with a voraciousness that defied the efforts of the fire department to stop the running, leaping sheeth of flame.

Happening just a week before the opening of the London Fair, the fire was one that might have proved a handicap to the big show, but such will not be the case. Phœnix-like, the fair will rise from the ashes, greater, larger, and better than ever. While the flames were at their height, arrangements were made for temporary structures to replace the burning ones. Everything will be accommodated, and everything will go on as usual when the exhibition gates are opened on September 7.

There was once a married man whose wife's folks didn't try to work him through her. She had no folks.

QUEBEC TO BANQUET PREMIER BORDEN.

Ottawa, Aug. 29.—Premier Borden may be given a banquet by the Conservatives of Quebec City on September 21, the date of the second anniversary of the elections of two years ago.

Last year he was tendered a banquet in Montreal on September 21. The Quebec banquet, if arrangements are completed, will be attended by most of the Cabinet Ministers and many prominent Conservatives from all parts of the Dominion.

Three Hundred Press Men Cheer Veteran Knight

Sir Mackenzie Bowell an Honored Guest and Speaker at Directors' Luncheon.

TORONTO Aug. 29.—Over 300 newspaper men representing the Dominion of Canada gathered together at the invitation of the directors to luncheon to-day, which is Press Day at the Exhibition. Mr. J. D. Kent was chairman, and the first speaker was Sir Mackenzie Bowell. The newspaper men stood up and gave three rousing cheers and a tiger as the veteran Canadian newspaper man rose to speak.

After referring to the Canadian Press Association movement away back before Confederation, he spoke of the tremendous strides of Canada agriculturally and commercially.

He told of the time when he rode horseback from Edmonton to Prince Albert, by way of showing the great changes he had seen in Canada's history.

After reviewing his own history and experiences as a newspaper man, he spoke earnestly in favor of closer relations with the Old Country.

"I want to see Canada a part of the British Empire in fact as well as in theory. One flag, one King, and one people."

He gave the press credit for the creation of a truly national feeling, and much of the success of the Exhibition was due to influence and co-operation of the newspapers of Canada.

Great Northern Cuts Ocean Rates

VICTORIA Aug 29.-As was expected in some quarters, the placing by the Canadian Pacific Railway of two large and speedy steamships on the Victoria-Orient route has led to reprisals. At all events, the Great Northern Company is preparing for a fight to keep its share of the first class passenger business and with that object in view has not only reduced its freight charges but aso its passenger rates to the Orient.

The first-class fare from Puget Sound to Yokohama is now $150 instead of $200, while to Shanghai, Hong Kong and Manila it is $175. The tariff on freight has also been lowered by the Blue Funnel line, the C. P. R. and the Nippon Yusen Kaisha.

Compressed Air TO Raise Steamer

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 29.—Mr. A. J. Lee, of Montreal, representing the Compressed Air Salvage Company anounces here that the company has secured the contract for raising the steamer Keystorm, sunk in deep water above Kingston, on the St. Lawrence River.

The boat will be raised, and repaired from the inside, by means of an equipment closely resembling the compressed air system used in constructing tunnels under water. The compresed air system is said to have never been used before on a lake boat.

Decline in Cheese Making During Year

Prof G. G. Publow, chief Dairy Instructor for Eastern Ontario, states that he finds a marked falling off in the volume of the make just now as compared with one year ago, due largely to the dry weather. There are between 800 and 900 factories in Eastern Ontario and he estimates that the output is fully one cheese per factory per day less.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Fire Chiefs In Annual Convention

KINGSTON, Aug 29.—Fire chiefs of Ontario are in possesion of Kingston. T. J. Rignew gave them the freedom of the city at the city council chamber on Thursday morning at ten o'clock, when the fifth annual convention of the Provincial Convention of Fire Chiefs was opened, with the president, Chief F. N. Wetmore, of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., in the chair. Up till noon thirty chiefs have registered and it was expected that more would reach the city during the afternoon. The opening session was given over to addresses of welcome delivered by Mayor Rigney and Alderman Abraham Shaw, chairman of the civic Fire committee, with responses from the president, Chief A. B. Ten Eyck, of Hamilton and Chief J. S. France, of the Bain Waggon company of Woodstock.

There was a sad touch to the opening session in that it was the first meeting of the association since the death of Fire Chief Durkin, of Stratford, who met death a few months ago while fighting a fire in Knox church, in his home town. Chief Durkin was beloved by every member of the association and feeling references were made to his death. Rev. W. F. FitzGerald, of St. Paul's church, delivered a memorial address of most inspiring nature. His remarks were listened to with keen interest.

The association adjourned before noon to meet again at two o'clock for the receiving of the reports of the officers and the taking up of other business. At four o'clock the afternoon sesion was adjourned when the visitors were given an automobile drive around Kingston and vicinity. Quite a large number of ladies were among the visiting party.

Five Men Have Close Call on Water

KINGSTON, Aug 29.—Stephen Bonsal, jr., son of the war correspondent, of New York, had a narrow escape from drowning in Alexandria Bay, when a hydroplane owned by L. H. Vilas of Chicago, was capsized at Vila's summer home.

Vilas, his brother Jack, the aviator; Bonsal, Max Rafferty, of Kansas City, and Ewing Rafferty, of Pittsburgh, were in the boat when it was capsized. All were thrown into the water and the boat sank. All except Bonsal could swim, and he was held above the surface by Jack Vilas until a skiff arrived and rescued the party. No one was injured.

AN INTERESTING GATHERING

The Alphine Club of Canada held their camp this year in Mount Robson Park, British Columbia on the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. The attendance was a very representative one and excellent alpine work was done, all the members of the camp feeling that they had the best camp of their lives, and returned home looking forward to the time when opportunity would occur for them to visit the same district. Among the members of the camp were a large number of distinguished mountain climbers who thoroughly explored the territory and who left with the impression that the new Mount Robson Park holds for the tourist and traveller the finest mountain scenery in the world. The success of the camp will be a very large factor in opening up and bringing to the notice of the world that section of the Canadian Rockies, and taking into consideration the large number of requests that are received at the head offices of the Grand Trunk Pacific for descriptive literature and information regarding territory, the indications are that a large clientile are looking forward to a visit to this magnificent alpine region at some future time. During the last few days of the Canadian Alpine Camp a resolution was passed by the members, which reads as follows:—

"Resolved that the thanks of this camp, in meeting assembled, be hereby tendered to the management of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway for its very practical assistance to the Club when holding its first camp in the Mount Robson District, and particularly to W. P. Hinton, Esq., the General Passenger Agent of the said Company, for such assistance and many courtesies towards that end.

We desire to express our thanks to this very popular gentleman and his subordinates, who did all in their power to make the transport arrangements work as comfortably and well.

The camp has proved a magnificent success, and the assistance here referred to has been a large factor towards accomplishing that object. We hope it will be the first of a series of many successful and enjoyable camps and that the fame of the region may through the efforts of the Club, be spread abroad throughout the world.

Haphazard, occasional saving seldom accomplishes much. RURAL DEPOPULATION

The question of rural depopulation is too important a one to be set aside with a few desultory comments on the general situation. It is one of the big problems which this country must face and endeavor to solve. Rural depopulation is an interesting question for any country to have to face, but in a new country like Canada, where agriculture is the chief industry and must continue to be the industry in which the majority of the people engage if we are to prosper, the question assumes added importance. If people, especially in the older sections, says Canadian Farm, continue to drift from the country to the city, from the farm, to earn a livelihood in some business of manufacturing establishment, Canada's future is in a very perilous state indeed. Very few people, we believe, realize the seriousness of the situation revealed by the last Dominion census. The figures in regard to rural depopulation given to the country at large should set people thinking. There cannot be continued progress and prosperity in this country unless agriculture forges ahead, and the products of the soil increase. And how can agriculture forge ahead if people leave the farm and congregate in our towns and cities. The best efforts of every one interested in Canada's future prosperity should be directed towards affecting a change from the city back to the land. The man in the city should be as much interested in affecting this change as the man in the country. How can the manufacturer or business man hope to prosper in a great agricultural country like this, if people leave the farm and thus lessen the productive power of the land. Many people measure the prosperity of a country by the growth of cities and towns, but that growth cannot continue or indeed hold its present place, unless it is backed up by a corresponding growth in the development of its agricultural resources, and this applies in a very special sense to Canada.

SCHOOL HYGIENE CONGRESS

Canada has been represented, this week, at the fourth International Congress on School Hygiene, which is meeting in Boston. This is the first time this important movement has held its annual gathering in America.

The average grown man these days suffers from some ailment that is due to the neglect of proper medical treatment in his youth. Nurtured by carelessness, ignorance or thoughtlessness this ailment has steadily grown until it has come to plague his very existence. In the schools of the country today are the grown men of the future. An opportunity exists, therefore, to prepare them for healthy normal life. The movement to grasp this opportunity is spreading widely and is a significant sign of the increased attention that is being paid to-day to the child as an asset to the country and to society at large.

A primary reason for the spread of the school hygiene movement has been the demonstration by medical science that many school pupils who appear dull, lazy, inefficient mentally, are in reality victims of some physical weakness or abnormality. To give these pupils an opportunity to prepare themselves for life's work would appear to be well worth while.

Parents often are careless of their children. This is illustrated by the following comment of the Winnipeg Free Press:

"Dr. Wood, in charge of the Physical Education Department of the Teachers' College in New York, estimates that about one million children in the schools of the United States have spinal curvature, flat foot, or some other deformity which is a hindrance to good health, that fully as many have more or less defective hearing, five millions, or one-quarter of the whole, have trouble with their eyes, six millions have trouble with adenoids, and so on down the list of ills which afflict growing humanity. What would the numbers be of like sufferers among the school children in this country?"

The school authorities have been able, therefore, to step in and, without offending the natural pride of the parents, to do a great deal of good to the children. A system of school hygiene, wisely applied, is a mighty good thing. Not a great deal of talent is required these days to be a parent; but to be the father or mother of a healthy, intelligent child is quite a task.

CHINESE GAMBLERS IN CANADA

One of the things which has impressed itself upon us of late has been the frequency with which the police of our cities round up a batch of Chinamen who have been caught gambling. Montreal, Toronto, Ottawa; they all do it. And the fines wrung from these law-breaking celestials no doubt enrich the civic coffers not a little. A few days ago in Montreal a Chinaman who had been caught gambling was sentenced to two years and a half for his crime. It happens, however, that this particular Chinaman has a wife and four children, the youngest but a babe. The poor woman has no means of earning money, and so she and her family are dependent upon charity. In this case we are not punishing the man so much as his innocent family. No doubt the man should be punished, but why not compel him, or at least allow him, to help support his family. Speaking on this subject, the Montreal Telegraph refers to a peculiar fact of which the public cannot fail to have taken notice. It says: "There are a good many gambling houses in Montreal besides those in Chinatown; but in some way it is the Chinese that the police practice on. Possiby, as they did not learn at home that gambling is wrong, they are more above board with it, or possibly the police find they can make a good show of diligence with them while treating more sympathetically the sins of the white sinners." Why the Chinese gamblers should be rounded up so frequently, and the white gamblers left unmolested, puzzles the ordinary citizen. Can it be that there are no white gamblers?

CURRENT COMMENT

The New York Times says that Thaw's fight for freedom in the courts has been estimated to have cost him or his family close to $900,000.

* * *

Guelph Mercury: "Tailors predict that men will soon be wearing slit trousers and colored hosiery. We hate to mention names, but there are a couple of Guelph aldermen that we'd like to see lead the fashion." Belleville aldermen are too modest.

* * *

Guelph Mercury: "If your boy is not feeling well and thinks a month in the country would do him a world of good, it might be well to remember that he has not forgotten that school starts next week." The same applies to Belleville.

* * *

Toronto Star: "Is not this the second time this year that our volunteers have been supplied with loaded shells instead of blanks for use in sham battles?" Can it be that the suffragettes have started business in Canada? Or it may be the spirit of Thaw.

Guelph Herald: "There are some heated protests being made in England over the appointment of Robert Bridges as poet laureate. The passing over of Rudyyard Kipling was a piece of partisanship which does the Asquith Government no credit; its action has degraded an office which should know no politics."

* * *

The mistake made in regard to Harry K. Thaw when he first entered Canada, was that the Coaticook officials did not lead him to the spot where he crossed the line, kick him into his own country, and give him to understand that if he returned to the Province they would shoot him. As it is, his legal fight will cost hundreds of dollars.

* * *

Stratford Beacon: "One of the reasons which the Conservative leaders gave for opposition to reciprocity was that it would increase the imports of manufacturers from the United States and endanger our manufacturers, but they have continued to grow since that time nothwithstanding the defeat of reciprocity." But does not the duty on these importations give Canadian manufacturers an opportunity to compete?

* * *

Montreal Herald: "The Toronto Globe goes to considerable trouble to explain that the Liberal candidate in the coming provincial bye-election in East York is not the Dominion Alliance candidate. Does this mean that The Globe secretly shares the opinion openly expressed by other Liberal papers in the Province that so long as Liberalism identifies itself with the prohibition interests it is doomed to repeated defeat?"

* * *

Toronto Star: "Social reform is the field in which the Ontario Legislature can do most good. Our cities are growing larger, our towns are growing into cities. Social problems are becoming more and more important. The people of East York have the opportunity to send to the Legislature a man who has made his mark in social work." The Star, to be sure, refers to the Liberal candidate. While socially he may be prominent in his immediate riding, the question is, when distributed over the Province as an all-round man, how thick will he spread?

THE ONLY DAY

An original poem by Alice Pyne McDavitt, Foxboro, Ont., suggested by that excellent editorial in The Daily Ontario of August 16th, 1913:

If you had only one day to live,
One more day ere you pass away,
Swiftly the moments would flit them by
To the endless hours of Futurity.

The beautiful world, the lovely sky,
The faces of friends ne'er again to see,
A different look would they wear to eyes
Soon to be closed in Eternity.

And another meaning you would take
To the kindly, or cruel, friend or foe,
The things of such vast importance now
Never will fret the head laid low.

You would not worship your money then,
Nor would you grasp, with greed for more,
The bonds, the wealth, the houses and lands,
Are of no account on the Other Shore.

Fame—the mere word-of-mouth of men,
Would be less sweet than the smile of your friend,
Whom you failed to cheer—but falsely sneered,
As you cruelly strove to the struggle's end.

Great power is naught to the palsied arm,
The ruling brain fails dully to hold,
The leisure, and ease, and the placid hands,
That soon, very soon, will be turned to mould.

You would not endeavor a woman to woo,
With lust plainly seeking in glance of your eye,
Dissemblance would die, your talk would be true,
Envy, lies, greed, and hate would die.

Poverty that stalketh in human form,
Gaunt, yellow, and ragged in your streets—to prey,
You would surely try to give work to do
That their wages might feed their families today.

You would not ignore the prison full
Where the results of your lusts are fastened now,
Instead—you would know your place was there;
Your vaunting pride would be humbled low.

So, today may you take for your judgment day,
What if 'tis the last for you and for me!
To do only the things that shall profit there.

MITCHELL KNEW HURLER WITH ONE TIN FINGER

Philadelphia, Aug 28.—Leave it to Roy Mitchell to pull the good ones. Ever hear of a pitcher with a tin finger?

" Down where I live in Texas there was a young fellow named Gus Andrews. He had everything any pitcher I ever knew owned. If he had set his mind to working he would have been a wonder in the big leagues. But he didn't.

"Andrews used to experiment with all kinds of curves and funny shots. His best one was a wonder. One day he appeared at the park with a piece of tin through which he had punched a nail. This made the outside of the tin rough, like a cocoanut grater. Andrews strapped this on his finger and proceeded to pitch. Say, he made that ball talk. Darndest shoots I ever saw.

"Pitching with a tin finger beats anything I ever heard of in baseball.

NEW OUTFIELDER IN DEMAND

Toronto, Aug 28.—Outfielder Wilson, secured from the Dallas, Texas, baseball team, reported for duty yesterday. Wilson has the right appearance for a ball player, is of medium height, and very husky build. He is a fine, clean looking boy of pleasant appearance, and is very much in earnest.

Wilson wil replace Schultz in centre, while the speedy German boy will hold down shortstop's position. Schultz was originally a second baseman or shortstop, and it will be a good opportunity to look him over as a shortstop.

Boston has entered a claim to the National Baseball Commission for outfielder Wilson, but President McCaffery ays he intends to fight them and they haven't a chance in the world. "Boston did make an offer for Wilson previous to ours," states the president, "but it was not considered and our coming along shortly after, was favorable, and was accepted. Nothing binding occured between Boston and Dallas and Wilson is our property. I haven't lost a case yet, and I don't intend to lose this one." Whereupon the genial president proceeded to touch wood to offset the effect of a little boast.

STRUNK IS VALUABLE

One player on the Athletics who is seldom mentioned in connection with the team's success is neverless one of the strongest factors of that aggregation, writes J. Ed. Grillo in the Washington Star. He is Amos Strunk, the speedy outfielder of the Mackmen Strunk has developed remarkably since last season and he is to-day one of the most valuable men Mack has on his team. Not only is he one of the greatest fielders in the league, but he is a fast base-runner, and is hitting at a .340 clip his season. Strunk gets little credit for the important part he has played in the success of his team. He is seldom mentioned as having distinguished himself, and yet he has done as much as any other member of the team to make possible its remarkable winning streak. On any other team Strunk would be a star, but he is lost among the numerous stars which Mack has.

It is doubtful if there is another instance in baseball where a player has developed as fast as he has. Two years ago Strunk was an ordinary player who was in the game but seldom. Mack farmed him out a whole season to Milwaukee and it was while there that Strunk developed into a real star.

MUCH IS EXPECTED OF GIANT INFIELD

If the Athletics, representing the American league and the Giants representing the National league, are th teams to meet in the World's series this autumn—and it appears now as if they will undoubtedly be the clubs to carry their respective standards into the battle for the premier professional baseball honors—it is possible that one of the strongest assets will be the outfield composed of Jack Murray, George Burns and Fred Snodgrass.

It is generany expected that these games will prove to be more defensive contests than offensive ones, for the reason that both teams are sure to work a great deal of the so-called "inside stuff." The hit-and-run, the squeeze and the double steals are all likely to play prominent parts in the attack of the Athletics as well as the Giants.

If this should prove true the wonderful fielding outfield of John J. McGraw's will no doubt prove a factor in the results of the game.

In Burns and Murray McGraw has two of the best throwing as well as the best ground-covering outfielders in the business. It's doubtful whether they have any peers in this respect. Time and again the throwing of these two players have broken up the effectiveness of the hit-and-run play in particular. Time and again their throwing has held to singles what would have been extra base hits.

Snodgrass is not a particularly great thrower. By this it is meant that his throwing ability is overshadowed by the marked ability of his two associates in the garden. But he is better than the average at that. He is a good ground-coverer.

These three fielders have this season saved many games for the Giants Their defensive playing has been very effective in helping the Giants to the hightway towards their third successive National league championship. There have been many times when slower fielders outfielders would not have gotten under some of the long hits that this trio has turned into outs. Several times if those smashes had been hits instead of outs the games woud have been lost.

Since there are several slugging batters in the Athletics' personnel it is anticipated that the Giants' outfield will be kept pretty much on the ump, and Murray, Burns and Snodgrass will undoubtedly be called upon to make more than one apiece of their now famous circus catches.

FARM AND GARDEN

CRATE FATTENING OF POULTRY

At a recent bulletin published by the Napanee Branch of the Ontario Dept. of Agriculture, Mr. G. B. Curran, B.S.A., has this to say about Crate Fattening of Poultry.

"The marketing of lean chickens is wastefully and yet comparatively few farmers attempt to fatten them at all. The majority of spring chickens are placed on the market in the raw, unfinished condition, with but very little covering on the brest bone, besides of an inferior quality and impropery killed. The returns from marketing spring chickens could be doubled by careful attention to fattening and killing. The market for high quality products is unlimited, and the increased prices obtained stimulate the production of chickens, so that more are raised on the farm. The best way to finish chickens is by crate-fattening. Only strong vigorous chickens that have obtained their growth should be put in the crates. Birds weighing from four to six pounds are best. The object of crate fattening is to plump out the brest and body so that the bird will have an attractive apearance when dressed. Cockerels should be crate fed from two to three weeks. As soon as they lose their keen appetite they should be taken out and killed. Good cockerels that weight four pounds when put in the crates should gain one pound per bird in two weeks' feeding."

Prominent People Proud To Testify For "Fruit-a-tives"

MR. TIMOTHY McGRATH

130 ATLANTIC AVE., MONTREAL,
MARCH 1st. 1912.

"For years, I suffered from Rheumatism, being unable to work for weeks at a time and spent hundreds of dollars on doctor's medicines, besides receiving treatment at Notre Dame Hospital where I was informed that I was incurable. I was discouraged when a friend advised me to try "Fruit-a-tives". After using three packages, I felt relieved and continued until I had used five packages when a complete cure was the result after years of doctoring failed. I consider "Fruit-a-tives" a wonderful remedy. You are at liberty to use this testimonial to prove to others the good that "Fruit-a-tives" has done me"

HOW ANIMALS BEAR PAIN

One of the most pathetic things is the manner in which the animal kingdom endures suffering says a writer in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. Take horses for instance, in battle. After the first shock of a wound they make no sound. They bear the pain with a mute, wondering endurance, and if at night you hear a wild groan from the battlefield it comes from their loneliness their loss of that human companionship which seems absolutely indispensable to the comfort of domesticated animals.

The dog will carry a broken leg for days wistfully, but uncomplaining.

The cat, stricken with stick or stone or caught in some trap from which it knows its way to freedom, crawls to some secret place and bears in silence pain which we could not endure.

Sheep and cattle meet the thrust of the butcher's knife without a sound, and even common poultry endure intense agony without complaint.

The dove, shot unto death, flies to some far-off bough, and as it dies the silence is unbroken save the patter on the leave of its own life-blood.

The wounded deer speeds to some thick brake and in pitiful submission waits for death.

The eagle, struck in midair, fights to the last against the fatal summons. There is no moan or sound of pain, and the defiant look never fades from its eyes until the lids close over them never to recover again.

Work For All at Home

A man named Gaffey applied to the Athlone Board of Guardians for help to take himself and his family to Canada. He said they were badly in need of clothes, and he understood the guardians gave assistance to emigrants under such circumstances. He had received passages to bring out his family from relatives abroad. The High Sheriff: "There is plenty of work for laborers in Ireland who are able to work." "I know from experience a man could get as good a living in this country as in any country in the world." said another officer. The application was refused.

BEFORE TREATMENT

AFTER TREATMENT

Peter E. Summers relates his experience:
"I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay it to indiscretion and excesses in youth. I became very despondent and didn't care whether I worked or not. I imagined everybody who looked at me guessed my secret. Imaginative dreams at night weakened me—my back ached, had pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes blurred, hair loose, memory poor, etc. Numbness in the fingers set in and the doctor told me he feared paralysis. I took all kinds of medicines and tried many first-class physicians, wore an electric belt for three months, but received little benefit. I was induced to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I commenced the NEW METHOD TREATMENT and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I could feel the vigor going through the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically. I have sent them many patients and continue to do so.

FLEEING FROM MEXICO

First Effect of Wilson's Warning Seen at El Paso.

EL PASO, Texas, Aug. 30.—With white flags posted in conspicuous places along the coaches, the first trainload of American refugees to reach the border since President Wilson's warning for them to leave Mexico, arrived here yesterday. There were 55 Americans, many prominent Mexican families of Chihuahua, and a carload of 75 Chinese on the special train. Border points west of El Paso report refugees are crossing the border daily, coming out of Mexico overland, and making their way here. The majority of the men, women and children in the party yestrday were from Madera, Chihuahua, from the colony of the Pearson Lumber Co., and others were from the mining camps in the same district.

They reported that preparations were being made by Americans in every camp to leave Mexico as soon as they can secure transportation. Those needing assistance will be given aid by American Consul T. D. Edwards, stationed at Jaures. The Chinese were detained at the immigration station, where they will be cared for by the Government. The refugees reported the annihilation of a federal command of 1,200 by rebels under Villa and Ortega at San Andres, west of Chihuahua, on Aug. 26. All but Gen. Felix Terrazas and thirty of his Federals were reported slaughtered, and seven trains seized by the rebels.

Not Encouraging.

LONDON, Aug. 30.—The London morning papers continue to find little reason for encouragement in the situation between Mexico and the United States, and express the strongest doubt as to the wisdom of Presidnet Wilson's policy, mainly on the ground that Mexico is not yet fitted for democratic government.

The Daily Telegraph fails to see how even the acceptance of Mr. Wilson's conditions by Gen. Huerta would operate to bring about peace and security in Mexico, and contends that, whether wise or unwise the refusal of the United States to recognise the Huerta administration has created an unfortunate situation.

Referring to Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson's advocacy of recognition and the fact that the Mexican congress, although it was "made" by Madero, nevertheless acquiesced in Huerta's Government. The Telegraph says that it is difficult to avoid the conclusion that President Wilson's demand bear rather hardly on the Huerta Government, suggesting that the American antagonism to Huerta is due to the belief that he is a confirmed enemy to American interests, while Madero always proclaimed himself a champion of those interests.

The article proceeds: "Nothing could be more deplorable than the developments in this situation along the lines of an open feud between the anti-Huertist American trade interests and the pro-Huertist trade in the other foreign nations."

The Daily Graphic asks, if Secretary Bryan regards the situation as encouraging, why troops are being rushed to the frontier, and says that President Wilson's policy is interesting as an idealist experiment in international politics, but, carried out logically and consistently, must end in intervention.

2,000 MILES AFTER MURDERER.

Constables In North Take Long and Lonely Tramps With Prisoners.

TORONTO, Aug. 30.—Provincial Policeman Grassick, of Schreiber, after a tramp of over a hundred miles through the woods in the north country, is back again to civilization, accompanied by Paul Laminard, whose arrest was effected at Oba for the murder of Pedro Supernavitch on Aug. 17. Constable Grassick marched his man through the lonely forest, sleeping at night handcuffed to his man.

An accomplice named Bontin has been arrested by Constable Symonds, of Sault Ste. Marie. Peter Yong and Michael Sullivan have also been arrested in connection with the affair. In all Constables Symonds and Grassick traveled over 2,000 miles to effect the arrest of the murderer and his accomplice.

Curios Caused Two Deaths.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Thousands of curios gathered in many lands and stacked high in the apartments of Hipolito Uriarte, aged 82, for fifty years a Spanish consul, fed a fire kindled in lighting a cigar early yesterday and blocked the way of the aged diplomatist and his wife to safety. Uriarte was found dead, leaning across a window sill; his wife mistook a window leading to an airshaft for an opening on a fire escape and plunged four stories to her death.

Uriarte was for fourteen years Spanish consul general in New York. His last service was in Canada. The aged couple had been up until a late hour celebrating the homecoming of their son from Cuba.

Fishing From Aeroplane.

PARIS, Aug. 30.—Aviator Levasseur is amusing himself at Deauvilles waterplane meet by fishing from his flying machine during the immobility tests. Levasseur says the late Wm. Latham, who was killed while hunting big game, used his aeroplane for shooting purposes, and he has now extended its sporting uses to fishing. He had some fine catches.

May Avert Strike.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Aug. 30.—The street railway company has made one o rtwo concessions regarding working hours which are more favorable to the men than the find'ng of the arbitration board and a rather better feeling exists to-day.

REBUILDING AT ONCE.

London Fair's Fire Will Not Affect the Show.

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 30.—Exactly on week before the opening day of London's big exhibition, the Western Fair, fire destroyed five buildings. But before the smouldering embers were all extinguished, workmen were clearing away the debris, and timber was on the ground for the new buildings that will be rushed to completion during the next few days and nights. The five buildings destroyed were the Cement Products building, the Machinery Hall, Transportation building, horse shed, and the W.C.T.U. dining hall. The swine shed and boiler house were also damaged. The total loss will be about $50,000, with insurance of nearly $30,000.

It was one of the most spectacular fires witnessed in London in a long time. Despite the heavy rains of the previous day, the wooden structures gave forth a blaze that could be seen for ten or fifteen miles, and although it was three o'clock in the morning when the fire department was called out, a great many citizens were attracted to the Fair grounds.

The cause of the fire is unknown, but early Thursday evening the department had been called to a fire in a box car on the siding on the Campbell street side of the Fair grounds fence, and had put out an incipient blaze there. It is said that the man who gave the first alarm saw two men light a match near the car, and the suspicion is entertained that the men were firebugs, and returned later at night and succeeded in their purpose.

Thomas Hall of 22 Campbell street, on his way to work at the Grand Trunk at three o'clock, saw the Fair buildings in flames and turned in an alarm from the car shops. Thinking it was the car shops that were on fire, hose was run along the wrong street and a short delay caused. However, the firemen, under Acting Chief Scott, battled valiantly with the spreading blaze and succeeded in saving the grand stand and other of the nearer structures.

PEACE APOSTLE HONORED,

Bust of Sir William Randal Cremer Unveiled at The Hague.

THE HAGUE, Aug. 30.—The ceremony of the unveiling yesterday by Andrew Carnegie of a bust of the late Sir William Randal Cremer in the hall of justice of the new peace palace was the occasion for a great demonstration in favor of the peace movement. Sir William Randal Cremer was the originator of the interparliamentary conferences, a winner of the Nobel peace prize, and for 37 years secretary of the International Arbitration League.

The hall was crowded for the ceremony. Among those in attendance were members of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, the International Arbitration League and the Interparliamentary Union. Mr. Carnegie was loudly cheered as he entered the hall and his speech was frequently punctuated with applause.

The Rt. Hon. Thomas Burt, dean of the British House of Commons, replied to Mr. Carnegie. He said that all things pointed favorably to the realization of Cremer's dream of universal peace, despite the Balkan war.

Lord Weardale, president of the Interparliamentary Union, eulogized Mr. Carnegie, who, he said, had provided Cremer with means which enabled him to accomplish so much in behalf of the peace movement.

NO ADDITIONS TO LIST.

Excavations at Peterboro Reveal No Further Casualties.

PETERBORO, Aug. 30.—Anxiety on the part of relatives and friends of persons at first unaccounted for as a result of the disaster at Turnbull's store has been dispelled by a satisfactory answer to all enquiries and the death and injured list has not been increased.

All the injured are reported to be resting comfortably. Mrs. Finley of Norwood is not so seriously hurt as at first thought. Her back is not broken.

A thorough investigation into the collapse is promised by Coroner Greer. Pending the resumption of the inquest on Thursday night next, the ruins will be inspected by a number of architects from other cities and their evidence bearing on the probable causes leading up to the disaster, will be laid before the jurors.

In the opinion of local builders changes and additions that had been made from time to time since the original structure was erected about fifty years ago had weakened the walls and foundation to such an extent that ultimate collapse was almost inevitable.

Inherits Victim's Estate.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Aug. 30.—Occupying a cell, in the penitentiary death house and facing the scaffold, J. Warren Jenkins, condemned wife-murderer, has won in the courts an important point in his fight for the $25,000 estate of his victim.

Jenkins murdered his wife a year ago, less than a year after her marriage. He was convicted and sentenced to be hanged last October, but appealed to the Supreme Court, which has not yet reached a decision in his case.

Judge Mentzer now decides that Wyoming law does not prohibit a wife-murderer from inheriting his victim's estate.

Turkey Trot Disorderly.

MUNICH, Aug. 30.—That dancing the turkey trot constitutes disorderly conduct is the decision of one of the highest German courts.

At Toeltz, a small health resort, twenty-six miles from Munich a Berlin merchant and a young woman were arrested for dancing the turkey trot in a public dance hall. The lower court acquitted the prisoners, but the high court confirmed the ruling of the district court, declaring the question to be not whether the turkey trot is forbidden, but whether the couple were guilty of disorderly conduct.

MILLENNIUM FAR OFF

Viscount Haldane Thinks Peace Ideal Must Evolve.

Celebrated English Jurist, Statesman and Scholar Arrives In New York on His Way to Montreal—Home Rule For Ireland an Accomplished Fact He Believes—Wary on Mexican Crisis.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Viscount Haldane, the First Lord High Chancellor of Great Britain to leave his country since Cardinal Wolsey went to France four hundred years ago, arrived here yesterday on the steamship Lusitania for a flying visit of five days to attend the American Bar Association's convention in Montreal, where he will speak on Monday.

Lord Haldane freely discussed many questions of the day, declaring that he was in favor of woman suffrage, prophesied that a millennium of peace was far off, said that the relations between Germany and Britain were never more cordial, praised the intellectual growth of the United States and predicted that Home Rule for Ireland would soon be an accomplished fact.

"It would be a very sanguine person," he said, when asked his opinion of the influence of the peace palace at The Hague, "who can see the dawn of international peace. It is useless to look ahead toward the permanent cessation of war in the near future. We can only do our best and trust to the progress of opinion. The coming of the millennium of peace must be an evolution, like everything else, but some day we must come to the realization of the fact that we can settle our differences in a better way than by quarreling with each other."

Speaking of home rule for Ireland he said: "Home rule was never nearer adoption than it is to-day, and I believe it will soon be an accomplished fact. Of course the religious question in Ulster is difficult, but you can't keep the hands of the clock from advancing."

The chancellor refused to discuas the Mexican situation except to say that he was "confident that the United States would deal with the question in the broad way in which it had treated other great problems."

FIREBUG BUSY.

Toronto Is Scene of Numerous Incendiary Blazes.

TORONTO, Aug. 30.—The incendiary fires that have been keeping the fire brigade and the police on the qui vive for the past five weeks cannot be the work of one man, according to the opinion of officials of both departments, who have been investigating the ravages that have been committed during that period.

Last night a new scene of operations was chosen by the incendiaries and the firemen in the western end of the city were kept busy for some hours. The stable occupied by Mr. J. C. Keenan, of 38 Madison avenue, on Euclid avenue was the first object of attack, but the firemen managed to get the fire under control with a loss of not more than $20. Before the firemen had returned from this fire an alarm was rung in from Harbord street, where a fire was discovered in the store of James Compton, clothes presser, at number 160. The cause here was also incendiary and the loss amounted to $10 to the building and $20 to the contents. A few minutes later an alarm come in from 173 Brunswick avenue. The stable in the rear of this house was set fire to by an incendiary and damage amounting to $90 was done.

Bloody Battle With Gypsies.

MONTPELIER, France, Aug. 30.—A band of 150 gypsies yesterday attacked the inhabitants of the town of Lunel with guns and revolvers. Gendarmes engaged the gypsies and a pitched battle ensued in which one gendarme was kilid and three were badly wounded.

The fighting of the gypsies was so fierce that they even held out against a company of soldiers for a time. When they fled they left a large number of wounded behind them.

The attack had its origin in a differance of opinion between the gypsies and the townspeople in Lunel.

C. M. B. A. To Increase Rates.

HAMILTON, Aug. 30.—The Catholic Mutual Benefit Association yesterday discussed a recommendation from the insurance department at Ottawa that it increase its rates so that the assets would equal all liabilities. This suggestion was made at the last two conventions, but no action taken. Now the Government is practically forcing it, and the matter was left in the hands of the Grand Lodge officers to meet the Government's wishes.

It was decided to hold the next convention in Quebec.

Body In Lake.

ST. CATHARINES, Aug. 30.—Thursday passengers on the Dalhousie City sighted a body floating in the lake, about ten miles from the south shore, which is likely that of Harry Taylor, a victim of the Etobicoke River drowning accident on Aug. 19. William Knitzell of Port Dalhousie, who picked up the body of Lloyd Findlay, the other victim, Wednesday night, prepared to go out after the body in his motor boat, but hesitated on account of the storm signals.

Favor Dominion Association.

KINGSTON, Aug. 30.—The members of the Provincial Association of Fire Chiefs expressed their approval of the formation of a Dominion Association at yesterday morning's session. The feeling was that through this association more pressure could be brought to bear to have better laws enforced for fire protection. It was held that the present laws for fire protection were very lax; that, in fact, there was no law to meet certain conditions.

YOUR OLD SKIRT

How to Renew the Life of a Favorite Article of Dress

We all know that it is to possess a skirt to which we have become attached, but which, in spite of our care, is beginning to look old and shabby. To any woman desirous of rendering such a skirt almost new again, the following hints will be both useful and practicable, as they have been tried and proved.

The first thing to do is to have the skirt cleaned or washed. It is quite easy to wash a serge skirt at home. Get a tub of warm soapy water, put the skirt in it, and "dolly" it. If you have not a regular "dolly," a very good plan is to turn the wash board upside down, and, holding the legs firmly, thoroughly pummel the skirt with the top end of the board.

Rub soap on the dirtiest parts, and give them special attention. Two washes will be sufficient, and two good rinses in warm water. Shake thoroughly, and hang to dry the right way up. On no account hang by the hem. When dry—by-the-by, it should be dried in the open air—you must set about the work of renovation with needle and thread.

First darn any holes there may be in the body of the skirt. Do not attempt to mend the band, as this will receive attention later. When you have done this, you can start on the bottom of the skirt. This should be bound with narrow binding, put on much in the manner of a false hem.

Now you must see what can be done to the top of the skirt. First you must carefully unpick, not cut off, the old waistbelt. If you find, when you have done this, that the pins which pin up your skirt have torn holes in the stuff below the waistbelt, get some material and lightly sew patches underneath the holes, then neatly darn down on the outside.

Fit the skirt on, and if, as sometimes happens, the stug has stretched, pin darts towards the back of the skirt; run up and cut open, damp the seams, and iron flat with a hot iron. Next, cut your webbing for the waistband, and tack on, inside and out. If you have a machine, it will be stronger if you stitch on the band by machine, but it will do quite well if done by hand.

Lastly, tack and iron down any pleats that are in the skirt. It is not necessary to iron the skirt itself, as, if well shaken before being dried, there will be no creases.

Take out any tacking threads you have put in, and the task is finished. You will be surprised to find how fresh your skirt looks, well repaying you for the trouble you have taken. As will be seen, the cost is trivial, and, if followed carefully, these directions will prove very useful to the girl who has only a very modest dress allowance.

Cleaning a Kettle

To clean a furred iron kettle, fill with water, add a large tablespoonful of sal ammoniac, and boil it for some minutes. Then empty the kettle and stand it over the fire till it is red-hot, when the fur will peel off. After this, fill the kettle with soda and water, boiling up to cleanse it. Then empty and rinse in pure water, when it will be ready for use.

MRS. AMY D. WINSHIP

This remarkable old lady is believed to be the oldest "college girl" on record. She is 82 years old and for the past three years has been a student at the University of Wisconsin. She likes college life and declares she will continue to study at the University till she is ninety. In the meantime she hopes to take several degrees. Mrs. Winship has been a believer in votes for women for 65 years.

THE WIFE

I am young, O shaggy mountains; I am young and you are old;
You are mighty, brooding pines, and
I am small;
And your great, gaunt shadows crush me with a horror still and cold
And your sullen silence holds me like a pall.

Just to-day I went for water to a little silver spring
Where the air was sweet and scarlet berries grew;
And my dreams came flocking home-
wards and my haunting fears
[illegible] wing
Till the night crawled forth to meet me. Then I knew.

I am stranger to your silence; I am alien to your might;
I am longing for a little, laughing world
Where the days went dancing past me, for my heart was very light—
And from many friendly hearths the smoke upcurled.

Yet he loves you, lonely mountains,
and he says he loves me, too.
And his cabin nestles trusting at your feet;
But my heart is torn with longing for the gentle land I knew—
And the careless hours when life was very sweet.

Will you always frown upon me through the weary, weary years
Till my dream home fades to silence and to night?
I was gay, O brooding mountains, till you taught me pain and tears.
I am alien to your solitude and might.

LEPROSY AND FISH

Noted Surgeon's Death Recalls His Theories of Disease

Sir Jonathan Hutchinson, the famous surgeon, who died at Haslemere, England, at the age of eighty-four, devoted much time to the study of the origin of leprosy. He formed the theory that the disease was due to the eating of diseased or imperfectly cured fish, and to confirm his view he set out at the age of seventy for a long tour in India and Robben Island, Cape Colony. His writings did much to secure better conditions for leprosy sufferers.

In bygone times, he once wrote, I used to call leprosy "fish-eaters' gout"; but he latterly preferred the description, "fish-eaters' tuberculosis."

Leprosy, he said again, advanced in inland districts of Europe with the advent of Christianity, and the observance of fish fasts, and it disappeared when Protestantism threw these fasts into disuse. This contention brought him into conflict with the heads of the Roman Catholic Church.

Sir Jonathan, who lived in Haslemere for fifty years, was the founder of the educational museum there, the superintendence of which he counted as one of his recreations.

Cleaning Combs

Combs should not be washed. The water is apt to split the teeth. Use an old, fairly stiff nail brush, working the bristles in and out, well, between the teeth until all dirt and fluff are removed. Then wipe comb carefully on a damp cloth.

A CLEVER HORSE

It has often been said that there is as much difference in horses as in people. They differ in looks, in color, in spirit, in endurance, in disposition and in intelligence. There is no denying there are very stupid horses. Many of us know also that theres not a few clever as to startle us with what seems an almost human faculty. One of the best we ever owned, with an absolute perfect disposition, could free herself from the halter with a facility that was at once astonishing and amusing. When one device for prevnting this trick was apparently pondered over by her and its secret solved we tried another. At last we matched her shrewdnss, and th first morning she was found with the halter on she seemed, to our imagination no doubt, to admit by the look in her eye that we had been too much for her.

A story from a Massachusetts town has just come to us of a horse that had learned how to turn the water on to the trough in his stall by working the faucet with his teeth. He never turned it off, however, and so it was taken out and a shut-off placed near the rear of the stall. His owners aver that, standing in the stall, untied a rope behind him, he has now learned to turn around, reach out some three feet and open the new faucet.

But they have their limits. We know of one which will come from any part of the stable and back into the shafts when the carriage is headed toward the exit. Turn the carriage th other way and she will promptly walk into the shafts with her nose over the dashboard.

THREE INJURED IN ACCIDENT

TORONTO, Aug. 29.—Three people were badly injured in an automobile accident last night on the Weston road, when an auto containing the owner, Mr. W. A. Duncan, and his wife, fell into a ditch. The car is a big seven-passenger Russell, and their driver attempted to get out of the way of David Granger. Owing to the slippery condition of the road, however, due to the rain, the car skidded and with its occupants was deposited in a ditch, Granger being struck and hurt by the car as it passed him.

Mr. and Mrs. Duncan were removed from the car, which fortunately did not turn turtle, and, with Granger, were immediately rushed to the surgery of Dr. Charles Gilmour, 566 Keele street, in Speer's ambulance. After their injuries were attended to they were taken home.

CHAPTTR XIX.

Mrs. Haskell's Inspiration.

The following morning Mrs. Haskell appropriated me with the distinct but laughing understanding that all others must give way. I was to be her exclusive company for the entire morning, and under no conditions would intrusions be permitted.

"I want you all to myself," she said, as we seated ourselves in the buggy that awaited us at the side door, and the handsome roadster started at a swinging gait along the smooth driveway leading to the public road. "I have so many questions to ask about your darling mother that I scarcely know where to begin."

As she plied me with questions regarding our city life, and I told her of the struggles, the sacrifices, the failures and successes, the sorrows and joys of the score and two years—a period during which the girl friends had not once met—the tender heart swelled with emotion, and the eyes filled with sympathetic tears.

"I have often thought that the mistake of your father's life was in leaving the farm for a less substantial city existence; it is but an existence compared to the freedom of a rounded country life. The farm was paid for, well equipped, and quite as productive as our own. I tried to persuade them to rest content, but to no purpose, as your father was ambitious, and a year later, when your grandfather sold the much loved home and went to live with them, he and your grandmother were broken with grief.

"I could never feel that it was right to compel the old couple to sell for want of a young hand to assist in carrying on the work, after striving so long and successfully to bring the land into a paying condition; and it nearly broke my own heart when Theresa went away; it was like losing an own sister. Your coming yesterday so revived old memories that I had to run away and cry. It also affected Samson; and upon retiring we related incident after incident with which your parents were connected, until we both fell asleep through sheer vocal exaaustion."

"But father has succeeded," I contended. "He has advanced steadily the past few years. True, we are not quite free from the financial woods, but we are rapidly approaching the border, and will soon enter the clearing of easy living. The business is constantly increasing, and our home is free from debt."

"Ah, but at what a cost, Ranny. Financial stress, physical and mental exhaustion, and a constant looking forward to less stringent circumstances, which came only after hope had all but departed. How often has my mind pictured Theresa working far into the night, making suits for little Ranny from Papa's cast-off clothes; turning her own threadbare dress, or remodeling it for one of the girls; the dear eyes heavy, and the overworked hands ready to drop. I can see the tears flow down the once red cheeks as a picture of the old home flits before her mental vision; the rag carpet on the little parlor floor, the melodeon in the corner, the pictures on the walls, and the many little articles so dear to the heart of a girl; her father and mother's cosy bedroom off the parlor; the spotless dining room and kitchen. But most sacred of them all, her own sunny chamber, where I have stayed with her many a night. Ah, Ranny, you may think me a whimsical old woman, but you, in ambitious youth, little realize the power of awakened memories upon the hearts of much loved but long separated friends. But enough of this, or I will tire you," and with a little laugh she was once more the fascinating, motherly woman I had already learned to love dearly.

A half hour's drive—we had taken the round-about road through the village that we might pass my father's old home—and we arrived at the Daniel Harding place. It was indeed in a state of decay. The roof was minus many a shingle, and the exterior as a whole sadly in need of repair and paint. The front fence was partially broken down, the gate hingeless, and the yard filled with weeds.

Could this be the home that mother had so often referred to with pride—the home in which she had been given to the world,—every board, shingle and nail as a part of her life? Was it here she toddled about in childhood, romped in girlhood, entertained her friends in young woman-hood, and gave the sacred promise to the man of her choice?

Here her parents had died within a year following her marriage, when the property, stock and furniture were sold, from which she realized two thousand dollars in cash,—a sum that bridged many a trying experience in later years. Surely the conditions had greatly changed; she could not now recognize the old home in its present state of decay. It would rend her heart to look upon it now.

The barn, the corncrib, the hennery and pigpen were in a like state of dilapidation, and wherever my eyes rested similar neglected conditions were apparent. Slowly we walked past the house, past the barn, past the corncrib, the hennery and pigpen, through the rank weeks, to where the land abruptly dropped to a ravine-like plain. From this elevation we looked down upon a pretty brook, the clear waters of which gurgled cheerily as they sped on their way to the lake, making the southern and western boundary line of the valuable Haskell estate. The brook alone was the same as in Mother's day; the brook she had many times stripped her feet to cross, and into which, from the brow of the hill where we now stood, she had once rolled, much to her discomfort.

Returning to the house, we entered through the rear door, which was ajar. The interior was, if possible, in a worse state than the outside. Much plaster had fallen from the walls and ceiling; many squares of glass were broken; and the centre of one window sash was completely wrecked as the result of some mischievous boy's straight throw. The parlor was empty and desolate, as were the several rooms throughout the house. My companion opened the cellar door, but a foul breeze caused her to quickly shut it. The scene made me heart sick for Mother's sake, and I noticed a tremulous quiver in Mrs. Haskell's breathing as we went from room to room.

Then to the chamber we ascended, the banister of the stairway scarcely withstanding a hand's weight.

"It is not as when your mother occupied it," remarked my hostess with an effort. "This is the first time I have entered it since she went away. Her heart was near to breaking as she stood here for the last time, and we knew it was about to be transferred to strangers. I should not want your mother to see it now; her heart would surely break, she loved it so.

"Here was the head of the bed, and it stood lengthwise of the room," continued Mrs. Haskell, stepping to the left of the window. "The bureau stood here and the commode here," crossing to the opposite side of the window, and then midway to one side of the room, following with an exact location of chairs and other articles of furniture and small furnishings, until I seemed to see the one-time arrangement in detail.

As we were returning to the lower floor, a light appeared upon Mrs. Haskell's countenance, as though a revelation direct from heaven had come to her. I shall never forget the glory that shone from the beautiful features as the brown eyes flashed with a new purpose, and her very being seemed to thrill with unspeakable joy.

Then a spirit of action possessed her. Not a nook or corner escaped her critical inspection. Despite the foul cellar air, she threw open the door, and gathering her skirts, descended; nor did she return until the foundation walls and timbers had been carefully looked over, when she returned to the living room, her face still shining with secret happiness, just as a cheery voice from without reached us:

"Clear the fence, Beauty," and an instant later a magnificent black charger dashed past the window toward the barn, carrying a graceful form I instinctively knew to be that of Miss Haskell.

We hastened to the front door, but quickly as we moved, the expert young rider had slipped from the saddle and met us at the threshold.

"Why, Rebekah," exclaimed the mother; "how did you know we were here?"

"I surmised," was the mischievous reply. "But I fear dipping into the past is making my esteemed mother reckless of her personal appearance," and the fun-loving eyes met mine, her superb form showing to advantage in the becoming riding outfit.

And sure enough; Mrs. Haskell's skirt was a mass of thistles and burrs, to say nothing of dust and cobwebs, accumulated in our tour of inspection.

"No thank you, Mr. Rollins; I'll not go in," as I stepped aside to allow her to enter the door. "You are Mother's company just now, and intrusion is dangerous; so I will be off in a moment. Do you think of buying the old place?"

"There is but one reason why I should wish to do so; and even then the cost of repairs would make it an expensive investment."

"It will be a wonder if Mother does not buy it for the sake of old friendships, upon which subject she and Father are everlastingly enthusiastic. Why, Mr. Rollins, if you wish to hear tales of wondrous valor, just get Father started on that portion of Bentley's history which deals with his courtship with Mother, in which your father was a strenuous rival, and your mother an angel of comfort. You will never forget it," and with a merry laugh she turned and walked toward her grazing horse. Before she could accept or decline my assistance, I had lifted her to the saddle and placed the reins in her hands.

"Thank you so much, Mr. Rollins." Then, leaning downward, and speaking in strict confidence: "You would make a most useful acquisition to the Haskell family;" with which unmerciful flash of wit she gave her steed free rein, shot over the fence, and sped in the direction whither we had come.

"A beautiful young lady is your daughter," I remarked to Mrs. Haskell, after watching the horse and rider until a bend in the road hid them from sight.

"But far more noble, and true as steel," was the fervent reply.

An hour later we drove into the home yard, and upon entering the house through the kitchen door, I found Miss Haskell, attired in a prettily made calico dress, protected by a large bib-apron and sleevelets, assisting in the preparation of the noonday meal. Nor did our unannounced appearance in the least dampen the lady's good nature on account of menial work. She was a farmer's daughter, and she gloried in the title.

To me Miss Haskell was prettier than ever in her simple garb, and her many-sided accomplishments were a revelation.
